"Lou" Wiltse, who is planning to put a fast team in this city next season, is already meeting with much encouragement from the fans. He would do the pitching himself and fill the other positions with players of recognized ability.

The Plainfield Baseball club held a meeting last night and talked over the season's work. Official anonuncement of the close of the schedule was made and arrangements for a banquet were discussed.

GOLF.

Tomorrow there will be a one-day tournament at the Hackensack Golf Club for women affiliated with clubs in the metropolitan district. There will be an eighteen-hole handicap in the morning with two net prizes and one gross prize. Putting and aprpoaching will claim attention in the afternoon.

Although handicapped by unusual expenses coincident with the removal to its new home at Soho, and the lengthening of its eigheen-hole course, the Forest Hill Field Club was able to show a substantial balance in the treasury at the annual meeting on Saturday. The treasurer reported that the receipts for the year had been $19,084.81 and the expenditures $18,066.90, leaving a balance of $1,017.71. The assets of the club are $10,030, as against liabilities of $6,758.02. There are now 321 members on the roster, no less than 145 having joined during the year. The following officers were elected:

President, Judge T. J. Lintott; vice-president, W. W. Lyons; treasurer, Robert Kuebler; secretary, William H. Dale; financial secretary, Alfred Sykes; trustees, Elias G. Heller; C. A. Seely, Thomas Allsopp and Harry B. Salmon.

A dinner following the meeting was attended by more than a hundred and fifty members. Earlier in the day one of the largest fields in the history of the organization took part in an eighteen-hole medal play handicap, and in Class A J. T. Smith, 79, 9-70; E. F. Allsopp, 78, 11-67, which counts 70, according to the club rule; E. W. Pierson, 83, 13-70, and A. E. Allsopp, 83, 13-70, tied for first place. The club championship final round, a thirty-six-hole affair, was won by John J. Radel, who defeated Harry Christi, 6 up and 4 to play. Radel stood 2 up at the end of the morning round and his card for the day read 165, as against 169 for Christi. The winner drove long balls and played steadier than usual, while Christi had an off day in putting.

The seventeenth semi-annual hole, medal play, handicap tournament of the University Club Golf Association will be held at St. Andrews on Wednesday, October 20. Handicaps will be based on this metropolitan ratings and prizes have been guaranteed for the three best net scores. The courtesy of the links is extended to participants from date of entry with the secretary. Entries should be made in writing to Arthur H. Lockett, No. 25 Pine street, before 3 p. m. of Tuesday, October 19. The committee consists of Robert L. Harrison, chairman; B. B. Lawrence, A. Leo Everett, John Reid, Jr., and Arthur H. Lockett, secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Fred Dixon, of West Fifth street, has about recovered from a recent illness.

Plainfield, N. J., October 13, 1909.

HERE AND THERE.

Justice Snape recently had a case before him wherein one of the parties was represented by a bright and brainy attorney just out of law school. The young man of law gave severe grillings to the most trivial witnesses. He seemed to find delight in doing it. He fairly jumped for joy when one opposing witness admitted having been in prison.

"Ha!" he sniffed. "Any why?"

"For assault with intent to kill," owned the discomfited witness.

"Indeed," flashed the youth. "And when?"

"In 1898," said the witness weakly.

"And so you attempt to testify against my client," roared the youngster, "just a few years after you are out of jail for committing a grave crime?"

The poor witness was to frightened to reply.

"Answered my questions," bellowed the youth. "How long were you in prison?"

"One week at the time I escaped," came the answer.

"Jumping Jupiter," screamed the youth, "does the opposition hope to win its case through the perjured testimony of fugitives from justice? Your Honor," turning to Justice Snape, "I ask you to order the arrest of this man."

"Are you speaking the truth?" the Justice asked the witness, preparatory to arresting him.

"I am on my oath," simply said the witness.

"Then I must order your detention," said the court.

"Just a minute," said the witness. "Here are a few further facts, which the government records can corroborate. I enlisted in the Seventy-first New York in the War with Spain and was captured at San Juan Hill. I was taken to Morro Castle, Havana, from which I escaped a week later."

Of course, he wasn't arrested, and of course the young lawyer gave his tongue a little rest after that.

AUTOMOBILE SERVICE IN PLACE OF TROLLEY

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of State for the Sub Urban Motor Transit Company, a transportation system to operate between Elizabeth and South Amboy. This is to be established in place of the recently proposed trolley line, which had to be abandoned on account of the limited franchise law.

For more than a dozen years merchants and representative men in the local communities from Elizabeth to Perth Amboy have studied the problem of how to provide the much-needed transportation facilities in that field. No section of the State with such rapid growth and industrial development is as poorly provided with local transportation facilities as these cities and towns.

While the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Central railroads operate a through service, they do not reach out into the environs of these new communities scattered below Elizabeth and give the local service required. Efforts have been made to get trolley lines established over all parts of the route. A trolley system from Elizabeth to Perth Amboy would cost about $600,000, it is said. The cost of putting on ten first-class motor cars of the Suburban Transit Company will be about $50,000, and it can be equipped and in fall operation in from sixty to ninety days. The cars which the new company proposes to use are of modern construction, stormproof, forty-horsepower, capable of carrying thirty passengers each. The engine is of the usual four-cylinder gasoline type, and the cars will be provided with solid steel wheels, solid rubber tires, with spring seats and cushion upholstery.

The company claims it will be able to furnish good transportation, even during the most severe weather. The capital stock of the new company is $100,000, with share values of $10 each.

The principals interested in the project are Edwin Simpson, of New York; Maximillian Kahn, the New York banker; former United States Senator Richard F Pettgrew, George H. Atkinson, of Jersey City; Charles A. Trimble, of Elizabeth; Clarence H. Winans, of Lindon; Joseph H. McClary, of Rahway, and others.

The board of directors will be made up of merchants and representative men along the line. J. A. McClary has been elected general manager, and will have charge of the system, with headquarters at Rahway.

Twenty-two thousand dollars in cash has been pledged for immediate equipment purposes, and the company will begin business at once.

A suitable property has been purchased at Rahway for a carhouse, which will be the centre of the system. The company will also operate a public taxicab service at all principal railroad stations and furnish automobiles for public hire.

WEALTHY WIFE SAYS HUSBAND DESERTED HER.

Paterson, Oct. 13.—After being married two weeks and four days, Mrs. Robert Hiscock, who was Miss Jeanette Suffern, the only living descendant of the oldest and richest family in the Ramapo Valley, complained to Justice of the Peace John Keys Monday that her husband had deserted her after a quarrel. She is sixty-four years old and her husband twenty-three. He claims to be descendant of the Hiscocks who came over in the Mayflower.

Mrs. Hiscock says when her husband departed he took $500 of her money and some of her jewelry. She also claimed to have discovered that Hiscock has another wife, formerly Nellie Richardson, whom he married in New York two years ago. Hiscock is believed to have gone to Seattle.

DECIDES MATRIMONIAL SUIT.

Washington, N. J., Oct. 13.—Justice of the Peace J. R. Lindaberry has given his decision in the suit brought by Lewis Levin, a Jewish peddler, against Alonzo J. Bryan. The justice gave Levin six cents and thus placed the costs on Bryan. Levin brought suit for $25, which he claimed Bryan had promised him if he would get him (Bryan) a wife. That was some years ago, when Bryan was a bachelor. Since then he had married a woman of his own choosing, and she was in court yesterday to represent her husband. The latter was too busy on his farm to be present.

In giving voice to his opinion, Justice Lindaberry stated that he thought Levin was entitled to six cents, and that he should also be allowed to keep the bushel of turnips that Bryan admitted he had paid on account. Mrs. Bryan laughed heartily at the decision, and promised that her husband would pay the sum demanded, and that the justice would also be sure of the costs.

EVILS OF THE TARIFF

cause they do not stop to think what they are doing. A simple matter may become complicated through a misunderstanding, but whether you are entitled to your living at a reasonable cost ought to make you stop and think why it costs so much to live. There is too much talk about superficial things and too little about the very fundamentals while the Republicans win because of their cohesion.

"On tradition the protective tariff is a good thing for the country and has been for forty years, and without this principle of protection there would be no excuse for the existence of the party. The Republican believes in a strong government. His philosophy leads him to a limitation of liberty, while the Democrat stands for the expansion of liberty. The Republican thinks the government is above him while the Democrat should and does think that he is a part of the government.

"When the Democratic party has departed from this principle it has lost in national elections. Since the Civil War the country has been under the control of the Republicans and only by a return to the original principles of Democracy can the Democrats hope to regain their hold. The average American does not think intelligently of these things. If we had no protective tariff we would not have any trusts and wages would compare more favorably with the actual cost of living. Each of these difficulties are explainable in the statement of the cost of living and all is due to the protective tariff, and you can't have a protective tariff and not have corruption."

Next Tuesday evening Edward L. Kenney, assemblyman from Jersey City, will address the members of the club. At the business meeting preceding the address by Mr. Moody a platform was adopted by the members in which local extravagances are scored.

PROOF WANTED IN HAYES ILLEGAL VOTING CASE

Because of the absence of the registry record, the case of Martin Neafsey versus James Hayes, accused of illegal registration in Elizabeth, has been postponed until tomorrow. A preliminary hearing took place before Judge James Kelley in Elizabeth on Monday night.

Martin Neafsey, the complaining witness, asserted that he saw Hayes vote. Hayes' counsel, John R. Connolly, insisted on documentary proof and refused to go on with the case until the election books were produced. Neither would he permit Hayes to testify as to whether or not he had voted, putting the proof of this on the plaintiffs. John J. Collins renewed the bond furnished last week for Hayes until Thursday evening.

The Hayes case is said to be a starter for others of the same kind to come up before election day. Threats and counter-threats are being made by the two factions in the First ward of Elizabeth, and it is rumored tonight that each faction has proof of illegal voting on primary day against many men.

Hayes was charged with registering in the first dictrict of the First Ward from a house where the plaintiffs contend he did not live. They say that he has no permanent home. The Leary faction are behind the prosecution.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Mr. Frelinghuysen's Ideas.

What should be a profitable rebuke of the too common "point with pride and view with alarm" style of political platform was made the other evening by Mr. Frelinghuysen, the president of the New Jersey State Senate, in discussing the question of the keeping or breaking of platform pledges. Giving such documents the credit—which we are not sure is always due them—of being thoughtfully prepared in good faith by the ablest advisers of the party conventions which adopt them, he remarked upon the circumstance that some of those very advisers subsequently urge legislatures to repudiate, or at least to postpone fulfilling, the very pledges which they themselves drafted for the party to make.

Sometimes, no doubt, unexpected changes in conditions, such as lack of funds, make such postponement expedient, if not necessary, though in a majority of such cases the changed conditions might probably be anticipated if proper discretion were exercised. In other cases the reason given is that the pledges were made too soon and in advance of popular demand or readiness for the reforms involved. But that pretext for postponement must be regarded as specious when the people by a decisive majority support the party which made the pledges and do so because of their expectation that it will promptly and faithfully fulfill them. Nothing could be more illogical than to make promises in order to secure votes and then to say that the voters do not want the promises fulfilled. People do not, as a rule, vote for things which they do not want.

Mr. Frelinghuysen was right, therefore, in urging either that platform makers should be more careful about the pledges which they put into those documents or that, if later they find it really undesirable to fulfill the pledges, they should have the manly courage and frankness to confess that they were in error in making them. The radical trouble doubtless lies in the attitude of mind and the purpose of the platform makers. Their chief aim is apparently to frame something which will attract support and win votes, when it should be to outline the policies which the party is prepared to pursue and which it honestly intends to pursue. If platforms were constructed with a view to their use after election as well as before it, there would be fewer complaints of broken faith and more confidence in the integrity of party leaders.—New York Tribune.

PIANO CONTEST FAKES EXPOSED!

IMPORTANT FACTS FOR HOLDERS OF GOLD BONDS, PIANO COUPONS AND DISCOUNT CERTIFICATES.

There are several Piano houses which have no prices for their goods except grossly inflated ones arranged expressly for fake discounts in connection with schemes of various kinds. These houses seem to find it impossible to dispose of their pianos in a legitimate, straightforward way, but instead resort to one scheme after another—catch-penny devices, so crude as to be positively insulting to the intelligence of the public. These schemes usually take the form of guessing contests, drawing puzzles and various feats of little skill. In all of them the object is identical to mislead the prospective buyer into the belief that he is getting something for nothing, while at the same time prices are arranged sufficiently high to off-set the allowance to which his prize certificate entitles him.

EVERYONE WHO MAKES A GUESS GETS A PRIZE!

If you have ever answered one of these ads you received a discount certificate. EVERYBODY DOES. It matters not whether the answer is good, bad or indifferent, from adult or child it draws a prize in the shape of a certificate or due bill (generally from $65.00 to $100.00) to apply on the purchase of a new Piano. Of course the price of the Piano is fixed accordingly and the purchaser pays a high price even after the amount of certificate is deducted, usually a much higher price than an instrument of similar quality could be secured for in any legitimate music store.

To test the value of one of these certificates present it in payment for something other than a new piano—say a low priced used piano, music cabinet or a bench, and see how quickly the dealer will turn you down. He will not even give you 50 cents worth of music for it. Try the experiment!

AT $185.00 WE WILL SELL A BETTER PIANO THAN THE SCHEME HOUSES ASK $325.00 TO $400.00 FOR! Such well known and high grade makes as Haines Bros., Brewster, the Genuine Mathushek and others too numerous to mention.

PEARY'S EVIDENCE AGAINST DR. COOK

Alleges Cook Did Not Reach North Pole.

PROOF OF STATEMENT.

Witnesses Quoted Are Cook's Eskimo Boys.

NATIVES LAUGH AT CLAIM.

Point Out Limit of Explorer's Journey on Carefully Prepared Map.

New York, October 12.—The following statement of Commander Robert E. Peary, which he submitted, together with the accompanying map, to the Peary Arctic Club in support of his contention that Dr. Cook did not reach the North Pole, is now made public for the first time. The statement and map have been copyrighted by the Peary Arctic Club.

(Entered according to Act of congress, in the year 1909, by the Peary Arctic Club, in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.)

INTRODUCTION BY PEARY.

Some of my reasons for saying that Dr. Cook did not go to the North Pole will be understood by those who read the following statements of the two Eskimo boys who went with him, and who told me and others of my party where he did go. Several Eskimos who started with Dr. Cook from Anoratok in February, 1908, were at Etah when I arrived there in August, 1908. They told me that Dr. Cook had with him, after they left, two Eskimo boys or young men, two sledges and some twenty dogs. The boys were I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah. I had known them from their childhood. One was about eighteen and the other about nineteen years of age.

On my return from Cape Sheridan and at the very first settlement I touched (Nerke, near Cape Chalon) in August, 1909, and nine days before reaching Etah, the Eskimos told me, in a general way, where Dr. Cook had been; that he had wintered in Jones Sound and that he had told the white men at Etah that he had been a long way north, but that the boys who were with him, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, said that this was not so. The Eskimos laughed at Dr. Cook's story. On reaching Etah, I talked with the Eskimos there and with the two boys and asked them to describe Dr. Cook's journey to members of my party and myself. This they did in the manner stated below.

(Signed) R. E. PEARY.

SIGNED STATEMENT OF PEARY, BARTLETT, McMILLAN, BORUP AND HENSON, IN REGARD TO TESTIMONY OF COOK'S TWO ESKIMO BOYS.

The two Eskimo boys, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, who accompanied Dr. Cook while he was away from Anoratok in 1908 and 1909, were questioned separately and independently, and were corroborated by Panikpah, the father of one of them (I-took-a-shoo), who was personally familiar with the first third and the last third of their journey, and who said that the route for the remaining third, as shown by them, was as described to him by his son after his return with Dr. Cook.

Notes of their statements were taken by several of us, and no one of us has any doubt that they told the truth.

Their testimony was unshaken by cross-examination, was corroborated by other men in the tribe, and was elicited neither by threats nor promises, the two boys and their father talking of their journey and their experiences in the same way that they would talk of any hunting trip.

To go more into details: One of the boys was called in, and, with a chart on the table before him, was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, pointing out with his finger on the map, but not making any marks upon it.

As he went out, the other boy came in and was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, also without making any marks, and indicated the same route and the same details as did the first boy.

When he was through, Panikpah, the father of I-took-a-shoo, a very intelligent man, who was in the party of Eskimos that came back from Dr. Cook from the northern end of Nansen's Strait, who is familiar as a hunter with the Jones Sound region, and who has been in Commander Peary's various expeditions for some fifteen years, came in and indicated the same localities and details as the two boys.

Then the first boy was brought in again, and with a pencil he traced on the map their route, members of our party writing upon the chart where, according to the boy's statement, they had killed deer, bear, some of their dogs, seal, walrus and musk-oxen.

The second boy was then called in and the two went over the chart together, the second boy suggesting some changes as noted hereafter.

Finally, Panikpah, the father, was again called in to verify details of the portions of the route with which he was personally familiar.

The bulk of the boys' testimony was not taken by Commander Peary, nor in his presence, a fact that obviates any possible claim that they were awed by him.

Certain questions on independent lines from the direct narrative of the Eskimo boys were suggested by Commander Peary to some of us, and were put by us to the Eskimo boys.

Still later, Commander Peary asked the Eskimo boys two or three casual questions on minor points that had occurred to him.

During the taking of this testimony, it developed that Dr. Cook had told these boys, as he told Mr. Whitney and Billy Pritchard, the cabin boy, that they must not tell Commander Peary or any of us anything about their journey, and the boys stated Dr. Cook had threatened them if they should tell anything.

The narrative of these Eskimos is as follows:

They, with Dr. Cook, Francke and nine other Eskimos, left Anoratok, crossed Smith's Sound to Cape Sabine, slept in Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor, then went through Rice Strait to Buchanan Bay. After a few marches Francke and three Eskimos returned to Anoratok.

Dr. Cook, with the others, then proceeded up Flagler Bay, a branch of Buchanan Bay, and crossed Ellesmere Land through the valley pass at the head of Flagler Bay, indicated by Commander Peary in 1898, and utilized by Sverdrup in 1899, to the head of Sverdrup's "Bay Fiord" on the west side of Ellesmere Land.

Their route then lay out through this fiord, thence north through Sverdrup's "Heuerka Sound" and Nansen Strait.

On their way they killed musk-oxen and bear, and made caches, arriving eventually at a point on the west side of Nansen Strait (shore of Axel Heiberg Land of Sverdrup), south of Cape Thomas Hubbard.

A cache was formed here and the four Eskimos did not go beyond this point. Two others, Kootootingwah and Inughito, went on one more march with Dr. Cook and the two boys, helped to build the snow igloo, then returned without sleeping.

(These two Eskimos brought back a letter from Dr. Cook to Francke, dated the 17th of March. The two men rejoined the other four men who had been left behind, and the six returned to Anoratok, arriving May 7th. This information was obtained not from the two Eskimo boys, but from the six men who returned and from Francke himself, and was known to us in the summer of 1908, when the Roosevelt first arrived at Etah. The information is inserted here as supplementary to the narrative of the two boys.)

After sleeping at the camp where the last two Eskimos turned back, Dr. Cook and the two boys went in a northerly or northwesterly direction with two sledges and twenty odd dogs, one more march, when they encountered rough ice and a lead of open water. They did not enter this rough ice, nor cross the lead, but turned westward or southwestward a short distance and returned to Heiberg Land at a point west of where they had left the cache and where the four men had turned back.

Here they remained four or five sleeps, and during that time I-took-a-shoo went back to the cache and got his gun which he had left there, and a few items of supplies.

When asked why only a few supplies were taken from the cache, the boys replied that only a small amount of provisions had been used in the few days since they left the cache, and that their sledges still had all they could carry, so that they could not take more.

After being informed of the boys' narrative thus far, Commander Peary suggested a series of questions to be put to the boys in regard to this trip from the land out and back to it.

These questions and answers were as follows:

Did they cross many open leads or much open water during this time? Ans. None.

Did they make any caches out on the ice? Ans. No.

Did they kill any bear or seal while out on the ice north of Cape Thomas Hubbard? Ans. No.

Did they kill or lose any of their dogs while out on the ice? Ans. No.

With how many sledges did they start? Ans. Two.

How many dogs did they have? Ans. Did not remember exactly, but something over twenty.

How many sledges did they have when they got back to land? Ans. Two.

Did they have any provisions left on their sledges when they came back to land? Ans. Yes; the sledges still had about all they could carry, so they were able to take but a few things from the cache.

From here they then went southwest along the northwest coast of Heiberg Land to a point indicated on the map (Sverdrup's Cape Northwest).

From here they went west across the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going, to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one sleep.

The size and position of this island, as drawn by the first boy, was criticised by the second boy as being too large and too far to the west, the second boy calling the attention of the first to the fact that the position of the island was more nearly in line with the point where they had left Heiberg Land (Cape Northwest) and the channel between Amund Ringnes Land and Eller Ringnes Land.

This criticism and correction was accepted by the first boy, who started to change the position of the island, but was stopped, as Commander Peary had given instructions that no changes or erasures were to be made in the route as drawn by the Eskimos on the chart.

From this island they could see two lands beyond (Sverdrup's Eller Ringnes and Amund Ringnes Lands). From the island they journeyed toward the left hand one of these two lands (Amund Ringnes Land), passing a small island which they did not visit.

Arriving at the shore of Amund Ringnes Land, the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

The above italicised portion of the statement of the Eskimo boys covers the period of time in which Dr. Cook claims to have gone to the Pole and back, and the entire time during which he could possibly have made any attempts to go to it.

The answers of the Eskimo boys to Commander Peary's series of independent questions, showing that they killed no game, made no caches, lost no dogs, and returned to the land with loaded sledges, makes their attainment of the Pole on the trip North of Cape Thomas Hubbard a physical and mathematical impossibility, as it would demand the subsistence of three men and over twenty dogs during a journey of ten hundred and forty geographical miles on less than two sledge loads of supplies.

If it is suggested that perhaps Dr. Cook got mixed and that he reached the Pole, or thought he did, between the time of leaving the northwest coast of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest, and his arrival at Ringnes Land, where they killed the deer, we must then add to the date of Dr. Cook's letter of March 17th, at or near Cape Thomas Hubbard, the subsequent four or five sleeps at that point, and the number of days required to march from Cape Thomas Hubbard to Cape Northwest (a distance of some sixty nautical miles), which would advance his date of departure from the land to at least the 25th of March, and be prepared to accept the claim that Dr. Cook went from Cape Northwest (about latitude eighty and a half degrees North) to the Pole, a distance of five hundred and seventy geographical miles, in twenty-seven days.

After killing the deer they then travelled south along the east side of Ringnes Land to the point indicated on the chart, where they killed another deer.

They then went east across the south part of Crown Prince Gustav Sea to the south end of Heiberg Land, then down through Norwegian Bay, where they secured some bears, but not until after they had killed some of their dogs, to the east side of Graham Island; then eastward to the little bay marked "Eid's Fiord" on Sverdrup's chart; then southwest to Hell's Gate and Simmon's Peninsula.

Here for the first time during the entire journey, except as already noted off Cape Thomas H. Hubbard, they encountered open water. On this point the boys were clear, emphatic, and unshakable. They spent a good deal of time in this region, and finally abandoned their dogs and one sledge, took to their boat, crossed Hell's Gate to North Kent, up into Norfolk Inlet, then back along the north coast of Colin Archer Peninsula to Cape Vera, where they obtained fresh elder duck eggs. Here they cut the remaining sledge off, that is shortened it, as it was awkward to transport with the boat, and near here they killed a walrus.

The statement in regard to the fresh eider duck eggs permits the approximate determination of the date at this time as about the first of July. (This statement also serves, if indeed anything more than the inherent straightforwardness and detail of their narrative were needed, to substantiate the accuracy and truthfulness of the boys' statement. This locality of Cape Vera is mentioned in Sverdrup's narrative as the place where during his stay in that region he obtained eider ducks' eggs.)

From Cape Vera they went on down into the southwest angle of Jones Sound, where they killed a seal; thence east along the south coast of the Sound, killing three bears at the point noted on the map, to the peninsula known as Cape Sparbo on the map, about midway on the south side of Jones Sound. Here they killed some musk-oxen and, continuing east, killed four more at the place indicated on the chart, and were finally stopped by the pack ice at the mouth of Jones Sound. From here they turned back to Cape Sparbo, where they wintered and killed many musk-oxen.

After the sun returned in 1909 they started, pushing their sledge, across Jones Sound to Cape Tennyson; thence along the coast to Clarence Head (passing inside of two small islands not shown on the chart, but drawn on it by the boys), where they killed a bear; thence across the broad bight in the coast to Cadogan Fiord; thence around Cape Isabella and up to Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor near Cape Sabine, where they found a seal cached for them by Panikpah, I-took-a-shoo's father. From here they crossed Smith Sound on the ice, arriving at Anoratok.

The accompanying map is reproduced exactly from the original submitted by Commander Peary with his official statement by which he hopes to prove that Dr. Frederick A. Cook never reached the north pole. The map purports to have been traced out in the presence of the two Eskimos who were with Dr. Cook and, according to Peary, is based upon their actual statements as to Cook's entire journey. The dotted lines in the small map in the upper left hand corner is the route which Dr. Cook says he took on his journey to and from the pole after leaving Cape Thomas Hubbard. The irregular line extending northeast from Isachsen Land is the edge of the land ice, beyond which, Peary declares, Dr. Cook did not venture.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Denman Thompson and Geo. W. Ryer's comedy, "Our New Minister," for a return date at the Plainfield theatre comes back to town this afternoon and night. This new product of "The Old Homestead" authors came to Plainfield last season, without any particular flourish of trumpets, and the next morning the whole town awoke to find that these clever authors had given to the stage a better play than "The Old Homestead." Ever since then, Manager Downs has been beseiged by hundreds of our theatregoers to secure the company for a return date. Theatre parties are being already formed and this return engagement will in every way prove to be a red letter day, for the company, the public and the management. Seats are now on sale.

"This Woman and This Man," an emotional drama, centering about the sacrifices of a mother for her child, and dealing with great, human emotions, will be seen at the Plainfield theatre on Friday night. Miss

Miss Minnie Victorson in "This Woman and This Man," at Plainfield Theatre, Friday, October 15.

Minnie Victorson, whose work in "The Straight Road," "The Squaw-man," and "Under Southern Skies," has made her favorably known wherever there is a theatrical public. In her new play, which is the work of Avery Hopwood, author of "Clothes," and other dramatic successes, Miss Victorson will portray a modern type of woman, confronted with social isolation, has the courage to conquer almost insuperable difficulties, and who finally achieves hapiness for herself and her boy, and the regeneration of the man whom she loves. So highly does Miss Victorson esteem her new vehicle, that she has procured the English rights to it, as well as the American, and will produce it in London, in the Spring of 1910, subsequent to her American tour.

It is said of "Wildfire," the great racing comedy in which Pauline Hall "the beautiful," will appear at the Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and night, that there is action in every minute of the play, and in the parlance of "Bud," the stable boy, one of the several character hits, that is "going some." Those two clever writers, George H. Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the Hour," and other successes, and George V. Hobart, the humorist widely known as "Dinkelspiel,' and also author of Marie Cahill's recent hit, "The Boys and Bettey," in "Wildfire," have given to the stage the best racing play ever written. Pauline Hall, long a dominant figure in stage life as the great American beauty, whose photograph has been reproduced more times in more magazines and other publications both in America and Europe than that of any other celebrity, finds a most congenial role in the fascinating Widow Barrington, in "Wildfire." By the precedent established by the original widow, Lillian Russell, beauty is a necessary requisite in the delineation of the character, and no one will deny that Miss Hall possesses that quality in ample abundance. But, in addition, Miss Hall brings to the portrayal of the dashing widow a high degree of dramatic ability which places her well to the fore as a comedienne.

HORSE JUMPS IN AUTOMOBILE.

Mrs. Amanda Tunison Is Seriously Hurt in a Peculiar Wreck.

Mrs. Amanda Tunison, of Passaic avenue, Nutley, is in a serious condition as the result of an accident Sunday night. She was sitting in the first seat of an automobile owned by her brother-in-law, W. Orville Davis, who, with Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Louis Scott, was the other occupants. Mrs. Davis was driving slowly north in Washington avenue when a wagon containing five men suddenly dashed along on the same side of the street, evidently racing with a trolley car. In the dust raised by the car Mr. Davis did not see the wagon. The men, it is said, were lashing the horse, which swerved to one side and jumped in the automobile. The horse kicked and plunged until the automobile was stopped, then fell partly over on Mrs. Tunison.

The carriage was upset and the men were thrown out. Dr. George B. Philhower found that besides bruises on the head and face Mrs. Tunison was hurt internally. She was unconscious when removed to her home, but has since recovered consciousness. The other occupants of the automobile escaped with slight bruises. No arrests have been made.

CITY TO PRESS ITS DEMAND.

Council of Atlantic City Takes Action in Movement for a New Railroad Terminal.

Atlantic City, Oct. 13.—With the statement that the present terminal facilities of the Pennsylvania Railroad do not meet existing traffic, the Council Monday night immediately acted with the railroad officials upon the subject of rebuilding its terminal here and elevating its tracks from the drawbridge into the resort, a distance of two miles, in order to remove a score of grade crossings.

The city for some years has been discussing with the railroad a new terminal, and has tacitly agreed to bear part of the expense of the improvement if it will follow the "city beautiful" plans which the resort has adopted.

RING REVEALS HER SECRET.

Bride Hides It in Handkerchief, Which Mother Finds.

The fact that Miss Emma Teitgens, of 21 West Twenty-ninth street, and John Smith, of 21 Andrew street, both of Bayonne, were married on October 3 last by the Rev. Peter E. Reilly, of St. Henry's church, Bayonne, was learned yesterday, when the bride's mother discovered her daughter's wedding ring tied in the corner of a handkerchief she had left on the piano. At first the girl said the ring belonged to one of her friends, but finally admitted the marriage.

She said she and her husband had intended to keep their wedding secret. The couple have received parental blessings.

Following is the cablegram sent by Bishop O'Connor:

Plans are being made for a body of three thousand boys and young men of the "Hill" district of Newark to march to the City Hall tomorrow afternoon, while the weekly meeting of the Board of Works is in progress and make a plea for the erection of a public bath house in that section of the city. The parade will be headed by a platoon of mounted police, and there will be music. At the head of the marchers will be William J. McKiernan, Supervisor of Playgrounds, and Philip Apter.

VERDICT AGAINST EXECUTOR.

Elizabeth, Oct. 13.—In a suit brought by former Alderman and former City Clerk James J. Manning, president of the Exempt Firemen's Association of New Jersey, against Alderman Jeremiah J. Leary and Contractor Nicholas Lacorte, both of this city, a verdict was given Monday for 1$,000 by the court in favor of Mr. Manning.

The parties sued were bondsmen for the executor of the estate of Manning's dead brother, John Manning, who died five years ago yesterday. Manning sued to recover $1,000 alleged to be due him from the executor. Michael Barrett, of Newark, represented Mr. Manning. There was no defense offered by the executor.

Mrs. Arthur Fritts, of Trenton, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. W. S. Decker, of this city. The latter expects soon to make her home in Trenton with her daughter.

WALLOPED P.C.C.'S NINE

Watchung Hunt Club's Aggregation Won That All-Star Contest.

11 TO 8 WAS THE FINAL SCORE.

Lots of Noise But Not so Much Ball Science at Game Witnessed By a Big Crowd.

The Watchung Hunt club was victorious yesterday afternoon in its baseball game with the Plainfield Country club team, winning by a score of 11 to 8, after a hard-fought contest, during which the score was tied several times. The game was played on the Hunt club grounds and was witnessed by a large crowd, the majority being "rooters" for the country club.

There were a few changes in the previously announced lineup. In place of Robert Abbott, Will T. Glenney pitched for the country club until the sixth inning, when the home team got on to his curves. He then went behind the rubber and DeForest finished the game in the box. Harry Butler started into pitch for the Hunt club, but in the eighth inning he threw out an injured knee and had to retire in favor of Duncan Bulkley, who held the opposing side safe. W. L. Righter went to third, and the hunt club finished with eight men.

Lester Glenney played right-field and Harold Brown left field for the Country club, while Gilbert Fletcher did not appear for the Hunt club. J. Hartley Mellick played right field and John Greason was in left field. A remarkable feature of the contest was that there were no outfield flies.

Each side scored two runs in the first inning and in the second the Country club annexed two more, the hunt club failing to score. In the third, the home club scored two runs and both teams were blanked in the fourth inning. The home nine made two more runs in the fifth, and in the next inning brought three more over the plate, while the Country club had to be satisfied with a single tally. Both clubs drew blanks in the next stanza, but in the eighth the Country club tallied three runs and the opposing side two. There was no more scoring, the final result being 11 to 8.

Butler fanned eight while he pitched, Glenney struck out five, DeForest one. The best stick work was done by DeForest, Stewart Johnston, and Morris J. Dumont, each making three hits. There were also two fast double plays, one in the sixth, by Dumont and Otterson and the other in the ninth by Bulkley and Otterson. Dumont played like a veteran and materially helped to win the contest. The lineup and score by innings:

Watchung Hunt club—Harry Butler, p; Morris J. Dumont, c; Arthur Otterson, 1b; W. L. Righter, 2b; Stewart Johnson, ss; Duncan Bulkley, 3b; J. Hartley Mellick, rf; John Greason, lf; W. B. Tyler, cf.

Sommers bowed with equal coldness as Bradley stepped in between the two men.

"I've been most anxious to see you, Mr. Pinckney," the secret service agent began.

Pinckney looked at him, surprised.

"Who are you?" he asked.

"United States secret service man detailed on the Sommers gun case," came the quick reply.

Pinckney suppressed an involuntary start.

"Oh, I see," he said. "I'm downright sorry. Most unfortunate affair, indeed. But what can I do?"

Bradley smiled pleasantly.

"Why, answer a few questions, if you will," he suggested.

The general manager could not keep down all expression of annoyance, but he knew it would never do to completely antagonize the secret service man on the case, so he forced an apology for a smile.

"Of course, with pleasure. But I'm rather pushed for time. We sail almost immediately."

"In that case, I'll begin at once."

He turned to the government agent undisturbed.

"Mr. Durant has kindly consented that I should make a thorough investigation at the works in Pittsburg when I return. He is anxious to do all in his power to help me find upon whom the blame rests."

The general manager drew himself up.

"Blame," he said sternly.

"Yes, blame," was the pointed reply.

Again Pinckney made a move for delay. He wanted to get to Pittsburg as quickly as he could to see Marsh and cover up all tracks before he answered any questions.

"Can't you defer all questions until the investigation in Pittsburg?" he suggested. "I'm in a great hurry, and in Pittsburg I will have all facts before me and can answer fully."

But Bradley was a man not to be denied.

"I should prefer asking one or two now," he said and without waiting for response put his first query bluntly.

"What is your belief, Mr. Pinckney, as to the cause of this unfortunate action?"

"My belief?" said the general manager blankly.

"Yes. Do you think the gun was killed in the tempering bath at your arsenal?"

Pinckney's face flushed.

"I do not," he retorted angrily. "I think the gun was constructed on theory, and the theory was unsound."

Sommers, standing by, made a quick, angry movement, but a sharp look from Bradley restrained him. The secret service man was apparently very much interested and thoroughly willing to accept Pinckney's idea.

In fact, agreeing with people was part of Bradley's stock in trade, and, in fact, in Washington it was generally admitted that this particular star of the secret service bureau could agree with more people and get more information without offense than any man in the service. Now, apparently, he was Pinckney's friend.

"M'm—very interesting," he said. "Now, what do you think of the Rhinestrom gun, Mr. Pinckney?"

Pinckney looked at his questioner sharply, but the face before him showed only bland agreement and casual interest.

"I consider the Rhinestrom gun the best gun that has been invented," said the general manager firmly.

The face of the government agent continued to show bland interest only.

"And have you controlled the patents of the Rhinestrom gun?"

"The Durant steel works control them," corrected the general manager.

"And you have a large government order for the Rhinestrom gun now that the Sommers gun is out of the way?" persisted the unruffled questioner.

Pinckney had been losing more and more of his self control as each succeeding home thrust struck him.

"I don't like what that question implies, sir," he exclaimed angrily.

Bradley made a slight conventional nod.

"I'm sorry," he said indifferently.

The conspirator had begun to realize he was fencing a strong, shrewd antagonist and it would not do to lose his temper, so he hastened to explain.

"We had the Rhinestrom order before the Sommers gun was forged."

"Who is Rhinestrom?" commanded Bradley, with a sudden sternness that took the general manager completely by surprise. Pinckney had not anticipated that question. For a moment he hesitated, repeating blankly after the government agent:

"Who is he?"

Bradley's manner had changed abruptly from bland curiosity to stern determination to know.

"Yes," he said sharply, "who is Rhinestrom? Where does he come from? Where is he now? Whom did you deal with?"

Pinckney hesitated.

"Why, I have no idea who his friends are."

"Does Mr. Durant know?" asked the detective.

Still Pinckney fenced.

"I—I couldn't say, really. Better ask Mr. Durant."

"I did," retorted Bradley shortly.

Pinckney saw it was time to end this cross questioning if he was to get away safe. The government agent was shrewder than he thought, and this thin spot in his defense—the identity of Rhinestrom—seemed perilously weak. The only thing to do was to end it at once.

"I haven't time to talk to you further," he said.

Bradley made a restraining gesture.

"Just a moment more, Mr. Pinckney. Has Rhinestrom ever been at your works?"

"No, sir," returned the general manager promptly.

"Then how does Marsh know him?" demanded the government agent sternly.

It was pure bluff, but Pinckney had no idea of that, and he took the bait, hook, sinker and all.

"Marsh!" he exclaimed blankly. "Why, Marsh doesn't know him."

For the first time Bradley permitted himself a sneering smile.

"I can only go by what Marsh says," he declared. "Do you mean to tell me, Mr. Pinckney, that Marsh, the draughtsman of the Durant steel works, does not know the inventor of the Rhinestrom gun?"

Pinckney's face was brick red with anger now, but inside there was a quiver of apprehension that Marsh had talked. If so, all was up. Anyway this questioning must stop.

"I'm not going to talk to you further, sir," he declared angrily. "Your manner is distasteful to me."

Again there came that mocking, satirical apology.

"Oh, I'm so sorry. But, Mr. Pinckney, you don't mind admitting that the man in charge of forging the Sommers gun was drunk?"

Pinckney hesitated.

"I do admit that," he said, "but he did his work properly. I was there myself to watch him. Mr. Sommers was there too."

Instantly the secret service agent turned on Sommers.

"Were you in the furnace room, Lieutenant Sommers, at the time the gun went into the bath?"

"Yes, sir," admitted the naval officer, "I was."

"Did it go in at the right temperature?"

It was Sommers' time to hesitate.

"I—I don't know," he admitted. "I didn't see it."

"You were in the furnace room," exclaimed the secret service man, "and you did not see your own gun go into the tempering bath?"

"There was a quarrel with the foreman," said Sommers hesitatingly.

"What were you quarreling about?" asked Bradley.

It was the one question that Sommers could not answer. How could he bring Frances into it? Bradley was waiting impatiently for his reply.

"I can't explain the cause of that quarrel," finally declared the naval officer firmly, and Pinckney permitted himself his first smile of satisfaction.

"Who is Rhinestrom?" commanded Bradley.

After all, there was a chance of this young fool, through insane chivalry, permitting himself to overlook his only means of vindication.

Bradley was still looking at Sommers with involuntary surprise when Pinckney made his next move.

"Mr. Bradley, I want you to understand that I'm very sorry for Mr. Sommers about this whole affair. If I can be of any service to him or to you I shall be only too glad."

The secret service man was not one to be whimsical or chivalrous when he had started out to accomplish anything. Promptly he took Pinckney at his word.

"That's very good of you, sir, and you can be of the greatest service to us. Lieutenant Sommers goes to face the court of inquiry at Washington, and it is his desire and mine to reach there with as little delay as possible. No steamer sails from this port to New York for nearly a week.

"Now, the gun that made this trouble was forged at your works, and therefore, whether you wish it or not, you have a direct interest in the case. Perhaps I'm going to ask you something unusual, but it will be a great favor if you will allow Mr. Sommers and myself to sail with you on the Irvessa."

Pinckney and Sommers both stared at the secret service man in amazement. The cool audacity of the proposal took them both off their feet. Sommers was the first to recover.

"Bradley! No!" he exclaimed impetuously.

Pinckney bowed coldly.

"I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but you are asking too much. That'll be impossible."

He turned away just as Frances, tired of the waiting, re-entered the courtyard.

"Ah, Frances, you are ready?" he asked.

Without replying the girl came straight to Sommers.

"What are you going to do now?" she asked directly.

"I have been ordered to report at Washington at once to face the court of inquiry," returned the officer.

The girl smiled. There were both sadness and joy in it—sadness for his unfortunate situation, joy that they had a chance still to be together.

"We are just starting," she suggested. "Come with us on the yacht."

Sommers shook his head.

"I'm sorry; I can't do that."

The girl stood looking at him, hurt and uncertain. She had not expected that rebuff. She could not understand it. Again Bradley seized the situation.

"Miss Durant, Mr. Sommers goes to Washington to endeavor to show why he should not be court martialed for neglect of duty the night his gun was forged. It's most important that he get there as soon as possible, and no ship sails from this port for a week."

Pinckney stepped forward angrily.

"Mr. Bradley, your explanation is most uncalled for," he exclaimed.

Then Frances began to see. Her head came up, and her eyes lighted.

"On the contrary, Mr. Bradley, I'm very much obliged to you for your explanation," she declared haughtily. "Would it not be possible for you and Lieutenant Sommers to return with us?"

"It would be the greatest favor, Miss Durant," he said earnestly. "I had already requested it, but Mr. Pinckney objects."

The girl turned on Pinckney haughtily.

"When Mr. Pinckney realizes that the Irvessa is my father's yacht and that this gun was forged in my father's works and that it is my desire that Lieutenant Sommers and Mr. Bradley sail with us at once I am sure he will have no objections to offer."

Rebuked, Pinckney bowed with ill grace.

"Since Miss Durant wishes it I am only too happy to have you come with us, of course," he said to Bradley.

The secret service man bowed in turn.

"Then we'll go, of course, with thanks," he said simply. "If you will excuse me I'll get ready. Lieutenant Sommers and I will be at the dock within an hour."

When Bradley and Pinckney both had gone Frances came over to where her lover was standing.

"That was wrong," she said, gently reproving. "You should have trusted me more. We must have no more misunderstandings! From now on what affects you affects me. You and I are one, but don't you see"—she paused a moment, looking up at him, her heart in her eyes—"but don't you see I love you?"

CHAPTER XIV.

THE PERILS OF THE SEA.

THE steamer Mongolian was pitching, tossing, pounding along sturdily as best she could through the night. For ten hours she had fought her way up the coast in the face of the worst storm of the season.

Now, off Hatteras, the danger spot in the route from Porto Rico to New York, the sturdy little liner scarcely seemed able to make any progress. She had been forced miles off her course and closer in toward the dangerous reefs than her captain liked.

Not that the liner herself was in any grave danger, for the old Mongolian and her experienced captain had faced too many Atlantic storms for even a big one to alarm them. The hatches had all been battened down, the passengers were below, and the stanch steamer, stripped as much as possible, slowly rising to each attack of the waves, drove on with all the power of her engines under the storm.

Up in the little wireless room, the highest point on the ship, Harling, the young operator, clung to his berth and wondered what was going to happen. It was his second trip to sea and his first big storm, so no wonder the young operator felt the thrill of the struggle and just the faintest fear for the outcome.

Every officer and man connected with the liner was on post, waiting anxiously for whatever might happen. They had little fears for the stanch Mongolian, but there were many ships less sturdy in those waters, and on such a night, with the vessel out of her course, there was no telling what might occur. The captain's last instruction had been to look out for wrecks.

Most of the vessels of any size in these waters carried wireless outfits, and in case of trouble they would be sure at once to send out broadcast their appeals for help. Little could be done in any case, but at least the Mongolian could stand by to help as much as she could or, if absolutely necessary, take advantage of the warnings to keep clear of wrecks.

For hours the pitching of the ship, timed irregularly to the roaring drive of the storm, had held the wireless man fast at his post. It was now past midnight and with little chance of any abatement before dawn.

Harling's nerves were on edge as he clung to his berth, wide eyed, alert, waiting, listening to the faintest click that might be the forerunner to tell of disaster and death. Half a dozen times his strained nerves had brought him struggling from his berth to receive such a message, only to find his imagination had been playing tricks with his fear.

Suddenly there came from the instrument clicks so sharp, so distinct and yet so hurried that the young fellow sprang from the berth and stumbled to the table, sure now that at last something was coming.

Again the instrument clicked wildly. To the ears of the strained operator it brought a chill, for he knew it was the sending of some one wild with fear. Anxiously, impatiently, he listened. At first he could make out nothing.

"They're crazy!" he exclaimed to himself. "What's the matter with them? They're crazy!"

The wild rattle of the receiver stopped, and Harling seized his own key.

"What's wrong? Don't be a fool. Keep your nerves. Send sense."

The touch of the key had brought him thoroughly to himself. His nerve tightened and his head grew cool as he drove his message fiercely out into the storm.

He paused, listening eagerly, and again the receiver began to click, almost as wildly, as insanely, as before. Only the skilled operator could make out "C—Q—D."

"A distress signal!" he gasped. "It's come."

Again the Mongolian's wireless operator seized his key and drove out his answer into the night.

As he waited he seized the telephone connected direct with the captain's stateroom.

"Captain, have just received a distress signal!" he shouted. "Have sent them our position in course, but the fool seemed to have lost his nerve. Have not been able to get anything from him yet."

The answer of the captain came back cool and sharp.

"Make him tell where he is and who he is at once. I'll be with you."

The receiver had begun to click again wildly, and Harling, gripping the table to keep himself steady, listened with disgust, for the sending now was that of a man absolutely insane from fear.

"Help! Help! For God's sake help us!" was all the receiver clicked.

At last it stopped a moment, and the Mongolian operator managed to cut in.

"Send name and position," he pounded fiercely. "Send position. Keep nerve. Send position."

He stopped, grasping the table and waiting anxiously.

"M-o-n-g-o-l-i-a-n!" the receiver clicked wildly.

"The fool!" gasped Harling. "The dirty coward! Sending that way at such a time!"

He seized the key and drove out fiercely his command:

"Send position."

For reply the receiver clicked back in the same rattled way:

"Yacht Irvessa breaking upon reef. For God's sake help us! Will pay any reward if you will save us at once! Help us quick, for God's sake!"

The rage of the operator had risen. The thought of lives resting on the work of the coward was awful.

"The fool!" he gasped. "If he's breaking up, why is he wasting time that way?" And then his own message volleyed out into the night:

"What reef? Send position Quick!"

In panicky clicks the answer came back. It was the same idiotic raving of a fear crazed man.

"I'll reward you. I am E. H. Pinckney and rich. Have thirty on board. Will reward handsomely."

Again Harling drove out the short demand for the position of the wrecked yacht. Then, as he waited for reply, he seized the captain's telephone a second time.

"It's the yacht Irvessa, captain. She reports going to pieces. There's a frightened fool at the key—E. H. Pinckney. Can't even get his position. I'm doing my best, sir, but Pinckney's lost his nerve completely. If they had a man at the key we might get something."

He hung up the phone to listen in disgust and despair to Pinckney's ravings driven out through the storm. There was no chance for Harling to send. The man at the Irvessa key kept pounding, with no sense to his messages. As the Mongolian operator waited for a break to cut in the captain, driven by the force of the wind, fairly burst into the little wireless room.

"Well," he snapped, "what is it now? Have you got the position of the Irvessa?"

Harling shook his head in disgust.

"I can hardly make out what he says, captain. His sending is awful. He's a good operator, too, I believe, only he's lost his nerve completely. But as nearly as I can make out"—he listened a moment anxiously—"it's a little better now. He says Irvessa, bound for New York from Porto Rico, struck reef two hours ago. Don't know where."

THE CONQUEST OF THE POLE

Final Dash For the Pole. The "Big Nail" Reached at Last and "Old Glory" Unfurled — Endless Fields of Purple Snows — No North, No East, No West -o- -o-

THE observations of April 14 gave latitude 88 degrees 21 minutes, longitude 95 degrees 52 minutes.

We were but 100 miles from the pole, but there was nothing to relieve the mental strain of the icy despair. The wind came with the same satanic cut from the west. There had been little drift, but the ice before us displayed signs of recent activity. It was more irregular, with an open crack here and there, but the sleds glided with less friction, and the dreary dogs maintained a better speed under rising tails.

With teeth set and newly sharpened resolutions, we set out for that last 100 miles. Some dogs had gone into the stomachs of their hungry companions, but there still remained a sufficient pull of well tried brute force for each sled, and, though their noisy vigor had been lost in the long drag, they still broke the frigid silence with an occasional outburst. A little fresh enthusiasm from the drivers was quickly followed by canine activity.

We were in good trim to cover distance economically. The sledges were light; our bodies were thin. All the muscles had shriveled, but the dogs retained much of their strength. Thus stripped for the last lap, one horizon after another was lifted.

In the forced effort which followed we were frequently overheated. The temperature was steady at 44 degrees below zero F., but perspiration came with ease and a certain amount of pleasure. Later, however, there followed a train of suffering for many days. The delight of the birdskin shirt was changed for the chill of the wet blanket.

Fortunately, at this time the sun was warm enough to dry the furs in about three days if lashed to the sunny side of the sled. In these last days we felt more keenly the pangs of perspiration than in all our earlier adventures.

The amber colored goggles were persistently used, and they afforded a protection to the eyes which was quite a revelation, but in spite of every precaution our distorted, frozen, burned and withered faces lined a map of the hardships en route.

We were curious looking savages. The perpetual glitter induced a squint which distorted the face in a remarkable manner. The strong light reflected from the crystal surface threw the muscles about the eye into a state of chronic contraction. The pupil was reduced to a mere pinhole.

There was no end of trouble at hand in endeavoring to keep the windows of the soul open, and all of the effect was run together in a set expression of hardship and wrinkles which should be called the boreal squint.

This boreal squint is a part of the russet bronze physiognomy which falls to the lot of every arctic explorer. The early winds, with a piercing temperature, start a flush of scarlet, while frequent frostbites leave figures in black. Later the burning sun browns the skin; subsequently strong winds sop the moisture, harden the skin and leave open fissures.

The hard work and reduced nourishment contract the muscles, dispel the fat and leave the skin to shrivel up in folds. The imprint of the goggles, the set expression of hard lines and the mental blank of the environment have removed all spiritual animation. We have the color and the lines of old russet apples and would easily pass for prehistoric progenitors of man.

In the enforced effort to spread out the stiffened legs over the last reaches there was no longer sufficient energy at camping times to erect a snow shelter. The silk tent was pressed into use. Though the temperature was very low when the sun was high, its congenial rays pierced the silk fabric and rested softly on our brows closed in heavy slumber. In strong winds it was still necessary to erect a sheltering wall to shield the tent.

Signs of land were still seen every day, but they were deceptive optical illusions and a mere verdict of fancy. It seemed that something must happen, some line must cross our horizon, to mark the important area into which we were pressing.

When the sun was low the eye ran over moving plains in brilliant waves of color to dancing horizons. The mirages turned things topsy turvy. Inverted lands and queer objects ever rose and fell in shrouds of mystery, but all of this was due to the atmospheric magic of the midnight sun.

With a lucky series of daily astronomical observations our position was now accurately fixed for each stage of progress. As we neared the pole the imagination quickened, and a restless, almost hysteric excitement came over us. The boys fancied they saw beaver and seals, and I had a new land under observation frequently, but with a change in the direction of light or an altered trend in our temperament the horizon cleared and we became eager only to push farther into the mystery.

From the eighty-eighth to the eighty-ninth the ice was in very large fields and the surface was less irregular, but in other respects it was about the same as below the eighty-seventh. We noticed here also an extension of the range of vision. We seemed to see longer distances and the ice along the horizon had a less angular outline.

The color of the sky and the ice also changed to deeper purple blues. We had no way of checking these impressions by other observations. The eagerness to find something unusual may have fired the imagination, but since the earth is flattened at the pole perhaps a widened horizon should be detected.

At 8 o'clock on the morning of April 19 we camped on a picturesque old field with convenient hummocks, to which we could easily rise for the frequent outlook which we now maintained. The tent was pitched. The dogs were silenced by blocks of pemmican. In us new enthusiasm was aroused by a liberal pot of pea soup and a few chips of frozen meat, and then we bathed in life giving sunbeams, screened from the piercing air by silk strands. It was a beautiful day, and had our sense of appreciation not been blunted by accumulated fatigue we would have greatly enjoyed the play of light and color in the ever changing scene of sparkle.

The Eskimos were soon lost in a profound sleep, the only comfort in their hard lives, but I remained awake, as had been my habit on succeeding days, to get nautical observations. The longitude calculations lined us at 94 degrees 3 minutes. At noon the sun's altitude was carefully set on the sextant, and the latitude quickly reduced gave 89 degrees 31 minutes—twenty-nine miles from the pole.

My heart jumped for joy, and the unconscious commotion which I was creating awakened Etukishuk. I told him that in two average marches we would reach the "tigi shu" (the big nail).

Ahwelah was awakened with a kick, and together they went out to a hummock and through glasses sought for a mark to locate so important a place as the terrestrial axis. If but one sleep beyond it must be seen.

I tried to explain that the pole was not visible to the eye; that its position was located only by a repeated use of the various instruments. This entirely satisfied their curiosity, and they burst out in hurrahs of joy. For two hours they chanted and danced the passions of wild life.

It was the first real sign of pleasure or rational emotion which they had shown for several weeks. For some time I had entertained the fear that we no longer possessed the strength to return to land, but the unbridled flow of vigor dispelled that idea.

More sleep was quite impossible. We brewed an extra pot of tea, prepared a favorite broth of pemmican, dug up a surprise of fancy biscuits and filled up on good things to the limit of the allowance for our final feast days. The dogs, which had joined the chorus of gladness, were given an extra lump of pemmican. A few hours more were agreeably spent in the tent, and then we started with a new spirit for the uttermost north.

We were excited to a fever heat. The feet were light on this run. Even the dogs caught the infectious enthusiasm and rushed along at a pace which made it difficult for me to keep a sufficient advance to set a good course. The horizon was still searched for something to mark the approaching boreal center, but nothing unusual was seen. It was the same expanse of moving seas of ice on which we had lived for 500 miles.

But, looking through gladdened eyes, the scene assumed a new glory. There were plains of gold fenced in purple walls, with gilded crests. It was one of the few days on the stormy pack when all nature smiled with cheering lights.

As the day advanced and the splendor of summer night was run into the continued day the beams of gold on the surface snows thickened, while the shadows of hummocks and ridges spread a line of violet barriers through which a way must be sought.

From my position a few hundred yards ahead of the sleds I could not resist the temptation to turn frequently to see the movement of the dog train with its new fire. In this direction the color scheme was reversed. The icy walls were in gold and burning colors, while the plains represented every shade of purple and blue.

Through this sea of color the dogs came with a spirited tread, noses down, tails up and shoulders braced to the straps like chariot horses. The young Eskimos, chanting songs of love, came with easy step. The long whip was swung with a brisk crack, and all over there rose a cloud of frosted breath.

Camp was pitched early in the morning of April 20. The sun was northeast; the pack glowed in tones of lilac; the normal westerly air of shivers brushed our frosty faces. The surprising burst of enthusiasm had been nursed to its limit, and under it a long march was made over average ice with the usual result of overbearing fatigue. Too tired and sleepy to wait for a cup of tea, melted snows were poured down, and the pemmican was pounded with the ax to ease the task of the jaws. The eyes closed before the meal was finished, and the world was lost to us for eight hours. The observation gave latitude 89 degrees 46.5 minutes, longitude 94 degrees 52 minutes.

With the boys singing and the dogs howling we started off after midnight on April 21. The dogs looked large and noble as they came along that day, while Etukishuk and Ahwelah, though thin and ragged, had a dignity as heroes of the greatest human battle which had ever been fought with remarkable success.

We were all lifted to the paradise of winners as we stepped over the snows of a destiny for which we had risked life and willingly suffered the tortures of an icy hell.

The ice under us seemed almost sacred. When the pedometer registered fourteen and a half miles we camped and calmly went to sleep, feeling that we were turning on the earth's axis.

The observations, however, gave 89 degrees 59 minutes 45 seconds. We therefore had the pole, or the exact spot where it should be, within sight.

We advanced the fifteen seconds, made supplementary observations, pitched the tent, built a snow igloo and prepared to make ourselves comfortable for a stay long enough for two rounds of observations.

Our position was thus doubly assured, and a necessary day of rest was gained. Etukishuk and Ahwelah enjoyed the day in quiet repose, but I slept very little. My goal was reached; the ambition of my life had been fulfilled. How could I sleep away such overwhelming moments of elation?

At last we had reached the boreal center. The dream of nations had been realized. The race of centuries was ours. The flag was pinned to the coveted pole. The year was 1908, the day April 21.

The sun indicated local noon, but time was a negative problem, for here all meridians meet. With a step it was possible to go from one part of the globe to the opposite side from the hour of midnight to that of midday. Here there are but one day and one night in each year. The latitude was 90 degrees, the temperature -38.7, the atmospheric pressure 29.83. North, east and west had vanished. It was south in every direction, but the compass, pointing to the magnetic pole, was as useful as ever.

Though overjoyed with the success of the conquest our spirits began to change on the next day after all the observations had been taken and the local conditions were studied. A sense of intense loneliness came with a careful scrutiny of the horizon. What a cheerless spot to have aroused the ambition of man for so many ages! Endless fields of purple snows! No life, no land, no spot, to relieve the monotony of frost! We were the only pulsating creatures in a dead world of ice.

On April 23, 1908, Dr. Cook began the long return march. With fair weather, good ice and the inspiration of the home run long distances were at first quickly covered.

With a good deal of anxiety Cook watched the daily reduction of the food supply. It now became evident that the crucial stage of the campaign was to be transferred from the taking of the pole to a final battle for life against famine and frost. Early in July farther southward progress became impossible, and in quest of food he crossed the Firth of Devon into Jones sound. On Feb. 18, 1909, the start was made for Annootok. With a newly prepared equipment the Greenland shores were reached on April 15. Here Dr. Cook was greeted by Harry Whitney and anxious Eskimo friends. To facilitate an early return he moved southward to the Danish settlement and reached Upernavik on May 24, 1909. The Danish ship Hans Egede took him from Upernavik to Denmark.

ELECTING CO. CHAIRMAN

Attorney General Says Candidate Must Be Duly Elected Member.

IS OF LOCAL IMPORTANCE.

Union County Republican Committee Rule Provides That Another May Be Selected.

That the chairman of a county committee must be a member of the committee is the essence of an opinion handed to Governor Fort yesterday by Attorney General Wilson. The governor noted that the statute was silent on this proposition and put the question to his legal adviser.

The Union County Republican committee's rules provide that one other than a member of the committee may be elected chairman, but the present chairman has stated time and again that if he were not a duly elected member under no circumstances would be accept the chairmanship. As it is the local county's rule is abrogated.

The opinion follows:

"Honorable John Franklin Fort, Governor of New Jersey, Trenton, N. J.:

"Dear Sir—I am writing in response to your inquiry of October 11. You ask whether, in my opinion, the chairman of the county committee may be a person other than a member of the committee. The statute is entirely silent in relation to this matter. I am of the opinion that the chairman of the committee must of necessity be a person who has been elected a member of the committee.

"Very truly yours,
(Signed.) "EDMUND WILSON,
"Attorney General."

CONTEST OF YELLOW AND RED IN Y. W. C. A. SOON CLOSES.

The contest between the yellow and red hunters for new members in the Young Women's Christian Association will close on Monday, October 18, and the present indications are favorable for a large addition to the association. The Misses Olga Lockhart and Ethel Prior are straining every nerve for their respective sides. The classes of new work to which the members are attracted because of their special adaptation to the needs of the association and its members, recommend it to those who are waking up to the fact that many advantages are offered that cannot be obtained in any other way.

Rivalry between the contestants is, of course, of a friendly nature, but that does not take away one whit the naturalness of the interest. The membership committee is decidedly encouraged over the outlook.

ANNUAL FAIR.

Calvary Congregation Bazar Monday, October 25.

The annual fair of the Calvary Baptist church, Rev. G. W. Bailey, pastor, will open Monday, October 25. An excellent program will be given each evening from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock, Monday night, Drs. J. C. Anderson and J. F. Lawson, also Dr. G. F. Watts, the dentist, of this city, will address the gathering. There will be duet by Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Bailey and a selection by Mrs. James Ross. Prof. and Mrs. John Bolden will also appear.

Tuesday night, October 26, the program will be conducted by Professor Richard E. Randolph, chorister of the Shiloh Baptist church. COURT REFUSES TO SET ASIDE JUDGMENT

The application of V. W. Nash, Jr., counsel for the Metropolitan Mercantile Realty company, for a rule to show cause why the judgment of $500 obtained by Mrs. Minerva Berry against the company, should not be set aside on the ground that it was excessive, was denied today by Judge Isaac P. Runyon, who heard the case in the District court. As a result the goods of the company will be sold tomorrow to satisfy the judgment.

The judgment was obtained on September 9, and an execution issued, following which the store of the company was closed. Then Mr. Nash asked for a rule to show cause why the judgment should not be set aside. Robert Newton Crane, as counsel for Mrs. Berry, opposed the motion. This hearing was before Judge Runyon. Later Judge William Newcorn heard part of the argument and referred it back to Judge Runyon, who was acquainted with the details of the case. Today he denied the motion to set aside the judgment.

OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOR ABLE YOUNG MEN

Edmund S. Conklin, M. A., field secretary of the Springfield, Mass., Training School of the Young Men's Christian Association, spoke yesterday afternoon to the boys of the senior class of Plainfield High School. He told of the good situations the right kind of young men could obtain with the association throughout the country.

Mr. Conklin declared that never before in the history of the association was there so pronounced a demand for skilled men for branch secretaries and physical directors. He said that over three hundred positions in association work are vacant for want of proper material to fill them.

There are no scarcity of applicants, the speaker stated, but the men after the jobs lacked in ability. He said that the Springfield institution boasts of the largest enrollment of its history this year, one hundred and sixty students being on the books. The entering class numbers seventy-two-many of whom are college graduates.

Y. W. C. A. ADV. PARTY TAKES PLACE TONIGHT.

The educational committee of the Y. W. C. A. has been making great plans for an advertisement party to be given at the association rooms tonight. Judging from the rehearsals for this unique entertainment which have been held for several evenings at the building, the party will be a fun-provoking affair.

Miss Anna Campbell, with the assistance of Miss Leal and Miss Helen Brown, and a group of "shadow advertisements' will make the evening's entertainment popular.

Tomorrow night, Dr. Clara Krans, a member of the physical committee, will examine new members of the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium classes. This examination is free to all who contemplate joining the gymnasium classes this term.

A gymnasium class that promises to be popular with the younger members of the association is one for Juniors. Many registrations have already come in for this class. Another gymnasium class of interest is to have its meetings Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Last year this class became interested in fencing and fancy gymnastic steps, but this year will confine its work to Swedish gymnastics, floor work and to the dancing. All gymnasium classes in the association will begin next week.

JEWISH CHAUTAUQUA OBJECTS ARE EXPLAINED

Miss Jeannette Miriam Goldberg, field secretary of the Jewish Chautauqua Society, spoke to a large audience at an open meeting of the Young Men's Hebrew Association last night on the work and objects of the Chautauqua. She explained the progress of the movement in the last year. As its field secretary she has visited nearly every city in the country containing a Y. M. H. A. branch and has formed Jewish Chautauqua circles in many of them.

Miss Goldberg said that she found the members of the Y. M. H. A. in the cities she visited to be representative young men of their respective localities. In each city, men prominent in business life were interested in the association and were contributing their money and efforts to the cause. Speaking of the objects of the Jewish Chautauqua Society she said it aimed to install new interest in Jewish history, literature and arts. She declared that the society is largely fulfilling its mission in that it has caused a revival of interest in things connected with the Jewish race.

Miss Goldberg stated that the Chautauqua courses of study were invaluable to Bible teachers. They are simpler than other and older methods of study, said Miss Goldberg, and more effective. Jacob H. Schiff, the financier, and Professor Solomon Schecter, of New York, and Rev. Solomon J. Foster, of Newark, are new converts to the Chautauqua idea, she announced.

A Chautauqua circle will be organized at the local Y. M. H. A. on Sunday evening, October 17, and those interested are asked to be present at 7:30 o'clock sharp, when the work of organization will begin.

Of the 120 Republican and Democratic nominees for members of the House of Assembly made in New Jersey this year, the Anti-Saloon League classes seventeen as favorable to local option. Thirteen of them are Republicans and four Democrats. Only two of the sixteen Republican and Democratic candidates for State Senator are put in the same class by the Anti-Saloon League.

The thirteen Republican Assembly aspirants classed as local optionists are: Harold B. Wells, of Burlington; Isaac T. Nichols and A. R. McAllister, of Cumberland; Duance R. Minard and Harold A. Miller, of Essex; Walter Heritage, of Gloucester; Archibald E. Smith, of Hunterdon; Benjamin F. Crosby, of Ocean; Edward T. Moore, of Passaic, and Lloyd Thompson and Carlton B. Pierce, of Union. The Democratic candidates are: William Burgan, of Atlantic; Walter Taylor, of Monmouth; Richard R. Poland, of Mercer, and Samuel A. Ridgway, of Salem.

In the Senatorial field the local optionists are Evans G. Slaughter, Republican, of Cape May, and William C. Gebhardt, Democrat, of Hunterdon.

Of the hold-over members of the Senate the Anti-Saloon League leaders say they can depend on Senator E. R. Ackerman, of Union, and Senator William H. Plummer, of Salem.

TWO BOYS TRAMPING FROM N.Y. TO TOLEDO

Two young scions of Ohio families are walking across the country from New York to Toledo, Ohio, and Tuesday they passed the night in this city. The youngsters, who are real "cross-country" walkers, are both sixteen years of age and reside on the same street in Toledo—when they are not "hoofing" it in foreign parts. They are Bert Otto and Henry Miller, the former a son of a Toledo butcher and the latter the son of a Toledo lawyer.

Bert and Henry left their homes on South Erie street, Toledo, to come to New York and see the Hudson-Fulton celebration. They traveled in a Pullman. Arriving in New York, they put up at a fashionable hotel and took in the sights in an automobile. Finally, when the celebration ended the other day, the charms of the metropolis began to pall upon Bert and Otto, and more important still they were without funds. Hence they decided to follow the telegraph poles back home.

The boys left New York Tuesday afternoon and got into Plainfield at about midnight. They reached the borough and slept for the night. They resumed their journey early this morning.

IS LEE TRAIN WRECKER? GETS 20 DAYS IN JAIL

Thomas Lee, an Italian, twenty-three years old, was caught building a fire on the premises of the railroad near North avenue this morning at 5 o'clock and was arrested by one of the Central's detectives who had been watching the man for some time. The man had been acting suspiciously for a half hour previous and it is not impossible that he is the man who two weeks ago two nights in succession placed obstructions in front of passenger trains late at night.

On looking up his record it was found that Lee had been arrested here twice before, once for stealing coal and once for stealing brass hose couplings from the road. He also has a police record in Westfield. A sentence of twenty days was given him by City Judge Runyon this morning and in the meantime his trial will be taken up by the police in the hope that it will shed some light on the recent outrages on the line. Coaches have been stoned and windows broken and on one occasion a passenger was injured by a stone and the flying glass.

MEDICAL INSPECTION IS NOW COMPULSORY

The school authorities in every district in New Jersey have received an official communication from State Superintendent of Schools C. J. Baxter, informing them of the recent action of the State Board of Education regarding medical inspection. Heretofore, it has not been compulsory, but under the new ruling it is obligatory upon the school authorities to provide such inspection and in accordance with the rules adopted by the State board. The ruling will not affect Plainfield or North Plainfield.

The action of the State board is for the purpose of securing a uniform rule in medical inspection. It is now compulsory for very board of education to appoint as medical inspectors, recognized practitioners of medicine, duly qualified to practice in that district and physically able to serve. The appointment is for one year. Two or more districts may unite in the employment of a medical inspector for economy's sake. It is also compulsory for boards of education to carefully conform to all rules of local boards of health.

There must be frequency of regular inspections. In rural districts at least twice a month, villages and small towns once a week, towns and cities, at least three times a week, where the districts are crowded. The inspection must include the eyes, ears, throat, teeth, deformities, skin; also exact measurements and an examination of the heart and lungs. The certificate of exemption from vaccination of any pupil shall be made by the medical inspector as required by the school law.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS

Handsome Pair of Shoplifters Landed in Headquarters After Looting Stores.

"DR. AND MRS. E. E. SMITH."

Stolen Shoes from Moldesky Leads to Roundup of Pair of Very Clever Crooks.

Apparently concealing their identity under fictitious names a slick pair of shoplifters and sneak thieves are in the hands of the local police, and loot valued from $200 to $300 recovered. "Doctor Edward E. Smith" and "Kitty Smith," his wife, are the names given by the couple and their address Albany, N. Y. Smith claims to be a dentist and says they are on their wedding trip. This part of their story is offset by the fact that the woman has no wedding ring and is silent when questioned as to her relations with the man. Smith is about twenty-four and the woman twenty-one, and both have all the earmarks of criminals.

From marks found on the articles found by the police in a room occupied by the pair at Watchung avenue and Second street, it is apparent that stores all the way from Chicago to Plainfield have been looted. Pawn tickets were found representing other goods disposed of on the way. They were held in $2,500 bail pending a further investigation by the police. So far only two merchants in this city have identified goods, Louis Moledezky, a shoe dealer of 156 East Front street, and F. W. Woolworth & Co., proprietors of a five and ten cent store on West Front street.

Among the stolen articles are women's skirts, underwear, shoes, hosiery, suit cases, hand bags, jewelry, ebony handled hairbrushes, traveling cases worth from ten to twenty-five dollars, books and other smaller articles enough to stock a small store. Among the other effects was found a picture post card addressed to "William Hiner," 78 Burnett street, Newark. Some of the pawn tickets have the name "Stalker" and were made out by A. Salinger, of Park Row, New York. The pair was not landed in jail without a struggle. Newark, Elizabeth, Orange, Westfield and Jersey City are represented in the stuff.

The catching of the two shoplifters was a neat piece of amateur detective work by Louis Moledezky. It was in his store, The American Shoe Repairing Co., where the Smiths first chose to operate. Mrs. Moledezky was in charge of the store when the Smith woman entered and asked to see a pair of No. 7½ patent leather shoes. Not satisfied with the first pair shown her another pair was shown her, which evidently were all right, but she asked Mrs. Moledezy to ascertain from the shoemaker in the rear of the shop the cost of having rubber heels put on the pair she had selected. While Mrs. Moledezky went to the rear Mrs. "Smith" deftly removed the first pair from the box and stuffed them under the long cloak she was wearing and departed, saying she would return later for the pair with rubber heels on.

She made the mistake of applying to Samuel Millinkoff, of 100 Watchung avenue, for a sheet of wrapping paper for the shoes. Millinkoff knowing Mr. Moledezky's punctilious habit for always wrapping up the goods he sold and recognizing his private price mark on the shoes became suspicious of the woman and informed Mr. Moledezky of his belief that all was not right. An examination of the box confirmed the theft and the shoe dealer started out to look for Mrs. Smith. He trailed her to Somerset street, where she was joined by her accomplice and together they started up the street.

Mr. Moledezky hastened to headquarters and reported the theft and in company with Patrolman McGinley went after the thieves. Chief Kiely here took a hand in the matter and the pair were caught and taken back to Mr. Moledezky's store, where they protested loudly against their arrest and offered to pay for the shoes, but as neither had money enough on their persons to do this the case against them became stronger. Notwithstanding their protests the couple were taken to Police headquarters and after finding out where they had taken up their residence here, Chief Kiely personally conducted a search of the room they had hired from Mrs. John Stevens, corner of Watchung avenue and Second street. Here the loot was found which confirmed the Chief's belief that a very clever pair of shoplifters had fallen into his hands. Here is a partial list of the stuff: Three Voile skirts, valued at $10 each, not finished; a morning gown of Pongee silk; one zephyr silk cravenetted rain coat (woman's), a lot of fleece-lined underwear, stockings, sox and some

MT. BETHEL.

The members of the Mt. Bethel Pleasure Circle and a number of the neighbors and friends of Mrs. Andrew Haye, of Mt. There were about 75 guests present and during the evening there were vocal and instrumental music, games, and dancing after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Haye received many beautiful gifts.

TO ENTERTAIN GUESTS AT TUBERCULOSIS MEET.

Trenton, Oct. 14.—Local society women are planning to entertain in honor of guests in their homes, who will come to Trenton for the State meeting of the New Jersey State Tuberculosis Commission and the reception after the meeting by Governor Fort the evening of Thursday, October 21. West State street and Greenwood avenue houses of the fashionable set will be the scenes of a number of delightful functions of formal nature. Most of the entertainments will be dinners and receptions.

The committee of invitations for the Governor's reception is now engaged in preparing the invitation lists, which will include men and women from all parts of New Jersey.

Because of the great number of people who will attend the meeting in Taylor Opera House, it will be impossible to invite all of them to the reception to follow the meeting.

Patronesses, patrons, members of the commission and a large number of out-of-town and Trenton people will be among the guests at the reception. The invitations will go out some time this week, and by Monday it is expected that every detail will have been completed.

FORMER MAYOR GETS A STRAW HAT PERMIT.

Many persons in Trenton yesterday afternoon turned to look at a distinguished looking old gentleman wearing a straw hat above a well-fitting black Prince Albert coat. It was the only straw hat in sight and many persons doubtless wondered why the scholarly looking man who wore it had not long ago called it in.

The gentleman in the straw hat was former Mayor John Briest, of that place. When a friend asked him why he wore headwear out of season he solemnly pulled from his pocket a paper bearing official seals and the following:

"John Briest is hereby granted permission to wear a straw hat as long as he likes without interference from the police or the questioning as to his motive by citizens.

"JOHN FRANKLIN FORT,
"Governor.

"Attest::
"JUDSON HINER,
"Chief of Police."

Noble & Brooks will complete this bill. Film d'art of unusual interest will be shown.

To Submit Proposition Once Defeated

Rahway, Oct. 14.—Although the proposition to give the Mayor power to appoint members of the Board of Education was defeated by nineteen votes at the special election of 1903, Common Council Tuesday night decided to test public sentiment again. A resolution was adopted providing for the submitting of the proposition to the people at the next election.

This Man," a play dealing with life as it is and the many complex questions arising in relation to the sexes. "This Woman and This Man" is announced for presentation at the Plainfield theatre Friday night by the only company authorized to play it. Great claims are made for the excellence of the cast and production.

Not since "In Old Kentucky" flashed across the vision have theatregoers seen a racing play of deeper insight or of more genuine appeal than the successful play, "Wildfire," which will be seen at the Plainfield theatre Saturday, matinee and night. Pauline Hall, who occupied at least an equal position in the lyric sky, with her predecessor in this play, now shares with Lillian Russell the honors as a comedienne. It is eminently fitting that this should be so, as both are distinguished as our reigning American beauties, and both were operatic idols second to none. In the role of Mrs. Barrington, Miss Hall has duplicated the success of Miss Russell. Her superlative beauty, magnificence of figure, daintiness of manner and engaging grace enable Miss Hall to portray a bewitching widow, which is essential to the reasonable development of the story.

GOLF.

According to the talk at the Merion Cricket Club last week, the next women's national golf championship tournament will be played over a course in the metropolitan district. Not a few of the women are keen to have the tournament decided at Garden City. The Philadelphia players, including Miss Frances Griscom, are favorable to the Long Island course, and Mrs. C. T. Stout also expressed the same opinion.

H. N. Warbasse has won the trophy presented to the Dyker Meadow Golf Club by the Marine and Field Club by defeating W. W. Pell 7 up and 6 to play in the final round.

A club tournament has been arranged by the New York Golf Club. It will be decided during the month, players to qualify this week. There will be three classes and sixteen contestants will qualify in each set. Handicap match play will follow and a gold medal will be given to the winner in each class.

It's a long lane that has no turning. After many, many feats as runnerup, H. Emerson Armstrong won out Monday the championship of the Fox Hills Golf Club. He beat A. F. Kammer in thirty-six holes by 6 up and 5 to play. Armstrong, who was 4 up after the first eighteen holes, established the new amateur record for two rounds of 147 strokes. In the final for the Brooklyn cup Lloyd Tefft beat W. S. Kimball, 5 up and 3 to play.

Struggle With Bull Terrier.

Red Bank, Oct. 14.—Ernest Karshman, sixty years old, had a twenty minute encounter with a bull terrier near his home Monday night, and although he was not bitten, his right shoulder was strained and was slightly dislocated and his left wrist was sprained. The man managed to get a grip on the dog's throat with two hands, while a large crowd looked on and saw the dog and man fight it out. Several times the man fell and rolled over and over with the dog. He was about to give up when a stranger clubbed the brute away.

Bridgeton, Oct. 14.—Judge R. P. Tuller Tuesday announced his decision to grant the renewal of the license to the hotel at Deerfield. Borough Tax Rate $2.18.

The tax rate in the borough for the coming year has been raised from $2.08 to $2.18 on the hundred, because of the fact that the Borough Council has established a contingent fund of $1,000 for the coming year, making the fund rate .61, instead of .51. It has always been the custom to provide such a fund and this year it was decided that $1,000 would be needed.

NEW PRIMARIES LAW DENOUNCED BY STOKES

State Assessor David Baird and former Governor Edward C. Stokes have taken occasion to criticize the direct primary law, and from what they say on the subject it begins to look as if an effort would be made in the coming Legislature to secure a repeal, or at least a modification of the act.

Mr. Baird is especially emphatic in his condemnation of the scheme:

"It makes two elections and doesn't do any good," he declared. "It would be far better if all of the primary election laws were wiped off the statute books. Then let the two parties make their own nominations in their own way. If they made bad nominations they would be defeated at the polls, and that would end it. That is the way it should be."

Mr. Stokes' criticism of the present system is that the primary campaign and election stir up the voters and get everybody interested and then after this is over there is a reaction and it is doubly hard to get the voters interested in the election proper. He said:

"It isn't so bad where there are only two candidates for each nomination, but when there are four or five it is very troublesome. You might just as well put all their names on the regular ticket, for the successful nominee only wins by a plurality of the votes and does not represent the desire of a majority."

FIGURES VS. STYLES.

Hats are the rocks upon which the large and the small woman come to grief. Hats with immense crowns and brims can be carried with dignity by the large woman. They give a certain proportion at the top which makes for a pleasing effect. But the little woman with the small face should be conservative in her selection and pass by the tempting mammoth styles. She should avoid the broad brim, which will cut off the height. The smaller turbans, with less bulk of trimming, are better.

The girls with the round, full face, with soft features and fluffy hair, can wear with safety either a stiff, severe hat or the drooping lingerie. But the woman who has sharper lines of the face and who wears her hair in plain, severe fashion must eschew the inappropriate drooping style. Long faces may be apparently shortened by wide hats.

Probably the best guide in obtaining good lines is the golden mean. Avoid the extreme or the sensational and don't foolishly rush in where the more successful dresser fears to tread. Remember that in following the edicts of any new style the figure of the wearer must be considered. To gain proportion in the ultimate effect a "balancing" treatment of line is good. And, like a golden thread recurring at many points, let the individuality of the wearer be seen in the resultant effect.

Fashionable Autumn Colors.

Appropos of color, the new shades are Eastern, fascinating and peculiar. There is an emerald tinged with blue which critical people are calling chrysoprase, but which the less exact will call for under the name of blue-green; and that blue with elusive green in it which is called peacock, and which will become green if associated with strong green trimming. These greens and blues are voiles, and in evening and afternoon satins and silks.—Harper's Bazar.

Union Street Team Victorious.

The Union street football club defeated Holy Cross thirds, in a hard-fought game Tuesday afternoon by a score of 15 to 6. Holy Cross outweighed its opponents, but had a weak line. Two features of the contest were a long end run made by Shark of the Union streets for a touchdown and an exciting end run made by A. VanZandt, also of Union street.

HERE ARE SOME DAINTY BREAKFAST DISHES.

Breakfast dishes ought to be easy of digestion and at the same time as nourishing as possible. The principal work of the day is as a rule performed in the morning, and whether it takes a manual or or mental form a supply of blood is needed to give energy.

If a meal is partaken of which is difficult to digest before work is begun, then either the work suffers or the food remains undigested. The stomach does not do its best work while we are performing the hardest of our daily tasks.

Here are some dishes that are excellent:

American Omelet—Beat up five eggs, add a tablespoonful of cream, four tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, half a teaspoonful of onion juice, a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, and seasoning of salt, pepper and red pepper.

Melt a heaping tablespoonful of butter in an omelet pan, pour in the mixture and stir over the fire.

When sufficiently cooked shape it, allow it to set, and color, then turn out on a hot dish and serve at once.

Egg and Tomato Custard—Break five eggs into a basin, beat up well and add four tablespoonfuls of tomato pulp (that is, fresh ripe tomatoes rubbed through a fine sieve), one tablespoonful of milk or cream, one tablespoonful grated Parmesan cheese, season with salt, pepper and grated nutmeg.

Butter eight paper cases, fill them with the prepared custard, and bake them slowly in a fairly hot oven for nearly twenty minutes. Dish up and serve hot.

Bacon with Brussels Sprouts—Fry a dozen slices of bacon in a frying pan; when done take up and keep hot. Put into the same frying pan about a pound of cold, cooked, well-drained brussels sprouts, and fry them in the bacon fat.

Season with salt and pepper and toss them a little.

Put the sprouts into a hot buttered dish and serve with the fried bacon.

As to Jelly Bags.

"This is certainly the season of jelly-making," said a Newark housekeeper, "and jelly bags are in frequent use in some households. I wonder how many housewives have found out the wisdom of having a jelly bag pointed instead of straight across the bottom? I know that it was some time before I discovered the expediency of using a V-shaped bag. I used to bring up one of the lower corners of the bag, and so by this makeshift have a point. Now I make the bag V-shaped, and I find the jelly drips to much better advantage. Another thing: I always use my jelly bag wrong side out. Why? Because then it is easier to wash. If the seam is on the inside, the refuse of the fruit clings to it, and cannot be so quickly dislodged in the washing. With the seam reversed, the inside is devoid of any little catch places."

MEETING OF COUNTY DOCTORS; INTERESTING PAPER READ.

The regularly quarterly meeting of the Union County Medical Society took place last night in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., which was attended by thirty-five or more physicians representing Elizabeth, Cranford, Rahway, Roselle, Roselle Park, and other towns.

The principal topic discussed was a paper read by Dr. A. F. Van Horn, of Central avenue, entitled "Diet in Typhoid Fever." The reading of this paper opened up dietetic matters pertaining to the subject matter of the paper in which all the medicos were deeply interested. Some facts of general interest to the practioners in the county, and elsewhere, for that matter, were brought out and were thoroughly debated to mutual advantage.

NEW HEAD AT PENNINGTON,

Former Governor Stokes Speaks at the Installation.

The installation of the Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Read as the eleventh president of Pennington Seminary took place yesterday afternoon at Pennington. Dr. Read succeeds the Rev. Frank Moore, who resigned last spring to become the head of the New Jersey State Reformatory at Rahway.

Former Governor Stokes made a lengthy address.

GOVERNOR LOOKING OVER INLAND WATERWAYS

Governor Fort went to Atlantic City last night to spend the evening with State Senator Eward A. Wilson, and to take over the inland waterways of Atlantic, Ocean and Cape May counties with Commissioner Henry Schneider. Others who were invited to the conference by Senator Wilson are Senators Freelinghuysen, Minch, Hand and Bradley and Assemblyman Crosby.

The inland waterway improvement is one of the pet schemes of the Governor, and he said last night that if during is term he accomplishes nothing further than the consummation of that and the ocean boulevard, he would feel himself fully repaid.

The Governor left this morning with Commissioner Schneider, the Senators and Congressman Gardner, to make a survey of the waterways of the three counties mentioned, with a view to selecting the best course. Congressman Gardner was invited to go on the trip because he is said to be more conversant with the inland waters of this section than any other man in it.

The Governor and his party expect to get back late this afternoon and will then go to the Marlborough-Blenheim, where they will meet Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer. Dr. Cook will lecture this evening as the guest of honor at the banquet of the American Hardwares Manufacturing Association.

lingerie; a man's silk hat, an opera hat, a traveler's case containing every appurtenance for the toilet including razor and mirrors, all handsomely nickle-plated; tobacco, pipes, soap, shoe polish and other things too numerous to mention.

Merchants of this city were invited in to examine the collection in an effort to make out other complaints against the pair. Smith is trying to bluff the police into the belief that he and the woman are just an innocent "pair of kids," but the evidence is too strong against them. They both struggled with Chief Kiely in his office after being taken and were landed in the cooler with the assistance of three other officers.

Mrs. Stevens, the landlady, from whom Mr. and Mrs. Smith engaged a room, said this morning that when the couple entered the house neither of them had anything in the way of baggage, and Mr. Smith was anxious to secure a room which had a separate entrance from any of the others in the house. As such a retreat was impossible in Mrs. Stevens' house they had to make the best of things and immediately got busy somewhere.

They entered and went out of their room three or four times within the space of an hour, and each time brought in something new. Besides bringing in new things they also attempted a different disguise or costume apparently with the intention of not being recognized on the street by those who had previously seen them. In any event they made the most of their time while engaged in fleecing local merchants.

Those who presided at the tea were Mrs. M. W. Clark, Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. William Doig, Mrs. Walter Bradford, Mrs. Joseph Bushby and Mrs. G. Herbert Condict.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD WILL MEET MONDAY

Announcement of the program for the meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey, which will begin at the Olivet Presbyterian church, Atlantic City, on Monday evening has been made. The first session will begin Monday evening at 8 o'clock with public worship and the opening sermon by the Rev. Davis W. Lusk, D. D., of Newark, who is moderator of the synod. This will be followed by the observance of the ordinance of the Lord's Supper.

The real business of the synod will then begin with the election of a moderator for the ensuing year. The chairman of the committee on arrangements, the Rev. Newton W. Cadwell, D. D., of Elizabeth. The Rev. Samuel McLanahan, of Lawrenceville, will render the report for Synodical Home Missions and the treasurer's report of the Synodical Home Missions will be given by William T. Stevenson, of Roselle. The report of the committee on narrative will be given by the Rev. Joseph Lyman Ewing.

Reports of the following permanent committees will be given: Committees on foreign and home missions, Sunday schools, Sabbath observance, temperance, systematic beneficence, Young Peoples' societies and Presbyterian brotherhoods. Judge Lanning, of Trenton, will deliver the report on Presbyterian brotherhoods.

Following are the special committees for which reports will be rendered: Evangelistic work, interdenominational conferences, visitation, boundaries of brotherhoods and executive commission. The Rev. E. B. Cobb, D. D., of Elizabeth, will give the report for the committee on the boundaries of presbyteries.

Reports for the following standing committees will be given: Bills and overtures, judicial business, minutes of the General Assembly, finance, Presbyterial records, Synodical Home Mission account, revision of permanent committees.

There will also be a report of the trustees of the synod.

Probably every Presbyterian pastor of Elizabeth will be in attendance at the sessions of the synod, as well as one elder from each church.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

That Jersey Central Deal.

There is something peculiar about the fact that the daily papers, through the press news bureaus or otherwise, did not report the most interesting portion of George F. Baer's testimony in the government hearing at Philadelphia against the anthracite railroads a fortnight ago. Mr. Baer's story of the acquisition by the Reading Railroad of the Jersey Central, as told to the Interstate Commerce Commission and now reproduced for the benefit of whom it may concern, constitutes a fairy tale of high finance. It explains how deals involving many millions and vast interests are sometimes put through in a five-minute chat by two or three men.

Providing, of course, there is no distinctly illegal performance in the operation, it may not come in for criticism, but that, as has often been shown, frequently depends upon the personnel of those who undertake the huge transactions, occurrences which sometimes involve public interests in a way which do not always affect the latter favorably. One might instance the notorious Alton Railway deal which the late Mr. Harriman put through, if a bill of particulars is called for. As for the case in hand, it had dawned upon Mr. Baer, back in 1900, that if another railroad should get hold of the Jersey Central and opposition to the Reading should develop, the latter might be cut off from its New York harbor connection.

The thought of the possibility of the Reading being bottled up in the Pennsylvania coal regions was intolerable of course, and the result, as now set forth by Mr. Baer himself, was a hurried trip to New York and an interview with Mr. Morgan. Mr. Baer's proposition was for Reading to buy a controlling interest in Jersey Central. Mr. Morgan told the good deacon to go back, think it over, write down the facts bearing in the case and send them to him. Mr. Baer did so and after waiting vainly a few days he jogged the New York banker's memory and was called up on the telephone and told to come over at once. This the Reading man did and saw Mr. Morgan in the latter's office. George F. Baer, of Jersey Central, was called in and asked what he would take for a control of the latter company and if he could deliver the same. He replied that he would undertake to turn over a majority of the stock and named a figure with which Mr. Baer was satisfied. Two of Mr. Baer's asociates at Philadelphia were called up on the telephone, said go ahead, and, Mr. Baer said, the deal was ended.

Not a scratch of a pen was made. Everybody was satisfied and the Reading got a controlling interest in Jersey Central at 160. This was business, of a kind. The Baker people were satisfied and the Baer folks likewise. No Baltimore and Ohio or other opposition could thereafter get control of the Jersey line and check the free entry of Reading to New York harbor. Mr. Baer added that the Jersey Central's facilities for terminals in New York harbor are the there; it owns "large areas of land there capable of development to meet the wants of the company for a hundred years to come." The deal thus put through by four men shows a profit today indicated by the price of Jersey Central stock being about double what it was in 1900. It furthermore suggests long-headedness in appreciating what the road's acquisition of valuable New Jersey water fronts mean, and will continue to mean, as Mr. Baer has said, "for one hundred years to come."—Newark News.

NO SPECIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Governor Fort yesterday afternoon put a quietus on the reports that have been floating around Hudson county the last few days to the effect that he plans to call a special session of the Senate for the purpose of submitting a nomination to succeed David Baird as a member of the State Board of Assessors.

"There is not a word of truth in the report," said the Governor to a newspaper correspondent. "I have my mind all made up as to what I shall do in reference to naming a successor to Mr. Baird, and it does not include any thought of convening the Senate in special session."

PIANO CONTEST FAKES EXPOSED!

IMPORTANT FACTS FOR HOLDERS OF GOLD BONDS, PIANO COUPONS AND DISCOUNT CERTIFICATES.

There are several Piano houses which have no prices for their goods except grossly inflated ones arranged expressly for fake discounts in connection with schemes of various kinds. These houses seem to find it impossible to dispose of their pianos in a legitimate, straightforward way, but instead resort to one scheme after another—catch-penny devices, so crude as to be positively insulting to the intelligence of the public. These schemes usually take the form of guessing contests, drawing puzzles and various feats of little skill. In all of them the object is identical to mislead the prospective buyer into the belief that he is getting something for nothing, while at the same time prices are arranged sufficiently high to off-set the allowance to which his prize certificate entitles him.

EVERYONE WHO MAKES A GUESS GETS A PRIZE!

If you have ever answered one of these ads you received a discount certificate. EVERYBODY DOES. It matters not whether the answer is good, bad or indifferent, from adult or child it draws a prize in the shape of a certificate or due bill (generally from $65.00 to $100.00) to apply on the purchase of a new Piano. Of course the price of the Piano is fixed accordingly and the purchaser pays a high price even after the amount of certificate is deducted, usually a much higher price than an instrument of similar quality could be secured for in any legitimate music store.

To test the value of one of these certificates present it in payment for something other than a new piano—say a low priced used piano, music cabinet or a bench, and see how quickly the dealer will turn you down. He will not even give you 50 cents worth of music for it. Try the experiment!

AT $185.00 WE WILL SELL A BETTER PIANO THAN THE SCHEME HOUSES ASK $325.00 TO $400.00 FOR! Such well known and high grade makes as Haines Bros., Brewster, the Genuine Mathushek and others too numerous to mention.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The celebration of the centennial of the first religious services held in Milliville will begin in all of the evangelical churches Sunday.

The New Jersey Society, Sons of the Revolution, will place four explanatory tablets on the Red Bank Battle Monument on October 23.

In a contest in Woodbury for the best attendance at Sunday-school for the ensuing three months, the Presbyterians lead with seventy-eight per cent. The First Baptist is a close second with seventy-five.

The Ocean City Council, at a special meeting Monday night, passed the ordinance prohibiting the manufacture, buying and keeping for sale intoxicating beverages within the city limits. Mayor Cresse immediately signed the ordinance.

County Superintendent Stees, after a week's trip among the schools in the rural districts of Burlington County, reports a tremendous advance in education, and says that the agricultural sections are enjoying the best school advantages in the State.

Burlington County Pomona Grange will hold its annual session at Medford Tuesday, October 26. A special program of note has been arranged for the afternoon and a banquet will be served in the evening. The State master and other officers are expected to be present.

Michael Norton, a sixteen-year-old boy, who ran away two months ago from his home, 106 Middlesex street, Gloucester, has been located at Fredericksburg, Va. Herman Elliott, another runaway boy, who resided at 16 Sussex street, has been found at Chester, Pa. Their parents will go after them.

Galvin Wright, twelve years old, of 132 Marshall street, Paterson, was knocked down and run over by a horse and wagon on Hamilton street Tuesday. The owner of the rig drove off before his name was learned. The lad was taken to the office of Dr. C. J. Murn, on Clark street, where a laceration of the head was dressed.

While standing on a bench at the ocean end of the music pavilion in Ocean City Tuesday afternoon the five-year-old child of Frank Grosser fell over the rail and into the surf, a distance of sixteen feet. The father slid down a piling into the sea to rescue the child, who was being rapidly carried out. After going some distance Groszer caught the child and brought it to shore. The child was badly scared, but unhurt.

At the third special election held in the High School building, Mays Landing, Monday night, advocates of the proposition to expend $12,000 for alterations on the old school won out by a vote of 214 to fifty-one. Citizens who favored the erection of a new up-to-date brick building at a cost of $31,000 took but little interest in the matter, while the opposition was active and hustled, conveying many women to the polls in vehicles during the heavy rainstorm.

An automobile was found abandoned on a common near Haddon avenue and Sycamore street, Camden, by Policeman Ellis, Tuesday and word was sent to the city hall. The police were puzzled until W. E. Miller, of 310 Market street, claimed the machine. The automobile was in charge of a policeman when he arrived to claim it and Miller was compelled to first call on Chief of Police Gravenor. He proved that he had left the machine after a breakdown and was allowed to have it removed to a garage.

Camden justices of the peace are on a strike. Postively they refuse to work until they get pay for what they have already done, and, as that seems remote, the county may have to get along without their aid. Soon after the September grand jury got down to business Prosecutor of the Pleas Scovel announced that too many flimsy and inconsequential cases had been sent up by the justices, and the county was made liable for heavy expenses for fees where there was absolutely no justification. Some bills for fees were approved, but in many instances the squires were unable to collect, and now they have decided to take no more complaints until the matter is adjusted.

FATALLY CRUSHED IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

Atlantic City, Oct. 14.—Crushed between the wreckage of the tonneau when an Atlantic and Suburban trolley car crashed into an automobile near Absecon Tuesday night, Mrs. Silas Reed, of 6646 Van Dyke street, Philadelphia, received injuries which caused her death soon afterward in the City Hospital here. Four others escaped injury.

The woman came here a week ago to visit Mrs. Harry McDevitt. Tuesday night she was taken for an automobile spin. Thomas McDevitt, who was driving the big machine, made an abrupt turn to avoid a bad hole in the roadway. At that instant a swiftly moving trolley car struck the rear of the automobile, tearing off the tonneau and hurling Mrs. Reed and the other women into the roadway. She died an hour later.

Workman Buried Under Cement.

Jersey City, Oct. 14.—It is not believed there will be an inquest into the case of Antonio Fudiario, twenty-four years old, who was killed Monday night, when he was carried over the edge of a "cut" with the contents of a flat car loaded with cement. The victim was an employe of King, Rice & Ganey, subcontractors for the Miller Construction Company, which is doing the excavation for the new Erie Railroad cut. He fell a distance of seventy-five feet, and was completely buried under the cement.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 17, 1909.
By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series.—X. Doubting castle.—Ps. xliii, 1-5; Ix. [illegible], 12-30; I Kings xix, 1-18

Doubting castle, one of the obstacles in Christian's progress, was owned and ruled by Giant Despair. Christian and Hopeful, who was with him at that time, slept one night on his grounds. The giant, seeing them the next morning, was very angry, threw them into the prison of the castle, gave them nothing to eat and grossly mistreated them, his wife, Diffidence, suggesting the methods of torture. It was suggested that they take their own lives, and Christian was so discouraged that the temptation was strong upon him to do so. But Hopeful made him ashamed of such a suggestion; but it again returned, only to be overcome again by Hopeful's denouncement. At last Christian thought of the key of promise, which he possessed, opened various doors with it, and thus they escaped.

The lessons to be learned from this part of Bunyan's allegory are clearly evident. It is to warn us against doubts, however dark the way may appear in life, and to put our trust in God, who is at all times "our refuge and strength, a present help in time of trouble."

Christian, in despair, almost to the point of self murder in Doubting castle, represents too many Christians. When all is bright and prosperous they are happy Christians, but when the way is dark and rough and hard they sink into doubt and despair. Such actions are strange contradictions. We profess to believe in a personal God who is infinite in power, and yet the moment life grows dark He means nothing to us. Just at the moment when we should lean hardest upon Him we do not trust Him at all. If faith is given to us it is especially for the times when we are helpless and need God's help. But too often we look at it the other way. Elijah was strong in faith when battling against the priests of Baal, but when threatened by Jezebel he fell into despair and asked God to let him die.

God has given us no assurance that we shall have no dark days in this life. "In this life ye shall have tribulations," says Christ. If we believe Him, let us not be troubled and worried with doubts when they come. Let us use the key of promise set forth in the words that followed: "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." So shall we, but not by doubt and mistrust of God. He will either keep trouble from us or keep us in the hour of trouble. There is a key of promise in the Scriptures for every trouble and affliction. Let us find it and open all doors of Doubting castle.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xxxviii, 1-21; xl, 31; Ps. xxvii; Isa. xliii, 1, 2; Ps. xxiii; John xvi, 33; II Cor. iv, 16-18; John xiv, 1-10; II Tim. iv, 6-8; I Pet. i, 1-6.

Our Technical School.

Recent years have seen a vast development in the education of the hand in connection with the brain. Manual training has been introduced into public schools. There are manual arts high schools alongside the old type of high schools, and the schools of technology are rapidly coming to equal rank with the colleges and universities of the arts. Now, all this should have its parallel in religion. The Christian Endeavor society was the first to take up the idea and apply it to the religious training of young Christians. Our prayer meetings are where we learn to speak for Christ. Our committees are where we learn to do other kinds of work for Him. The society that allows its committee work to degenerate will soon have no prayer meeting worth the name. Training in committee work is a training in Christian co-operation. A committee must pull together. This is something very necessary to learn if one is to labor successfully in the church. Training in committee work is training in leadership. The trained committee worker is able to get others to do things. This makes him a most valuable worker in the church when he grows up. Training in committee work is training in method. One learns that there is a best way to do everything and that usually it is incomparably better than even the second best way of doing the same thing. The committee trains one in patience. It trains one in ingenuity. It trains one in perseverance. It trains one to look for definite results, and it shows one how to get them. It trains one in the use of tools. In short, it is a complete college of Christian efficiency. If you want to become a well rounded Christian, enter the Christian Endeavor School of Technology and take the entire course.—Amos R. Wells in Christian Endeavor World.

Prominent Christian Endeavorer.

Charles E. McBurney, who again has been chosen to head the Chicago Christian Endeavor society, has been prominent in the society for several years. He was born in Chicago in 1881 and in 1898 was graduated from the Englewood high school. He entered business with an oil company and early became prominent in Christian Endeavor work, his first office being that of president of the missionary department of the Chicago society. In 1906 he was made president of the Englewood division. He lives at 5644 Lasalle street.

Endeavor's Ideal.

Dwellers on the same earth; travelers at the same hour; companions on the same road. Shall we not help one another?

Via Wireless

"Yes, yes, I understand," broke in the captain impatiently. "But can't he give us any idea of his course? Can-

He volleyed out into the night a message of cheer.

dada reef is the only charted reef within 200 miles of our present position. Could you send 200 miles tonight?"

Harling shook his head.

"I don't think we could, sir. And 200 miles for a yacht would be impossible. Wait a minute."

He sprang to the key again and with firm, emphatic strokes drove an imperative message.

"What's that?" asked the captain.

"I asked for his radius of communication—how far he could send," explained Harling. He waited a moment, and then the receiver began again its nervous, frightened clicking.

The face of the listening operator brightened.

"Sixty miles," he exclaimed, translating the clicks. "Why, we must be within forty miles to get him at all tonight. But we are going toward him. We might now be within thirty miles."

The captain shook his head.

"Yes, but where?" he said. "It may be in any position. Anywhere within a forty mile reach, ahead or on either beam, and tonight we can scarcely see a quarter mile with the searchlight."

Again the receiver began a wild tattoo. The light went out of Harling's face as he listened. Then he turned almost piteously, to the captain.

"He says they're breaking up, sir. For God's sake"—

The clicking stopped suddenly. The two men in the wireless room looked at each other, and slowly each saw the horror grow in the eyes of the other. They waited with blanched faces. The receiver stayed still.

"They're gone," said the captain softly at last, and outside the wireless room the wind roared triumphantly, while the big waves pitched the ship about in the teeth of the gale.

Harling dropped back into a chair.

"Gone!" he muttered stupidly. "Gone!" And then, to his plain imagination, there came the picture of the yacht breaking up and the thirty going down to death in the sea. Perhaps they might be closer; they might be almost on them. Perhaps there was still time. And then the thought, "Suppose there are women, too, on board," came to the young operator.

Harling sprang to his feet.

"No, no!" he yelled loud above the storm. "They shan't be gone! We will save them!"

He sprang to the key and desperately, rebelliously, volleyed out into the night a message of cheer and hope.

"We're coming. We'll save you yet. Where are you? Hang on!"

The captain laid his hand gently on the young fellow's shoulder.

"It's no use, I fear, boy," he said softly. "They are gone. That's the way it is at sea. You've done all you could, boy. Make a full report and transcription for me. If you should get another call send for me at once."

Turning, the old seaman opened the door of the wireless room to fight his way along the deck to the lookout's position. Inside the room young Harling dropped into a chair before his instrument and, bending over, buried his head in his hand.

Suddenly he sat up straight, tense in every nerve and muscle. What was that? Was it his imagination playing tricks again? No. He could not be mistaken. There it was again.

He looked, listened, then sprang to his feet, with a shriek of joy, for the little recorder in front of him began again slowly, as though tired, to click.

"A—A—A—A."

He read it off aloud, with regret.

"Just some battleship," he said bitterly to himself. "That's the navy call."

Next his face lighted, and he laughed aloud hysterically, for it was the navy call, but it came from the Irvessa. Impatiently the operator seized the telephone.

"Captain, captain," he shrieked, "I've got the Irvessa again, sir! Not Pinckney this time. There's a man at the key. We can get something from this one. He can't send much, but he's all there with his nerve."

He dropped the telephone again as the receiver began to click:

"Yacht Irvessa aground on reef. Position unknown, but within thirty miles of you getting this message. To indicate relative position storm center now passing directly northeast of us. Heaviest lightning northeast by east. Can you make out our position?"

The captain had re-entered the wireless room by the time the message was delivered.

"Tell him," exclaimed the officer, "we can make out his probable position. We are steering southwest by west to find him. Ask him how long he can last."

The answer to the message came back slowly, with every dot and dash absolutely distinct:

"Half an hour."

"Tell him," commanded the captain, "we are twenty miles away probably and can't make better than 12 knots an hour in this storm."

A terrific flash of lightning for one blinding instant lit up the mountainous waste of waves outside.

"Ask him where that lightning was," shouted the officer.

"East by north," the receiver clicked back.

In another minute the course of the ship had been changed one point to the southward, and all this while the receiver slowly but steadily clicked out guiding news.

"We have two boats. Both boats left yacht ten minutes ago during break in communication with you. They seem understand direction you coming. First boat making for you. Look for its lights."

An expression of admiration came on the face of the old seaman.

"Then that fellow must have stayed behind to guide us and save the people in the boat," he exclaimed. "Ask him how many are with him."

Harling translated the quick answer: "One. He is below. Stayed with me to run dynamo. We can give directions as long as hold together. That last lightning flash due north."

"Well, he's got his nerve, all right," exclaimed the officer, with admiration. "We've got to save that fellow."

The receiver was still pounding away: "Both boats got away safely. Pinckney, Mrs. Durant, in first; also Miss Durant, I believe. Make every effort to save them."

The skilled operator quickly cut off part of the current, but the message continued uninterrupted. Harling laughed joyously.

"We are much closer than we thought," he exclaimed, with excitement. "I used less current, and he got us all right. If he get that we can't be ten miles off."

He seized the key and clicked off the cheering news to the man on the stranded Irvessa who used the navy call.

Very firmly, but slowly, the answer came:

"We shall not outlive this. Storm gathering thicker. Both boats should live. If we are lost see that family of man who stayed with me is rewarded with my property."

"I wonder who that fellow is," exclaimed the Mongolian's chief officer. "Did he tell you?"

Harling shook his head.

"No, but he's a naval man. He used the navy call. We're on him. Listen." He translated quickly: "You are now between us and boats. See your light. Boats south of you. Do not expect further directions. Going to pieces. Steer south."

The first officer burst into the wireless room.

"Here, sir," he exclaimed. "I'll take your place. There is a searchlight on the starboard bow."

The captain struggled out to the deck as Harling pounded this cheering message of help and appeal to stick:

"See your light. Coming. For God's sake don't break yet."

The answer was sharp and stern:

"Don't try reach us. Boats have twenty-six. Only two here."

A Treat For Art Lovers

An Unprecedented Sale of $15 to $20 Bronzes at - - $10.00

We've had great sales of art wares—great sales of cut glass, great sales of watches and all that sort of thing. We have surpassed every attempt of any other Newark store in engineering really big events. We are going to keep doing that sort of thing, and this great and truly unprecedented sale of French and German Bronzes will be an example of our intention to achieve notable triumphs in the trade world.

This sale of bronzes will be great, involving as it does an enormous purchase of thousands of dollars worth of beautiful figures, busts, and groups reproduced from the originals of some of Europe's greatest artists, purchased by our buyer on his recent trip abroad when he permeated the art centres and reached the source of supply of the best things.

Ordinarily bronze figures such as these are retailed at $15, $25, $35, $40 and $50, and we would have had to sell them at such prices had we bought only a few pieces as the average store does. But doing things on the large scale we do we are able to make a price that bears no semblance to the worth of the bronzes—a price that brings them within the reach of the masses, enabling them to beautify their homes with these splendid subjects of art.

Included in this sale will be the following subjects:

WOMEN'S CLUBS OFFER A $1,500 SCHOLARSHIP.

New York, Oct. 14.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs has offered an English scholarship, valued at $1,500, to an American woman who shall successfully pass the examinations. The scholarship is for Oxford, Cambridge or London University for next year. The examinations are to be in mathematics, Latin and Greek, and will be held in every State in the Union on the nineteenth and twentieth of this month. Candidates must make application to the officers of the educational branch of their State federation, and will, if the conditions are filled, receive a certificate of admission from the chairman of education of the national federation. The candidate, a college graduate, must enter credentials proving her good health, literary and scholastic attainments and promise of distinction. She must be under twenty-seven years of age and unmarried. The examination papers will be read and rated at Oxford and returned to the national federation chairman. In a final decision the State contributing to the scholarship will receive preference over one from a non-contributing State.

N. P. H. S. DEFEATS SOMERVILLE, 46 TO 0

The North Plainfield High School football team decisively defeated the Somerville High team at Somerville yesterday by a score of 46 to 0. It was the Somerville boys first game of the season, and it brought out the fact that they lacked proper coaching. Their plays were usually misdirected and they failed to work as a unit. Again, the team is an unusually light one.

Captain Conroy, of N. P. H. S., made a wonderful 80-yard run for a touchdown. Carlton Smith, of the same team, distinguished himself with a number of successful line plunges.

Herbert Stine, right half for North Plainfield, kept the Somerville boys busy stopping his end runs. He rarely failed to gain on his dashes. Considering their rawness, the Somerville boys put up as hard a fight as could be expected and with plenty of the right kind of coaching they should develop into a formidable aggregation.

Three of North Plainfield's touchdowns were made by Carlton Smith, two by Russell Conroy, and one each by Edward Scott, Harry Smith and Herbert Stine.

FOOTBALL.

Having discovered their valor in the game against Harvard, the Williams football forces have buckled down to a hard and hopeful week's work to prepare for the demolition of Dartmouth next Saturday. The Williams folks now feel that there is nothing in New England, outside possibly of Harvard and Yale, that has it on them in football prowess. However, strength in football is nothing new at Williams, where the game generally is exceptionally well played considering the comparatively small number of students and the corresponding scarcity of big men. This year's team is not light by any means, but there have been light Williams teams that have made lots of trouble for heavier and formidable opponents.

The game against Harvard was Williams' second contest of the year and the individuals had not had as much practice or coaching as their Harvard rivals, nor had the team had as much opportunity to get together. Every advantage in preparation was with Harvard. Like conditions were true of the Princeton-Fordham game. The Tigers had had more drilling than the Bronx men. The latter had played only one game to Princeton's two, and one or two of the Fordham players did their first practising the day before.

The explanation that the smaller teams prepare especially for games with big opponents, the latter simply taking these games as they come, hardly will hold water. Maybe there is something in the reason assigned by a well known trainer for the constant hard fights the smaller elevens give the stronger ones: "Why wouldn't these smaller college teams put up a troublesome battle? They can afford to take all sorts of chances against the big teams, but the latter can't show any more than they have to before their big games."

Applications for the Harvard-Yale game already are coming in with a rush, and were there seats enough in the Cambridge Stadium this year's crowd would be the biggest yet. Indeed, those who know whereof they speak say 100,000 seats could be sold. But as the capacity is only 37,000 only that number can see the gridiron classic. The biggest Harvard-Yale football crowd was in 1905, when 44,500 spectators were in the stadium. As the seating capacity was reduced after that the 1907 crowd was not so large, about 37,000, nor will the 1909 crowd be.

Everard Thompson, the Yale football ticket manager, says the general interest in football is greater this year then ever before. The attendance at the minor games has been slightly bigger and the demand for tickets for the big games is unprecedented. Yale has exhausted her supply of tickets for the West Point game. Mr. Thompson reports a growing demand for big game tickets from other than college men and from all parts of the country. Interest in the game is reaching out. New football and the motor car are two reasons assigned for the increasing interest in football. The new game is far more attractive to people in general than the old, and the motor adds pleasure to going to the games.

When Yale gets her new stadium the 44,500 crowd at Cambridge will be eclipsed. That was the largest gathering at any sporting event in America, but the proposed Yale structure, should it ever become a realty, will cover seven and a half acres and seat 70,000 persons. We're likely to see it within a decade.

TYPICAL OF NEW YORK LIFE.

Idea for Picture Postal Cards That Would Show Outsiders Just What Is the "Real Thing."

"I have a new idea for a picture postal card," said the tired-looked man. "I'd make it to represent the interior of an uptown flat. There ought to be millions of them on the market. They would sell. Every day people living here are asked by out-of-town acquaintances to send them postals descriptive of New York life. There are hundreds of such cards for sale, but none of them gets right down to the very marrow of metropolitan conditions. It takes a flat to do that.

"Even persons who are perfectly familiar with the scenes represented on picture postcards complain that they cannot recognize the places. But just transfer to a postal card a drawing of a New York flat, and there will be no mistake made as to the environment. Chuck, a lot of bandboxes under the folding lounge, jam the baby's crib bang up against the buffet, hang a lot of clothes in every corner and on the walls for drapery, stack up a lot of illustrated books on the refrigerator, and pile the piano high with a bohemian luncheon outfit and other miscellany, and there you are. Friends and acquaintances all the way from Jersey City to Timbuctoo will exclaim at once: 'That's New York, all right.'" —New York Times.

NO MORE USE FOR ANTHONY

Saint Had Disregarded Small Girls' Appeal and Her Faith In Him Had Vanished.

There is one small girl in a New York school who has lost her faith in the saints—a faith that was implicit, says the New York Tribune. Her name is Elizabeth, and she can't learn to spell. She is always at the foot of the spelling class. She does her best to learn, but if a wrong letter can creep into a word it sneaks in when Elizabeth tries to spell that word. Tuesday she came into the class beaming, but inside of two minutes she had spelled innocent "inosent" and flew "flough." The teacher shook her head.

"Elizabeth, what shall I do with you?" she asked. Elizabeth looked at her with a hopeless gaze, two tears trickling down her nose.

"There ain't anything to do," she said in a tone of finality. "I did the last thing this morning. I offered St. Anthony 50 cents if he'd help me spell right, and he hasn't done it, and I've no more use for him."

Monotony Too Much for Tramps.

The sheriff of Burlington county, New Jersey, has adopted a novel method of ridding his county of tramps, and, incidentally, saving a good sum of money for the taxpayers. Bean soup was the agency employed. For a long time the Burlington county jail was a favorite haven for members of the "hobo" tribe, until the sheriff began the bean soup treatment. He gave it to them at every meal, with the result that the tramps, who began to see beans and talk about them in their sleep, begged for a change in the menu. The sheriff was obdurate, however, and the result is that Burlington county has been srticken from the itinerary of all members of the "looking for work and hope I won't find it" class.

Gratitude.

Kindness never gets any thanks. I remember a man whose pal broke 'is leg while they was working together unloading a barge; and he went off to break the news to 'is pal's wife. A kind-'earted man 'e was as ever you see, and knowing 'ow she would take on when she 'eard the news, he told her fust of all that 'er husband was killed. She took on like a mad thing, and at last, when she couldn't do anything more and 'ad quieted down a bit, he told 'er that it was on'y a case of a broken leg, thinking that 'er joy would be so great that she wouldn't think anything of that. He 'ad to tell her three times afore she understood 'im, and then, instead of being thankful to 'im for 'is thoughtfulness, she chased him 'arf over to Wapping with a chopper, screaming with temper.—W. W. Jacobs in the Strand Magazine.

As to Girls Who Whistle.

That old adage, "Whistling girls and crowing hens always come to some bad end," must be relegated to oblivion, for whistling has come into fashion, and it would be cruelty to prophesy calamity to all the girls now striving to attain proficiency in the art. Some girls taks as naturally as boys do to whistling, while others have to cultivate it, and there are still others whose lips seem to refuse to pucker up in the fashion necessary for proper results. Boisterous whistling is not the sort in vogue, but sweet, birdlike rendering of melodic trills and medleys which, artistically done, is an attractive, clever accomplishment.

Ten Religions.

According to James Freeman Clarke the "ten great religions" of the world are: 1. The Confucian religion of China, founded by Confucius (B. C. 551-478). 2. Brahmanism of India. 3. Buddhism, a revolt from Brahmanism, in eastern Asia, founded by Sakyamuni (who died 543 B. C.). 4. The Magian religion of Persia, founded by Zoroaster. 5. The religion of Egypt; a polytheism or animal worship. 6. The Mythology of the Greeks and Romans. 7. The Scandinavian Mythology. 8. The Jewish religion. 9. The "Islam" religion, founded by Mohammed. 10. Christianity.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Minority Party's County Committee Puts Its Candidates on Record.

DEMAND FOR MORE ECONOMY.

They Pledge Themselves to Work for Return of School Fund—For More Direct Election.

The Democratic county committee held a meeting in Elizabeth, last night, at which the platform adopted by the candidates for Assembly was approved. Among the declaration of principles are that the voters have a right to know how the candidates stand on the most important issues, that no legislator can well serve his State when possessed with the idea that any one measure can remedy all existing ills, nor can he be just if he holds the narrow view that any one evil, any one body of men, or any one corporation can be responsible for all the poverty and misery of the universe.

The candidates pledge themselves to be loyal to the Democratic doctrine, which declares, "The best government is that which governs the least. The candidates promise to work ceaselessly for a return to economy in State administration that the wasteful extravagance, which has increased within a short period, the State's expenses from $1,857,982 to $8,478,134 may be stopped.

It is further pledged to work to restore to the various municipalities that part of the Public School Fund of which they were "robbed" by the last Legislature, and to advocate the enactment of such laws as will prevent any further attempts to take or divert moneys pledged for school purposes to any other use. It is still further pledged to work for the repeal of the Meeker act, which combined State and municipal elections, the repeal of the Hillery maximum tax act, which was a fraud and proved to be legislation in favor of railroads at the expense of the individual taxpayer. It is furthermore promised to guard the State's interest in the Morris Canal properties, and favor a law providing for a public service commission, also that the direct election law should be improved and made practicable, then extended to the offices of Governor, Congressmen and United States Senators. Equal taxation, an income tax, the largest possible of home rule in all municipalities are among the things favored. It is declared that the candidates have no rewards to give and no political debts to pay.

HEAVENLY REST MEN'S CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS.

At the annual election of the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, last night, the following officers were chosen: President, Juan Babcock; vice president, William Ochiltree; secretary, Joel Pennington; treasurer, Samuel Foster. The meeting was as usual an enthusiastic one and was attended by sixty-five members.

Rev. Cortland Mallery, the new pastor, was given a cordial and hearty welcome by the members of the club and in turn received the congratulations of the pastor on the enthusiasm displayed by the members of the club. Rev. Mr. Mallery in his speech to the club said that with such an array of men in the church there could be no possible chance of the interest dying. Other speeches were made by the newly-elected officers and the club is looking forward to a profitable and entertaining season. The committees will be appointed at the next meeting, Thursday, October 28.

Invited to Reception to Presidents.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of the borough, W. A. Coddington, A. L. Force, together with other Plainfielders, have received invitations to the reception to be given at El Paso, Mexico, to President William H. Taft, of the United States, and President Diaz, of Mexico tomorrow. The invitations are issued in the name of the Mayor and City Council of El Paso. Harry S. Potter, formerly of this city, is a member of the reception committee.

Martin A. Korff, who is leader of the Y. M. C. A. Orchestra in this city, has been engaged in a similar capacity at the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., and held his first rehearsal Wednesday night. He will arrange for several concerts during the winter.

Haymakers to Meet.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON OF LOCAL SALVATION ARMY

A summary of the work done by the Salvation Army at the tent on Watchung avenue during the past summer shows some very interesting figures. The tent was opened on July 1 and closed on Sunday night, September 19. During that time fifty-five services were held with a total attendence of 4,616 and something over $149 was received in contributions.

The fact that eight persons professed conversion is the most satisfying figure of all. It is not always given to the promoters of these services to witness the conversion of many who are attracted to them merely out of what is termed curiosity, but the local section of the Army feels well repaid for their efforts in that eight people have come, seen and been convinced.

Captain Hewitt and Mrs. Hewitt are satisfied that the good work has been maintained because curiosity has been turned into actual search for truth. They also feel largely indebted to all those who have in any way contributed to the work. Among those who spoke during the season were Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Rev. Dr. C. M., Anderson, Rev. Ora M. Shoop, Rev. J. M. Musson, Mrs. Isabel C. Davis, Miss Emily C. March and Martin C. Korff, whose musical contributions were also greatly appreciated.

CITY FATHERS ACCEPT EAST END FIRE HOUSE

The Councilmanic fire committee comprising Duncan W. Taylor, chairman; F. L. Holt, W. W. Wilson, F. L. Montgomery and C. C. Randolph, met at the new East End fire-house, yesterday afternoon and accepted the building for the city. The structure is now completed and equipped and the new combination apparatus is expected any day. As soon as it arrives, it will be put in commission.

The new fire-house appears to meet all the requirements for which it was intended. Alexander Milne was the general contractor and Harold Hall, of New York, was the architect. The house is equipped with dormitories for the men, with all the modern conveniences such as a shower bath, etc. While only one apparatus will be used at the house now, accommodations have been made for additional apparatus when needed. The house is situated on South avenue, nearly opposite Woodland avenue, and close to the Netherwood station of the New Jersey Central. In the re-arrangement of men the fire committee plans to put Captain William Townley in charge of the house, and William Jaeger will probably be his assistant.

REMOVE LAW OFFICES FIRST TIME IN 30 YEARS.

The well-known law firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son announces that on November 1 it will remove from its present quarters on the second floor of the I. H. Boehm building on Front street, opposite Somerset, to a suite of offices on the second floor of the Babcock building, where it will have more conveniences and the extra room needed. This is one of the oldest law firm's in the city, and the present quarters have been occupied for a continuous period of thirty years.

John H. VanWinkle, Sr., first opened the offices for the practice of law and later he became associated with W. B. Maxson, under the firm name of VanWinkle & Maxson, afterward becoming the firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son, which is the present firm.

Seventh-Day Baptist Services.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor, will preach at the Seventh-Day Baptist church tomorrow morning at 10:30 on the topic, "For in the Peace Thereof Shall Ye Find Peace." The Sabbath-school will meet at 11:45, and the Junior Christian Endeavor Society will meet at 3 o'clock, the topic being "Setting a Good Example." Mr. and Mrs. Frank Langworthy will be in charge. The Christian Endeavor Society will hold its prayer meeting at 4:45, considering the topic, "Doubting Castle," as taken from the story of "Pilgrim's Progress."

F. J. Hubbard's House Sold.

Thomas Linaberry, agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, at South Plainfield, has purchased the Frank J. Hubbard house at 1210 Park avenue, through the Mulford real estate agency and will take possession November 1.

No Sunday Services.

There will be no public service at the First Baptist church on Sunday, as the repairs to the heating apparatus are not completed.

UNION SERVICE PLANNED

All Protestant Congregations to Unite, as Usual, on Thanksgiving Day.

MINISTERS ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Committee for Union Good Friday Service—Regret Over Mr. Finn's Departure.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association at its first fall meeting in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church, yesterday afternoon, decided to unite with the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the Union Thanksgiving service.

The officers of the Crescent Avenue church have adopted a rule to hold such a service every year in its church, independent of the action of other churches. The Episcopal prayer book also provides for the observance of the day. Rather than hold several similar services all the churches will unite with the Crescent Avenue church. Rev. Charles S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, will preach the sermon, adn Rev. O. J. Shoop will have charge of the arrangement of the program.

There was also a discussion of the work at the Italian Mission, and a committee, comprising Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, Rev. J. W. Musson, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, was appointed to confer with the committee in charge of the mission, with a view to having it placed in charge of some denomination, instead of continuing it as the work of all denominations.

The secretary, Rev. Mr. Kemble, was directed to send a letter to Rev. A. E. Finn, expressing the regrets of the association over his departure and assuring him of its continued interest in his work.

At the meeting of the Plainfield Dental Association held last night at the Park Club thirteen members and their guests were present. Dr. Frank Clakson presided. Among the speakers were Dr. Walter Woolsey, of Elizabeth, who has recently conducted an examination of the teeth among the school children of that citys. He said that of the 8,000 children examined fully ninety per cent. were in need of dental attention.

Dr. Charles A. Meeker, of Newark, who has established a free dental clinic for the poor of that city, reported that the matter had been received as a great boon by the parents of the children who are showing a great appreciation of the work that is being done for their offspring. Dental clinics have also been established for the children of Elizabeth, Westfield, Plainfield and Somerville, while North Plainfield has turned down the proposition entirely.

The dentists enjoyed a repast prepared by Mrs. Henry Johnson, wife of the steward of the Park Club, which was a gem in the way of banquets. The next meeting of the society will be held Wednesday, November 10.

LOTS OF LOOT IDENTIFIED

Newark and Elizabeth Merchants Have Claims to Good Recovered.

BAIL REDUCED TO $500 EACH.

Smith Wants to Assume All Blame For the Crime, But Chivalry Wont Save Wife—Go to Elizabeth.

Edward Smith and his wife, Kittie, the two alleged shoplifters arrested here yesterday morning, were sent to the county jail at Elizabeth this morning under bail which was reduced from $2,500 to $500 each, to await the action of the Grand Jury. Some of the collection of useful and ornamental articles which were found in their room on Watchung avenue have been identified by Newark and Elizabeth store-keepers.

The traveling case, which is one of the costliest articles in the collection, was identified by Detective-Sergeant Donovan, of Newark, as the property of a Broad street jeweler in that city. The two top hats also came from Newark and were stolen from a dealer named Moon. Louis Calman and C. McGrail, of Elizabeth, have identified some of the underwear and a lace collar among other things held at police headquarters, so that the evidence against the couple is practically complete.

This morning, when brought before City Judge William Runyon, Smith, when asked if he had anything to say, repeated his claim of the innocence of his wife and that he alone was to blame. However, Judge Runyon could not see it that way as it was the young woman who made the lift of a pair of shoes at Louis Moledezky's store on East Front street.

Smith could not see why his chivalry should not count and his "poor sick wife" be released. He was quite anxious about the hospital accommodations in Elizabeth. On being assured that they were of the best he appeared to be satisfied.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Buckle left this morning for New York, where they will board the steamship "Cleveland," which leaves that port tomorrow morning for a trip around the world. When Mr. Buckle goes to his cabin he will find a huge, specially made box beneath his berth. The box and its contents, cigars and other things which make a man happy, is the handsome gift of the Get-together Club, in which the former mayor has held the office of chief medicine man since it was organized many years ago. The thoughtful present was taken to the steamship pier this afternoon by automobile by direction of Chief Sachem Andrew McCardell.

Mr. Buckle will also have with him a fine pair of field glasses, the present of fellow members in the Get-together and Elks Clubs, in addition to a huge golden key, of the city of Plainfield, and a silk American flag presented to him by the Get-togethers at their banquet given in his honor some nights ago.

A delegation of the Get-togethers will represent the club tomorrow morning to say farewell to the ex-mayor at the pier just before the steamship starts on its world's voyage. The popular former mayor has received the greatest send off ever given to a Plainfielder.

STELLE PROPERTY SOLD BY 1ST BAPTIST CHURCH

At a special parish meeting of the First Baptist church, last night, the trustees were authorized to make a sale of the Stelle property owned by the church to the Plainfield Real Estate Improvement Company, of which A. D. Thompson is the president. This tract, comprising about thirty-six acres, was bequeathed by the late Isaac M. Stelle to the First Baptist church, the Old Ministers' Home, New York, and the Baptist Home for the Aged at Roseville. It is situated on Park avenue, near Woodland avenue. A part of it is new used by the Log Cabin Gun Club.

It is understood to be the intention of the realty company to make some improvements in the property, including the erection of several dwellings. The consideration is said to be about $10,000. The property is not far from the Plainfield Country Club tract and is more valuable now than when deeded to the Baptist societies many years ago.

FIGHT FOR HER ESTATE

Judge Schenck Hears More Testimony as to Miss Holton's Will.

THE BATTLE BECOMES BITTER.

The Nurse and the Lawyer Testify. Charles H. Hand Wants Probate of Will Denied.

The taking of testimony in the Mary E. Holton will case was resumed before Judge Schenck in the Somerset County Courts, at Somerville, yesterday, Mrs. Nellie Barnes, the nurse, who cared for Miss Holton, again being called to the stand to complete her story. This led to her correcting an erroneous statement made at the previous hearing regarding the pen she used in signing the will. Previously she stated that it was Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan's pen, yesterday she said that it was one used by Miss Holton.

Reuben Knox, of this city, who drew the will, was the important witness called for the day. He testified to the making of the will. He also said that his first visit to the home of Miss Holton was on April 18, 1909. Previous to that he only had a passing acquaintance with Miss Holton. The last will was drawn on May 5 of this year by Mr. Knox.

It was shown by the examination that between 1902 and 1909, Miss Holton had given away about $67,000 or $68,000 in property to various Baptist societies by deed of interest, and these socities agreed to pay Miss Holton 5 per cent. interest on the investment for life.

On April 24, of this year, the day before the first codicil was drawn, Miss Holton gave away $4,000 in mortgages and $1,500 in mortgages a little later and still later she gave away several additional mortgages.

With the conclusion of Mr. Knox's testimony, the proponents to the will rested. Winfield S. Angleman, who represents Charles H. Hand, who claims a quarter interest in the estate, moved that the probate of the will be refused, and the court fixed Saturday, October 23, as the time when argument will be heard on the motion.

During the taking of testimony yesterday, Mr. Angleman brought out an important point. Mr. Knox testified that the 1904 will and last codicil was not destroyed, although the first was when made, and when asked why this was done, Mr. Knox admitted that he told Miss Holton that if the present will should be set aside the other will would hold.

The last will of Miss Holton, after providing for just debts and funeral expenses, gives to her cousin, Geraphelia Holton, of Jersey City, and to her heirs and assigns forever, the house and lot at 80 Grove street in the borough. She also gave to Geraphelia Holton all her wearing apparel, jewelry and personal ornaments, together with household furniture, silverware, crockery ware and other household furnishings.

The will further directs that J. Herbert Case, one of the executors, before paying any bequest, shall take out of the estate $2,000, together with the full expense of the first investment and recording of said sum in the following named mortgages, as soon after death as may be and invest said sum in two mortgages of $1,000 each and when necessary reinvest and keep invested on bond and mortgage said $2,000 and collect and pay over until their respective deaths to Mrs. Phebe Marsh, of Manning avenue, and Laura G. VanNuis, the respective net income on one of each of said mortgages unto each until her decease, after which the principal is to be paid to the Women's American Baptist Home Mission Society.

The will also gives to John Newton Holton $2,000 as his absolute property. In addition $3,000 is given to the American Baptist Missionary Union for its general purposes. Miss Holton also directed that the executors convert all her property, real and personal, into cash as soon as it may seem proper. All of the rest of the estate, both real and personal, is given to the American Baptist Home Mission Society formed in New York for general purposes.

John Newton Holton and J. Herbert Case are named as executors. No bonds were required of them and they were given absolute power to follow out the provisions of the will. Mrs. Nellie Barnes and Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan were witnesses to the will.

The list of securities, etc., of Miss Holton turned over to the administrator, showing what she had given away, is as follows:

Deposit book Plainfield Trust Company, $540.78; First National Bank, Plainfield, book, $3,380.68; Plainfield Trust Company, executor's account, $99.11; special deposit First National Bank, Plainfield, $1,115.08; bond and mortgage, Thomas S. Al-up of Christian Scientists and their hopeful, peaceful lives are a model to other organizations. "This Woman and This Man," with dainty Minnie Victorson in the leading role, will be here tonight.

For the first time in American theatricals, we have, in "Wildfire," which will appear at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow, matinee and night, a racing play that is dramatic, atmospheric and realistic, yet refined and thoroughly wholesome. Russell, since both are world-famed for the physical perfections, and both have turned their backs upon the operatic field to engage in dramatic work. "Wildfire," as successes go these days, is unique in that it was not an original New York hit, but after nearly a year of record-breaking business on the road, it was brought to Broadway, where it ran for one hundred nights to capacity audiences, and was only withdrawn because of contracts with other cities. George H. Broadhurst and George V. Hobart are the authors of "Wildfire."

FOOTBALL.

The play of the past few days has worked wonders with the defense of the Army gridiron warriors, and there is a general confidence felt that the Cadets will be able to withstand any attack that Yale is able to offer in the battle scheduled between the teams tomorrow. Thus far this season there has been little opportunity of testing the full playing strength of the West Pointers, due to the weakness of the teams played against, but the coaches have shown by their mode of procedure that they are inclined to rate the defense as all that could be expected. In the practice of yesterday all of the attention was directed toward developing offensive play, and this was taken as the straw to show the way the wind blew.

Another man was temporarily lost to the team Wednesday. De Vore, the right guard, being ill with chills and fever. Christian, the best of the full backs, is also in the hospital, but it is believed both will be in shape to take part in the game with the New Havenites. Chamberlin will probably start the game in the full back position, but Christian is expected to relieve him as the contest progresses.

In the practice Wednesday the Varsity was allowed to keep possession of the ball for the entire time, with kicking one of the main points of attention. In booting the leather Dean showed remarkably well, and the 'Varsity ends, Hicks and Wood, were down under the kicks in good shape. Pullen is one of the fastest men on the field, and bids fair to accomplish as much as the ends in getting down the field.

The Naval Academy contingent was very much encouraged by the work of the squad Wednesday afternoon, and waxed enthusiastic over the showing of Wilson, who has been playing quarter back for the past two afternoons. Wilson did much better work in the forward pass than has been seen on the navy field this season, and enthused the crowd of spectators by the brilliant forty-five-yard run for a touchdown. After the regulars had scored, the scrubs were given the ball continuously, but could do little against the stalwart defense of the regular linesmen. Mering, King, Zenor, and Anderson were given a tryout at tackle, and Reincke, Zenor, and Grafton at guard. Brand played centre most of the afternoon, but Kemp was also given an opportunity and did well. Outside of Wilson the best playing in the backfield was done by Dalton, who showed much dash and power in his work. Altogether the practice was much the best the Navy squad has held this season.

PERSONAL.

Miss Elsie Staats, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Mrs. William Hart, of Fairview avenue, has a wonderful display of ferns at her home.

Miss Luder, of East Millstone, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Winn, of the borough, has returned home.

James Smith, of Elmwood place, who has been living with his daughter in Orange for several months, has returned home. He is recovering from a severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Colvin, of Springfield, Missouri, who have been visiting James Colvin, of West End avenue, and other relatives in the East, will leave for home within a few days.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will hold a business meeting this afternoon and elect officers.

Rev. Charles H. Fountain, who was recently ordained at the First Baptist church, has assumed his first pastorate at Unionville, N. Y.

There was a special parish meeting of the First Baptist church, last night, when the trustees were authorized to sell the church's interest in the Settle farm and make a deed for the same. The property is part of a tract which is to be developed and improved.

QUERIES OF CITY CLERK

Mr. Mac Murray Seeks Another Opinion as to Election Law Meaning.

HE WRITES ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Local Clerk Not Satisfied With Mr. Wilson's Ruling as to Delivery of Ballot Boxes.

Taking the position that the question as to the rights and duties of the municipal and township clerks as to the delivery of ballot boxes requires a more definite and specific opinion than that supplied by Attorney General Edmund Wilson to the Union County Board of Elections on Monday, City Clerk James T. MacMurray has written Mr. Wilson asking for opinions on the construction of vital parts of the election law in this respect. It was Mr. MacMurray who refused to make a delivery of the ballot boxes for the recent primary election other than at his own office, and this prompted the county board's query.

Plainfield's City Clerk, in a lengthy letter to the Attorney General, says that if, as the attorney general declares, the ballot boxes for a primary election must be actually delivered by the city clerk to the district clerks, it would be impossible to comply with the ruling that they be delivered at the respective polling places for the law provides that such delivery must be made the morning before such election, and the polling places are only rented by the municipalities and townships during the actual hours of the election. As therefore no delivery could be made there at the required time, he says that the ruling would compel the municipal or township clerk to make appointments with the district clerks of both parties to be at their homes at a given time the day before the primary to receive and receipt for the ballot boxes. In the case of general elections, however, only one clerk in each district would thus sign the receipt.

By the wording of other parts of the law taken in connection with the particular one as to ballot boxes as to "deliveries," City Clerk MacMurray reasons that inasmuch as a receipt is demanded of him for the ballot boxes, which are in his custody, it is incumbent for the district clerks to call on him for them and he cites sections 62, 99, 100, 101 and 267 in support of his argument. He asks if his reasoning is not correct.

Chairman Robert H. McAdams says that at the next meeting of the Union County Board of Elections in Elizabeth on Tuesday, he will recommend that all the municipal and township clerks be formally notified of the attorney general's opinion and that in the future they will be expected to abide by it.

NOVEL DRESS ACCESSORIES.

In the adornment of all dress accessories one sees a lavish use of jet, bugles, beads, braids and small buttons. The high novelty in Paris is au claire de lune, or moonlight effects. These ornaments are not, as one might expect, opalescent, but are of a dullish gray color, and the process of manufacture is similar to that used in the manufacture of jet.

Belts are again worn and sashes of all sorts of wonderful ribbons in cloth of gold and flowered effects, with long-hanging streamers in the back, are once more in vogue. A novelty in gloves is the gauntlet of black kid. Kid gloves show no contrasting stitching on the back of the hand, but the seams of white gloves show black and the black white. The pale yellow chamois glove is the fad for street wear with tailored suits. White glace gloves are always in good taste for dressy wear.

Marabout ruches and muffs are unusually beautiful this season and are frequently brightened, if they are of gray or black, by violets or gardenias near the face. A beautifully gowned woman the other evening wore a gray marabout ruche and interwoven with it was wide violet-shaded satin ribbon. These ribbons were tied in a huge bow in front and hung well below the waist, ending in large silk tassels. Her gown was of percenche messaline silk, made cuirasse type, and with this she wore a hat of gray velvet with a pervenche underbrim of moire, the only trimming being a large Paradise aigrette in white.

Why Sea Breezes Blow.

Dr. Benjamin, the celebrated pathologist and meterologist, of Camden, on a recent visit to Wildwood, now the centre of the most thriving part of Cape May County, gave an interesting discourse on "Sea-breezes," a phenomenon more pronounced at Cape May than anywhere along the coast and the chief cause of its superb climate. Under an unclouded sun the surface of the land is quickly heated, and as the hot air rises a vacuum is created, into which rushes the cold air from the ocean, with the result that the hotter the day the more pronounced the phenomenon. Generally about noon the sun causes the hot air to ascend, forming a vacuum into which rushes a strong stead breeze from the sea, and as night comes on and the land becomes cool, the sea breeze dies down again.

CHAS. P. TITSWORTH WEDS

Son of David E. Titsworth Marries Miss Sarah Rebecca Babcock.

AT LEONARDSVILLE NEW YORK.

Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main Officiates—Couple to Reside In This City Following Their Honeymoon.

At Leonardsville, N. Y., yesterday afternoon there was a wedding of interest to Plainfielders, when Charles Potter Titsworth, of the Potter Printing Press Company, married Miss Rebecca Babcock, daughter of H. D. Babcock, president of the Babcock Manufacturing Company, of Leonardsville.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, which was tastefully decorated with palms and autumn leaves. It was performed by Rev. Dr. Arthur E. Main, a former pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of this city, and now dean of the Theological Seminary at Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y.

The matron-of-honor was Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I., who wore a princess gown of nile green and carried pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Roy Edward Titsworth, as best man. The ushers were Dr. Laurence Saunders, of New York; Ralph M. Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I.; George L. Babcock and Edwin M. Daniel, 2d, of Plainfield.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a white satin princess gown en train, trimmed with duchesse lace, a veil caught up with orange blossoms, and a diamond and pearl crescent, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The music was furnished by Mrs. Wheeler and Prof. Asalta, of Utica, on harp and organ.

Just as the bridal party reached the chancel, the sun, which had been clouded for a time, shone through the stained glass windows, flooding the scene with golden splendor, a bright omen of a happy future.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. Babcock, which was largely attended by many guests from Leonardsville and nearby places, and a company who came in a special car from Plainfield. Mr. and Mrs. Titsworth were assisted in receiving by Miss Agnes Babcock, the bride's sister, and Mrs. Titsworth, the mother of the groom. The house was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums, roses and pinks. Refreshments were served by Owen, of Utica. Many elegant gifts, rich in variety, gave evidence of the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their host of friends. After their wedding journey the couple will make their home at 909 Madison avenue, this city.

Among those at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. David E. Titsworth, the groom's parents; Mr. and Mrs. I. Allan Babcock, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Sheppard, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Briggs, of Ashaway, R. I.; Dr. Saunders, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Miss Dorothy Hubbard, Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard, Miss Ethel Titsworth, Miss Ruth Potter Maxson, Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth, Miss Mary T. Greene, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Babcock, Edwin M. Daniel, 2d, and Roy Edward Titsworth, all of Plainfield.

After a courtship of nearly fifteen years, John T. Morrel, president of the Council at Beverly, and Miss Maria Roberts, former postmistress, were married at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Simmons, Beverly, Monday night, by Rev. William T. Snead, pastor of St. Stephen's P. E. church.

After a thrilling experience on the sloop Parker, Henry Parker and William Moulten returned to Camden from the Delaware Bay Wednesday. They were caught in Monday's storm and for hours drifted helplessly about. They were found by a number of fishermen, who beached the boat, repaired it and then assisted the two Camdenites to start for home.

All of the Evangelical churches of Millville are working hard to make a big success of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the first religious services held in Millville. Former Governor Edward C. Stokes has been invited to be the chief after-dinner speaker at the banquet to be held on Monday evening, October 18. The centennial will begin Sunday next.

Van Lear Black, a millionaire Baltimore society man, nearly lost his life through mistaking ordinary household ammonia for aromatic spirits, which he intended to take for headache, at the Traymore Hotel, Atlantic City. The mishap occurred last Sunday morning, but the story only leaked out Wednesday. Members of the family refuse to discuss the matter.

Death Wednesday night claimed Andrew Redgate, forty years old, of 778 Line street, Camden, after an attack of blood poisoning that developed somewhat peculiarly. About a week ago Redgate was lighting his pipe, when a spark from the match settled on an abrasion on his nose. From this came the blood poisoning, which, at the time of his death, involved his entire face.

When a heavy iron door in the molding-room of the Centennial shop at the Camden Iron Works collapsed Wednesday, Ernest Grief, thirty-four years old, of 756 Mt. They were taken to Cooper Hospital.

Leon Andrew, an employe of a trolley section gang, while riding home from work Tuesday night, on the rear platform, fell off a car. A young woman, who saw the man fall, notified the motorman, who backed his car, and after a long search in the darkness found Andrews in a ditch, badly bruised and with his shoulder-blade broken. He was taken to Riverside.

WHY IT WAS CALLED SALVATION ARMY.

The adoption of the name "Salvation Army" came about in a curiously unpremeditated way, writes Commander Eva Booth in the Van Norden Magazine. Miss Booth describes the life work of her distinguished father, who visits America this fall. As the head of the new movement, Mr. Booth had gathered around him men who were as one with him and acted as his secretaries. One day he was walking up and down his study, dictating, when he used these words:

"The Christian Mission is a volunteer army."

He paused in his dictation and looked thoughtfully over the shoulder of his secretary (now Commissioner Railton, the pioneer of our work in America) at the written line, took up the pen, scored out the word "volunteer" and wrote above it "salvation," and went on dictating. This was the first time the word was used and it made such an impression that it began insensibly to be thought as an appropriate name for the Mission; it grew upon the imagination of men; they liked it; liked it so well that they finally adopted it.

State Clock Is Moved.

Trenton, Oct. 15.—The mahogany "grandfather's clock" which was in the Executive mansion of the State at Sea Girt was brought from there to the Executive chamber in the State house here Wednesday. The Governor thought it best to have this valuable timepiece in Trenton for the winter. It replaces the silver vase won for brilliant drilling by Jersey troops in the place of honor in the Executive chamber.

Rahway, Oct. 15.—The safe of F. W. Dunham Co. was robbed Wednesday night between closing time of the works and 8 o'clock, when Mr. Dunham came home from New York. About $11.50 in cash and half a dozen indicators, worth about a dollar each, were taken.

PIANO CONTEST FAKES EXPOSED!

IMPORTANT FACTS FOR HOLDERS OF GOLD BONDS, PIANO COUPONS AND DISCOUNT CERTIFICATES.

There are several Piano houses which have no prices for their goods except grossly inflated ones arranged expressly for fake discounts in connection with schemes of various kinds. These houses seem to find it impossible to dispose of their pianos in a legitimate, straightforward way, but instead resort to one scheme after another—catch-penny devices, so crude as to be positively insulting to the intelligence of the public. These schemes usually take the form of guessing contests, drawing puzzles and various feats of little skill. In all of them the object is identical to mislead the prospective buyer into the belief that he is getting something for nothing, while at the same time prices are arranged sufficiently high to off-set the allowance to which his prize certificate entitles him.

EVERYONE WHO MAKES A GUESS GETS A PRIZE!

If you have ever answered one of these ads you received a discount certificate. EVERYBODY DOES. It matters not whether the answer is good, bad or indifferent, from adult or child it draws a prize in the shape of a certificate or due bill (generally from $65.00 to $100.00) to apply on the purchase of a new Piano. Of course the price of the Piano is fixed accordingly and the purchaser pays a high price even after the amount of certificate is deducted, usually a much higher price than an instrument of similar quality could be secured for in any legitimate music store.

To test the value of one of these certificates present it in payment for something other than a new piano—say a low priced used piano, music cabinet or a bench, and see how quickly the dealer will turn you down. He will not even give you 50 cents worth of music for it. Try the experiment!

AT $185.00 WE WILL SELL A BETTER PIANO THAN THE SCHEME HOUSES ASK $325.00 TO $400.00 FOR! Such well known and high grade makes as Haines Bros., Brewster, the Genuine Mathushek and others too numerous to mention.

Long Delays by Open Water — Drifting on Floes—Dogs Sacrificed and Sleds Abandoned

[TWELFTH ARTICLE]

IN my wakeful watches to get a peep of the sun at just the right moment I was kept awake during much of the resting period, and for pastime my eyes wandered from snorting dogs to snoring men. During one of these idle moments there came a solution of the utility of the dog's tail, a topic with which I had been at play for several days. It is quoted here at the risk of censure, because it is a typical phase of our lives which cannot be illustrated otherwise. Seeming trivialities were seized upon as food for thought. Why has the dog a tail at all? The bear, the musk ox, the caribou and the hare each in its own way succeeds very well with but a dwarfed stub. Why does nature in the dog expend its best effort in growing the finest fur over a seemingly useless line of tail bones? The thing is distinctive, and one could hardly conceive of the creature without this accessory, but nature in the arctic does not often waste energy to display beauties and temperament. This tail must have an important use, otherwise it would soon fall under the knife of frost and time. Yes! It was imported into the arctic by the wolf progenitor of the dog from warmer lands, where its swing served a useful purpose in fly time. A nose made to breathe warm air requires some protection in the far north. No animal feels this shortcoming as much as man. The dog supplied the need with his tail. At the time when I made this discovery a cold wind charged with cutting crystals brushed the pack. Each dog had his back arched to the wind and his face veiled with an effective curl of his tail. He was comfortably shielded from icy torment by an appendage adapted to that very purpose.

THE MUSK OXEN OF JONES SOUND.

A Heavy Snowstorm.

On May 6 we were stopped at 6 a. m. by the coming of the gloom of an unusual gale. The wind had been steady and strong all night, but we did not heed its threatening increase of force until too late. It came from the west, as usual, driving coarse snow with needle points. The ice about was old and hummocky, offering a difficult line of march, but some shelter. In the strongest blasts we threw ourselves over the sled behind hummocks and gathered new breath to force a few miles more.

Finally, when no longer able to force the dogs through the blinding drift, we sought the lee of an uplifted block of ice. Here suitable snow was found for a snow house, and a few blocks were cut and set, but the wind swept them away like chips. The tent was tried, but it could not be made to stand in the rush of the roaring tumult. In sheer despair we crept into the tent without erecting the pole. Creeping into the bags, we then allowed the flapping silk to be buried by the drifting snow. Soon the noise and discomfort of the storm were lost, and we enjoyed the comfort of an icy grave. An efficient breathing hole was kept open, and the wind was strong enough to sweep off the weight of a dangerous drift. A new lesson was thus learned in fighting the battle of life which was afterward useful.

Several days of icy despair now followed each other in rapid succession. The wind did not rise to the full force of a storm, but it was too strong and too cold to travel. The food supply was noticeably decreasing. The daily advance was reduced. With such weather starvation seemed inevitable.

Camp was moved nearly every day, but ambition sank to the lowest ebb. To the atmospheric unrest were added the instability of broken ice and the depressing mystery of an unknown position. For many days no observations had been possible, and our location could only be guessed at.

The maddening struggle was daily forced, while the spirits were pressed to the verge of extinction. Now that the object of our trip had been accomplished much of the incentive was gone. At times it seemed as if our life's work had been accomplished and to have lain down for the final sleep would have been easy, but the feeble fires of the homing passion kept the eye open.

At the Eighty-fourth Parallel.

On May 24 the sky cleared long enough to give us a set of observations. We were on the eighty-fourth parallel, near the ninety-seventh meridian. The new lands were hidden behind a low mist. The ice was much crevassed and drifted eastward.

The pack was sufficiently active to give us considerable anxiety, though pressure lines and open water did not then seriously impede our progress.

There remained on the sleds scarcely enough food to reach our caches unless we averaged fifteen miles daily. On the return from the pole to here we had only been able to make twelve miles daily. Now our strength, even under fair conditions, did not seem to be equal to more than ten miles. The outlook was far from hopeful to me, though the sight of the cleared sky infused new courage into Etukishuk and Ahwelah.

Trying to make the best of our hard lot, a straight course was set for the musk ox lands of the inner crossing.

At the eighty-third parallel we found ourselves to the west of a large tract extending southward. The ice changed to small fields. The temperature rose to zero, and a persistent mist obscured the heavens.

With a few lines on paper to register the life of suffering, the food for man and dog was reduced to a three-quarter ration, while the difficulties of ice travel rose to disheartening heights.

At the end of a struggle of twenty days through thick fog the sky cleared, and we found ourselves far down in Crown Prince Gustav sea, with open water and impossible small ice as a barrier between us and Heiberg island.

With the return to Annootok rendered impossible by the unfortunate westerly drift, our only alternative was to go south with the ice. We hoped in this course to find game for food and fuel. The Scottish whalers enter Lancaster sound and touch at Port Leopold. The distance to this point was shorter than that to Greenland, and by this route I hoped that I could return to Europe during the same year, 1908.

CROWD GREETING DR. COOK IN COPENHAGEN.

Passing through Hassel sound between the Ringnes Lands bears and seals were secured, and slowly we moved southward over Norwegian bay into Wellington channel. The ice was small, there was much open water, and progress was slow, but the drift carried us along.

At Pioneer bay we were stopped by a jam of small ice over which sledding was impossible. Unable to wait for the ice to move because no large game was here secured, we crossed in early July to Jones sound. Here, again, no big game was found. There was much open water, and the folding canvas boat was spread for use.

Unable to feed the dogs, they were given the freedom of their wild progenitors, the wolves.

One sled was left here; the other was taken apart and placed in the boat. Then followed a long and perilous adventure by boat and sled, during which our last ammunition was expended in securing birds for food. After that, by looped lines and slingshots, birds were still captured.

Early in September we were beset on the shores of Baffin bay with neither food, fuel nor ammunition. New implements were shaped, and we returned westward to Cape Sparbo to seek a place to pitch a winter camp. An underground den was built of stones, bones and turf, and with our primitive weapons we fought the walrus, the bear, the musk ox and other animals. Thus food, fuel and skins were secured, and death by famine was averted.

The winter and the night of 1908-9 were spent preparing food and equipment for the return.

On Feb. 18, 1909, we started with a remodeled sled and reached our camp at Annootok in the middle of April. Here I met Mr. Harry Whitney and told him of our conquest of the pole.

Because a ship was to come after Mr. Whitney to take him direct to home shores, most of my instruments were intrusted to his care. Anxious to gain a few months in the return home I proceeded by sled over land and sea southward to Upernavik and from there onward to Copenhagen by Danish steamers.

TWELFTH-NIGHT CAKE.

Beat one-fourth of a pound of butter to a cream, add one-fourth of a pound of fine white sugar, three well beaten eggs, a pinch of salt, two cupfuls of flour in which have been sifted two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, the grated rind of half a lemon, one-fourth of a pound of cleaned currants, one-fourth of a pound of seeded raisins and two ounces of mixed candied peel cut in tiny chips. Beat all thoroughly together. Thoroughly wash and sterilize a button and a dime, and drop them in the dough. Turn into a cake tin lined with buttered paper, and bake in a moderate oven until done. Let the cake get quite cold before icing it, then turn it upside down and ice the under side, as it will be even and smooth. For a rich and delicious icing make a thick paste with the whites of seven fresh eggs, two and one-half pounds of powdered sugar and one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice. Spread it over the cake with a thin broad-bladed knife of spatula, occasionally dipping it in cold water. Let the cake stand twenty-four hours until the icing is hard. Ornament the cake in any way preferred. An English Twelfth-night cake is very pretty. After icing it as directed above, small red and white candles are arranged alternately over the hardened icing in the form of a star, each candle having a circle of pinktinted icing piped around its base. The cake is garnished around its base with a thick wreath of red-berried holly, and before it is placed on the table the candles are lighted.—Woman's Home Companion.

Autumn Hats.

It will be interesting to see, as the winter advances, whether women have really become so inured to the ugly in feminine dress as to approve by adopting the queer productions of hatters and milliners which are offered in the early models of this season. It seems to me that only those will do so whose one idea of style is the new and the conspicuous; whose only claim to style is a certain daring adoption of the latest, irrespective of its shape, color or becomingness. The new hats are a mere confusion of shapelessness, and I cannot help thinking that the woman of real taste will think twice before committing herself to any but the most conservative of them.—Marie Oliver, in Harper's Bazar.

Wedding Ring Curiosities.

The idea that the wedding ring should be worn on the third finger of the left hand because "a nerve connects this finger with the heart," is, says the writer of an article in Woman's Life, of Roman origin, but, oddly enough, it is not continued on the continent as in England, for in France, Belgium and Germany, and most other European nations, the "engagement ring" finger is the third finger on the left hand, while the "wedding ring" finger is the third finger of the right hand.

Mounted Policeman Martin Anderson, of the Communipaw avenue station, was thrown from his horse Wendesday night. His left shoulder was dislocated.

SINGING TO BIRDS.

The English Sparrow.

Now, what's the use of always grabbing all
And looking for a fight the whole day long?
Nobody envies you, you are so small,
And cleverer, mayhap, than you are strong.
But you are Anglo-Saxon? So am I;
Yet this round world of ours knows but one sky.

The Jay.

Why dress you like the mocking-bird
Since never singing you are heard?
You mind me of some dudes I ken
Apparelled as some real men;
Yet, scandalize you as they will
You have the judgment to keep still
Most of the time. Why need you sing?
Your plumage brightens up the spring.

The Mockingbird.

Dear feathered Shakespeare of the grove,
A-singing all the songs we love;
Nor dull nor gay your plumage—thus
It fits the master, pleasing us.
What need you of the peacock's show—
You blind us with our hearing so?
When your full flood of song we hear
The world's all sound and man all ear.

The Yellowhammer.

Say, yellowhammer, knocking on the tree,
You seem like a brother to me.
The tree's a dead one you are knocking on,
As I have knocked the "dead ones" in time gone;
But I hit mine because they had no friends
And you hit yours to serve your selfish ends.

—Lee Fairchild in New York Herald.

THOUGHT-DRIFT.

Dim hour by hour through autumn's wane
The silkweed lets her plumes adrift;
They rove—they sink—and yet again
Upon the wavering breeze they lift.

No count is made of where they roam;
They are not found, they are not lost—
Soft wanderers without a home,
Yet scathless to the sworded frost.

Not otherwise dim hour by hour
I shed white thoughts into the wind
Sole drift of my life's vanished flower;
They are not lost—yet none may find.

—Edith M. Thomas in Atlantic Monthly.

Mrs. William Newhall, of Yonkers, N. Y., who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forman W. Smith, of West End avenue, has returned home.

Why Don't You Economize on Coal?

The hungry furnace and the coal man are a hard combination to beat, but the is the friend of the man who takes care of the fire. The square fire-pot prevents the clogging of clinkers around the sides of the fire. That means all fire—more heat per unit of space. The square pot gives a greater surface for combustion and heat radiation and actually takes less coal for a good fire. And then there's the Boynton special flue for carrying away the dust. You don't sift ashes all over the house when you shake down the BOYNTON.

SOFT SURFACES.

It is predicted by those who are wise concerning materials that crepe weaves will have a great vogue, and this prophecy seems to be borne out by the more beautiful gowns of the year.

It is certain that satin in any case will not be nearly so popular as last year. Lustrous silks have been so much worn that women seem to have tired of them and, for a change, turned to the duller though still supple materials.

Crepe de chine will probably prove the most satisfactory of the handsomer materials, for it is so pliable that it may be used for the many draped eects in vogue, and at the same time it is heavy enough to fall prettily and fracefully around the figure. It is also a material that lends itself well to hand embroideries, and it combines well with all kinds of lace. A new material also promises to make its appearance during the season to come. This is satin, but without the sheen that this material has heretofore possessed. It is called peachblow satin, for the surface is not perfectly smooth, but is slightly downy, like the skin of a peach.

Care of Lamps.

It is wise to look to the lamps most carefully, otherwise they not only will not burn brightly, but may emit an unpleasant odor. It is well to take the lamps entirely apart once in a while. If a new wick is not necessary, boil the old one in a solution of vinegar and water. Wash the bowl and burner in a solution of washing soda and water, and dry thoroughly.

THE OPEN SEPULCHER

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

The open sepulcher proclaims the foundation fact of Christianity that Christ rose from the dead. Paul said: "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain." His real body was placed in a real sepulcher and his real body came out of this real sepulcher. He was pronounced dead by the disinterested officials who were sent to examine him. His friends believed him dead, for some of them came with spices to embalm him. The fact of his resurrection is as well attested as the fact of his death and burial. Peter and John find the tomb empty without any evidence of robbery, for everything is in order. He showed himself to Mary, who at first takes him for the gardener. Then he appears to the two disciples on the way to Emmaus. Again, while the doors are shut he appears in the midst of his disciples. Then more than 500 brethren see him at once. To one who accepts the Biblical record as authoritative the fact of the resurrection is proved beyond the shadow of a doubt.

The open sepulcher, in the second place, confirms the fact of the deity of Christ. If he did ont rise from the dead, he was, of course, a mere man and his death was that of a victim and not a king, and the world is benefited no more by his death than by the death of any other martyr to a noble mission. But the open sepulcher proves that all he claimed of Deity for himself and all his friends claimed for him was true. He was declared to be the Son of God, with power, by the resurrection from the dead.

The open sepulcher, in the third place, is the fulfillment of prophecy. He rose from the dead according to the Scriptures. We read in Psalms 2:7: "The Lord hath said unto me thou art my Son; this day have I brought thee forth." And we learn in Acts 13:33 that these words predict the resurrection of Jesus. The words of Hosea: "In the third day he will rise up and we shall rise in his sight," point forward to the resurrection of Jesus and of all his people with him. In Psalm 16:9, 10 Peter tells us in his Pentecostal sermon David refers to Christ: "My flesh also shall rest in hope, for thou will not leave my soul in hades, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." Thus, as Peter tells us, "the spirit of Christ did signify in prophecy "when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow."

The open sepulcher, in the fourth place, is itself a prophecy. It predicts the resurrection of all the dead. "Now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."—1 Cor. 15:20. "Every man in his own order, Christ the first fruits; afterward, they that are Christ's at his coming."—1 Cor. 15:23.

"The body of Christ came out of the sepulcher and our bodies will come out of their graves. "The hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of judgment."—John 5:28. The Christian will come forth in his glorified body. "Sown a natural body; raised a spiritual body." "Sown in corruption," it will be "raised in incorruption." "Sown in weakness, it will be raised in power." "Sown in dishonor," it will be "raised in glory."

The open sepulcher of Jesus is a prophecy that the bodies of my loved ones whom I buried beneath the sod will come forth, leaving behind them all carnality, corruption, weakness and dishonor. There has been a restitution of all things they have lost through sin.

The open sepulcher, in the fifth place, comforts us in apparent failures. Every appearance indicated that Jesus was a failure and that his life work would count for nothing. He had been crucified as a malefactor. His disciples were discouraged and scattered. His body, pronounced dead, was guarded by the Roman seal and a band of Roman soldiers. The sun of Christianity, to be sure, had gone down in gloom, and there is no star in the sky of its night. But suddenly the angel appears, suddenly the earthquake breaks the Roman seal, suddenly the stone is rolled away and suddenly Jesus walks out of the sepulcher. It is a sunrise at midnight. Jesus is in the midst of his disciples filling them with faith and hope.

The open sepulcher, in the sixth place, gives us a story to tell. The angel said: "Go quickly and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead." The disciples all believed that Christ had died, but the fact of the resurrection was needed to give them assurance that his death was more than ordinary, that he died as a king and not as a victim of circumstances. The resurrection confirms the merit of the death of Jesus. If he rose from the dead his blood atones for all my sins, but if he rose not we are yet in our sins.

The Eureka F. C., of Newark, will play the Plainfield Association Football Club on the Clinton avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Eurekas are strong, and have defeated some of the teams that Plainfield only succeeded in beating by one and five goals. The local boys will have to play their best to win tomorrow. A large attendance is expected, for the reputation of the Eurekas' capabilities are widely known.

Gould, who had his ankle injured at Brooklyn, is progressing favorably, but will not be able to play for a few weeks. McNiece, of the goal line, is also resting up this week. The game will be played by the following men for Plainfield, starting at 3:30 o'clock:

MRS. N. P. ROGERS WINS TROPHY ON HACKENSACK LINKS

Mrs. M. D. Paterson, of Englewood, led the field in the eighteen-hole medal play handicap with a card of 91, 4—87, in the one-day golf tournament on the links of the Hackensack Golf Club, yesterday. This was low for both gross and net score trophies, and Mrs. Paerson took the gross score prize.

This left Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, of this city, who entered from Baltusrol, and Miss Constance Griggs, of the North Jersey Country Club, tied for the first and second net trophies. Mrs. Rogers returned a score of 96, 7—89, and that of Miss Griggs was 115, 25—90. Miss Martha Robert, of the Plainfield Country Club, finished with a score of 115, 15—100.

Arrangements are now being made for a golf match with the Colonial Golf Club to be played on the borough course a week from tomorrow.

Emery Leads Local Batters.

It was announced this morning by Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield Baseball Club, that Jimmy Emery had won the batting prize for the season. In thirty-one games Jimmy has an average of .354, a figure which would excite the envy of some of the big leaguers. Brist Martin and Barnes are practically tied for second and third places on the batting list.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The High School football team will play the Rahway High School eleven tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at Hope Common. It promises to be an exciting game as Rahway is crowed up to be a pretty good team.

The P. H. S. interclass track meet will take place a week from today at the Driving Park. The races will be the 60, 100, 220, 440, 880 yard and 1 mile. There will be a class relay race, broad and high jumping and shot put. From the winners of the track meet the track team will be chosen.

Out of the Harbor Board.

Trenton, Oct. 15.—Richard Stockton has declined appointment as a member of the Board of River and Harbor Commissioners. Mr. Stockton's decision was made known to the other members of the board Wednesday night, when they met to organize. Henry C. Moon, Frederick W. Donnelly and Robert W. Bowman, the other appointees, were sworn into office by City Clerk Salter. Organization was deferred until the Chamber of Commerce selects another commissioner and Common Council makes the appointment.

Shot From Ambush.

Jersey City, Oct. 15.—A charge of buckshot was fired into the head and body of Diadora Piti late Tuesday night in Cator avenue, near the boulevard, this city, by a man in ambush. The would-be assassin fired from the rear of a lot at the side of a house. The shot was extracted at the City Hospital. Pitio gave the police the name of an enemy he suspects. The suspected man was not found. Pitio is twenty-seven years old and lives in 41 McAdoo avenue. His condition is serious.

Elopers Admit Their Guilt.

Trenton, Oct. 15.—Miss Helen Feiter, the eighteen-year-old high school girl who eloped three weeks ago with Horace N. Forker, her cousin's husband, pleaded guilty when arraigned in court Wednesday. She was immediately placed in the care of the probation officer and warned by the judge that she must keep away from Forker and his home. Forker later pleaded in the same case, and he, too, admitted his guilt. He will be sentenced later.

ANCIENT RECKONING OF TIME

Sand Glass Can Be Traced Back 2,000 Years—Rod the Earliest Form of Timepiece.

The art of telling time is as old as the earliest historical records, though the methods employed in dividing up the day into equal periods have varied greatly during the last eras, and only in modern times have watches and clocks as we konw them become customary. Many of these are most elaborate, but practically all possess a circular dial or face. However, only as late as the sixteenth century many watches were oval in shape, and an oblong one with six sides kept splendid time after it had been repaired 90 years later.

Probably the earliest form of timepiece, says Harper's Weekly, was the gnomon, or index rod, of a sundial. At first this was merely an upright stick placed in a sunny spot and measuring the passage of the day by its shadow cast upon the bare earth, because the dial was a later invention.

The sand glass, still frequently used as an indicator for the boiling of eggs, dates back 2,000 years and was always reliable in marking a fixed space of time, such as the hour. It has not been very many years since the hour glass had its particular place on the pulpits in our churches as an ever-present reminder to the preacher not to overtax the attention of his audience. The finer glasses were filled with powdered eggshells thoroughly dried, for this material was not so susceptible to atmospheric moisture.

A still earlier instrument was the clepsydra, which measured time by the efflux of water through a tiny orifice. There were two types of these: In the first the water trickled from a small opening in one vessel and slowly filled a receptacle which was graduated to indicate periods of time, and generally a "floater" pointed out the height of the water on the side of the vessel. In the second variety of this clepsydra the graduated vessel, having a small orifice in the bottom, rested upon a surface of water and gradually filled and sunk at the expiration of the fixed interval.

Crazed by Tall Buildings.

A man who was found half dazed in Madison square, New York, has made the curious statement that though he knew his own name and his house address, he didn't know how to get home, and that for nearly a week he had been in this condition. The interesting feature of the case is that what the man remembered as preceding his amnesia was straining his neck and eyes by looking up from the street first at the Flatiron building and then at the Metropolitan tower. Soon afterward he went into a sort of trance and what he had done while it lasted he did not know.

Now it is a fact that one of the commonest methods of producing hypnosis is to subject the person experimented upon to a slighter but similar strain by holding some bright object just above the level of his eyes and telling him to look at it until a sense of weariness comes on. Usually the hypnotic sleep can thus be soon produced. To be sure, the man of Madison square did not show the ordinary phenomena of hypnosis, but as those phenomena are infinitely varied it is not impossible that he really was a victim of self-suggestion, induced exactly as he said. The question that arises, therefore, is whether other people, when in a susceptible state, are likely to have the same undesirable experience if they stand in the street and "rubber" too long at the skyscraper.

Million-Dollar Housekeeping.

In one hotel of 700 rooms only, the wage bill amounts to $17,000 a week. A big house—that is, one which contains from 1,000 to 1,500 rooms—and the Ansonia apartment hotel in New York has 2,500—will pay out $2,000 a day for food; to feed its thousand or fifteen hundred employes will mean from $500 to $700 to begin with, declares a writer in Everybody's Magazine. Fourteen barrels of flour, 700 dozen eggs, 25 barrels of oysters—the list may also go to indicate the waste there is. A big hotel will burn from 50 to 100 tons of coal a day, winter and summer; for almost as much is required to keep the house cool as to keep it warm. Items that might easily be left out of count—$70,000 a year for music and orchestras, for example—add their astonishing figures. Forty thousand dollars goes to new dishes and $60,000 to new linen. The whole bill for renewals, repairs and redecorations will annually amount to something between $500,000 and $600,000.

The Architecture of Madeira.

We saw no suggestion of modern architecture or European innovation—no blot anywhere, except a single motor car—the only one, I believe, in Funchal. Without knowing anything on the subject, I should say that the architecture of Madeira is a mixture of Spanish and Moorish, like that of Mexico. Only it is better than anything in Mexico. From the ship the stucco, tile-roofed city is flawless; and as we steam away and night comes down and lights break out and become a jeweled necklace along the water's edge, our one regret is that we are leaving it all behind.—From "The Ship-Dwellers," by Albert Bigelow Paine, in Outing Magazine.

A Sad Similarity.

"Do you take exercise enough?" inquired the friend.

"I'm afraid not," answered Miss Cayenne. "Taking exercise is like taking good advice. It is always what some one else ought to do."

TRULY A TRAGEDY

OLD-TIME PRINTER RECALLS HIS SADDEST MOMENT.

Lonesome Half Dollar, All the Worldly Wealth Possessed by His Chum and Himself, Went Down to the Fishes.

A group of old-time journeymen printers the other night were describing their wanderings up and down and across the map of the United States and pointing the descriptions of their journeys with little hard-luck stories of their own experiences here and there. A little gray man with a high forehead, who had been listening meekly all evening to the reminiscences of the others finally was moved to speech.

"I've worked in newspaper offices and print shops in nearly every kind of a burg in this country from Father Knickerbocker's town to the shacks of Red Gulch, and I have had to 'batter gates' once in a while for a little broken grub," said he.

"I have been a little more than hungry at times, and I used the side-door Pullman in most of my little journeys. But I believe the saddest and most hopeless moment of my life was in Chicago late in the fall of the year of the big Columbian exposition. Me and a pal of mine had drifted in there from the wide southwest somewhere and we were both just about broke. Our clothes were getting thin and the October breezes coming across the lake were beginning to chill us to the bone. But we clubbed together one day and raised enough to pay our admissions into the fair. We were bound to see it, although it left us one lonesome half-dollar between the two of us.

"All day we tramped, feasting our eyes on the marvels of the big show, and late in the afternoon we landed back up town, with our heads full of Venetian lagoons and white palaces. We still had the half dollar and in the intervals of recalling this and that exhibit to each other we were planning how to spend the 50 cents to the best advantage. We were nearing the Rush street bridge when we began to laugh over the queer antics and mannerisms of a group of single eyeglassed Englishmen we had run across that afternoon in the British exhibit.

"My pardner was mincing along, giving an imitation of one of their 'ludships' and, suddenly thinking of the 50-cent piece, ran his hand into his pocket and lifting it to his eye began using it as a monocle. Just at the height of his antics the half-dollar slipped from his eye, bounced and rolled a few inches and slipped through a crack in the bridge floor down into the stinking, sluggish waters of the Chicago river. It was tragic. There was nothing to be said. We just looked at one another for a minute and tramped on across the bridge."

A Clergyman's Ruse.

Eld. Daniel Isaacs once alighted at an inn to stay the night. On asking for a bed he was told he could not have one, as there was to be a ball that evening, and all the beds were engaged.

"At what time does the ball break up?" asked Mr. Isaacs.

"About three in the morning, sir."

"Well, then, I can have a bed until that time?"

"Yes, certainly; but if the bed is asked for you will have to remove."

"Very well," replied Mr. Isaacs, and away he went to get between the sheets.

About three in the morning he was awakened by loud knocking at his chamber door.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"How many are there of you in there?" inquired a voice.

"There's me, and Daniel and Mr. Isaacs, and an old Methodist preacher," was the reply.

"Then there's plenty of you." And the speaker passed on, leaving Mr. Isaacs to enjoy his bed.—Cleveland Leader.

Ships as Weighing Machines.

How the load of a ship can be quickly ascertained without actually weighing it was demonstrated recently by Edward Beresford at the Temple pier by experiments on a 200-ton barge.

The apparatus used is known as a porphydrometer, and consists of a float placed in the water, which is admitted up a pipe fixed in the center of the vessel. As the load is increased the vessel naturally sinks deeper into the water, and the water in the pipe rises to a greater height, and the float thus raised throws a lever out of balance. A sliding weight enables one to bring it into balance again, and the position of the weight on a scale shows the amount of the load.

The porphydrometer was sufficiently accurate to show the weight of a man stepping aboard the barge.—London Daily Mail.

Humor in This Robbery.

While Sergeant of Police Henry Balsz of Sacramento, Cal., slept soundly a burglar entered his house and carried away his valuable gold timepiece. It was taken from Balsz's vest pocket, on which was pinned his star. Balsz's little girl heard the burglar and called to her mother. Her voice frightened the intruder and he hastily left. Sergt. Balsz slept through the whole affair and did not know anything about it until he missed his timepiece when he arose in the morning.

Beyond the Pale

By GEORGE BRYDGES RODNEY

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

"Yes, suh; I've seen bad men—plenty of 'em, in the early days, before this yere country was a white man's country past disputin'. I've seen 'em ride into a settlement, an' jest natchally hold up the whole bloomin' outfit. I've seen men what was shot, an' men what died o' thirst; an' onct, when I was a boy, I seen a man—a maverick — what the Mescalero Apaches 'd staked out over a ant-hill. It was bad—rotten bad. The ways o' rough men is some queer, but they cain't touch the devil's tricks they teach in civilization. I seen one o' them onct that fer clean devilment would ha' put the everlastin' kibosh on even ol' Cochise, an' he was some bad."

I asked a question.

"Yes, I'll tell you. Wait till I ketch up the burros, or they'll wander off into the brush an' 'll be the Lord only knows how fur off by mornin'."

"Twenty-five year ago I was manager of one over in the Progresso country—a good ranch, with two hundred thousand head on the runs. It was owned by a New York company—Bar Lazy O, they called it. I started in as herder till I near went loco from loneliness. I was there for ten year, and when the old company sold out, young Mr. Hirton, the treasurer of the new outfit, offered me the place as manager, an' I jumped at it, 'cause, you see, I'd been waitin' fer a chance fer money, an' two thousand a year is wuth some waitin'. Mr. Hirton come out every summer fer three or four months; he was a lunger, you know. His sister come out an' kept house fer him. She sure was a good-lookin' girl—tall and straight, an' eyes bluer'n ever I seen, an' hair like the bottom of a new copper kittle when the sun shines on it.

"One day she says to me: 'Mr. Connor, my brother expects two gentlemen out here next week, an' I'd like you to go to the railroad to meet 'em, if you can.'

"'Sure I can,' says I.

"So when the time come I lit out in a buckboard fer the railroad. 'Twas a three days' trip an' rough ridin', an' I was durned glad when they shoved them two tenderfeet off 'n the train an' dumps about four trunks around 'em.

"One of 'em was a feller about twenty-six, built from the ground up, name o' White. The other was a man of about forty or forty-five, clean-shaved, wearin' specs, an' mighty keerful in his dressin'. Perfesser Cringle was his name, an' I found out later he was a bugologist fer some museum in Chicago.

"Course I was makin' bets with myself all along that both of 'em was after Miss May. I never yet seen two men what'd travel three thousand miles to see a lunger.

"It turned out that I was half right, fer While had knowed Miss May fer about six year, but the perfesser was a man Hirton picked up in Chicago, an' got him interested in loco weed, an' he come out to investigate it. He'd never met Miss May. But that didn't make no difference, there's got to be a first time to all things, an' pretty soon things was gay on that ranch with the two men tryin' all kind o' ways to git a corner on Miss May's time. She liked White—anybody could see that—an' ol' Cringle wasn't even an 'also ran.'

"One evenin', while I was a-settin' by the bunk-house a-smokin' before turnin' in, I heered the front door shet in the big house, 'n' I looks up an' sees Miss May 'n' White standin' on the porch in the moonlight. The vines was all about 'em, an' by an' by I heered the murmur o' the voices like that water yonder, 'n' then I sees White hold out both arms to her. She kin' o' wavered fer a minute, like a young cottonwood in a breeze, an' he catches her, an' then on a sudden I seen the curtain go up about two inches in the settin'-room winder, an' I seen the gleam o' the light on a pair o' specs, an' a minute later ol' Specs comes out by the back door. He didn't see me a-settin' by the bunk-house in the shadder, so he passes over an' stands there within ten feet o' me, his hands in his pockets, a-watchin' the two on the porch. Then he says soft-like: 'It is not good fer man to live alone, but ye're not goin' to marry him. No, ye're not. Fate has reserved fer ye the consolin' influences of a man o' science. I'm older 'n him, 'n' I know more, an' he shan't have ye, any way,' he says, gazin at 'em till I thought he'd lose his sight.

"The nex' mornin' 'bout daylight ol' Specs comes up to me in the corral. He was always politeful to me, an' he says: 'Mr. Connor, will you step over to the chicken yard? There's a strange animal there that I don't know.'

"'Skunk, maybe,' says I, follerin' him.

"'There,' says he, pointin' to a bushy tail a-stickin' out from the coop. 'Wait till I ketch it,' he says.

"'You let that alone,' I hollers. 'It's a hydrophobia skunk. If it bites you, it's sure death;' an' I pulled my gun an' plugged it.

"Ol' Specs jumped fer it. 'Mephisto hydraulics,' says he."

"Mephitis mephitica hydrophobia," I suggested, brushing some hot cigarette ashes from my blanket.

"Aye, that's it. I thought he was swearing in bug Latin. Ol' Specs jumped fer it like a duck fer a June bug

"'I've heered of 'em, Mr. Connors,' says he, 'but I never seen one before. I allus thought it was a yarn like you western men give to a tenderfoot,' he says.

"'Yarn hell! One hit Mallory last year when he was roundin' up cattle in Tonto basin, an' he went out sudden.'

"One day Mr. Hirton come to me and says: 'Connor, how would you like to put in six weeks hunting mountain sheep.'

"'Fine!' I says. 'Up near the line there's lots of 'em.' There was no fine in them days fer killin' 'em.

"'Mr. White an' the perfesser would like to go,' he says, 'so fix up fer all of ye to go to-morrow. Ye can take Smith to help with the packs.'

"So the next day we pulled out. I was expecting the two to be hardly on speaking terms, an' White he was sure close-mouthed. But Specs was always good-humored, an' he'd ride along chewin' jerked venison all day, gittin' off his horse every now an' then to pick up a toad or bug.

"We finally hit the foothills of the White Water Range, after about two weeks' traveling, an' made up near the head of the canyon. I'd seen some o' them durned hydrophobia skunks loafin' around the camps, an' every night I'd take my beddin' roll an' prop up the edges o' the canvas with sticks or sling it up between two trees. Ye see, on a cold night they loaf around pickin' up scraps, an' crawl in yer beddin' fer warmth, an' the first thing ye know ye're bit.

"Specs wasn't much on huntin', 'ceptin' bug huntin', so he says, 'You folks go hunt yer sheep, an' I'll be around camp an' git my game here,' he says. So he generally had grub fixed fer us in the evenin'.

"One night when we come in I went up the stream to catch some fish, an' about a half-mile up the stream I seen a empty on the bank with slats nailed over it, an' inside it was one o' these yere animals. 'Spec's got a pet,' I thinks, an' I meant to josh him about it. But when I went back to camp I fergot all about it.

"Next night I moved my beddin' roll an' hung it up between two trees away out from the fire, an' lay there a-watching' Specs chop up a squirrel he'd shot. White had turned in, an' presently Specs goes down to wash his hands in the stream. When he come back he come by the rear of the tent, an' got in on the side away from me.

"I turned out at daylight, an' while I had my face in the creek I heard a yell up in camp that made me jump; then a shot, follered by two more. I made one jump an' lit by the fire. White was standin' by the fire with his gun in his hand, his face whiter'n chalk, an' at his feet was a hydrophobia skunk—dead.

"'What's the matter?' says I.

"'One o' them varmints was in White's boot, an' bit him on the hand,' says Specs. 'Heat a knife,' he says.

"The fire was out, an' it took about twenty minutes to start it an' get a blade hot. We done the best we could by tyin' a string 'round the arm an' cuttin' into the hand.

"That broke up the party. We got the packs ready to pull out after dinner, an' I went up-stream to catch some fish. 'I'll jest go up an' look at Spec's pet,' thinks I, an' when I got up-stream to where he had it, I seen the box, but there wasn't nothin' in it. 'Wonder how he got out?' thinks I, an' the fust thing I seen was that there wasn't no hole in the box, but the top slat was knocked off. Now, there ain't no animal livin' what'll knock the top slat off'n a box to git out.

"We pulled out after dinner, an' I never want to see a worse trip. White was nervous an' worried, an' would look fer hours at his hand. After four or five days it turned red an' angry-lookin', an' White got mighty irritable, an' his eyes was bloodshot, an' he had the meanest grin on his face that I ever seen. Old Specs was devotin' all his time to him, even makin' poultices fer him out'n rattlesnake weed.

"One night after we'd hit the back trail fer about three weeks we camped fer the night. I handed White his tin cup full of coffee. He took it, an' I seen him strain an' strain an' the big swallerin' muscles on his throat stand out, but he couldn't drink. He says to me quiet-like: 'Connor, I guess I'm all in.'

"I says, 'Nonsense, White! Buck up. It's all fancy.' There wasn't no Pasteur treatment in them days.

"The next night we had to tie him. He was foamin' at the mouth.

"'God! what a awful sight!' says Specs.

"I took my gun an' spun around the cylinder, an' says: 'No law runs west of the Colorado line, but them animals is sure bad medicine. There may be some things around to-night that need killin'.'

"Specs looks queer, but says nothin'.

"That night about moonrise I heerd a shot, an' come out o' my beddin' roll all standin'. White was layin' by the fire with his feet in the ashes, his revolver in his hand, an' a tin cup half full o' water beside him. His head was ——. Well, there was a letter lyin' by him, writ on a label off'n a tomato can, an' Specs was a-leanin' over him. He says: 'God fergive him, poor devil! What do ye make of it, Connor?'

"I says nothin,' but looked at him.

"It like to 'a' broke Miss May's heart when Hirton told her about White's death."

Connor lapsed into silence.

"What became of Specs?" I asked incautiously.

"I put rocks over him," said Connor, "so the coyotes couldn't dig him up; fer, after all, he was a white man."

Even as the message came a faint cheer rang out on the deck of the Mongolian. The first boat had been sighted. Carefully because of the tremendous waves the lifeboat bore down on the big ship. Slowly she edged around, then a rope was thrown and caught. A rope ladder and other ropes went over the side, and then almost before Harling could send another message the half drowned members of the Irvessa crew were being dragged to safety over the side of the ship.

"Then, for God's sake, come to me! Come quick!"

Mrs. Durant, the first one taken aboard, and Pinckney, the second, were helped into the wireless room. The woman was moaning hysterically.

"Frances is lost, lost!" she sobbed.

Next the clicking of the wireless instrument brought Pinckney partly to himself.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Some one on the Irvessa. Who is he?" demanded Harling.

Pinckney did not answer, and Mrs. Durant broke in:

"It's Lieutenant Sommers. He stayed behind to guide you. What's he saying?"

"He wants to know if all are safe in the first boat."

"Yes, but Frances," cried the mother—"Frances, where is she?"

The clicking of the receiver cut off her speech.

"He says: 'Don't give up second boat. Don't believe it lost.'"

The captain of the Mongolian let out an oath.

"We can't stop for the second boat," he exclaimed. "I'm going for that fellow. Tell him we're coming for him."

Harling sent the message, but a moment later the word came from the lookout:

"Irvessa light gone."

The light was gone, but the Irvessa still held together, for the receiver in the wireless room of the Mongolian clicked out a sharp command:

"Look for second boat. We stayed to save others. Don't come for us till you find second boat."

Almost at that moment the lookout sang a cheering word.

"Another boat on the port bow, sir."

Again the thrilling work of lifting dazed, half drowned people from the tossing lifeboat to the firmer deck of the steamer was successfully accomplished. Bradley, the leader of the second boat, staggered into the wireless room.

"Frances! Was she with you?" screamed Mrs. Durant at sight of him.

The secret service man shook his head.

"We thought she was in the first boat with you," he said. "How many did you have?"

"Fifteen," replied Pinckney.

"And we started with thirteen," exclaimed Bradley, "and lost two. That makes twenty-eight."

A scream from Mrs. Durant interrupted them.

"My child! Frances! My child! She stayed behind with Sommers. Save her! Save her!"

Harling sprang to the key, and a moment later this terrible message went to the hero in the wireless room on the Irvessa:

"Miss Durant is with you. She stayed behind to run dynamo."

The answer came sharp, quick, and for the first time the sending was nervous:

"Then for God's sake come to me! Come quick!"

CHAPTER XV.

EXCITEMENT AT THE DURANT WORKS.

THE Durant gun works was in a fever of excitement. Ever since the forging of the Sommers gun events of importance had happened in such close succession that about the works generally was the feeling of stunned amazement. The office force and even the hands when they met would look at each other fearfully. What would happen next? No one could tell. But all were sure something dreadful might be expected.

First had come the fight in the furnace room, when Sommers was nearly killed; then the discharge of Smith, but with the rumor that he had gone to work in another plant controlled by Mr. Durant; next had followed a terrible explosion of the Sommers gun, and now was the shipwreck, the wonderful rescue through the bravery of Sommers and Frances Durant, finally to culminate in a rigid investigation to be held in the Durant works. So no wonder the thousands connected directly and indirectly with the Durant works were in a fever of excitement.

The story of the heroic rescue had been told over and over again. All knew how Frances voluntarily had stayed behind on the wrecked yacht to share apparently certain death with the heroic young naval officer. It was plain that she loved him and he loved her, and all the gossips were straining their imaginations to conjure just what would be the result when the girl's lover was tried at the court martial for the loss of his gun, forged in her father's works.

As soon as the Mongolian reached New York the survivors of the Irvessa had landed. Pinckney hurried to Pittsburg on the first train, but Sommers stayed over a few hours to make the trip with Frances and her mother. Mr. Durant had met them there, and all came on together. The steel man was not given to many words. Sommers was equally undemonstrative. They had wrung each other's hands with mutual respect and esteem, but there had been no words of the relation which all knew must exist between the young officer and Frances. The girl had said nothing. Even her mother was not in her confidence.

On the trip from New York to Pittsburg Mrs. Durant had found time to take up the subject with her husband.

"It's no use, George," she said. "Edward hasn't a chance. That wreck killed any feeling she ever had. We were all in the wireless room, and when he began to bungle and send foolish messages Mr. Sommers just caught him by the collar, pulled him away from the key and put him outside. If you had seen Frances' face then you would know Edward was done. You must give Mr. Sommers every opportunity to clear himself of blame."

George Durant nodded in agreement.

"I'll give him every chance, my dear," he said. "Give him a chance, that's all any man can ask."

Now the day of Sommers' chance was at hand, for Mr. Durant had put his books and the entire force of the works in charge of Bradley to ferret out the truth.

Pinckney, with a few hours' start, hurried to the works as fast as possible. He wanted to meet Marsh before the investigation began. He must know what Marsh had told Bradley. Their stories must agree. But the first blurted question brought another surprise to the chief conspirator.

"I haven't seen any secret service man. There hasn't been any around here," protested Marsh.

Pinckney shook his head impatiently.

"Don't be foolish, Marsh. You saw him and talked to him. He questioned you here nearly a month ago. His name was Bradley."

Marsh, thoroughly frightened at the idea of secret service men working on a case, could only redouble his protest.

"I haven't seen him. I haven't talked to anybody I didn't know in a month."

Pinckney gave a relieved sigh.

"Then he bluffed me," he said. "But now listen. This investigation is coming off today. We're all right. If you keep your head for half an hour you can't go wrong. And we begin work on a government contract for the Rhinestrom tomorrow."

"What must I say?" inquired the inventor of the Rhinestrom gun weakly.

"Swear that Smith was drunk and say that I and Sommers were in the furnace room when the gun went into the tempering bath. Then Bradley can't prove anything to save his life. Don't let him frighten you. He'll try to, but keep your nerve. If he asks you about the Rhinestrom gun don't know anything about it."

Marsh, naturally nervous, was now trembling with fear.

"You know of those killed and wounded, Mr. Pinckney. We both deserve state's prison for it."

Pinckney grabbed the little man by the shoulder to shake some courage into him.

"Don't get chicken hearted, you fool," he cried angrily. "I feel as bad about the accident as you do, but we can't think of that now. It's state's prison or a fortune for you, Marsh. Now keep your nerve. How did we know the gun was going to explode? I never thought it would stand the test at the proving ground. Come on in the office, and I'll give you a drink to brace you."

They were still in the inner room when Bradley, cool and debonair, as usual, strolled into the outer office.

"How are you?" he said genially to Mazie O'Brien, the pretty stenographer, pegging away in one corner at her machine. "I was looking for Mr. Pinckney."

"He's in the inner office with Mr. Marsh," responded the girl.

Bradley nodded.

"Sure. He sent for Marsh as soon as he came, didn't he?"

"Yes," replied the girl curiously. "How did you know that?"

Bradley smiled.

"Mind reader," he suggested, then added, with a serious explanation, "I have an engagement with him, so I thought they'd be waiting for me."

"Shall I tell him you are here?" asked the stenographer.

Bradley made a hasty objection.

MEMORIES

By FANNIE HEASLIP LEA

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

It happened that the Cynic came suddenly upon Jaconetta one evening when her lap and a portion of the hearth-rug upon which she sat, Turk fashion, were white with letters—old letters, some half-opened and some—but these lay in the grate—half-charred.

"Hello!" he said cheerfully, pausing in the doorway to reconnoiter. "Having a holocaust?"

Jaconetta looked up with a little startled scowl that did not smooth itself out at once.

"How did you get in?" she inquired, anything but politely. "I told Mary I was not at home."

"So Mary told me," admitted the Cynic, unmoved. "I said that I'd come in and have a smoke with your father."

"Father!" Jaconetta scrambled halfway to her feet with a protective clutch on the letters, but she sank back before the Cynic's soothing gesture.

"That's all right," he said, gently. "Go on with the wake. When I got to the door I said: 'Ah, Mary, I see Miss Jaconetta is in, after all. You needn't bother—' So here I am." He waived conclusions with a genial smile, and, selecting a large leather chair on the opposite side of the fireplace, sank into it with a sigh of content, and reached for his cigarette case.

Jaconetta returned to the contemplation of the letters in an abstraction that apparently left no room for conversation.

"Sick?" asked the Cynic pleasantly, from behind a drift of blue smoke.

"H'm?" said Jaconetta, not looking up.

"I've noticed," he went on impersonally, "that when a woman becomes reminiscent she is either sick of contemplating a new victim."

"Sometimes," said Jaconetta impishly, "there is another reason. Girls read over their old letters, and burn them, you know, when they are—going to be married."

"Yes," assented the Cynic; "yes." His cigarette burned to an incredibly long ash between heedless fingers. It is a cherished delusion of his that if Jaconetta will not marry him, at least she will marry no one else.

"Yes?" he repeated with a new inflection.

Jaconetta rested her cheek on the little brown fingers of her left hand and looked at the fire with pensive tenderness. The hand was ringless.

"However," she announced at length, "I am neither sick, 'contemplating a new victim,' nor going to be married. I am blue—unhappy—desolate." She leaned her chin on both hands and stared hard before her. "So I got out my box of letters and began to read them. It cheers me up," she added hopefully, "to see how many people have loved me. It seems to argue that I must be a very decent sort after all, eh?"

The Cynic shrugged his big shoulders with a smile that was both inscrutable and adaptable. It might have meant anything, from ardent devotion to a disinterested consideration of circumstances. "Pretty decent," he added, by way of parenthesis.

Presently Jaconetta looked up from the earnest perusal of a voluminous epistle, closely written in a small, masculine hand.

"Every man is a poet in his first love letters," she said sententiously. "Listen to this—"

"See here—" began the Cynic.

"I'm not going to tell you who it is—"

"I don't want—"

"Don't be absurd," said Jaconetta coldly. "Do you think I'd do it if it weren't right?"

She read slowly and with a total lack of emphasis:

"There is nothing I would not dare for you; nothing I could not be, that you wanted me; nothing I would not give up, nothing I would not leave, nothing I would not change, at your wish, except—"

"That's enough!" cried the Cynic suddenly. "What sort of a soul have you got, anyhow? Don't read me that stuff. Is it nothing but black and white to you?" He broke off in real indignation.

Jaconetta selected another sheet from the loose heap in her lap.

"I hope I know when to forget," she said serenely. "Calm yourself! He's been married for two years, and he adores the very buckles on his wife's slippers. What? No, he wasn't flirting with me when he wrote that; he meant it—at the time. Now listen to this"—and she read on hastily, before the Cynic could stop her:

"You are the only girl in the world, so far as I am concerned. The rest of them will do for the general run of wives and mothers and sweethearts and humanity; but you are different. You are the reason for everything I shall ever want—"

"Ugh!" said Jaconetta unexpectedly. "That was a heavy responsibility, wasn't it?"

"You are impossible," said the Cynic slowly.

"Eh?" said Jaconetta, honestly startled. "Oh! Because I'm reading you this? That's all right. They're all old stories now—dead pasts—mummied loves—and all the rest of it. This last one"—she folded the sheet and patted it back into its envelope—"I had a letter from him a month or so ago. He's going to marry a girl in Texas, and he writes of her with exactly the same enthusiasm. What's a little enthusiasm, after all, that one should grudge it to life? One has only a handful of years, at best, and if one doesn't savor all there is in the phases that come with those years, why—" She broke off, looking curiously at a sprig of something, withered and dry, that had fallen from the envelope she held, into her open hand. "Why—" she said again, aimlessly, the thread of her speech lost in a new tangle of thought. "Why—"

The Cynic laughed noiselessly, then he leaned forward with a charmingly confidential air.

"What is it," he demanded. "Another dead past? What's the little vegetable for?"

Jaconetta lifted quick eyes and laughed. Then she went back to staring at the thing in her hand.

"Are you thinking whether you shall keep it or burn it?" he teased.

"No. Oh, no; I am wondering, on the contrary," said Jaconetta calmly, "why I ever kept it, and who gave it to me."

Jaconetta has a face that slanderously reveals her lightest thought. Above the heliotrope it wavered from resentment to uncertainty, from uncertainty to resolution, and from resolution to a very definite amusement. Finally she laughed—chuckled rather—in an adorable fashion of her own. The Cynic watched her meantime, through half-closed eyes, and his cigarette went out, forgotten.

"What vampires you women are!" he cried suddenly.

"Eh?" Jaconetta was plainly astonished.

"Yes," insisted the Cynic; "vampires, parasites—every one of you!" He leaned forward, elbows on his knees, and brought the clenched fist of his left hand down into the palm of his right. "There you sit, laughing over the dry husk of a man's love—giggling in the face of a corpse—preening your vanity above a strangled illusion! What's truth to you? or faith? or passion? or love? The trinket of a day, something to wear in your hair like a flower, and throw away when you tire of it. Something to foster your vanity and prop up your self-esteem. Why, your memory's a rag-bag of loves and lovers. You pull out a scrap, but you can't even remember whose cloth it was cut from. A man lives in your remembrance, not for what he was or was not, but because he loved you. It is his claim to distinction. Have you nothing more real than that in your life? Doesn't that bit of a dead flower, there, hurt you for even a second? Hasn't it a voice for some dead moment? Why, you should be sorry—or glad—for the memory it awakens—anything—only feel! For heaven's sake, feel! You might have sawdust in your veins! What?" He broke off in an irritation not lessened by Jaconetta's mocking eyes.

"Go on!" she said, with a gamin grimace. "You're doing fine!"

"That's all very well," he retorted. "I'm glad I amuse you; but, on my word, I think the man who loves and rides away is the only sane one in the human species. You're not worth a man's faith and trust and manhood. You're vampires—vampires, all of you! You batten on our illusions, our youthful beliefs, our credulity, and then—you smile over the words we wrote in the clutch of our agony—laugh at the crude expression of the only love that is ever real in any man—his first—and sniff delicately at the dust of the flowers you wore for us. 'Whose was it? Why did I keep it? What did it stand for?'"

Jaconetta's eyes softened to an appeal.

"If I could remember who gave it to me," she offered hopefully, "I'm sure I should know why I kept it, and what it was for. But you see—"

"I quite see," he interrupted ruthlessly. "There have been so many—"

"One gets them confused," said Jaconetta eagerly, "and then, there's no clew. It's just a bit of dead heliotrope in a plain envelope. Heliotrope's a silly, sentimental sort of flower, so it must have had some significance; and one doesn't get it in hothouse bouquets, so it must have been an intimate gift. But then again so many men are sentimental—"

"And intimate?" suggested the Cynic, with caustic brevity.

"If you like," she conceded. "At least, you are easy to know." She drew her dark brows into a puzzled frown and sighed deeply. "I wish I could remember—he may have been interesting."

"He must have been," scoffed the Cynic, "since you forgot him."

The Cynic lit another cigarette and flung it into the fire half smoked.

"I'm going," he said suddenly, and got to his feet with a restless suggestion of haste. "You might, at least, leave me my belief in one woman's squareness and reality."

"Meaning me?" asked Jaconetta, with a slow smile.

"Meaning you," he retorted grimly. "It hurts my understanding of you to have you show the shallow flippancies of the common or garden flirt. That wretched little vegetable, now—throw it away if you like, but don't laugh at it. It must have been a part of your life—and life's nothing to laugh at."

"Indeed, no!" Jaconetta assented indifferently. "In my experience, life's a story with the joke on you."

She waited until he had taken her hand, perfunctorily, released it, and crossed the room to the door, then she spoke in her softest voice.

"I'm glad to know your views on the subject," she murmured sweetly, "because, as a matter of fact, I remembered all along. You gave it to me yourself, the day we drove into Camden for the Flower Show."

HOW TO MAKE FINE BISCUITS

Only Ordinary Ingredients and a Little Time and Trouble Requisite.

These biscuits are delicious, the tops and bottoms being crisp and delicately brown. Take one pint of milk, one teaspoonful of lard, two teaspoonfuls of butter, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one heaping teaspoonful of salt, half a yeast cake, one egg, six cupfuls of flour. Put the milk on the stove in a double boiler, together with the butter, lard, salt and sugar. When milk has become scalded let it cool to blood heat, dissolve the yeast in a little cool milk and add to the milk in the boiler. Into the bucket or bowl in which the biscuits are to rise sift two cupfuls of flour. Mix to a stiff batter with the milk that has been prepared, beat the egg light and add it to the mixture, then beat the batter as beating for a cake and cover closely; let it rise in a warm place. For six o'clock tea put the sponge to rise about ten o'clock in the morning, at three o'clock in the afternoon have a mold of sifted flour on the breadboard—about three cupfuls—and knead as for ordinary bread until the dough is soft enough to handle easily, then roll out about half an inch in thickness; cut with a small cutter. Brush the tops of the biscuit with melted butter and lard; do not let them touch each other. Set in a warm place and let rise about two hours. Bake from 15 to 20 minutes in hot oven.

The Home.

Tarragon vinegar is an essential touch to a sharp salad dressing.

To "fluff" a pillow catch it by one corner and drop it down hard upon the other.

The best fluid to use in washing muslin dresses of delicate color is rice water.

Silver may be cleaned and brightened by letting it stand half an hour in sour milk.

One housekeeper advises the use of half a lemon for removing match marks from paint.

To clean steel use emery powder and oil mixed into a paste. Polish with a clean duster.

If your paint has been marred by careless scratching of matches, try rubbing it with the finest sandpaper.

It is said that grass stains will come out if the spots are rubbed with a little fresh lard awhile before they are washed.

The housekeeper who goes to market rather than order by telephone will find she gets better things for less money.

Powdered arrowroot is preferable to constarch for thickening fruit juices, for it keeps the juice transparent and prevents lumping.

A child's broom, purchasable for a small amount at any department store, is an excellent article for cleaning behind the radiators.

Orange Charlotte.

One third box of gelatin, one-third cup of cold water, one-third cup boiling water, one cup sugar, juice one lemon, one cup orange juice and pulp, whites of three eggs. Soak the gelatin in cold water till soft, add the boiling water, sugar and lemon juice. Strain and add the orange juice and a little of the grated rind. Cool in a pan of ice water, and when it begins to harden beat in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Serve with a custard made with the yolks of the eggs, one pint of milk, three heaping tablespoonfuls sugar and a little salt. Flavorr to taste. Or it is fine cut up in little cubes and served with whipped cream.

Saratoga Chips.

Select potatoes of rather large size, pare them, and, with a cutter or slicer, cut into thin slices. Drop as soon as sliced in cold water. Drain a few at a time and dry thoroughly on a cloth. Have ready a kettle of smoking hot fat. Drop in a handful at a time, stir with a fork to separate them and skim out on unglazed paper as fast as colored. Use a frying basket and the process is quicker. Put away the chips in a tin box lined with waxed paper. Sprinkle with salt the last thing before serving. To freshen, set them spread out in a pan with a moderately hot oven.

Seed Cake.

Half a pound of fine pastry flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one large teaspoonful of caraway seeds, three ounces of butter, three ounces of caster sugar, two eggs, one gill of milk.

Mix all the dry ingredients together. Cream the butter and sugar and then beat in the eggs (well whipped), and half the milk. Gradually sift in the dry ingredients—adding more milk if necessary. Bake in a quick oven for three-quarters to one hour. The oven must be hottest when the cake is first put in.

Rice Water.

An excellent substitute for milk is rice water. When boiling rice use plenty of water. When the rice is cooked drain off the water, setting it away to cool. It will thicken and when used in a cream of soup or puree requires no thickening.

Rhubarb Shortcake.

Make a dough as for strawberry shortcake. Cook rhubarb slowly, using no water, until done. Flavor with lemon or nutmeg and sweeten to taste. Split cake lengthwise and finish as with strawberries.

WHITE PLAGUE CRUSADE

Big Mass Meeting in the Tuberculosis Campaign on October 21.

THIS CITY TO BE REPRESENTED.

Senator Ackerman Writes Praising the Movement — Great Speakers to Be Heard.

"The situation is serious and demands a remedy," writes State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, concerning the tuberculosis problem in New Jersey. His letter, in which he expresses himself in this manner, is in acceptance of the invitation of the New Jersey Tuberculosis Commission to the State mass-meeting, to be held in Taylor Opera House, Trenton, Thursday night, October 21.

"I expect to be present," continues Senator Ackerman, "to listen to and gain information and instruction from those who are giving so much time and attention to the work of preventing the spread of tuberculosis.

"I am sure good results are following the educational efforts of the eminent men of our country and State—the knowledge of how to prevent disease will save many a life.

"All those things tending to more healthful surroundings, both in public and private places, will certainly benefit the people, and too much labor and instruction cannot be given along those lines. The situation is serious and demands a remedy."

Among the list of patronesses will be Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, Mrs. Rowland Cox, Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. Albert A. Atterbury, Mrs. Francis DeLacy Hyde, Mrs. Charles L. Hyde.

Among the other Plainfielders interested and identified with the movement are State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Dr. William H. Murray and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, all of whom are connected with the Plainfield Society for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis.

The mass-meeting at Trenton will be primarily educational, and to make this phase of the conference a strong one, two of the greatest tuberculosis specialists of the day will be among the speakers—Dr. William H. Welch, of Baltimore, and Dr. Henry Baird Favill, of Chicago. The addresses of these men and of the rest of the speakers will be published later by the commission, in pamphlet form, for widespread circulation in New Jersey.

Dr. Welch is of the faculty of Johns Hopkins Uunivesity and President of the Board of Trustees of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Science. He is a man who has made extensive and highly valuable research in all of the medical ramifications concerning tuberculosis. He is unquestionably the greatest tuberculosis expert of his time.

Dr. Favill is professor of therapeutics at Rush Medical College, professor of medicine at the Chicago Polyclinic, and physician to St. Luke's Passavant and Augustina Hospitals. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and Rush Medical College, Chicago. His specialty is internal medicine. He is a member of the American Academy of Medicine, American Medical Association, Illinois State Medical Assocation, Chicago Medical Society and Chicago Pathological Society. He is a director of the United Charities of Chicago, and president of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute.

Another of the great speakers will be Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of Boston. He is assistant professor of clinical medicine at Harvard Medical School, and assistant physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He has written a great deal along technical lines. His greatest service to medicine has been in research on the blood. His best known social work has been with the out patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The great meeting in the interests of the tuberculosis crusade in New York, held last year in Albany, was to New York as this New Jersey meeting will be to this State. As a result of the Albany meeting the tuberculosis fight in that State gained a firm and dignified foundation, and interested influential men and women in the war. The influence of the Albany meeting is already powerfully reflected in the New York Legislature It is exactly toward this end that the New Jersey Commission, an official body of the State government, is aiming.

LADIES AUXILIARY A.O.H. HOLDS ANNUAL BALL

Ladies' Auxiliary, Division No. 4, A. O. H., held a dance last night at Saengerbund Hall and kept 400 people entertained until 2 o'clock this morning.

John Fitzpatrick, a celebrated Irish bag-piper now of New York, was on hand with his pipes and a variety of airs that made everyone present think of the "old sod" and its memories. Those in attendance who were able to dance to Irish music were accommodated by Bag-piper Fitzpatrick, and the others were given American music by Parogbeck's orchestra.

The dance was voted a complete success by those present. It was arranged by a committee consisting of Miss Kate Keogh, Mrs. Mary Bimble, and Miss Kate McGrath. Between dances refreshments were served.

MANY ENTRIES FOR NATIONAL HORSE SHOW

There is considerable local interest in the forthcoming twenty-fifth annual National Horse Show to be held at Madison Square Garden, this winter, for among the entries will be those by Charles W. McCutchen, William J. Buttfield, Miss Mabel P. Hooley, Miss Marguerite McCutchen and other Plainfielders.

To make the horse as good as cash in the bank and a dividend earner, as reliable as any gilt edge bond is the object of the men who are now directing the National Horse Show. The classes this year will be especially varied and the cash prizes will be large and attractive.

The officers of the National Horse Show Association include the most prominent men in the country. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, of New York, is the president. Reginald C. Vanderbilt and Robert A. Fairbairn, the latter of Westfield, are among the directors. Lewis E. Waring, of this city, will be one of the judges at the big show.

HEAR 62 WITNESSES IN HETFIELD WILL CASE

Contrary to expectation the famous Hetfield will case was not completed yesterday, an adjournment being taken to Wednesday, October 20, when it is hoped that the case will be finished. The hearing is being held before Judge E. S. Atwater in the Union county court, and thus far sixty-two witnesses have been examined.

The evidence taken yesterday was of the same character as that given at previous sessions. Witnesses for the will in an effort to disprove the claims of the caveators were called one after another. They claimed that Hetfield had sufficient mental capacity to drive horses for miles and that he was able and did do the same work as other men who were connected with the Gallagher hotel.

The case involves the will of Corra O. N. Hetfield, who died last winter and left his estate to Joseph Gallagher, a Rahway avenue saloonkeeper. The testators' relatives claim that Hetfield was not mentally capable, and filed a caveat against the will. Among the witnesses called yesterday was Joseph Gallagher.

Sunday-School Session Will Be Held.

GOOD SHOWS ARE COMING

"The Widow's Might" With Lillian Russell, and "The Girl of the Golden West."

FIRST BELASCO SHOW HERE.

Pauline Hall Will Be Seen in "Wildfire" at the Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

An announcement that will be looked forward to with interest by playgoers is the forthcoming presentation at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, of David Belasco's great play, "The Girl of the Golden West." This beautiful Belasco story of the early days of California, which had a remarkable run of two years at the Belasco theatre, New York, will be given here with the same attention to detail that characterized its performance in the metropolis. The announcement is of more than usual interest inasmuch as the performance will mark the first appearance here of a Belasco show, none of his productions having been booked for the local house since it opened its doors nearly five years ago.

Another of the season's first big offerings is underlined at the local theatre when Lillian Russell appears here Saturday night, October 30, in her new comedy, "The Widow's Might." The star and her company will come to Plainfield after a run of several months at the Liberty theatre, New York, where she made a big personal hit in the central character of Edmund Day's comedy of Wall street.

Miss Russell opened her road tour in Washington and makes her return here after an absence of two seasons. Her triumphs in "Wildfire" are still pleasantly remembered and she comes back to fulfill the many promises of development that were then noted by local playgoers. In her present vehicle Miss Russell has even better opportunities than she had in the former piece and it will be seen that she has ripened into one of the most artistic and delightful comediennes imaginable.

This afternoon and tonight, Pauline Hall will be seen in "Wildfire," in which Lillian Russell appeared here last season. For a number of years, Pauline Hall, "the beautiful," as she is world-styled, has been before the public as a queen of comic opera. Her voice, next to her beauty, has been her fortune. In these particulars, as in all others, her career parallels that of Lillian Russell. She has essayed various roles in musical productions with distinguished success, but apparently not content with her conquests, she seeks new worlds to conquer, for this season she is cast for the first time in a play where her acting instead of her voice, is the test.

"A Sunday at Grasmere."

"A Sunday at Grasmere" will be the topic of the third talk by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, at the Congregational church tomorrow night, it being the third in the series on "Sundays in England." Grasmere is counted by many to be the loveliest spot in the Lake District which is considered the most beautiful part of England.

No Services Tomorrow.

Owing to repairs being made to the boiler in the First Baptist church it will be impossible to hold morning and evening services tomorrow. Everything will be in readiness to properly heat the church a week from tomorrow.

HEARS WILSON'S PLEAS

Justice Voorhees Reserves His Decision on an Application to Quash.

HE WANTS BAIL REDUCED.

Attorney General Wilson and S. A. Patterson Appear for Former Local Councilman.

Justice Voorhees at Trenton, yesterday, reserved decision on the application first to quash the proceedings against former Councilman Theodore D. Wilson, at one time a resident of this city, and second to reduce his bail of $10,000. Mr. Wilson was arrested on a charge preferred by Malcolm Hufty, a Washington, D. C., lawyer, that he had alienated the affections of Hufty's wife

Samuel A. Patterson and Attorney-General Wilson for Mr. Wilson based the double application on the claim that affidavits on which the latter's arrest was based were insufficient to show alienation and also that the order for the arrest was defective.

Theodore Wilson was a resident of Plainfield several years, his home being on Evergreen avenue. He, and his wife, who was exceptionally attractive, moved in the best society and frequently entertained, also attending the leading society functions. Before they left Plainfield there were rumors of family trouble. Later it was learned that Mrs. Wilson had sold all of the personal effects and had left the city independent of Mr. Wilson. Their whereabouts were not generally known here. Mr. Wilson served one term as a member of the Common Council from the Second ward, but he did nothing to particularly distinguish himself in that body, except to cause considerable criticism of certain actions regarding his conduct of the street department.

Mr. Wilson, who is a New York stock broker, it is claimed, induced Mrs. Hufty to leave her husband and go to Asbury Park, where, it is alleged, they lived together since last January.

In 1908 the Second Regiment had the highest figure of merit for work on the rifle range ever received in the State, which was 53. In the work on the range this year the regiment made 90.60 for merit, which is an increase of thirty-seven per cent. over the record made last year.

WEDDING OF MISS DAVIS

Daughter of Daniel E. Davis the Bride of Wilfrid Houghton.

AT HER BROTHER'S HOME.

Rev. Spencer C. Dickson, of Bloomsburg, Pa., Officiates—Reception Follows Ceremony.

Miss Lucie Palmer Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel E. Davis, of Union street, and Wilfrid Houghton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Houghton, of Long Branch, were married this afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Robert W. Davis, 853 West Front street. The ceremony was attended by relatives and intimate friends only to the number of about seventy, on account of the protracted illness of the bride's father.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Spencer C. Dickson, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Bloomsburg, Pa., who is a cousin of the bride.

The bride was gowned in white silk batiste, trimmed with cluny lace, and she carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her only attendants were two cousins, Miss Estella Davis, of East Orange, and Miss Catherine Mitchell, of Philadelphia. They were dressed in white and carried flowers The best man was Walter Carr, of Asbury Park, a cousin of the groom. The wedding march was played on the piano by Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey, of the borough, an intimate friend of the bride and her family.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held, during which congratulations were offered and a wedding repast was served. The home was simply but effectively decorated for the occasion with green and white, the arrangement in the parlor and dining-room being especially attractive. The bride was the recipient of a large collection of handsome and costly gifts.

Later in the afternoon the bride and groom left on a wedding trip. They will be "at home" at the home of the bride's parents, 935 Union street. The groom holds a responsible position with the Dodge Report Company, of New York city, and has a large circle of friends at his home in Long Branch. The bride is also popular in a large circle of acquaintances in this city. The couple was given a lively send-off when they departed on their wedding trip.

ARRESTED FOR HUNTING IN BOROUGH'S LIMITS

William Dealaman and his son, William Dealaman, Jr., of this city, were caught shooting on posted property near West End avenue about 7 o'clock, this morning, by Chief Marshal Weiss, and were taken into custody. The men, it is said, were guilty of violating an ordinance forbidding shooting firearms within the borough limits.

When Chief Weiss detected the men, bearing arms, they were in a field and he shouted to them to come out. The younger Dealaman responded, but the father called back to the chief to come after him, which he did. Afterward Mr. Dealaman said that he did not recognize the chief or he would willingly have obeyed the order.

Father and son will be given a hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver on Monday.

Hawkins, sang several selections.

FORMER MAYOR OFF ON A WORLD VOYAGE

The Hamburg-American liner Cleveland, chartered by Frank C. Clark, left this morning from New York for a double cruise around the world. She will be the first liner that ever has undertaken so great a voyage. More than 600 excursionists will sail in her, including Mr. and Mrs. James F. Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Malli and Miss Addie Dietrich, of this city.

All day yesterday and last night, Mr. and Mrs. Buckle were kept busy receiving their many friends, and last night a big delegation from the Get-Together Club and the Plainfield Lodge of Elks, called and wished the travelers bon voyage. During the day a handsome chest, containing cigars and other things to make a man's heart glad, was received, it being the gift of the Get-together Club. Mr. and Mrs. Buckle were also the recipients of bunches of cut flowers and baskets of fruit from their many friends. They also go away with a fine pair of field glasses, the gift of the Get-Togethers and the Elks.

All the Cleveland's steerage compartments have been converted into cargo space to carry the enormous supplies necessary for the trip to San Francisco by way of the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal. Among the good things below decks are hundreds of barrels of German beer, which the Cleveland brought here on her last trip from Hamburg.

The passengers will spend some time in the Philippines, a fortnight in Japan, a fortnight in India and will touch at Java and Borneo. There are four swimming tanks on the promenade deck of the ship and as the weather will be mild most of the trip the passengers may take a sea bath practically every day. Many of the excursionists will leave the ship at San Francisco. The cruise homeward will start from that city on February 5, 1910. Every berth on the ship has been engaged for the journey this way.

KERWINS FOUND GUILTY

Two Cases of Assault and Abuse Decided Against Them This Morning.

BLAME LIQUOR REMONSTRANCE.

John, Sr., Gets Suspended Sentence of Thirty Days, While John, Jr., Will Be Sentenced Next Saturday.

Two cases in which the Kerwin family, of West Third street and Rock avenue, were implicated, were heard before Judge William Runyon in the city court this morning and in both instances the Kerwins were found guilty of assault and using profane language. John Kerwin, Sr., received a suspended sentence of thirty days while John Kerwin, Jr., was found guilty and sentence deferred for one week.

William Burke, of 1134 West Second street, was the complainant in the first case against John Kerwin, Sr., for an assault committed in John Rafferty's saloon on Park avenue last Saturday night. This, as well as the second assault, was alleged to be an outcome of the complainant and his brother, Edward Burke, signing the remonstrance against a liquor license wanted by Lawrence Kerwin.

Preceding a blow in the face which drew the blood from Burke's lips, it was alleged that Kerwin used vile and abusive language and in the scuffle which followed Edward Burke was also struck by Kerwin. The latter denied using the language attributed to him and said that William Burke called him a monkey. The testimony of Rudolph Kampf, manager of the Rafferty place, corroborated some of the testimony of the Burkes and the Judge believed Kerwin guilty. The thirty day sentence followed.

Frederick Bolan, of West Third street, was the complainant against John Kerwin, Jr., in the second assault case and after hearing the testimony the complainant, who said that young Kerwin used unprintable language, and threatned to strike him on Clinton avenue and also tried to run him down with his delivery wagon, other witnesses were heard for both sides, some of which was corroborative of the complaint and that of the two Kerwin boys was directly contradictory.

Judge Runyon, however, was inclined to believe that Bolan had the better of the case and found John Kerwin, Jr., guilty, deferring sentence for a week. Kerwin denied all of Bolan's allegations and was corroborated by his brother Michael.

CONTRACTOR HALED BEFORE ELIZABETH COUNCIL.

Elizabeth Wants to Know Why Street Paving Has Not Been Even Started.

Because the contracting firm of O'Neill & Viscount has delayed a month in starting the pavement of Adams avenue and Lafayette street, Elizabeth, Patrick J. McGurn, chairman of the committee on streets and parks, brought up the matter at the meeting of City Council last night. Mr. McGurn declared that it was a question whether or not the firm was a responsible bidder, in view of their delay. The residents of the streets, he said, had paid over their share of the costs, and it was unjust to them to have the work postponed so long.

In answer, Mr. O'Neill, of the firm, explained that it had not as yet obtained its bond from the surety company, but expected to receive it this week, and would be in a position to start work Monday. City Surveyor Luster said that it was not the custom to do any paving after November 15, as frost generally sets in about that time.

Edward Nugent declared that it was unjust to infer that the firm was irresponsible merely because of this delay. Alfred A. Stein, president of the Council, also participated in the discussion, which ended without any action being taken.

It was brought out at the meeting that it will be necessary for the city to bring action against the Central Railroad if the Oak street and Broad street tunnels are to be lighted properly at night. The exits, he said, have been poorly illuminated. Councilman Edward Neafsey wanted the matter taken up with the railroad officials, and Mr. Nugent explained that the railroad had given a former committee of City Council to understand that the contract with the company made it incumbent on the city to do the lighting.

He believed, he said, that legal action would be necessary to bring the matter to a head. The railroad committee will confer with the Central officials.

Cure every form of kidney ills.

Lots of local endorsement to prove this.

Mrs. John Driscoll, 753 West Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "The public statement I gave several years ago concerning my experience with Doan's Kidney Pills was correct and still holds good. I suffered from a dull pain across my back which clung to me incessantly. Hard work increased my misery and at times I also had headaches and dizzy spells. I tried plasters and remedies of various kinds but without relief. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I finally procured at Randolph's Pharmacy relieved me and for that reason I heartily recommend them."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Laughter is the constant accompaniment of that great racing comedy, "Wildfire," in which Lillian Russell's only rival and successor, Pauline Hall, "the beautiful," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. Some critics declare that "Wildfire" is the best racing play ever written—better even than "In Old Kentucky" and "Checkers." Be it as it may, "Wildfire" is a comedy that is a comedy—filled with genuine fun—running over with laughs—and with a strong, convincing plot that keeps the interest piqued to the very end. It is scarcely surprising that "Wildfire" should be in a class by itself, when one considers its distinguished source. George Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the Hour" and other high class successes, and George V. Hobart, a humorist known to the laughing world as "Dinkelspiel," and also the author of Marie Cahill's present popular hit, "The Boys and Betty," are the writers of "Wildfire." The hand of Mr. Broadhurst can be identified in the strength of the plot and the colorful atmosphere, while Hobart's inimitable slang drops apt ly from the mouth of that great character hit, "Bud," the stable boy. As in the case of her predecessor, Lillian Russell, the many friends of Pauline Hall doubted her wisdom in turning her back upon the field of lyrics, where she has so long stood at the top, to venture into straight comedy,—doubted until the night of her first appearance. Her immediate success was a distinct triumph for the judgment of Manager Harry Doel Parker in selecting her for the role of the widow. It is indeed a pleasant and singular coincidence that the two American queens of beauty, meaning, of course Pauline Hall and Lillian Russell, after reigning simultaneously as comic opera idols, should at practically the same time, find equal success in the field of comedy, and curiously enough, by means of the same vehicle. An extraordinary production accompanies "Wildfire," and the second act is a novel departure in the depiction of a race track scene. The large cast includes many well known players.

"The Girl of the Golden West," David Belasco's stirring drama of California in the days of '49, comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Thursday night, October 21. "The Girl of the Golden West" has four acts and as many scenes. These are laid in and near the great Sierra Nevada mountain range in midwinter. Those who are familiar with Belasco's skill as a dramatist and genius for production need harly be told for production need hardly be told the piece has been furnished with a setting that exceeds in beauty and impressiveness even the standard set by those remarkable works, "The Darling of the Gods," "Adrea," "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," "Du Barry," and others which have put this producer at the head and front of his profession.

HALF MOON-CLERMONT MAY VISIT NEW JERSEY.

Cities along the Kill van Kull, Raritan and Delaware rivers and the Delaware and Raritan Canal may be visited by the Clermont and Half Moon if the efforts of a committee of the deeper waterways movement are successful. The waterways convention is to be held at Norfolk, Va., November 17 to 20, and in an attempt to secure the reproductions of the historic vessels as exhibits at the convention a committee is now negotiating with the Hudson-Fulton celebration commission.

The committee having the matter in charge consists of Congressman J. Hampton Moore, president of the Deeper Waterways Association; Frederick W. Donnelly, of Trenton, the New Jersey delegate to the convention; George F. Sproule, commissioner of navigation for Pennsylvania, and Charles E. Reed, secretary of the New York Board of Trade.

With a view to presenting the proposition in its strongest light, a tentative program and itinerary have been arranged. It is suggested that the vessels be manned by sailors from the navy and be escorted by a gunboat and torpedo boat.

Mr. Donnelly has suggested that a flotilla from the New York Yacht Club accompany the ships as far as New Brunswick; that the New Brunswick Boat Club act as escort to Bordentown, through the canal, and that the Trenton Yacht Club pilot the visitors down the Delaware to Philadelphia.

From the latter city the ships would be taken through the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal to Baltimore, and then to Norfolk.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Ever since 1901 Yale and West Point, which meet again today on the gridiron, have been playing games that are pretty nearly as interesting as some of the more important contests later in the season. In that time the cadets have won one game from the Blue, and have been beaten badly only once, earning tie scores three times. Yale goes to West Point as a rule with a small repertory of plays, for the period of drill in fundamentals is not quite over, and a versatile attack is a matter of late season development. For this reason, if none other, perhaps, the games have been full of excitement, and the one today should be no exception to the rule.

Forward passes and on-side kicks are more likely to figure in the attack of the Army than in that of the Blue, and the Yale team will, if precedent is followed, play in such fashion as to give the coaches a chance to determine its ability to mass a driving attack. A year ago Yale showed such power intermittently, the men getting together long enough toward the end to score a touchdown.

The Army is not likely to worry much about the game with Yale. It has a season's object in the Navy game, and will probably be treated as it was in 1908. However, if Yale uses this game as a means of measuring the strength of its attack, the Army is just as eager to measure the ability of its defence, and the coaches at the academy will be looking eagerly for such defects as may develop in the course of the game.

Many of those who go to the game to see the struggle are likely to travel on the Day Line steamer Hendrick Hudson, which gets to West Point about 1 o'clock, leaving West 42d street at 10:15 a. m. The advantage of this means of going is that it is about the only way that makes it possible to get a meal on the way up and down. The steamer returns immediately after the game.

LAWYERS TO PAY FOR NEGLIGENCE.

Federal Court Gives Verdict Against Jersey City Firm for Alleged Dilatariness.

Trenton, Oct. 16.—A jury in the United States Circuit Court yesterday gave a verdict for $2,500 against the law firm of Northrup & Griffith, of Jersey City, on the grounds that the concern failed to properly prosecute the case of Dagmar Enggvist until the statute of limitation had run against the cause. The administrator of the estate sued the firm on the theory that gross carelessness had alone brought the cause to the point where it had no standing in law.

Enggvist was killed on the steamer New York by the bursting of a tank. The suit, according to the evidence, was begun in time to escape penalty under the statute of limitations, but was allowed to be dismissed on some alleged error. It was on this phase of the case that the present suit was prosecuted and the judgment gotten.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

To the People of the State of New Jersey:

The Legislature at its last session by joint resolution, authorized the Governor to appoint a commission of five persons, to hold a public meeting in the State to arouse the attention of our people to the importance of a campaign against tuberculosis. This commission has been appointed and October twenty-first and the City of Trenton selected for the said meeting.

In our State there are four thousand deaths from tuberculosis in each year. Municipal boards, county boards and bodies are taking up this subject and providing proper places for the treatment of those afflicted with this terrible plague. This State and all its people have a great interest in this subject and in the promotion of every means to awaken public sentiment in relation to it.

At the suggestion of the commission appointed by the Governor, this statement is made to the people of the State, in the hope that they will further in every way possible, all local or other methods for making provision for the care of tuberculosis patients, and for the support of all measures having a tendency to check or prevent its extension.

If the issuance of this statement will bring the matter more forcefully to the attention of our people and quicken their interest in the overthrow of the great white plague, its purpose will be accomplished.

(Seal) Given under my hand and privy seal of the State of New Jersey, at Trenton, this sixteenth day of October, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and nine, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and thirty-third.

JOHN FRANLIN FORT.

By the Governor:

LESLIE R. FORT,
Secretary to the Governor.

No man ever left the city of Plainfield with the best wishes of so many of his fellow-citizens for an enjoyable journey and a safe return than did James F. Buckle when he departed yesterday for a trip around the world. During the time that he served the city as its mayor, Mr. Buckle was "hammered" as few officials are, but like the late Grover Cleveland he has lived to see the day when his constituents appreciated his public services.

27 NEW CONVICTS AT STATE PRISON

With the beginning of winter large numbers of convicts are being received at the New Jersey State Prison at Trenton, twenty-seven having arrived there during the past week. This is a record-breaker for one week.

There were many long-term convicts among the lot. Samuel Layfield, a desperate negro, will serve twenty-seven years. The negro was convicted of several robberies and assault on a Burlington county woman, upon whom he used chloroform after he had bound and gagged her fast to a bed.

In sentencing the man Judge Gaskill said he ought to be killed. Layfield's case resembled the Biddle case of Burlington county a few years ago, when three negroes were sent to Trenton for forty-nine years. There have been many outrages by negroes in that county.

One of the other long-term men was William H. Gray, the Hunterdon county real estate dealer, who got twenty years for killing his father.

Four reformatory criminals were received at Trenton to serve seven years. Charles Newlin, a second termer, was sent up from Cumberland for burglary; James Farley, of Hudson, for grand larceny; Charles Taylor, of Passaic, for burglary, and George Milton, of Essex, for uttering. All are young men.

Charles Graham, of Hudson, got three years for false pretenses. August Lentz, of Union, got five years for assault and battery. John Milenski, of Hudson, got two years for grand larceny. He has served time in the Clinton and Sing Sing prisons.

There were two women among the new arrivals. Alice E. Benson, of Sussex county, got nine months for adultery. Amanda Brown, of Burlington, received a year for keeping a disorderly house. John Brown, a Burlington negro, got five years for burglary.

Henry Anderson, a desperate Cumberland county negro, got a year for assault. He has been in prison before.

Thirteen prisoners were discharged during the week.

MUSKETRY VOLLEYS LAST TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD.

The funeral of Police-Sergeant James J. Walsh, one of the oldest members of the Elizabeth Department, took place at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning, from his late home, 491 Catherine street, Elizabeth, and was one of the largest in that city in years. After the coffin had been interred at Mt. Olivet cemetery, a detail from Kirkpatrick Post, G. A. R., fired a soldier's salute of three volleys over the grave. The services were held in the Sacred Heart church. Rev. Ambrose Huebner, rector of the church, was the celebrant of the requiem mass. The church was crowded. There was scarcely any old resident of Elizapethport, where the dead man was raised, who was not present at the obsequies to testify to his great popularity in that section of Elizabeth.

The funeral cortege consisted of the Elizabeth Police Department, headed by the Nonpariel Flute and Drum Corps, Judson Kilpatrick Post, No. 64, G. A. R., Bugle Corps, and delegations from the New Jersey Prisoners of War Association, St. Patrick's Alliance of America, the Elizabeth Exempt Firemen's Association, the Young Men's Father Mathew Temperance Society, the Catholic Benevolence Legion, the Holy Name and Rosary societies.

The coffin was covered with the American flag.

GIRL TO HELP SOLVE BANK AFFAIRS TANGLE.

Asbury Park, Oct. 16.—Miss Lulu M. Rawson, of this city, will help straighten out the affairs of the First National Bank of Mineral Point, Wis., which failed Tuesday following a discovery of a $400,000 shortage.

Miss Rawson, who has been an assistant for some time to Alvin Fowler, the federal bank examiner, who has been settling up the affairs of the First National Bank of Manasquan, this State, displayed such exceptional ability with figures that she has been engaged by John W. Schofield, receiver of the Mineral Point Bank, to assist him. She left here today for Mineral Point, accompanied by her mother.

SLANDER SUIT THROWN OUT.

Samuel B. Garrison Loses Action Against J. M. Robinson.

The suit of Samuel B. Garretson to recover $10,000 from John M. Robinson, former freeholder, was non-suited by Judge Demarest yesterday at Hackensack. Mr. Garrison, who was president of the Hackensack Board of Education, says Mr. Robinson slandered him at a school election in the Teaneck Town Hall last January.

"He called me a thief, a liar, a perjurer and hypocrite, and said I swore to a lie in a civil action against the Board of Education," said the plaintiff when on the witness stand. Mr. Garrison mentioned the names of a number who heard the slanderous words hurled at him.

CONVICT BOY ON A CHARGE OF MURDER.

Mt. Holly, Oct. 16.—After remaining out for twenty-four hours, in an effort to arrive at a verdict, a jury entered court Thursday and declared Joseph Kain, twelve years old, to be guilty of the killing of Frances Lord, who was shot in the head at Burlington on July 18. Hardly realizing the gravity of the situation, the youthful prisoner smiled and looked around the courtroom when the verdict was pronounced. He will probably be committed to the State Reform School at Jamesburg.

A verdict of not guilty was rendered in the case of Stanislaw Povoloski, of Burlington, who was tried on an indictment charging him with manslaughter for the killing of Caspar Admantis.

Alonzo P. Kirby and David Gravatt, of Pemberton Township, were placed on trial for assault and battery with intent to kill Harvey Snyder and Elmer Major. The boys were shot while stealing peaches from the farm of Asher Kirby.

Would Like to See Washington's Crossing Commemorated.

United States Senator Frank O. Briggs yesterday expressed himself as heartily in accord with the proposition of the Trenton Knights of Columbus for the establishment of a national park at Washington's Crossing, eight miles from this city. He said:

"I was at the Columbus Day celebration when the plan was mentioned and it struck me as being a very happy one. I believe it is one that will appeal to all people throughout the country and I will be glad to do all in my power to further the project."

Telephone Wire Cut, Mrs. Spowers Says She Will Retaliate.

Glen Ridge, Oct. 16.—The spite fence war which started in the aristocratic Wildwood terrace section of Glen Ridge about a year ago has assumed a new phase. The telephone wire that crossed the property of E. L. Delafield to give Mrs. Spowers service has been cut within the last day or two. Mrs. Spowers said she does not know who did the work, but she declared that "retaliatory measures will be taken."

Mrs. Spowers' plan of retaliation, she said, is to rent her stucco home, which is close to he Delafield home, to objectionable people.

Miss Pauline Denton, of West Sixth street, has been spending a few weeks at Belmar recuperating from an illness.

P.S.R. BUSY BUILDING "PAY WITHIN" CARS

It is not likely that the trolley cars known as the "Pay Within" type, and devised by P. M. Kling, of Elizabeth, will be used this year in Union county, according to an official of the Public Service Corporation. The cars, 284 of which have been made at the Stephenson Car Works, Elizabeth, and the Plank road shops in Newark, are known as the "900" type. Mr. Kling has been working on the device for them since the invention of the "Pay-as-you-enter" styles now in use in Newark, and other sections of Essex county. The chief feature of the new car that accidents are almost impossible when alighting or stepping off. No one can enter them without the conductor's assistance in opening the door.

The new cars have double trucks and are light in weight when compared with the cars now in use. They will be used on the crosstown lines in Newark in a short time, but may eventually be used here, according to Superintendent Gettings.

There is no bulkhead in the new cars, so that as soon as a person enters he is in the car itself. The money is deposited in a slot the same as in the "Pay-as-you-enter," except that in the latter you pay when you are inside.

The cars were built on suggestions furnished by the Public Service to Mr. Kling. Many of them are new; others have been remodeled. The absence of the bulkhead from the new cars gives the conductor a clear view through the entire car, and he will be in a position to facilitate the exit tnd entrance of passengers as a result. Altogether the cars are considered a big improvement over any thus far devised.

DEMOCRATIC CLUBS MEETING IN NEWARK.

The Federation of Democratic Clubs of New Jersey will hold its annual convention at State Democratic headquarters in Newark this afternoon. The convention, which will adopt a platform of principles, to be used in its campaign, will be called to order by President Ray E. Mayham, of Rahway, after which committees on platform, organization, credentials, rules and resolutions will be appointed and adjournment taken for twenty minutes.

At the second session, Job H. Lippincott, of Jersey City, will preside, and the reports of committees will be submitted for action. Addresses will be made by State Chairman Nugent, Frank S. Katzenbach, Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City; former Judge Howard Carrow, of Camden; Representative William Hughes, of Paterson, and other Democrats.

WINS SUIT INVOLVING A NOTE AND A CHECK.

A verdict for $509.86 was obtained by William De Mott, of Green Village, against Benjamin F. Strauss, of Elizabeth, in the Circuit Court at Morristown yesterday. The suit was based on a check given by De Mott to Strauss to be used in reducing a note of Strauss'. The check, he asserted, was not used for this purpose.

Elmer King, counsel for De Mott, charged that his client had been "trimmed." Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, who appeared as counsel for Strauss, objected to the expression, replying "We will see whether Mr. De Mott was trimmed.'"

STRAWBERRY PICKERS ARE BUSY ON FARMS.

When Benjamin English, a Bridgeport, N. J., farmer, isn't doing something that keeps his neighbors guessing, it surely is a dull time on the farm. He is picking a wonderful yield of second-crop strawberries. He has just gathered 200 quarts, and if the frost will hold off a little while he will add considerably to this quantity. He finds a ready sale for these at 40 cents a quart.

William Pine gathered ten quarts of fine berries this week on the Davis farm, near Woodbury, and most of the patches in the county are yielding a second crop. But English easily leads them all.

Woodruff Masonic Memorial.

Impressive Masonic rites marked the unveiling of the new table over the grave of Most Worshipful Past Grand Master Aaron Dickinson Woodruff in the First Presbyterian churchyard, on East State street, at Trenton, yesterday afternoon. The exercises were conducted by the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of the Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New Jersey, assisted by members of Trenton Lodge, No. 5, Mercer Lodge No. 50, Asher Lodge No. 70, Column Lodge No. 120, Fraternal Lodge No. 139 and Loyal Lodge No. 161.

Jury Against Daughters' Ingratitude.

Thomas Cavanaugh and his wife Marcelia were awarded a verdict for $900 Thursday night in Elizabeth in their action against their daughter, Mrs. Mary Ryan, whom they had sued for damages because she had turned them out of their home. They had given her the house, worth $1,000, on the promise that they would have a home there for the rest of their days. She claimed that they left the place of their own volition.

FAKE EYE SPECIALISTS INVADE NEW JERSEY

Eyeglass fakers and peddlers, "eyesight specialists" of a nomadic temperament, who have been driven out of New York State by a new law, are migrating to New Jersey in such numbers as to alarm the optometrists of Newark and other cities. Wholesale swindling in the rural districts by triflers with the eyesight is reported. Within a few days, however, there will be a meeting of the executive committee of the State Society of Optometrists, and steps will immediately be taken to open a campaign for the enactment of the stringent law which they failed to pass at the last session of the Legislature.

One of the leading opticians of Newark speaking of the abuses which the Legislature will be asked to abolish, said last night:

"The reputable qualified optician and optometrists of New Jersey are determined that a law shall be enacted that will put a stop to the vending of eyeglasses by irresponsible peddlers and so-called specialists. Almost every State in the Union has a rigid law on the subject, prohibiting the practise of optometry by any except regularly qualified and registered practitioners who have taken a course in optics at some recognized college and have mastered the science in all its departments.

"Years of study and practise are required to qualify one for the skilful adjustment of eyeglasses and the correction of errors of vision. A thorough knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the eye is the first requisite. This in itself calls for serious application under competent instructors. Light, and the laws of its reflection and refraction, constitute a distinct course of study. The cause and correction of the errors of refraction are an important branch of study, without the mastery of which no optometrist can be successful.

FILLED UP EXPRESS OFFICE.

Swindler Had Goods Paid for by Bad Check Sent to One Office.

The officers of the First National Bank and the express agent at Washington, N. J., would like to know the whereabouts of a man who, under the name of W. Y. Curtiss, has been passing worthless checks drawn on the First National Bank. The man has been operating from New York, Philadelphia and Newark, and already thirty-five checks, for amounts ranging from $20 to $50, have been returned by the bank as worthless.

Curtiss' mode of operation is to make purchases, giving in payment checks for slightly more than the amount of the purchase. He pockets the difference in cash and orders the goods sent to him at Washington.

Since the beginning of his operations the Washington express agent has been kept busy caring for a fast-growing accumulation of hats, clothing, phonographs, household effects, books, rugs, china, carpets, glassware, and other articles.

Yesterday the agent received a note from Curtiss asking him to reship the goods to their owners at once. The message was written on a Western Union blank and mailed from Newark.

Many prominent firms have been victims by the man. The only description the officials have of the man is that he is a large man, of middle age, with very florid complexion, and wears glasses.

WOMAN A PRIZE GARDENER.

Defeats the Commuters of Montclair Who Held Train Conferences.

Montclair commuters who have been striving all summer to win the prizes offered by the Montclair Garden Society for the best garden in the town are puzzled over the announcement that a woman, Mrs. F. Layton Brewer, of 241 Midland avenue, that place, who does not commute, and who, therefore, could not have the knowledge of gardening that comes from a daily discussion of this subject on the trains to and from New York, has received the chief trophy, a sun dial.

Many of the commuters who have nothing but the blisters on their hands that came from long evenings of toil in their prized gardens cannot see where a woman had any chance to win, but their solace lies in the fact that the other four prizes went to honored members of the commuting fraternity: Edward Livzey, off 11 Upper Mountain avenue; E. J. Oberlander, of 221 Walnut street; W. G. Frost, of 80 Upper Mountain avenue, and W. L. Oliphant, of 26 Madison avenue, all of Montclair.

The committee that awarded the prizes says that Mrs. Brewer earned the trophy because her garden in the largest measure contributed to the appearance of its neighborhood or vicinity.

Cavanagh Files Petition.

Richard Cavanagh, of Elizabeth, defeated for the Democratic Councilmanic nomination in the Third ward by John F. Byrnes, has decided to run independently. His petition, which has been in cirulation for for some time, was filed yesterday.

The Washington Valley Sunday-school will hold a sociable at the home of Mrs. Jeremiah Coddington, Thursday night, October 21.

RETAIL MERCHANTS TO MEET AT ELIZABETH

The next annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association of New Jersey will be held in Elizabeth. That city was selected as the meeting place by the members of the association at their meeting which ended Thursday at Paterson.

At the convention it was decided to endorse the plan of selling all vegetables by the pound instead of by the measure. It was decided to urge legislation making the weight system compulsory.

It was the consensus of opinion that weighing is by far the fairest and most satisfactory. All the members agreed that if vegetables were weighed instead of measured, both the storekeeper and the sonsumer would get a fairer deal, for scales are not so liable to be incorrect as measures, and there is less room for crookedness on the part of the wholesalers and retailers.

The convention favored strict enforcement of laws designed to prevent the opening of stores on Sunday.

The old officers were re-elected as follows: President, Edward H. Little, Delanco; vice-president, A. A. Smythe, Jersey City; secretary, Edward J. Thompson, Newark; treasurer, Henry Gray, New Brunswick. The old committees were reappointed.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Advocates of "straight local option" profess dissatisfaction with the Senatorial nominee of each of the regular parties in Sussex, and a third ticket was launched at Hamburg, N. J., yesterday. W. H. Ingersoll, a business man, is to be the candidate of the "People's Independent party," and is to make the fight for the Senatorship on a local option platform, fighting Jacob C. Price, the Democratic nominee; Henry C. Hunt, the Republican aspirant, and Arthur N. Roe as well, Roe being the Prohibition standard-bearer.

HAS A MILLION FOR N. Y. OR N. J. CHARITY.

Albany, Oct. 16.—There's a man in New York city who wants to give $1,000,000 for charity. His name is withheld. So is the name of his lawyer who wrote to the State Department of Charities asking just where and how this million might be best bestowed. The man with the million to give away says he wants to donate it to a charitable institution in New York State or in New Jersey. He has no preference.

Secretary Hill, of the Department of Charities, said yesterday that he had answered the lawyer's letter. He pointed out carefully how any one of all of the charitable institutions of this State would be grateful for the gift. Secretary Hill urged the lawyer to communicate with the president of the State Board of Charities, William R. Stewart, who is ready to explain to the philanthropist how he can most expeditiously contribute his money. Secretary Hill said nothing in his letter about New Jersey.

"There is so much of a demand for charity made upon this department," said Secretary Hill, "that I wouldn't for anything make public the name of this willing benefactor. Before the newspapers were on the street ten minutes this man would be swamped with appealing missives. They would come from all kinds of public and private charitable institutions."

NEW YORK IN DANGER OF FOUR-FOOT BALLOT.

The ballot to be voted at the municipal election in New York city on November 2 will be the largest sheet in the city's history, if the Board of Elections decides that all the certificates of nominations that have been filed are valid.

The sheet, which measures four feet five inches wide and fifteen inches deep, will contain the names of 1,000 candidates in twenty-one columns, each column containing a different party emblem. Most of the election booths are three and a half feet wide and it will be necessary to erect larger booths so that a voter can avoid tearing the ballot, as a torn ballot is subject to suspicion and in danger of being thrown out.

PIANO CONTEST FAKES EXPOSED!

IMPORTANT FACTS FOR HOLDERS OF GOLD BONDS, PIANO COUPONS AND DISCOUNT CERTIFICATES.

There are several Piano houses which have no prices for their goods except grossly inflated ones arranged expressly for fake discounts in connection with schemes of various kinds. These houses seem to find it impossible to dispose of their pianos in a legitimate, straightforward way, but instead resort to one scheme after another—catch-penny devices, so crude as to be positively insulting to the intelligence of the public. These schemes usually take the form of guessing contests, drawing puzzles and various feats of little skill. In all of them the object is identical to mislead the prospective buyer into the belief that he is getting something for nothing, while at the same time prices are arranged sufficiently high to off-set the allowance to which his prize certificate entitles him.

EVERYONE WHO MAKES A GUESS GETS A PRIZE!

If you have ever answered one of these ads you received a discount certificate. EVERYBODY DOES. It matters not whether the answer is good, bad or indifferent, from adult or child it draws a prize in the shape of a certificate or due bill (generally from $65.00 to $100.00) to apply on the purchase of a new Piano. Of course the price of the Piano is fixed accordingly and the purchaser pays a high price even after the amount of certificate is deducted, usually a much higher price than an instrument of similar quality could be secured for in any legitimate music store.

To test the value of one of these certificates present it in payment for something other than a new piano—say a low priced used piano, music cabinet or a bench, and see how quickly the dealer will turn you down. He will not even give you 50 cents worth of music for it. Try the experiment!

AT $185.00 WE WILL SELL A BETTER PIANO THAN THE SCHEME HOUSES ASK $325.00 TO $400.00 FOR! Such well known and high grade makes as Haines Bros., Brewster, the Genuine Mathushek and others too numerous to mention.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Albert S. Dunham, a prominent Millville contractor, narrowly escaped death under a falling derrick, which grazed his head, Thursday.

The ninety-fourth annual convention of the Cumberland Bible Society will be held in historic Greenwich Thursday, October 28. There will be afternoon and evening sessions.

A Cumberland jury awarded William Nessen, of Millville, $1,200 damages for injuries to his arm, sustained in a collision on the Atlantic City and Shore Railroad last summer.

At the request of the glassworkers and glass companies, the Millville Hallowe'en celebration has been fixed for Saturday night, October 30, the original date having been Monday, November 1.

The tug Clara, with a scow, while passing through the draw of the bridge on the county line, between Salem and Gloucester, tore away considerable of the guard piling, and suit is to be brought against the captain for damages.

The Standard Amusement Company of Bridgeton was awarded a verdict in the Cumberland County Court Thursday against Ira S. Champion, of Ocean City, for damages alleged to have been done by ejectment from the Ocean City pier.

Following a conference Thursday between Prosecutor William J. Crossley and Detective Clancy regarding the case of Peter Stahl, of Cranbury, who was found drowned in the canal at Trenton last Tuesday, it was decided that the death had been entirely accidental.

Camden Lodge of Elks Thursday awarded to George Bachman the contract for the erection of a $25,000 addition to its home, Broadway and Federal streets. The addition will be in the rear, and will be a four-story brick structure, 40x120 feet. The operation calls for the demolition of part of the present building.

For over an hour Thursday night Dr. John Dyneley Prince, Speaker of the Assembly and Republican candidate for State Senator in Passaic County, entertained a large audience in the parish-house of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Paterson, with a talk on "Turkey." The talk was illustrated with stereopticon views of sights and scenes from photographs taken by Dr. Prince in that country.

From reports of committees submitted to the parade committee of Business Improvement Association, the industrial demonstration to be made in Camden on November 10 will be a monster affair. Every manufacturer called on has promised to have one or more floats in line. Business men and merchants by the score are also planning to display their offerings by float, and the celebration promises to eclipse any previous event of a like nature.

Paul Hessinger and John Dalton were convicted in Camden Criminal Court late Thursday afternoon on a charge of conspiring with Samuel Koplan to defraud Edward Schuster, a provisioner. Koplan, who was a clerk at the store, pleaded guilty to the charge, and was used by the State as a witness against the other two. Schuster told the court that by the scheme worked by the trio he lost upward of $2,000. Sentence will not be imposed until Harry Griffee, jointly indicted with the other three, has been tried. He has pleaded guilty to a charge of receiving stolen goods, but denies being a party to a conspiracy, and the court granted his request for a separate trial.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

McIntyre and Heath, in the John J. McNally musical comedy, "In Hayti," with music by Jerome and Schwartz, will open their road tour in Philadelphia, October 18. Julian Rose, Marion Stanley and Carrie Reynolds are in the supporting company, which numbers one hundred.

Laura Nelson Hall and Charles Stevenson will be in the cast of "Through a Window," which Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks will present next month. Mary Bertrand, a player unknown in the East who has achieved distinction on the Pacific Coast, has been engaged for one of the leading roles.

Miss Fannie Ward will begin her tour this season in a new play by Forrest Halsey and Lee Arthur, entitled "Van Allen's Wife," in Rochester, N. Y., in November. The company is now in rehearsal. Prominent in the cast are H. Reeves-Smith, John Dean, Henry Duggan, J. McKean, V. Benoit, Errol Dunbar, Margaret Fuller and Janet Slater.

Harry Lauder has entered upon his second triumphal week at the Plaza Music Hall, where he has eclipsed the tremendous success which he encountered on his previous visits to America. Capacity audiences have attended each performance, on more than one occasion the overflow being accommodated on the stage. Mr. Lauder has brought some new songs over with him, the melodious tunes of which will soon be whistled throughout the city, but the old favorites such as "She's Ma Daisy" and "The Wedding of Sandy McNab" were enthusiastically received, and Lauder was compelled to respond to numerous encores. J. W. Winton, the English ventriloquist, makes his first American appearance under the Morris management, and he will doubtless uphold the enviable reputation he has won in Europe and Australia.

The acting of Margaret Anglin, remarkable for its intensity, in her new play, "The Awakening of Helena Richie," now playing to full houses at the Savoy theatre, New York, has not only made its impression upon the theatre-going public but has appealed, also, to the most notable emotional actresses in this country. Olga Nethersole, Mrs. Fiske, Virginia Harned and Mme. Nazimova, each in turn have shown their professional appreciation, by attending a performance, afterward calling upon Miss Anglin in her dressing room, to congratulate her upon her achievement. Applause from the public is always an inspiration but applause bestowed by brother professionals, is a mark of appreciation every actor or actress values highly.

Mr. Ericsons Old House.
Go see it, it's a beauty. It stands out among all its neighbors, because the coloring is so bright and clear. Mr. Ericson painted with L. & M. Paint and says it costs 1-3 less than ever before. He bought only 12 gallons of L. & M. Paint and 9 gallons of Linseed Oil to mix with it. This made 2- gallons of pure paint, and cost only $1.20 per gallon. It's as handsome as the finest in town. The L. & M. is sold by Woolston & Buckle, Plainfield; H. C. Meyer, Scotch Plains; Edw. Pennock, Dunellen.

Yvette Guilbert, the well-known Parisian chanteuse, will remain for a second week at the Colonial presenting her repertoire of English and French songs in her own inimitable way. Her program will be changed for the forthcoming week. Eddie Leonard, late star of his own minstrel company, will be on hand offering his specialty in which he will be assisted by Mabel Russell and the Field Bros. Bozeman Bulger's comedy skit, "Swat Milligan," an amusing baseball burlesque, will provide a treat for fans, and E. F. Hawley & Co. will be seen in a strong one act dramatic playlet entitled "The Bandit," and the balance of the bill includes: Raymond & Caverly, the funny German comedians; The Great Golden Troupe of Russian singers and dancers; The Italian Trio in operatic selections, and The Three Bannons, expert club manipulators. On Sunday concerts will be given as usual.

RETAIL LIQUOR DEALERS END MEET WITH BANQUET.

Trenton, Oct. 16.—The annual convention of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association came to a close Thursday night with a banquet. In the election of officers Thursday, these were chosen for the ensuing year:

Thomas C. Hayes, of Newark, president; Henry Deaver, of Newark; John Weickert, of Hackensack, and David Abrams, of Orange, vice-presidents; G. T. Carroll, of Elizabeth, recording secretary; Albert Kast, of West Hoboken, financial secretary; Charles C. Engel, of this city, treasurer; Peter Klink, of North Bergen, sergeant-at-arms, and Charles Hess, also of West Hoboken, outside guard. George T. Carroll, of Elizabeth; James J. McManus, of Newark, and Rurman Bissett, of South River, were named as delegates to the national convention, which will be held in Washington, D. C., the third Tuesday in January. The place of the next meeting of the organization was left to the decision of the executive committee.

Representative Hugh Michael, of Newark, introduced a resolution Thursday that was adopted, which asks the co-operation of organized labor and indorses the Bartenders' Union, the Waiters' Union, Cigarmakers, Bottlers, Brewers, and other trades' organizations contingent with the liquor business. The resolution also advocated the employment of union labor.

W. J. Gardner, of Paterson, was sponsor for a resolution that opposed the "bishops' bill" and asked for fair legislation at the next session of the Legislature. This resolution passed with a rush the moment Mr. Gardner finished speaking in favor of its adoption.

The Legislative Committee, comprising William C. Jaques, Charles C. Engel, August Bierbach and Hugh Michael, presented a carefully prepared report, the text of which was that the legislators at the past session had enacted very little legislation favorable to the liquor interests.

A communication was received from the Hotel and Inn and Tavern Keepers' Association, and one from the Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association of New Jersey, indorsing the plan of a more aggressive campaign. A resolution was adopted which favors the establishment of a benefit fund. The matter was the subject of some debate, and was referred to the executive committee.

P. H. Dolan, president of the New York Brewery, and former national president of the Liquor Dealers' Association, spoke in favor of respectable establishments for the sale of intoxicants. Mr. Dolan emphasized the statement that the liquor dealers favored respectable places for the sale of liquor.

PARTY ENDS IN SHOOTING.

Walker Objected to Wife Going There Without Him.

Passaic, Oct. 16.—William Waller, a negro, of Francis street, East Rutherford, went to a party, where his wife was a guest, at the home of George Harris, of Union avenue, East Rutherford, fought with Mr. and Mrs. Harris early yesterday morning and fired a revolver shot at Mrs. Waller. The bullet went through the leg of Mary Clark. Waller escaped. He objected to his wife being at the party when he was not invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Waldron and Arthur Waldron, of this city, have returned from a visit at North Branch.

"Oh, no; don't bother. I'll wait till they get through. I was just going to see them on a little business about the Rhinestrom gun. And that reminds me. Give me Mr. Rhinestrom's address, won't you? I have to drop him a letter."

"Rhinestrom's address?" she asked curiously.

The man nodded.

"Sure. Rhinestrom, the inventor of the gun they're making here. Can't you give me his address? If you don't remember it look at the last letter you sent him."

"Why, I've never sent him any letters," Mazie returned curiously. "If you want his address, why don't you get it from Mr. Pinckney?"

Bradley smiled.

"That's a good idea," he said. "I'll just do that. You take all Mr. Pinckney's dictation, don't you?"

The girl had begun to wonder at the questioning. Bradley looked well and was pleasant. But what did he want?

"Yes, I take Mr. Pinckney's dictation," she agreed cautiously.

"And he's never written to Rhinestrom?" demanded Bradley, with sudden sternness.

For a moment the girl flared up.

"Say, who are you anyhow? What do you want? Are you trying to pump me?"

Her questioner smiled blandly.

"Oh, please don't suggest such a thing," he said. "I'm going in the works now to see a man named O'Leary. When Mr. Durant comes tell him that Mr. Bradley of the secret service is in the works, then send for me. Goodby. Much obliged for what you had to tell me."

Mazie O'Brien leaned back in her chair, looking after Bradley with a curious expression on her face.

"Well, what do you think of that?" she said to herself at last in astonishment. "Him a detective! Well, he's a pretty good looking fellow—for a detective. I wonder what's up. I remember he was around here a month ago."

Ten minutes later the detective was back in the office in time to meet Frances entering with Lieutenant Sommers.

"I'm glad you're here, Miss Durant," he declared earnestly. "Would you mind if I ask you some questions on investigation?"

The girl smiled at the idea.

"Will I mind?" she exclaimed. "You know I'll do anything in the world I can to clear Mr. Sommers of any blame. Have you found out anything so far?"

Bradley shook his head.

"I've got no positive proof, but I think I shall have before this investigation is over."

"And Mr. Sommers will be cleared when he goes before the court of inquiry at Washington?" persisted the girl.

Bradley bowed.

"I certainly hope so, Miss Durant. You know how much I owe to Mr. Sommers and to you. I feel sure he is innocent of any neglect or wrongdoing, and you can depend on me to work my head off to clear him. Everything will depend, however, on what I can get from Marsh."

Frances looked surprised.

"I can't think Marsh is guilty," she admitted anxiously. "He's been in the works for years, and nothing's ever been said against him."

Bradley nodded.

"I know all that, Miss Durant. But may I tell you a secret? I believe Marsh is the inventor of the Rhinestrom gun, and if I can prove that the rest is easy."

"And if you can't?" the girl asked fearfully.

Bradley smiled with confidence.

"I never let myself look on that side," he said. "Now I must leave you. I'll be back in a few minutes."

When the door had closed on Bradley the girl turned impulsively to Sommers at her side.

"What will you do if you find they are against you?" she asked bluntly.

The man looked at her seriously.

"There is nothing that I can do then, Frances. I'll be dishonored, a disgraced man."

"You mean," she persisted, "if this investigation discloses nothing and the court of inquiry at Washington finds against you that you will not come back to me?"

An expression of pain crossed Sommers' face, but his answer came out straight:

"How could I come back to you, dear? A cashiered naval officer, disgraced for life, couldn't come to you. I couldn't ask that sacrifice of you."

Impulsively the girl had laid her hand on his arm.

"Then listen, dearest," she said softly, but with determination that would not be denied. "If the Washington authorities place the blame of the accident upon you, if you are dishonored and disgraced, you need not come back to me." She paused a moment, then added softly, raising her eyes to him, "You need not come back to me, for I will come to you."

"You need not come back to me, for I will come to you."

CHAPTER XVI.

GETTING AT THE TRUTH.

THE inquiry at the Durant works to establish responsibility for the failure of the Sommers gun was simply organized. Mr. Durant put the entire matter in the hands of Bradley, giving him authority to question everybody connected with the work and if possible to bring out the entire truth. Besides Bradley and Mr. Durant, Pinckney, Sommers, Frances and the stenographer, Mazie O'Brien, were the only ones allowed at the examination.

"I want you to understand, Mr. Bradley," declared the steel man before they began, "that I and my plant are entirely at your service. I am as anxious as you to find just where the blame lies, and if any men in my employ are responsible I can assure you they will be punished."

Bradley bowed.

"I am convinced of your sincerity, sir," he said, "and I shall take full advantage of your offer."

"Whom do you wish to question first?" asked Durant.

"Marsh," replied the secret service man promptly.

The owner of the plant immediately sent a boy to call the head draughtsman.

"And after Marsh?" he suggested. "We might as well have the names of all the witnesses, so we can call them quickly."

Bradley smiled.

"The second witness will also be Marsh."

"And the third?" suggested the puzzled steel man.

"Marsh again," came the grim reply.

Mr. Durant looked up surprised, a little startled.

"You have settled on Marsh, then, as the guilty man?"

Bradley shook his head.

"Oh, by no means, Mr. Durant. I am merely getting at the truth."

Pinckney had been sitting grimly, his brows drawn down, listening to the talk of Durant and the secret service man. Now he broke in with some impatience:

"I don't think this is treating Marsh fair, Mr. Durant. This detective's attitude is apt to prejudice you against a capable and proved faithful workman."

Mr. Durant turned on Pinckney, surprised.

"I don't think, Edward," he said, "that I am apt to be prejudiced against a good workman merely because he's asked a few questions. Mr. Bradley may want to ask you some questions, but I don't think that can prejudice me against you."

Before Pinckney could reply Marsh entered. He was in his shirt sleeves, having just come from his desk, and he stood beside the door, looking about the room furtively, suspiciously, fearfully. Mr. Durant smiled in friendly fashion, for Marsh had worked many years at the plant, and he liked him immensely.

"Marsh," began the steel man, "this is Mr. Bradley of the United States secret service. He wants to ask you some questions about forging the Sommers gun. I want you to tell him everything you know in connection with that affair."

"Yes, sir," replied the head draughtsman, but his tone was so weak that Pinckney, fearful of his fellow conspirator's strength and courage, broke in almost angrily:

"Marsh was not in charge of that job, and consequently he"— Bradley turned quickly. His smile was just as bland, but in his voice there was a steely touch that showed that he would not brook interference.

"Marsh was not in charge of that job."

"I'll do the talking, if you please, Mr. Pinckney."

"But, I tell you, he had nothing to do with it," insisted the general manager angrily.

Bradley turned to Mr. Durant.

"I understood that I was to have full swing here, Mr. Durant?"

The owner of the works nodded.

"Now, Marsh, who was in charge of that job?"

"Smith," replied the witness.

"Was he drunk?"

Marsh hesitated, looking weakly from Sommers to Pinckney.

"Yes, sir, he was," came the admission at last frankly.

Bradley's smile did not change as he asked his next question in the same pleasant tone.

"Why, then, was he allowed to be in charge?"

"Well, we were all there to keep watch of him," he faltered at last.

The questioner looked puzzled.

"Whom do you mean by we?" he asked.

"Mr. Pinckney and me and"— The witness faltered, and Pinckney ended for him sharply:

"And Mr. Sommers."

"Yes, and Mr. Sommers," agreed Marsh eagerly.

The smile had left Bradley's face when he turned coldly to Pinckney.

"I am not questioning you, Mr. Pinckney. I may question you shortly, and I hope when I do you'll be as eager to answer. Then he turned back to the rattled witness. "Was Smith discharged?"

"I—I think so," faltered the head draughtsman. "He was drunk, and he was discharged, because Mr. Durant never allows that."

"When was he discharged?"

"I don't remember exactly."

"But he's working in Meadville in your new plant now, isn't he?" came the next sharp question that brought a startled surprise to Mr. Durant, because one of the cardinal rules of the Durant works was never to take back a man discharged for inefficiency or drunkenness.

The steel man turned in his chair to look sharply at Pinckney, for Pinckney was also acting manager of the Meadville plant. The question had thrown Pinckney into a secret panic, while Marsh was openly flustered. If this detective had found Smith carefully hidden away under an assumed name in the Meadville plant, what might he not know?

"I—I heard he was in Meadville," faltered the conspirator under fire.

He looked appealingly at Pinckney, but Bradley, the imperturbable, gave him no rest.

"What time of day did that gun go into the furnace, Mr. Marsh?"

Again Marsh looked hopelessly for the help that could not be given.

"I don't know, sir," he said at last.

Bradley lifted his eyebrows, surprised.

"But you told Lieutenant Sommers it was going in at 6 o'clock," he said sternly. "Didn't you tell him that?"

The witness was in a panic now. He did not know which way to turn.

Mr. Durant was looking at him sharply. The shrewd steel man was beginning to realize that there was something back of all this, something discreditable, and he sat there, his face getting grimmer and grimmer and his jaws setting harder with each sharp question and faltering reply—sat there sternly waiting to administer justice so soon as guilt could be proved.

"I think I did," admitted Marsh at last.

"But you don't know?" persisted Bradley.

"Not for sure," the witness faltered.

The detective said nothing to that, but his smile spoke volumes. Pinckney saw it and moved uneasily. Marsh caught it, and a cold chill began to race up and down his spine. But apparently Bradley was satisfied along that line, for the next question branched to another side.

"If the gun had gone in the furnace at 6, when was it to come out, Marsh?"

"About 2."

"And it came out at a quarter past 12, so it must have gone in between 3 and 4, mustn't it?"

"Yes, sir, I suppose; I believe it must sir," faltered the witness painfully.

The next question was put like a shot.

"Did you ever invent a gun?"

Marsh's mouth dropped open. His face became chalky. His eyes rolled about the room piteously, seeking for aid, but none was there. He saw only the grim, stern face of Mr. Durant, the hard eyes of Pinckney, with a terrible contempt and fear in back of them; the eager, determined look of Sommers, the anxious fearfulness of Frances, and, lastly, the cold, calm, deadly smiling man who questioned him. With a gasp and gulp he managed to collect himself.

"No, sir," he said firmly.

"What? You mean to tell me you never invented a gun?" demanded Bradley sternly.

Marsh thought he caught a hint of disappointment in the tone, and it gave him courage.

But the disappointment, if there was any, was hidden promptly by the sneering smile of the secret service man as he said:

"Why, you surprise me, Mr. Marsh. Then you don't know Mr. Rhinestrom?"

"No, sir," he faltered.

Bradley merely smiled.

"You've never seen him here, Mr. Marsh?"

"No, sir," reiterated Marsh more firmly.

Bradley's next question was still hurled at the same point.

"Has he ever been at the works, Mr. Marsh?"

"THIS WOMAN AND THIS MAN."

A strong play misnamed. This was the verdict gathered from a number who attended the performance at the Plainfield theatre last night. There were those who went so far as to call it the best production seen in this popular playhouse in many a day.

The plot is one which has long held a prominent part in plays since the first play was written, but it is treated so differently and with such a finesse that one wonders why any objection can be found with the subject-passion. It is quite unnecessary to repeat the story of a faithless lover and the consequences of a mutual sin, but it seems only proper to say that from the very moment the plot developes interest is maintained ever increasingly until the climax is reached in the third and final act.

Miss Victorson is a consummate actress, in fact the whole cast is an admirable one and should play to crowded houses.

SHE WILL PRESENT "FLOWERLAND" HERE

The women suffragists of the country are getting ready to sing their new national air, which is called the "Battle Hymn of the Mothers" and was composed by Miss Bertie K. Shipley, of Athens, Tenn., who is now in this city preparing the presentation of "Flowerland," a tableaux in which one hundred children will take part, at Hope chapel on the evening of Friday, October 22, and Saturday, October 23.

Miss Shipley is an ardent suffragist and is well known in New York suffrage circles. Her song will be rendered publicly for the first time at the Suffrage State convention to be held at Troy beginning October 20. The words of the anthem, which are sung to the air of "John Brown's Body," are as follows:

Battle Hymn of the Mothers.

Our eyes shall see "the glory of the coming of the Lord"
When woman is exalted and to her place restored,
And her hand shall cast the ballot that is stronger than the sword,
As the hosts are marching on.
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah!
The mothers marching on.
When the father and the mother shall stand equal in the right
And the little children follow in the pathway of this light,
Then Peace shall wave her banner and banish all the night,
As God shall lead them on,
Glory! Glory! Hallelujah, &c

"Flowerland," the tableaux which Miss Shipley is rehearsing with the one hundred young attendants of Hope chapel, will be given under the auspices of the Sunday-school of the chapel and for the benefit of the Christmas fund.

The young players in the piece will be garbed as fairies of the dawn, fairies of the noon, night-roses, chrysanthemums, morning glories, daisies, pinks, rose buds, nymphs, naiads, pickanninny sun-flowers, tea roses, Greek garland girls, dewdrops and Cupids. The tableaux will be divided into the following scenes: Queen of the Roses, Fall of Babylon, Death of Virginia, and Hope and Memory.

After the production of "Flowerland," Miss Shipley, in a costume that is said to be an accurate copy of the garb of Daniel Boone, whose descendant she is, will tell stories about the mountaineers of Tennessee.

CIVIC SPEAKER BUREAU FORMED IN NEW JERSEY.

A civic lecture bureau to supply speakers for civic meetings throughout the State has been arranged by the New Jersey State Civic Federation. The lecturers, many of whom are distinguished, have prepared lectures on the following subjects: "Practical Citizenship," "Equal Taxation," "Public Utilities," "Special Privileges," "The Practical Remedy," "Direct Primary," "Initiative and Referendum," "Massachusetts Ballot," "Municipal Ownership," "The Land Question," "The Answer to Socialism."

In announcing this lecture bureau plans at yesterday's meeting at Newark, Adolph Roeder, president of the federation, said that the speakers would make no charges except for car fare. He said in part:

"I have continued the regular propaganda work which falls to my share, delivering somewhere near sixty talks through the season on civic subjects before as many civic bodies, church congregations and schools, and in territory covering almost the entire State.

"Two agencies have been added to this form of activity during the year, one the People's Lecture Bureau, under the auspices of the Federation of which I have the honor to be president. This body of lecturers has been quite active through the year."

Court Takes Pity on Forker's Wife and Babies.

Trenton, Oct. 16.—Horace N. Forker, the Trenton man who eloped three weeks ago with Helen A. Felter, his wife's cousin and a pupil in the High School, was yesterday arraigned before Judge Gnichtel for sentence. He was told that his offenses warranted a prison term, but in view of the fact that his wife and two babies needed his support and his wife had begged that he be shown mercy he was placed on the probation list.

He was warned to keep away from the Felter girl, who is also on probation, or he would be called back to court and given a prison term.

Holds Ridgewood Real Estate Man Blameless for Girl's Death.

The suit of Thomas J. Smith to recover $10,000 from Arthur W. Barnard, a real estate operator of Ridgewood, for the death of his daughter, Bridget L. Smith, which was heard by Judge Demarest in the Circuit Court at Hackensack yesterday, was non-suited.

The young woman was fatally hurt when the defendant's auto struck the rear of her carriage, throwing her out. The accident was not due to any carelessness on the part of the defendant, the court ruled.

BURGLARS GET ALL SILVER IN SIGHT.

Mrs. Stephen Whitney's House at Morris Plains Robbed of About $3,000 Worth.

Mrs. Stephen Whitney's home, "Fairlawn," in Morris Plains, was robbed Thursday night or early yesterday morning, and $3,000 worth of silverware taken. The robbers forced open a library window on the north side of the house and then went into the dining-room, where they gathered up everything in the nature of silver they could find. The Whitney's tablecloth was used to cart the silver away.

No one in the house heard any unusual noise during the night, and not until yesterday when servants went to the dining-room was the robbery discovered. There were 150 pieces of silverware taken, and most of it was marked "J. T. W." Pinkerton detectives were sent for yesterday and with County Detective Brennan are working on the case. There is no clue.

The theory of the detectives is that the goods were carted away in an automobile, as one was seen along the roadway late Thursday night.

DROWNED IN D. & R. CANAL

Isaac Kershaw Loses Life Trying to Save Others—Was Expert Swimmer.

RUSSELL'S CANOE CAPSIZED.

Three Others Narrowly Escape Drowning in Cold Waters Near Bound Brook.

A drowning accident occurred Saturday afternoon in which one man lost his life and another was only resuscitated after strenuous work of the doctors and efforts of the rescuers. The drowned man was Isaac Kershaw, of South Bound Brook and the other was Todd Russell, a guest of the Berkeley hotel at Bound Brook.

Russell, who recently purchased a new canoe, was trying out the little craft in a sail to the Basin. A puff of wind upset the canoe throwing Russell into the cold waters of the Delaware and Raritan canal. John Koeschlein, a big man, six feet five inches in his stockings, who was fishing on the bank of the canal, dropped his lines and swam out to Russell, where he was struggling in the water and endeavored to assist him to right the frail craft. This he was unable to do owing to the struggles of Russell and the interfering sail and ropes.

Becoming almost exhausted both men set up shouts for assistance. Their cries were heard by Kershaw and another, William Morris, who hastened to the rescue. Kershaw, a strong swimmer managed to get to the now exhausted men, but becoming entangled in the rigging was unable to render much assistance. Morris in the meantime had tied a rope around his waist and after making it fast on the bank attempted to reach the other three in the water. The rope was too short, but Russell and Koeschlein had managed to push the canoe a little nearer the shore and with the assistance of Morris managed to reach shallow water.

There Russell was found to be nearly dead and he was rolled over Koeschlein's big bulk and afterwards treated by doctors at the hotel.

Kershaw was found drowned under the sail and entangled in the ropes of the small sails from which he had been unable to extricate himself. Every known device was brought into play to revive the man who had sacrificed his own life to save the others, but he did not respond to treatment and it was given up after two hours of hard work. Russell is recovering, but is still suffering from exposure and cold, while Koeschlein and Morris seem to have had no ill results from their cold bath. The accident occurred about 4:30 in the afternoon.

REV. MR. FINN PREACHES HIS FAREWELL SERMON

Rev. A. E. Finn preached his farewell sermon as pastor at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday morning, taking for his topic "Limitations Removed." During the course of his remarks, Mr. Finn briefly reviewed his work and that of the church during his pastorate and commended the members to the care and keeping of God. While he deeply regretted the severance of relationship, he said that he believed it to be God's will that he leave Plainfield, and he said that he would ever remember the church in his prayers.

Mr. and Mrs. Finn will leave here Wednesday morning for Rochester, Pa., where he will at once take up his duties as pastor of the First Baptist church. As yet no arrangements have been made for a successor to Mr. Finn. HE TELLS OF CHINA'S ANCIENT GREATNESS

Theodore G. Davis, field secretary of the George Junior Republic, delivered an illustrated lecture on China and the Chinese at the Seventh Day Baptist church last night. Mr. Davis was born in Shanghai, China, the son of missionaries, and lived there until his sixteenth year.

"It is a wonderful country," he said, "in that it has made so little progress through it is the oldest nation in the world. Away back in the days of Emperor Wu mines were opened, and the Chinese used gold and silver in trade. In 1100 B. C. their mints started issuing coins.

"From 600 to 300 B. C. was China's great literary period. The Great Wall stretching 1,500 miles across the northern border was built 214 years before the Christian Era. Another great engineering feat, the Grand Canal, running 1,000 miles from north to south, was completed in 1280 A. D.

"The Buddists of China have no idea of what a Supreme God means. There is no word in the Chinese religion meaning God in the complete sense that ours does. One of the greatest difficulties of missionaries is to give the Chinese a true idea of the all-powerful, all-wise God. Confusionism, the second great creed of the Chinese, is the faith of the literati. All who would become scholars in China worship according to the teachings of Confucius. The third great Chinese religion, Taoism, was founded by the philosopher Laoutse. Its object is to attain immorality through contemplation of gods, to insure perfect tranquility of the soul by renouncing riches and honor. But it has been corrupted like all such religions.

"The blame for opium smoking, the great curse of China, lies at the door of a Christian nation—England. The terrible drug was introduced into China by British merchants. The Chinese government saw that opium meant ruin to the Chinese people and they prohibited its importation. But England did not want to lose her great opium revenue and forced the drug back upon the blighted land. Today it is forbidden to be sold."

DUNELLEN MARSHAL EXCEEDED AUTHORITY

A situation which stirred up the whole Dunellen police force which consists of the newly appointed marshal, James Benson, occurred in that borough Friday and it is probable that in the future when a contractor goes there to dig a cellar his work will not be interfered with.

Alexander Kane has the contract for digging the cellar under the Margentino building on North avenue and sent down his men to perform the work. They were interrupted and sent back to this city and were told to inform Aleck that the work could not proceed until he had taken out a license. As this did not seem to be in accordance with any other previous experience of Aleck's he immediately conceived the notion of making a personal investigation as to his rights.

Arrived at Dunellen he was threatened with arrest if the license was not at once procured. With his usual impetuosity, Aleck told the officers (there were two Dunellen councilmen there) to arrest him, but upon advice of Councilman Gise it was decided to ask Walter Hetfield, Jr., counsel for the borough, how about it. Mr. Hetfield's reply evidently broke up the meeting for Aleck has been able to pursue his excavating way unmolested.

TRIBUTE AS PATRIOT TO EX-CONFEDERATE

Captain Otis A. Glazebrook, of Elizabeth, chaplain of the Second Regiment, New Jersey National Guard, has been retired from active service by an executive order of Governor Fort, the captain having reached the age of 64 years. He is retired under the Vredenbergh act, and should that act be declared unconstitutional in the Court of Errors and Appeals, something which is rather expected, he will be on active duty again.

Notwithstanding that Captain Glazebrook fought in the Confederate army and was on the staff of General Stonewall Jackson when that Southern general was killed, Governor Fort takes occasion to say in the order of retirement: "His patriotism and love of country are unquestioned." This shows that the Governor considers the Civil War as over, and that the great peace which has reunited the country is not regarded as a myth.

During the Spanish-American war Captain Glazebrook served as chaplain of the old Third Regiment of this State. He is rector of Christ church, Elizabeth.

HORATIO S. BILYEU DEAD

Heart Disease Claimed Him as Victim at Stamford, Conn., Last Friday.

WAS A TRAVELING PRINTER.

Well Known in North Plainfield and Washington Valley—Bible Records Prove Identity.

Horatio S. Bilyeu, a former resident of Washington Valley, and who was well known throughout the printing trade of the county, died suddenly of heart disease at Stamford, Conn., last Friday, while in the act of drinking a glass of water in the home of a friend. Bilyeu was well known here and in North Plainfield, where his family resided for many years.

Bilyeu was about sixty-nine years old and had traveled the country over taking positions as a printer wherever obtainable and always enjoying the friendship of the members of Typothetae, being a member of the typographical union. His identity was established through the finding of his family record in the leaves of a Bible found in a pocket of the coat he wore when he died. These records included the marriage of his parents and the deaths of the other members of the family as well as his parents.

Bilyeu was the son of Levi Bilyeu, of Washington Valley, and lived for a time with his cousin Jerry on Chatham street, North Plainfield. The latter has been dead for fifteen years. He visited Truman Bilyeu, a cousin, who lives in the borough, last spring. This is believed to be the last time he was in this neighborhood.

Besides the leaves of the Bible and his membership card in the union nothing was found on the body and only thirty-five cents in money was in the dead man's pockets. He will be buried by the typographical union of Yonkers.

WATCHUNG HUNT CLUB'S FOURTEEN MILES' RUN.

The weekly chase of the members of the Watchung Hunt club, Saturday afternoon, was one of the best of the season. The hunt extended over a territory of about fourteen miles, starting at the water tower on North avenue and continuing through Scotch Plains, along the mountain, through the valley, to a point near Baltusrol, through Springfield and returning to Scotch Plains and the place of starting. The going was pretty stiff.

There were two spills, Miss Mildred Harrison, of Montclair, and Ruppert Anderson, of this city, both going off in soft ground, and not sustaining serious injury. They were able to continue the chase. Those who followed the hounds were Miss Mildred Harrison, Miss Mabel B. Hooley, Ruppert Anderson, Charles W. Fisk, Charles F. Wildey, Jr., Harry A. Bourne, Richard Waring, Louis Batjer, Chris. Cumins and C. E. S. Bellows.

CAPT. "JACK SMITH" IS FORMER EAST SIDE BOY

Captain Jack Smith, champion revolver shot of the world, who with his partner will give exhibitions of his prowess at Proctor's theatre this week, has a history which is known to but few of his friends east of the Rocky Mountains.

Harry S. Sanderson, partner of Mr. Proctor and former manager of Tony Pastor's in New York city, tells the story of Captain Smith's first gallant record in a shooting contest. He was known as "Johnny" Smith on the east side of the big city and one day when shooting at targets was a pastime enjoyed by hundreds of men and boys, Smith approached Mr. Pastor with a request for a uniform with which to properly impress his companions. Mr. Pastor liking the nerve of the would-be warrior, ordered a uniform from Rogers, Peet and Co., which Mr. Sanderson bought, and donning this young Smith put it all over the youngsters in his target company.

With adventure as his main object Smith went west and grew up with the country, not forgetting to annex all the knowledge he could pick up about the handling of a revolver and throwing the rope over fractious ponies and cattle. He improved his opportunities to such an extent that today he is without a peer as a revolver shot. His exhibition is said to be a marvel of accurate shooting.

KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO, BOY IS IN THE HOSPITAL

Gaville Young, aged eight years, of Oak Tree, was struck by an automobile Saturday afternoon, between this city and Metuchen, receiving slight wounds in the forehead. The autoists stopped their car quickly, picked up the boy and took him to the hospital, where he is still under treatment. The names or addresses of those in the automobile were not obtained and the strangers left the city quickly after learning that the lad's injuries were not of a serious nature.

Just how the accident happened cannot be learned definitely, but it is understood that the boy, who was walking along the road on his way home, started to cross the road and did not hear the approaching machine until too late to escape being struck. The lad will be detained at the hospital a few days.

PRYOR'S BAND JUST ESCAPED BIG WRECK.

Chris. Sorenson, of this city, manager for Pryor's Band, as well as the members of the band, had a narrow escape from being in the wreck on the New York Central at Rhinecliffe, yesterday. The band had just closed the season at Rochester and Mr. Sorenson had practically made arrangements for the band to take the train, which was afterward wrecked. Something happened to prevent this and instead a later train was taken, arriving in New York six hours later.

Mr. Sorenson left Plainfield yesterday for Boston. Several high officials of the New York Central were on the wrecked train.

Anderson made a few remarks appropriate to the service.

Ten Nights in a Bar Room.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH UNDER WHEELS

Harry Randolph, of Jefferson avenue, Dunellen, narrowly escaped death under the wheels of a main line trolley car Saturday night about 9:30 o'clock when he attempted to board it in front of Morrison's hotel. As it was he sustained injuries to his head which will confine him to the house for some time. His head was severely gashed and he received contusions of the body and was attended to by Dr. Thomas H. Platt. He was sent to his home.

Randolph hurried down the steps of the hotel and instead of running around the rear end of the car attempted to intercept it via the front. He was knocked down and rolled by the fender just far enough to escape going under the wheels. A little over a year ago young Randolph's father Jonathan, was killed by an automobile while leaving a trolley car at Jefferson avenue. The names of the trolley crew were not obtained. The car number was given as 1922.

PASTOR TOLD OF HYMNS SUNG BY CONGREGATION

The service at the First Presbyterian church last night, was one of song, the congregation rendering several favorite hymns and the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring giving an entertaining talk about each writer. He told something of particular interest about the writer and related the circumstances under which the hymn was written. Among the hymns selected for the service were "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," "Jesus I My Cross Have Taken," "Abide With Me," "Rock of Ages," and "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

In his comment Dr. Herring said that he always regretted that the "Star Spangled Banner" had been made the National hymn, for in his opinion "My Country 'Tis of Thee," was more nearly the ideal. He thought it was not the day to have as a National hymn something which recited a victory over the British.

The speaker also said that he considered it blasphemous for a person to sing any hymn, unless it was sung from the heart and with its true meaning. He impressed upon all the importance of singing hymns from the heart. As to the hymn, "Nearer the Cross I Am Coming," Dr. Herring said that should not be sung at all, for he did not believe it to be true in the experience of any true Christian. His experience should be away from the Cross and striving for the Crown. He thought it to be a mistake for anyone to be carried away by the "swing of a song" or sentiment, without appreciating the true meaning. During the evening the quartet choir sang two anthems, one by Dudley Buck.

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO MANAGE CAFE CHANTANT.

Paris by night will be depicted at the Park Club, Tuesday evening, November 2, and the twinkling lights of a "Cafe Chantant" will lure the passerby. This novel entertainment is to be given by the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters and all who attend will enjoy the refreshments and see the sights of a typical Perisienne cafe.

As one sips his coffee and smokes his cigarette or lallies over a toothsome ice served by the prettiest of French maids, songs and dances will make this home visit to Paris all too short. The proceeds from the affair will go toward the support of the work conducted by the King's Daughters in the city and borough.

Recital at Grace P. E. Church.

A large congregation attended the special musical service at Grace Episcopal church yesterday afternoon, when organist S. Frederick Smith gave the third of his Sunday afternoon recitals. It is hardly necessary to comment on the music. It was fully up to the standard set by Mr. Smith in his first recital and was charmingly rendered. The overture in C major, Hollins, was perhaps the most popular of the compositions played and was a delightful interpretation. Mr. Smith played in place of his brother at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church in the evening.

WHAT IS PATRIOTISM?

Rev. Mr. Goodrich Answers the Question from Lessons Taught Abroad.

HIS DISCOURSE INSTRUCTIVE.

Third of His Series of Sermons on Sundays in England Deals With Beautiful Grassmere.

The people of the Congregational church was treated to another of those highly interesting descriptive lectures on Sundays in England, by the pastor, Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, last night, who spoke about his experience in Grassmere. This lecture will appear in full with the others in this paper later.

One of the things to which more than passing notice must be given was mentioned and that is the difference of the meaning of "patriotism" as understood in both England and this country, and which was the topic of the address to which Mr. Goodrich listened. Of this Mr. Goodrich said last night: "It gave one a singular feeling to listen to an address on patriotism in a foreign land where patriotism meant loyalty, not to one's own country, but to another. It did not matter much, however, England seems so much like our own country. The spirit and principle are the same which ever side of the sea you are on.

"I noticed that English people are still being exhorted with Nelson's words: 'England expects every man to do his duty.' The preacher also quoted Wordsworth's 'Happy Warrior.' There are certain characteristics for which Englishmen are known wherever they go, the world around. To study these characteristics and cultivate such of them as have served to make England honored is the part of patriotism for English people. This was the preacher's picture of English character: 'Somewhat reserved, slow of speech, when readier utterance would remove suspicion, unsentimental, but tender in the heart and reverencing the sanctities of life; loving liberty with its burdens and perils, rather than the safer state of subjection; self respecting, regardful of his own and the rights of others and always just and honorable.'

"His definition of patriotism is one to set us thinking. Is patriotism for Americans the cultivation of those traits for which Americans are best known? It may well set us asking what are the characteristics for which an American is best known the world over, wherever he is found, and are these the traits for which we would most desire to be known? What special American traits are there for which we are justly proud of our country's past and the cultivation of which we may well wish all our youth to devote themselves with loyal zeal as a matter of true patriotism? It would be a good theme for a Fourth of July oration."

The engagement of Miss Bertha Amelia Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, of Essex street, to Clarence B. La Rue, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira La Rue, of East Front street, was announced at a reception given to Miss Jones Saturday night, by Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Wharton, of West Sixth street.

The guests were unaware of the engagement and it did not become known until the guests were seated at the table, following a social time. Three souvenir place cards were found at each plate. On one was inscribed the word "betrothed," and on the other two the engagement of Miss Jones and Mr. La Rue was announced. Covers were laid for thirty and guests were present from New York, Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Stelton, Somerville, Elizabeth and this city.

WOULD FORCE EXTENSION OF TROLLEY TRACKS.

Justice Alfred Reed granted a rule Saturday requiring the Trenton, Hamilton and Ewing Traction Company and the Trenton Street Railway Company, lessee, to show cause at Trenton on November 3 why they should not be compelled to extend the Trenton Junction trolley line from its present terminus to Ewing avenue in the centre of the village.

At present the line from Trenton stops about one-quarter mile west of the Trenton Junction depot at the tracks of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, requiring a long walk into the village. The purpose of the suit is to compel the company to complete their line or forfeit their franchise in the township.

When the Trenton junction line was built, it ended at the Reading tracks because the Reading company would not permit a grade crossing. Since then negotiations have been conducted between the traction and steam railroad companies for the building of a tunnel under the Reading tracks through which the trolley line could pass. These negotiations, it is understood, were completed and nothing stands in the way of carrying the trolley tracks under the steam line.

SLAYER OF PRINCETON STUDENT LIBERATED.

With $60 in his pocket and a brand new suit of clothes, John Collins, a negro, who shot two Princeton students more than fourteen years ago, walked from State prison at Trenton, Saturday, apparently very happy. Collins was known as the prison shoemaker, and in that capacity he had been able during his term to save sufficient money to give him a new start in life, should he take advantage of his opportunity. Prior to his release, Collins had signified his intention of returning to Princeton, though it is not known where he went after leaving the institution.

The double crime of which Collins was convicted, occurred in June 8, 1895, following the Yale-Princeton baseball game, which was played on that day. Collins shot and killed Frederick P. Ohl, a son of Senator Ohl, of Pennsylvania, and seriously wounded Garret Cochran, also of Pennsylvania.

Both of the students were freshmen at the time and were well-known football players, Cochran subsequently being elected captain of the Varsity team. Collins had been drinking, and in the earlier part of the evening had had several altercations with the students. The shooting occurred in a narrow alleyway adjacent to a saloon which at that time was commonly known in Princeton as "Scuds." Ohl lived for several days after the shooting, and died in the McCosh Infirmary, which had just been opened.

Collins was tried before Chief Justice Gummere, who, as an associate justice, was then presiding in the Mercer Circuit Court.

He pleaded guilty to atrocious assault and battery on Cochran, and was convicted of the murder of Ohl, for which he received the maximum penalty of twenty years. He was given the full allowance of commutation for good behavior, making his twenty year term expire Saturday.

CANADIAN PUBLIC UTILITIES NOT STOPPED BY STRIKES.

"To the question whether the industrial disputes investigation act has been effective," says ex-President Eliot in McClure's for September, "the clear answer is that since its enactment in March, 1907, the Dominion has known no cessation in the continuous operation of any of its great agencies of communication—steam railways, telegraph and telephone lines, or other public utilities of the kind—and the national industries and the public have not suffered any inconveniences other than a few of a purely temporary and local nature through the cessation of some mining operations. This remarkable record may not be continuously maintained, but it seems quite possible that never again will the interests of the Canadian public be injured through the threatening or actual outbreak of sudden and extensive industrial conflicts, such as frequently occurred in Canada prior to the enactment of the law, and still occur, with enormous and widespread damage, in the United States.

NEW VEILS.

The fantastic veil is with us. French weavers have been influenced by the wide range of modes, and have extended the meshes of last season's designs so that original and attractive designs will veil the beauty of the fall. The weave is large, and design is afforded not by a conventional placing of chenille, as in the past, but by the arrangement of the threads. Octaginal meshes, old-fashioned crossbars, coin spots and blocks are appearing before the eyes of fair woman, and she looks more charming than ever. One veil carries out the idea of a leaf in a clever way. The mesh represents the irregularity of veins, and leaves at least one inch long are scattered over the surface in shadowy form.

Another veil worn by some ultra fashionables in Paris has but two ivy leaves on the length. One appears high up on the right cheek, while the other occurs lower down on the left side.

Large silk veils in various colors have attractive designs of hand-run fibre lace. There is generally no conventional balancing of the design, but one place is favored with much decoration. These are worn with the afternoon gowns.

Proctor's Big Bill.

Proctor's bill of vaudeville this week will be a big one. It includes many headliners. Today, tomorrow and Wednesday the numbers will comprise Nebraska Bill & Co., champion pistol shots, presenting a wild west scene and Punch Bonny, the educated horse; Bobby Mack, Irish singer and comedian; Holmes and Buchanan, singing sketch; Evans & Hall, colored comedians; and the bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be LaMonts' animal circus, trained cats and dogs; Musical Buskirks, musical act; Miller & Atwood, comedy sketch; Conroy & Smiley, Irish comedy. The films d'art will be changed daily.

Shifting the Responsibility.

A youthful versifier sought the judgment of a well-known critic.

"Sir," said the poet indignantly when the expert had advised to burn his lines, "poets are born, not made!"

"Young man," rejoined the critic, smiling, "do not try to shift the blame on to your parents!"—Philadelphia Press.

SKIRT DRAPERIES.

Skirt draperies are more wonderful than ever; on one embroidered gown a tulle drapery was carried over the shoulder, fastened to the hip by a wreath of old gold roses, from whence it hung below the knees. From here it was suddenly turned up and taken across the front of the skirt, so that it lay smooth over the opposite hip; it was draped in the same way across the back, and suddenly turned up and caught into the wreath of old gold roses.

Every conceivable tunic effect is used. One dress had a fairly long tunic at the back, which only extended to the sides, where it buttoned up with velvet buttons. The front part of the skirt had a shorter tunic disappearing under the back tunic. The front tunic had wide bands of embroidery and cordings horizontally disposed over it, while its hem was edged with a band of sable. The underskirt was arranged exceedingly full beneath the tunics.

Bodice Simplicity—The bodices are generally simple, while a remarkably versatile feature of the newest gowns is the sleeves. These are positively of all shapes and lengths, the indispensable condition being that they shall not be full below the elbow, otherwise the fullest possible license as to design is allowed. The most frequently used idea at present seems to be a very short oversleeve, sometimes set into a narrow band, baby sleeve fashion, with a long, closely fitting undersleeve.

Fur and Embroidery—Little touches of fur are to be seen on many of the frocks, and as to embroidery, very few toilets will be seen without some expensive touch of this description. On some frocks, especially those for evening wear, embroidery simply runs riot.

WOMAN AND FOOD.

It is to me an appealing thought that practically all the women one encounters know precisely what they are going to eat tonight and most of tomorrow. The burden of that knowledge would suffocate me or any man. Women are only able to support it because food in itself does not appeal to them, says Harper's Bazar. A meal to them is not a surprise or a delight or an occasion for self-gratification. It is a domestic crisis foreseen and prepared for, a coup deliberately planned, and all the satisfaction they get out of it is purely managerial.

Until a woman is able to afford a housekeeper her palate stands no chance, and she is never able to sit down to table in the proper spirit of anticipation. Food has no surprises for her any more than it has for the professional caterer. Full justice has never been done to feminine heroism—it is nothing less—in this matter.

Housekeeping is by far the most difficult of all professions, and a woman who is a good housekeeper would, if she were a man, be a Kitchener or a Carnegie. The distinctive tragedy of her situation is that while one may assume Lord Kitchener to be interested in war and Mr. Carnegie in steel women have no interest in food, which is the pivot of their household work, and only apply themselves to its problems because they are obliged to. The really efficient mistress of a home has thus a moral claim to greatness above and beyond that of any masculine achievement.

COLORED HANDKERCHIEFS.

For women who like an occasional departure from the snowy field of white handkerchiefs, Paris is giving squares in which colors appear in new form.

An entire square of plain color is new. Of course it has not the dainty charm of pure white linen, but it is valuable in adding color to one's frock or in continuing the general scheme of tones.

Then there is a white kerchief with a colored border two inches deep. This is a broader contrasting band than has appeared in other seasons. This idea is reversed by the same maker by combining a colored centre with a wide white border.

Medallions of many hues form tinted backgrounds for white monograms. Vines of colored embroidery trail around the edges of one style. Even dainty drawnwork is picked out with tinted threads.

The cry for color can certainly find satisfaction in these attractive French kerchiefs. The conservative buyer who has confined her selections to the plain white counter must have an iron will to scorn these tempting little squares.

ENDED ALL SHOW OF DIGNITY

Mr. Newlywed's Extremely Modern Form of Introduction Broke the Ice at Once.

They had been married only two weeks and were going to spend the evening with friends. They were to meet friends of their friends there. It was expected that there would necessarily be a show of dignity when the bridegroom and the bride arrived. All of the company was there and sitting around looking its sweetest. A bride always makes dignity essential.

It happened that the bridegroom was the particular friend of the host. The latter never met the bride. She was coming into an entirely new circle. It was expected that when the Newlyweds arrived that Mr. Newlywed would stammer and blush when he introduced Mrs. Newlywed as his wife. Not so for this boy. He sauntered in preceded by the dignified bride. Everybody in the parlor bristled up. But it wasn't to be a bristling affair at all. Mr. Newlywed simply swept around, caught the host by the arm and led him before the bride.

"Dave, meet the old lady," he said.

Dignity exit. Everybody laughed and got acquainted in a hurry. The good-natured introduction of the host to the bride loosened up the strings of social stress. "The old lady" found herself among friends.

LIBERALITY IN MORAL CODE.

Too Many of the Great Financiers of To-Day Are Believers in the Idea of the Brazilians.

Joseph Widener, a young Philadelphia millionaire, was entertaining a party of Anglo-Americans at luncheon at the Ritz, in London.

The day was mild and sunny, and the French windows of the beautiful restaurant stood open on the green park and Piccadilly. A limousine glided swifly past Devonshire's house, a well-known American millionaire sat in the sumptuous car, and Mr. Widener, nodding toward the man, said to his neighbor:

"That is Bonns. He made 19 millions last year."

"Is he honest?" the neighbor, an Englishman, inquired. Mr. Widener lanughed.

"Well, Lord John," he replied. "Bonns' moral code resembles that imputed to the Brazilians. It—er—is liberal. It countenances many shady things.

"In Brazil, you know, in introducing a friend to your banker, in recommending him to a business associate and so forth, you show the highest confidence in him—a confidence that can go no furher—when you say:

"'This is my friend. For all he steals I will be responsible.'"

Had to Use Long Hand.

"To take down dozens of letters in long hand is a queer experience for an expert stenographer," said the New York young man with a pencil and note book. "But that was what I did when I held a hospital position. The letters were written for the charity patients. My work was supposed to be confined to the superintendent's office, but when a man too ill to write his own letters expressed a wish for an amanuensis I was put on the job owing to my facility for picking up and transcribing languages. Almost a third of the letters I wrote in the wards were taken down in long hand. Many of the patients of Polish and Russian birth had a dread of shorthand. As soon as they saw I was dealing in mysterious dots and dashes they got scared. They felt sure that I could not report them properly by means of signs and they began to fidget, so in order to pacify them I wrote out the message in long hand right under their eyes."

Rats Killed the Snake.

Two big gray rats fought a battle with a rattlesnake the other day and the rats won. The snake was purchased by a grocery firm in Dalton, Ga., for a window display and two big rats were obtained as food for the snake. When the rats were placed in the cage with the snake it made no effort to molest them. A crowd gathered to witness the snake eat the rats, but it was over an hour before the rattler moved to attack. The rats showed fight from the start. While the snake was after one the other would be plunging its teeth into the snake's body. After an hour the snake succumbed. One rat was nearly dead, while the other apparently was unharmed. As a tribute to its valor, the unhurt rat was released. The rattler measured seven feet in length.

Shows Value of Advertising.

Some idea of the enormous sums spent annually for advertising purposes along Broadway may be gained from the statement that a certain firm has offered $40,000 a year for the exclusive use of a tall illuminated tower overlooking Times Square. This is by no means a record figure, however, in a district where blank wall space capable of bearing an ordinary painted sign rents for $100 a month or more.

Had a Fellow Feeling.

A little boy had lived for some time with a very penurious uncle, who was one day walking out with the child at his side, when a friend accosted him, accompanied by a greyhound. The little fellow, never having seen a dog of so slim and slight a texture, clasped the creature round the neck, with the impasioned cry:

"Oh, doggie, doggie, and did ye live wi' your uncle too, that ye are so thin?"

David Belasco, author and producer of "The Girl of the Golden West," which he presents at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, October 21.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A great gathering of young Dunellenites marked the Christian Endeavor rally at the Presbyterian church last night. Lewis T. Churchill, president of the society, spoke of its growth and prospects for the future. Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the church, also addressed the rally. Several of those present had attended the recent Christian Endeavor convention at Plainfield and exchanged "echoes" and reminiscences of that memorable event. The society is much stronger here this season than last. The heads say they are not through gaing yet. Miss Emma Voorhees continued her interesting "Pilgrim's Progress" series at the rally. Last night's topic was "Doubting Castle." This series is simplicity itself and appealed to the young as forcefully as to the older persons present.

"A Song of Salvation" was the theme of Rev. W. A. Knox at the M. E. church yesterday morning. In the evening Pastor Knox spoke on "How to Win and Hold Men in the Church." The topic was of especial interest to Christian workers and it contained hints of wide value. Mr. Knox spoke from his own experiences, and said that once a man was won to a church if that church and its works was made attractive to him, he would stand by it.

The Epworth League meeting yesterday at the Methodist church was one of the best attended of the season. An enthusiasm was perceptible that was most praiseworthy. Miss Helen Shinley was leader. Her subject was "The Growth of Seed Truth," and it was handled well.

Myron Marks has just returned to these parts after a sojourn in California. While there he met several New Market people. For the present Mr. Marks will reside in Plainfield.

Several iron workers at the Levering & Garrigues plant have left that employment and gone to Roanoke, Virginia, where there is a great demand for men in the iron trades.

President Alvah Gray, of the First National Bank, who has been confined to his home with an attack of eczema, hopes to be back at his desk within a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cornwell, of Plainfield, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Tinsman.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Barnes, of Rahway, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. B. Pyatt.

TABLET GONE; SONS OF REVOLUTION WARNED.

The committee of the New Jersey Society, Sons of the Revolution, has been notified to replace a tablet taken from the Red Bank battle monument, otherwise, it has been asserted, warrants will be issued, and the unveiling ceremonies set for October 23, when four other tablets just placed on the monument by the society, are scheduled to be dedicated, will not take place. There is much indignation over the removing of the monument and the names of the members of the commission who had charge of the erection of the shaft and its dedication in June, 1906.

Those interested declined to throw and further light on the subject.

The tablet was removed last Monday. The monument and grounds belong to Gloucester county and the removal of the tablet was without permission. At the next meeting of the Board of Freeholders the matter of removing the tablet will be discussed.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

An underlined attraction at the local theatre is Lillian Russell in her newest production, "The Widow's Might," a comedy of Wall Street by Edmund Day. Miss Russell will be here for one night on Saturday, October 30. Her annual road tour begins in Washington this season as she comes here from New York after a run of two months at the Liberty Theatre, where the new comedy was voted a happy vehicle for the use of this well-known star.

"The Girl of the Golden West," from the pen of David Belasco, America's foremost playwright, and presented by his own company, will be the offering at the Plainfield theatre Thursday night. It is a beautiful production and one of exceptional dramatic intensity, and while it provides great opportunities for the members of the company, not the least important feature is the scenery and accessories. The setting of the fourth act is probably the most gorgeous shown on any stage.

Sylvester Reinhart Injured.

Sylvester Reinhart, a carpenter, residing at Dunellen, fell from the second story of a new house he is erecting for Bernard Sirisky on Lincoln avenue, Dunellen, this afternoon and broke his forearm. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the office of a local physician. His injuries are not considered serious.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Swackhamer and daughter, of Summit avenue, have returned from a delightful sojourn of a month in the Adirondacks, where they visited many of the points of interest.

Joseph M. Sweeny, who has been in Maine since last May, returned home Saturday for a brief visit and in the afternoon left for Paterson, where he is in the employ of Garret Hobart, having charge of the latter's motor car.

COAL'SBY-PRODUCTS

TAR ONE OF THE MOST VALUABLE IN COKE MAKING.

Splendid Work Done by Chemists in Working Up Useful Substances from This Once Despised "Waste" Material.

Few are familiar with the completeness with which former wasted elements of coal are recovered and transformed into valuable products in the manufacture of coke from hard coal.

It is not so long ago that gas works were paying to have one of these by-products, then called a waste-product, carted away from the works. This was tar. Not only was no revenue derived from it, but it actually cost money to get rid of it. Now, this tar is one of the most valuable by-products in coke making. From every ton of coal converted into coke about nine gallons of coal tar are produced, and the history of chemistry tells of no more skillful work than was done in working up useful and valuable products from this black, sticky mass.

Over 200 separate substances have been isolated from tar. Of the first importance are anthracene and naphthalene. Anthracene, in a pure state, is a beautiful yellow crystal, and is the starting point for a series of the well-known coal tar dyes. Naphthalene is also the basis of a series of dyes, but is better known in the form of moth-balls. Although coal tar is black, the naphthalene comes out of it as white as snow.

Two other important products obtained from the tar are carbolic and crysylic acids. The uses of these two products as disinfectants and germicides need no description. But there is another use for carbolic acid which is not so generally known, viz., that transforming of it into picric acid by treatment with concentrated nitric acid. This picric acid is the base for deadly "high explosives." And, strangely enough, after you have shot a man to pieces with picric acid, you can allay his pain with the same thing, for picric acid has a place in surgery.

Books have been written on the products obtained from coal tar, but here we can but touch upon the subject, and we may conclude with the mere mention of creosote oil for preserving timber, etc., of pitch for roofs and for roads, of pyridine for denaturing alcohol. We must leave untouched the great number of complex chemicals which are either used themselves or are transformed into other substances in a never-ending cycle.

Besides the tar, every ton of coal made into coke from hard coal produces about 5½ pounds of pure ammonia, which is equivalent to about 22 pounds of ammonium sulphate, a fertilizer of unrivaled merit. This fertilizer is made from the ammonia by combining it with sulphuric acid, or oil of vitriol. Or the ammonia may be converted to the liquid ammonia of the drug stores, or it may finally appear as real liquid ammonia, which is pure ammonia gas liquified by pressure and cold.

Further uses of ammonia are as smelling salts and the carbonate of the baker, which makes possible all the modern dainty confections. The ammonium chloride used in batteries also is derived from the coal which goes to make coke.

Other products of commercial importance derived from the hard coal coke processes are benzol and toluol. From benzol nitro-benzol is made, and from that aniline is made, and from aniline springs a series of dye-stuffs of such importance that millions of dollars are invested in plants for their manufacture. Besides making dyes, benzol and toluol have a multitude of uses. Benzol is the best solvent known for organic compounds, and is used for extracting grease from garbage, in the "degrassing" of hides, in varnishes, shellac, varnish removers; for dissolving rubber, waxes and gums. Toluol in general is used for similar solvent purposes. One important use for benzol is gas enrichment. One per cent. of benzol vapor introduced into ordinary coal gas will increase its luminosity by about 12 candles.

There are many strange things with strange names made from benzol and toluol, and their development during the last century is one of the beacon lights of chemical history.

Jerry and Joe.

Jerry Simpson loved to work off jokes on prominent men who "got after" him. He and Joe Cannon, now speaker, had many lively tilts. One day Jerry made a rip-snorting anti-expansion speech in the house; just the kind that a Populist like Jerry could make.

"Had you made that speech in Manila," said Cannon, getting the floor and leveling his finger at the Kansas congressman, "you would have been tried by a drum-head court-martial and shot."

"Well," replied Jerry, "I would just as leave be shot in Manila for making a speech of that kind as to be shot in congress by an old smooth-bore brass Cannon from Illinois."

That reply tickled Tom Reed so much that he came up to Jerry and said: "That was all right, Jerry, I forgive you a lot of things for that!" —Kansas City Journal.

Not That Way in Life.

"Wives are always so trustful on the stage."

"Which shows that realism on the stage is an utter myth."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Marsh looked about again wildly.

"I don't know," he blurted at last.

"Ah, very interesting," smiled Bradley. "You don't know Mr. Rhinestrom? You've never seen him? You don't know whether or not he's ever been at the works? You've never invented a gun yourself, of course. And the one thing you do know is that Mr. Rhinestrom is the inventor of the gun you are in charge of forging. You are sure of that, aren't you, Mr. Marsh? Take your time. Don't be in a hurry with your answer. All we want is the truth. Now, you know Mr. Rhinestrom is the inventor of the gun, don't you?"

There was so much satirical contempt in the way the question was put that the cold sweat broke out on Marsh. He looked helplessly at Pinckney and in his hard eyes read desperation, but not despair. Pinckney, crooked though he might be, still had all the courage of the really big villain. The sight of his courage helped Marsh to falter out his answer.

"Yes, sir."

The next question was entirely unexpected.

"What royalty does Rhinestrom receive for the gun, Mr. Marsh?"

There was a long pause. Marsh looked about helplessly. Quite obviously he was going to pieces. Pinckney knew that question must not be answered. It meant everything. If Marsh told what he thought the real royalty might come out and the true inventor, in desperation and anger, would blurt the truth. It must be stopped. Pinckney sprang to his feet.

"This is ridiculous," he exclaimed. "These questions are all silly. What does Marsh know about all this? How can Marsh know anything about royalties?"

Bradley turned to the owner of the works.

"Mr. Durant, will you kindly tell Marsh what royalty you pay this Rhinestrom?"

The steel man looked puzzled, angry. He did not understand the drift of the questioning. He had not the slightest suspicion that Marsh was the real inventor of the Rhinestrom gun, and so, quite naturally, he looked on the questions regarding royalty as entirely unnecessary prying into a business secret. For a moment he did not reply, and Bradley repeated his question. Then Pinckney broke in angrily.

"I thought Mr. Bradley came here to inquire into the Sommers gun," he sneered.

The secret service man kept his temper as he turned to Mr. Durant, to speak in a tone of polite regret.

"You invited me here, Mr. Durant, to ask such questions as I saw fit to get at the facts concerning the destruction of a gun. Do I understand you refuse to answer the first question?"

Mr. Durant hesitated.

"But this is a private business matter," he protested at last. "I see no bearing in that question on the matter in hand."

Bradley shrugged his shoulders.

"I'm sorry," he said regretfully. "I ask it only for Mr. Marsh's information."

"What has Marsh got to do with what I pay for patents?" exclaimed Durant angrily.

Bradley, still unruffled, turned to Marsh with a smile.

"Suppose you tell him, Marsh," he suggested.

"Nothing at all, sir," the inventor muttered hastily.

Pinckney would have broken in again, but the detective stopped him sharply with a gesture.

"Wait! Marsh, can you tell me straight to my face that it would mean nothing to you to know that Mr. Durant pays a royalty for the Rhinestrom gun of a thousand dollars an inch?"

An expression of amazement swept over the face of the badgered witness.

"One thousand!" he gasped; then he stopped short, looking at Pinckney venomously. The chief conspirator caught the look and realized its danger.

"Marsh won't believe," he cried hastily. But again Bradley cut in, stepping between Pinckney and the witness so that neither could see the other.

"Keep quiet, Mr. Pinckney," he demanded sternly. "I can prove what I say. Now, Marsh, what do you say to a royalty of a thousand dollars an inch?"

The little man was past the stage of fear now. He saw the whole trick. He realized how he had been duped. He had only to tell the truth and ruin both Pinckney and himself, but then he hesitated. To tell the truth—what would that mean? It would mean state prison possibly and disgrace. And Marsh was not big enough to take a great revenge. Finally he looked down.

"Nothing," he said at last.

"Nothing!" demanded Bradley.

Again Mr. Durant interfered.

"Mr. Bradley," he exclaimed sharply, "I see no reason for your questions of your attitude. I can't for the life of me see what you are getting at."

"I can," supplemented Pinckney, sneering. "I've had experience with Mr. Bradley's style of bluff."

Bradley paid no attention to the general manager, but turned, speaking to Mr. Durant, but looking at Marsh.

"I will explain, Mr. Durant. Lieutenant Sommers is an honest man. It is to him and the girl he loves that Mr. Pinckney and your wife and I and a score of others owe our lives. Tomorrow he is to answer in Washington for an accident in which two men were killed and others maimed and crippled for life. One man is totally blind." A sharp intake of breath and a gasp of horror from Marsh made him pause, then repeat over solemnly with emphasis: "One forever and ever blind, a lad of twenty, who must grope his way through this world to the end of his way." Marsh was shuddering now, for the picture brought up to him that other lad of twenty, his own son, who had died blind. With inexorable coolness Bradley continued:

"I know Lieutenant Sommers is blameless in this affair, and I am here to find some one to answer the cry of justice which comes through the tears and sobs of the mothers, sisters and sweethearts of those boys. And I'll find him, Mr. Durant; I'll find him."

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

ORANGE Y.M.C.A., 12; DUNELLEN, NOTHING

In a fast game at Dunellen Saturday afternoon, the Orange Y. M. C. A. football team defeated the Dunellen eleven by a score of 12 to 0. The teams were evenly matched and thrilling plays were the order of the day. Stealman, of Dunellen, made several brilliant end runs, and in one of them he was so vigorously tackled that his ankle was fractured, necessitating his quitting the game. Still, the game was a clean one throughout and both teams were complimented on their fair playing.

After Noll, the Orange left back, had fumbled in the beginning of the first half, Lee, the right back, grabbed the ball and carried it 50 yards for a touchdown. In the same half Howe, the full back, made the second touchdown for Orange. Lee kicked both goals.

Dunellen played a better game than the Orange boys in the second half, but although she brought the ball to the Orange 10 yard line, was prevented from scoring.

The line-up:

Dunellen.	Orange.
Eanis	Bleecke, Hamill right end.
Remington	Patten right tackle.
O'Shea	Teimer right end.
Taylor, Dodd	Wallace centre.
Lewis	Gordon quarterback.
Smith	Howe fullback.

Referee, Henckel, Orange; umpire, R. T. Churchill, Dunellen; timekeepers, McCall and Hughes; timesmen, Johnson and Atkins.

MIDDLEBROOK DEFEATS PARK GOLF CLUB TEAM

The Park Golf club engaged in a golf match with a team of ten men from the Middlebrook Country club, of Findern, on the local course, Saturday afternoon, and was defeated by a score of 12 to 6. The match was an interesting one throughout, but early in the play it was seen that the visitors were too strong for the Parks.

Walter C. McNaughton, Charles B. Morse, Rev. C. L. Goodrich and W. E. Lough were the only members of the home team that were up on their opponents. The match attracted a number of spectators to the course. The summary:

Park Golf club—Dr. H. K. Carroll, 0; Walter C. McNaughton, 1; W. R. Faber, 0; A. M. Morrill, 0; W. V. Byard, 0; Charles B. Morse, 1; R. B. Titsworth, 0; Samuel Townsend, 0; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 3; W. E. Lough, 1; total, 6.

In the weekly competition for the President's, Golf club and Oakmont cups, these scores were posted:

WEEKLY COMPETITION AT COUNTRY CLUB

The only event of interest at the Plainfield Country club, Saturday, was the weekly competition for the Fall Handicap cups, Classes A and B. S. D. Lounsbery, Owen H. Fleming and H. D. Hibbard were the point-winners for the Class A trophy, and C. C. Burke, D. H. Rowland and H. F. Fox, for the Class B cup. The scores were close throughout, although not many were returned in the day's play.

The best scores for the day follow:

Class A—S. D. Lounsbery, 90, 10-80; Owen H. Fleming, 97, 12-85, H. D. Hibbard, 95, 9-86; Morris J. Dumont, 97, 10-87.

Class B—C. C. Burke, 96, 19-76; D. H. Rowland, 102, 18-84; Hugh F. Fox, 104, 20-84.

There was the usual dinner dance at the clubhouse in the evening and these weekly social affairs are so popular that they will probably be continued up to and including Thanksgiving Day, when the active season closes with a cross-country golf tournament.

The several committees who are in charge of a fair to be held at the First Presbyterian church will meet at the chapel, this afternoon, to complete details.

TIED THE EUREKA TEAM

Plainfield and Newark Seen in a Fine Exhibition of Association Ball.

TWO GOALS MADE FOR EACH.

Wind Favored the Visitors in Contest on Clinton Avenue Grounds Saturday Afternoon.

The Plainfield Association football club and the Eureka Field club of Newark, played an exciting game on the Clinton avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon, which resulted in a draw, two to two goals. The game was called at 3:45 with the Plainfield team playing against a strong wind. The visitors took a long rush down-field and inside of the first five minutes had scored their first goal. This set the Plainfielders going, and they had some hard work, but the wind was so high and strong, that good judgment could be used to little advantage.

The Newark boys, at this stage of the game, were putting it over the local lads, when Sutton caught the ball at mid-field, and rushing along the wing, passed two men, and centered the ball, where Hosie caught it, and banged it through. This made the teams equal now and every effort was made by each for the lead. There was no more scoring in the first half of the game.

On resuming play, the wind had gone down a bit, and better play was seen on both teams, Plainfield showed up a great deal better now, and a good try at goal was well saved by the Eureka's goal-keeper, but the ball was immediately returned, and Hosie rushing up, headed it through. With Plainfield now leading, the visitors played desperately, and the spectators showed the greatest excitement. Some clever work by the Eureka's backs, got the ball to mid-field, where their forwards succeeded in making a close try, which was cleverly saved by Jamison, but in was returned and in a scrimmage was put through.

Playing at two goals each now, the play was great, and the Plainfield team rushed for all they were worth, but a great defence by the Eureka back line kept them well at bay and they couldn't score. The time was called with a score of two goals each, and was a fair indication of the play by both teams. Never in the history of the local club has the spectators shown more enthusiasm or excitement, for during the last fifteen minutes of play, they shouted themselves hoarse.

Kenny, the new man in the Plainfield ranks, played wonderful football, and will be a valuable addition to the local team. Sutton also played a remarkable game, showing a speed with the ball that was truly wonderful. Spalding played nicely during the second half, but the wind being strong, carried the ball out of play. Another match will doubtless be arranged with the Eurekas and it should attract a great crowd. The lineup:

Eureka.		Plainfield.
Gale	goal	Jamison
Ford	right back	Henderson
Vallance	left back	F. Craig
Nixon	right half	J. Craig
A. Whiston	centre half	Kenny

BATTIN HIGH DEFEATED BY N.P.H.S. BOYS, 6-2

North Plainfield High School team defeated the Battin High School, of Elizabeth, by a score of 6 to 0 at the Cricket Field Saturday afternoon, although the Elizabeth boys were considerably heavier.

Conroy, of N. P. H. S., made two good end runs. In the first half he ran around the Battin left for 28 yards, and in the second he stopped an attempted forward pass and reached the Battin 10-yard line where he was tackled so fiercely that the umpire disqualified the Battin player and gave N. P. H. S. ten yards. The Battin boys decided to abide by the umpire's decision after a half-hour's wrangle.

The lineup:

N. P. H. S.—Bailey, left end; Abrams, left tackle; Lindsey, left guard; Stiglitz, centre; Zeglis, right guard; Dunning, right tackle; Scott, right end; Conroy, quarterback; H. Smith, left halfback; Stine, right halfback; C. Smith, fullback. Battin—Davidson, left end; Windle, left tackle; Hansen, left guard; Grossman, centre; Wingen, right guard; Craig, right tackle; Baller, right end; DeRaismer, quarterback; Elliott, left halfback; Brehm, right halfback; Hoyt, fullback.

Referee—Hamilton; timer—Webster.

RAHWAY SHUT OUT BY LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

The Plainfield High School football team won its second game of the season Saturday, deefating Rahway H. S., at Hope Common. The score was 17 to 0. The visitors put up a good fight, but the locals proved too skilful for them. Rahway started the game by kicking off and Phillips caught the ball and ran it to the 35 yard line. Plainfield tried a series of trick plays and then began hitting the line. This was kept up until Nash made a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal.

Rahway kicked off again and Nash rushed it to the 40 yard line. Then followed a lot of scrimmage in which the ball went to Rahway. They tried line hitting and then failed on a forward pass. In a few minutes the Plainfield boys had the ball and started trick plays. There was great enthusiasm when Doane made a touchdown on a forward pass.

In the second half, Plainfield kicked off and the Rahway man went down on the 25 yard line. Rahway soon lost the ball on a fumble and Nash, by constantly hitting the line, made a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. The whole Plainfield team showed up fine, special credit going to the good interference by Phillips. The line held well and the backs did splendid work. The line-up:

P. H. S.—Right end, Phillips; Van Zandt; right tackle, Yetman ,Carr; right guard, Thompson; centre, Bellows; left guard, Ramsey; left tackle, Bristol, Mahan; left end, Doane, Berse; right half, Nash; left half, Overton, Ricketts; quarterback, Rifferty, Clark; fullback, Smith.

The CONSISTENT CAR
Chalmers-Detroit "Forty" Sets a New Record in Great Fairmount Park Road Race.

In the 200 mile Road Race over the Fairmount Park course in Philadelphia, October 9th, the Chalmers-Detroit Forty won the Consistency Prize—a special distinction offered to the car which, in the opinion of the officials of the race, should do the most consistent work.

At the finish it was not a matter of opinion which car was entitled to the prize—it was a matter of fact.

The Forty driven by Bert Dingley did not stop a single time during the entire race. Although going at top speed all the time, not a single tire replacement was necessary, no fresh supplies of water, oil or gasoline were needed. The car literally "ran like a clock" all the way.

The Forty was the only car in the race which did not stop at least once.

It was the second car to finish—only four minutes behind the first car—a 90 horsepower giant, more than twice as big and twice the price of the Forty.

The other entries in this race were:

Acme,	60 h. p.	American,	60 h. p.	Thomas,	70 h. p.
Palmer-Singer,	60 h. p.	Simplex,	90 h. p.	Thomas,	70 h. p.
Simplex,	90 h. p.	Buick,	30 h. p.	Chadwick,	60 h. p.
Apperson,	49 h. p.	Selden,	30 h. p.	American,	50 h. p.
Lozier,	50 h. p.	Alco,	60 h. p.	Buick,	30 h. p.
Benz,	60 h. p.	Columbia,	32 h. p.	Isotta,	40 h. p.
Welch,	70 h. p.	Welch,	70 h. p.	Chadwick,	60 h. p.

The Forty which made this splendid showing was a stock car—absolutely the same we would sell you for $2,750. The Chalmers-Detroit Company never built a "racing car." But Chalmers-Detroit stock cars win many races. They are consistent cars—they give the utmost value at the price.

BALL PLAYERS BANQUET

Y. M. C. A. Team Holds Its Annual Feast in Association Hall.

G. C. M. SMITH TOASTMASTER.

Speeches Are Made by Herbert E. Parker and George L. Listman—Dinner Served By the Auxiliary.

The third annual banquet to the Y. M. C. A. baseball team, marking the close of the season, was given in the association parlors, last night, under the direction of the physical department, of which George C. M. Smith is the chairman. He acted as toastmaster of the evening The only speakers were Secretary H. E. Parker and Physical Director George L. Listman, the latter giving some interesting figures by way of comparison, showing the work of the 1908 and 1909 teams.

These showed that the team made the poorest showing this year, principally due to the lack of good pitchers. In many instances the local team excelled their opponents in various departments of the game, all of which proved encouraging to Mr. Listman and the players. They are looking forward to next season in the hope that the best team ever will represent the association.

A fine dinner was prepared and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the association, those in charge being Mrs. Charles F. Dayton. Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, Mrs. William C. Hubbard and Mrs. H. E. Parker At the close three rousing cheers were given for the women. The dinner included all the good things from soup to ice cream and coffee, with turkey in abundance. While the dinner was in progress, Schuyler Line entertained the company with a number of popular selections on the phonograph, including several good baseball records.

It was expected that James Everitt Kimball, president of the association, would preside at the dinner, but he was called out of the city, and Mr. Smith was asked to take his place.

Secretary Parker, the first speaker, said that he was not present as a guest, but as a fellow-player, he having taken part in one of the important contests of the schedule. He congratulated the boys on their good showing, adding that while perhaps there were no "Ty" Cobbs or "Honus" Wagners present, it was not the purpose of the association to develop such players, but rather men in the broad sense of the word.

Those present at the banquet were Secretary H. E. Parker, G. C. M. Smith, Physical Director G. L. Listman, manager of the team; C. W. Bingaman, assistant manager; C. H. Line, assistant physical director; Howard Craig, William Schoonmaker, George Linke, William Coyle, John Fritts, Frank Evans, Louis Slocum, Chauncey Murphey, Fred Stover, James Scott, Ralph Schoonmaker, members of the team; Victor Crook and Harry Dunn, who so faithfully looked after the bats during the season.

The individual and team records for the season follow:

FIAR YOUNG EQUESTRIENNE SUES NEW YORK DOCTOR

A New York physician, whose name could not be learned today is the defendant in an interesting suit for damages instituted by a woman who was a trick rider of the Wild West type, and who rode in the Fourth of July celebration at South Plainfield, in 1908. The woman, whose name was then given as Lillian Wall, it is understood has since married.

The woman claims that while riding at South Plainfield she fell and fractured her arm, which was afterward treated by the New York physician. Now she claims that the bones were not properly set and seeks damages. It is said that she was sent to the physician in question by some theatrical friends.

It is also claimed that the woman received a fracture of the arm prior to riding at South Plainfield and it is a question whether that break ever knitted. If this should prove true, it is said, the woman would have difficulty in recovering damages. An investigation has been made here into the circumstances regarding the woman's performance at South Plainfield, and will form the basis of evidence to be offered at the forthcoming trial.

While in Plainfield the woman was a guest at the home of Mrs. Percy Ohl on the Ohl farm, and it is said, that it was through Miss Adele von Ohl, who herself is a trick rider, that she was induced to come here and ride in the celebration.

PROHIBITIONISTS NAME LUNGER FOR MAYOR

The National Prohibition party has put a ticket in the field in the borough. The ticket was filed by petition with the Somerset county clerk yesterday. It is headed by William Lunger, for Mayor, and names William J. Trembath and George W. Winans for members of the Common Council.

The petition was sworn to by five ardent Prohibitionists of the borough, namely Manning F. Gano, Robert W. Barnes, Andrew Wilson, William Lunger and William J. Trembath. Mr. Lunger, the mayoralty candidate, has been a Prohibition nominee in the past for Congress, Senator, Assembly and other offices.

"FLOWERLAND" TO BE SPECTACULAR AFFAIR.

The rehearsal of "Flowerland" held yesterday afternoon in Hope chapel was a successful one. The children acted as if they knew their respective parts sufficiently to appear at once. Miss Shipley, who is in charge, was highly pleased. The cortumes to be used are beautiful. The players will be garbed as fairies of the dawn, fairies of the night, night roses, chrysanthemums, morning glories, daisies, carnations, rosebuds, nymphs, pickanniny, sun flowers, tea roses, Greek garland girls, dewdrops and cupid.

"Flowerland" is divided into four scenes: Queen of the Roses, Fall of Babylon, Death of Virginia and Hope and Memory. Tickets can be secured from the members of the chapel or at the chapel, Friday and Saturday night.

Rewarded Substantially.

William Morris, of Bound Brook, one of the men who did such valiant service in an effort to save the lives of three men in a drowning accident on the Delaware and Raritan canal last Saturday, was rewarded by Todd Russell, the owner of the overturned canoe with a check for $500 yesterday. Morris is the man who finally brought the canoe to shore and helped to restore Russell to consciousness. Nothing has been said of a reward for Koeschlein, the giant fisherman who also lent his aid in the rescue.

Surprise for Miss Conover.

About fifty guests, friends of Miss Isabel Conover, of Duer street, tendered Miss Conover a surprise party last Friday night. The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion with autumn foliage and cut flowers. The occasion was the birthday of the young woman. Games and music helped to pass a very pleasant evening and Miss Conover received a number of handsome and useful gifts. The affair was arranged by Misses Frances Newman and May Mattison.

Several years ago as Miss Jenny Blair, Mrs. Stewart was widely known as the "Jenny Lind of Jersey City." William Stewart, Mrs. Harry DeMeza and Miss Alice Sharkey rendered popular airs at the piano.

Many beautiful gifts were tendered the couple, among them an artistic gas dome, a mission chair, and a pastel of a sunset painted especially for the occasion by an aunt, Mrs. James Craig, of Dunellen, who presented it.

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Blair, of this city, both of whom are well in the eighties, were present, but the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Doud, of Westfield, were unfortunately unable to attend. Ceremony Takes Place at Home of Her Aunt, Miss Ella Serrell—Couple to Live in Virginia.

Miss Josephine Irene Serrell, daughter of George Serrell, and George Woodhull Endicott, Jr., only son of Dr. George W. Endicott, were married at noon today at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Ella Serrell, 931 Union street. The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate relatives. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the irst Baptist church, of which the bride is a member, officiated.

The young couple, unattended, entered the room to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, sung by Master C. Shelton Moore, boy soprano of Trinity church, New York, who was accompanied on the piano by Clifford A. Braider, a cousin of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Frederick E. Serrell, wore a travelling costume of lustrous silk chiffon broadcloth in canyon blue, made with a braided princess tunic and embellished wiith silver glace cloth and silver lace. A picture hat of black beaver with long sweeping willow plumes in a matching blue shade completed the costume. Bride roses and lilies of the valley composed the shower bouquet carried by the bride.

The house was tastefully adorned with autumn leaves. Yellow chrysanthemums were used in the table decorations, and a profusion of palms and white chrysanthemums were banked in the corner of the living room where the ceremony took place.

In the exchange of gifts, the groom received from the bride a diamond and topaz stick pin, while a silver-mounted shot gun was the groom's gift to the bride, who is an adept in the use of firearms. After a short honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Endicott will make their home at Coggin Hall, a plantation in Prince George county, Virginia.

SIDEWALKS INSISTED UPON AT BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETING.

At an adjourned special meeting of the Borough Common Council, held in the councilmanic chamber last night the borough clerk was authorized to notify the residents along the northwest side of Greenbrook road, between Harrison and Maple avenues and on the west side of Somerset street, between Dupont street to and including the A. J. Winans place and Fritz place, to lay sidewalks in front of their property in accordance with the new ordinance, passed at the last meeting of the borough Council.

The street commissioner was authorized to see that sidewalks were laid wherever needed, as the new ordinance provides. The Mayor and members of the Council hope that property owners all over the borough will see to it that sidewalks are laid wherever needed before the winter sets in. No other business was transacted at this meeting.

SADIE KNEW IT ALL, TOO

She Was the Star Witness in the Borough Police Court Last Night.

BENDER CASE VERY EXCITING.

Mrs. Bender Put Under Fifty Dollars Bond to Keep the Peace—Plea to Reporter Heeded.

Nine-year-old Sadie Bender was the heroine at a rather sordid trial at the borough police court last night. She is the daughter of a green grocer on Somerset street, and her mother—but surely you must have read the terrible things about her mother in the paper. At least Sadie thinks you did, for she is sure that everyone read how her poor mother was arrested the other day and why she was arrested.

Now, you should never believe those items in the paper. Sadie knows—there were items in about her mother and they were all wrong. The items said that Sadie's mamma had threatened to strike Sadie's aunt Rosie and that Sadie's Aunt Rosie therefore had Sadie's mamma arrested. Well, it was all true about Sadie's mamma being arrested but it wasn't true about Sadie's mamma threatening Aunt Rosie.

This is the way it was: Sadie and her mamma on the night of Friday, October 8, were on their way to visit Sadie's grandma when Aunt Rosie stopped them and began calling names. Sadie's mamma began to call back, when Sadie stopped her. Then the first thing Sadie knew a few days later in walks the chief of police, arrests her mamma and takes her away to the court-house, where the judge told her to come back on October 18, to answer to the complaint against her.

The complaint? Well, it said something about "threatening to do bodily harm" and it was made out by "Mrs. Rosa Bender"—that is, Sadie's Aunt Rosie. It was just too mean for anything and just like Aunt Rosie, who never, never was the least nice and friendly with Sadie's mamma and always bore her spite.

So last night Sadie went to court with her mamma and papa and as soon as she got into the court-room she spied her big Cousin Rosie, who was Aunt Rosie's daughter, and Aunt Rosie and Aunt Rosie's husband already there and glaring at her. Sadie glared straight back—she was'nt a bit afraid of them and she wanted them to know it.

But she was afraid of the man sitting behind a sort of high desk whom some people said was "the judge" and some people said was "the recorder." He put people in jail; that was his business. Jail is a terrible place, all dark and miserable and full of ghosts. Sadie didn't want the judge-recorder to put her mamma there. Her mamma would die of fright.

Finally the terrible judge heard what Aunt Rosie and Cousin Rosie had to say. Or rather, what they had to shout, for they were dreadfully excited and the lawyers had to tell Aunt Rosie to "keep calm" every few minutes. So was Sadie's mamma excited, when she denied to the judge that she had threatened to strike Aunt Rosie—in fact she was so upset that she broke down and cried like a baby right there in front of the judge.

"Mamma didn't threaten to hurt Aunt Rosie," she said. "Mamma and I were on our way to grandma's when we met Aunt Rosie. I pulled mamma away."

"Why did you pull mamma away?" asked the recorder.

"Because, Mr. Judge, I knew if mamma got talking to Aunt Rosie, Aunt Rosie would call mamma names, and mamma would call Aunt Rosie names, and Aunt Rosie would try to hit mamma, and mamma would try to hit Aunt Rosie, and it would all look dreadful to strangers, and maybe the police would come and lock mamma up and it would all be in the papers about mamma."

Sadie noticed a smile on Recorder Dolliver's face as she concluded. Even the grim chief of police had a smile for her, she saw. In fact, everybody was smiling at her. Sadie smiled, too, a little later when, the testimony all in, the recorder announced that he would place Sadie's mamma under $50 bonds to keep the peace. So her mamma wasn't going to be put in a mean, dark cell after all! Sadie cried for joy.

Then she took notice of a reporter-for-the-papers taking notes. A fear of further unpleasant publicity possessed her as she watched the man at his writing. In an instant her mind was made up. She edged up to the reporter.

"Mr. Reporter," she pleaded, "go as easy as you can on mamma, won't you?"

And he did, as you see!

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF A JERSEY FAMILY

Joseph Cortright, of Newark, who is a brother-in-law of Floyd T Woodhull, of West Front street, accompanied by his wife and daughter, arrived at their home on Plane street, Newark, last night, after the most thrilling experience in their lives. They were passengers on the Steamer Antilles, of the Morgan Line, bound from New Orleans to New York, a week ago yesterday, when the boat ran into one of the worst storms known for years.

The steamer ran on a reef and for nearly eighty-four hours was tarashed about like a toy in the hurricane which was blowing. The boat was equipped with wireless apparatus, and repeated offers for assistance were refused by the captain, it is said, wishing to save the salvage. Finally the Comus, of the same line appeared, and having been given instructions to stand by, succeeded in rescuing the passengers. They were brought to New York arriving late yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cortright and daughter left Newark June 10 last for an extended pleasure trip which included the Alaska-Yukon Exposition, Denver, the Yellowstone Park and they returned by the way of Texas to New Orleans, where they took the Steamer Antilles for New York. Mr. Cortright is well-known in this city, where he has visited a number of times. Mr. Woodhull went to Newark this morning to see the Cortrights and learn something about their trip and experiences.

MR. LINKE'S RIB BROKEN; LEAVES EUROPE TODAY

Frank Linke, who was injured near Nice, France, on Sunday, October 3, will sail today from Cherbourg for home on one of the North German Lloyd boats. Mrs. Linke received a letter from her husband this morning in which he told her not to worry, that his injuries although painful were not serious.

Mr. Linke described the accident in detail in his letter. The party were returning from church and were descending a steep hill. The tongue of the wagon snapped, throwing the vehicle on top of the horses and the animals in efforts to break away from the wrecked wagon kicked off one of the wheels. This caused the conveyance to topple over and roll down the incline, throwing the passengers out. They kept on rolling and in their descent struck stones and tree roots which fractured their ribs and caused all the other damage. Mr. Linke's shoulder was dislocated and his body otherwise bruised, besides having three of his ribs broken.

He did not anticipate having any trouble in making the voyage home and should reach Plainfield next Saturday.

CITY WON'T ACCEPT PARK

For Several Reasons, Chiefly the Expense—Syndicate's Offer is Refused.

TOO MANY CONDITIONS IN IT.

Realty Concern Too Exacting and Whole Proposition Is Given Up by City Fathers.

Following closely upon the announcement that the Common Council, through its public affairs committee, has decided not to enter into any agreement with North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood or Dunellen to establish one large sewage plant, comes the information that similar action has been taken regarding the city park proposition. The Common Council is of the opinion that not only would the expense be too great, but that the time is not ripe for such an improvement and that the proposition has too many conditions attached to it.

The New York syndicate, which purchased the large tract of land in the West End of the city and borough and then made a proposition to deed a certain part of it to the city and borough for park purposes, has incorporated a condition in the proposition which the Common Council will not agree to. It is that within one year after the land is taken over by the city it must be fully developed.

Just what is meant by "fully developed" is too indefinite and would likely involve the city and borough in a tangle. Besides, the expense of the whole thing is believed to be beyond reason. For instance, the opening of what is known as the North road, which would extend into the borough, would entail an expense of several thousand dollars, and as the greater part of the road would be in the borough, it would always furnish a question for debate.

Recently, representatives of the New York syndicate, together with members of the Common Council and Shade Tree Commission inspected the land, but there was a question of doubt on the part of some as to the wisdom of making the improvement. There is no doubt but that the land in question would make a fine park after being properly developed, but under the present circumstances the proposition does not seem feasible and it would be impossible to secure a sufficient number of votes in the Common Council to accept it. The decision of the members is final, unless the syndicate should make another offer containing more advantageous terms. In view of the high tax rate for the coming year, which has not been received by the taxpayers any too kindly, the tendency of the Common Council is toward retrenchment.

This idea was largely uppermost in the minds of the Common Council when discussing the joint sewage question. Aside from the heavy expense that such an improvement would lead to, it is said that Corporation Counsel C. A. Marsh has inforced the Councilmen that there is a question of legality involved, that is, it is doubtful whether Plainfield would have the right to make an agreement with the nearby towns to take care of the sewage. This being the case the councilmen naturally were slow to take action. The recent decision to drop this matter appears to have met with the approval of a majority of Plainfield taxpayers, even though there is disappointment in North Plainfield and the other interested municipalities.

TIFFANY JEWEL MYSTERY.

New York, Oct. 19.—A mysterious theft of a diamond necklace, valued at $10,000, and a princess ring, set with rows of diamonds, from the workshop of Tiffany & Co., on the fifth floor of their Fifth avenue building, is furnishing a puzzle which a score of private detectives so far have failed to solve.

The necklace was sent to the Tiffanys for repairs about four weeks ago, and was placed in the hands of a trusted jeweler, who was instructed to have it ready the next day. Just before noon the man left the room for five minutes and left the necklace in a box on his work table, instead of locking it in a drawer. On his return the necklace was missing and a search of employes and of every nook and cranny in the room yielded nothing. Every employe gave a satisfactory account of himself or herself.

Four days later the ring disappeared in the same mysterious manner.

TO CONSIDER PHASES OF SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK

Opportunity for conference on three special phases of Sunday-school work will be afforded by the program arranged for the annual meeting of the Union County Sunday School Association, to be held Thursday in the First Presbyterian church, Cranford. Elementary work, effort for boys and evangelistic endeavor will be presented by specialists in these subjects. Many other questions will be considered in addresses, reports and conferences, but these three departments will receive special attention.

Miss Alice B. Hamlin, of Newark, the new superintendent of the elementary work in the New Jersey Sunday School Association, will conduct a conference from 1 to 2 o'clock, and at 2:45 will make an address on "Helps in Character Building." Miss Hamlin comes to New Jersey from the Keystone State, where she has given fine service in Sunday-school work. She is an enthusiast concerning the new graded lessons in the International series, and the convention will give much attention to the presentation of this graded course for younger children.

Workers for boys will find special help in the conference to be conducted from 5:15 to 6 o'clock by C. W. Bingeman, secretary of the boys' department in the Y. M. C. A. of Plainfield. All teachers of boys are especially invited. At the same hour there will be a conference on organized adult classes, led by James E. Church, State superintendent of that department.

A tea table conference on evangelistic work in the Sunday-school will be in charge of the Rev. Abram Duryee, of North Hackencack, who is State superintendent of the evangelistic department in the State Sunday School Association and also in the similar department of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union. Pastors and superintendents of all Sunday-schools represented will meet at one table for supper, this informal conference to follow the meal.

Sessions are open to all who are interested in Sunday-school work. While a number of schools in the county will have regularly elected delegates present, the meetings are not confined to these. Luncheon and supper will be served free by the women of the entertaining church.

The morning session will begin at 10 o'clock, and before the noon adjournment much business will have been accomplished. The session will include two addresses—one by the retiring State secretary, the Rev. E. Morris Ferguson, and the other by the Rev. W. E. Foote, of Freehold, State superintendent of teacher training.

The afternoon session, which includes a number of excellent features, will begin at 2 o'clock, adjourning at 5.

The principal address at the evening session, which will open at 7:30 o'clock, will be by the Rev. William H. Morgan, D. D., of Newark.

The Rev. S. F. Davis, of Elizabeth, who is president of the association, will preside at all sessions and will also speak at 4:25 on "Missionary Instruction in the Sunday School."

Mrs. A. W. Karnell, county superintendent of home department work, will conduct a conference with superintendents and visitors at 1 o'clock, and at the same hour the Rev. Mr. Foote will hold a conference on teacher training.

DAUGHTERS OF KING TO MEET IN ELIZABETH

The New Jersey Assembly of the Daughters of the King will meet in Grace church, Elizabeth, on Thursday. The first service will be Holy Communion at 11 a. m., which will probably be celebrated by the Right Rev. Edwin S. Lines, D. D., Bishop of Newark. There will be an address by the Rev. James MacClintock, B. D.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p. m. by the former members of Elizabeth Dean Chapter, No. 87. The business meeting will follow and Miss Sara D. Bluxome, general secretary of the order, of New York city, will speak on the "Aims of the Order."

Reports will be made from chapters in both the Diocese of New Jersey and the Diocese of Newark. The assembly officers are as follows: President, Mrs. George Abbott, of Paterson; vice-president, Mrs. Julia Maynard, of Haledon; treasurer, Mrs. Lester Layton, of Newton; secretary, Miss Mercy Hillman, of South Amboy. The assembly will close with a quiet hour, conducted by the Rev. Bruce V. Reddish, of Hasbrouck Heights. The first assembly meeting was also held in Grace church, Elizabeth, on October 12, 1896, on the invitation of the Rev. Henry Hale Gifford, rector, and Elizabeth Dean Chapter.

The assembly will be entertained by over twenty of the members of the local chapter. Mrs. F. Otto Walter is chairman and Mrs. R. J. Neill, secretary of the committee on entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Mangan have returned from their honeymoon and are living on Netherwood avenue.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

There will be a change in the ordinary run of golf fixtures this week, the program containing no less than three short tournaments. The fun will start tomorrow, when the members of clubs belonging to the Women's Eastern Golf Association will gather at the Montclair Golf club for a day of play, the announcement calling for an eighteen-hole medal play handicap in the morning and a handicap putting competition in the afternoon. There will be one gross and two net score prizes in each event.

Putting under handicap conditions is something of a novelty. Players will receive one-half their regular allowances, and if the affair at Hackensack last week is any criterion close finishes may be expected. Entries will close with Mrs. F. E. Donohoe, chairman of the women's tournament committee, at the Montclair Golf club.

The other attraction for tomorrow is the seventeenth semi-annual handicap tournament of the University Club over the St. Andrews links. With few exceptions the graduates have held their handicaps over this course, although last spring they varied the monotony by going to Nassau. Contestants will play thirty-six holes. Gross and net score prizes have been provided.

The week-end competitive event will consist of the annual championship tournament of the East Jersey Golf League at the Forest Hill Field Club on Friday and Saturday. There will be an eighteen-hole testing round on the morning of the first day, players to qualify in four eights, according to the merit of their scores. A prize has been offered for the best scores in the qualifying round and a cup has also been put up for the beaten four in the first eight.

Atlantic City, Oct. 19.—Visitors found no change here in the excise situation Sunday in spite of the fact that the October grand jury is in session. Plainfield, N. J., October 19, 1909.

Says the president of a big corporation: "If the lawmakers will only let us alone and attend strictly to their own business, this country will see the most prosperous period of a century." True, if the lawmakers and courts would only let some corporations alone, undoubtedly there would be prosperity—for a few—but that's not the kind of prosperity this country needs or will tolerate.

The poor consumer, who always gets it "in the neck" when the trusts, under one pretext or another, raises prices, will find himself the everlasting victim of the meat trust if what a representative of the American Packers' Association says is true. Speaking at the annual meeting of that body in Chicago yesterday, President Michael Ryan declared that "unless many, many more cattle are grown, there can be no hope of lower prices and America may find itself an importer of meat." The apparently avowed purpose of continually raising the price of meat may be due to the alleged scarcity of cattle but unless convinced by proof furnished by others than the packers the general public will reasonably believe that bigger dividends for the meat trust barons is responsible for the higher prices.

When You See

a person limping, you, as most people do, conclude that the trouble is the RESULT OF WEARING a tight, ill-fitting shoe. That is NOT TRUE as to the present trouble. It is true that the tenderness of the feet WAS CAUSED by some careless shoeman selling THAT PERSON the wrong shoe.

You DON'T EVER see our customers limping. That's enough to say.

BP. M'FAUL CELEBRATES

Solemn High Mass Marks the Fifteenth Anniversary of His Consecration.

MONSIGNOR FOX'S ADDRESS.

Bishop of the R. C. Diocese of Trenton Responds—His See Includes 135,000 Souls.

Bishop McFaul yesterday celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of his consecration as bishop of the diocese of Trenton, and in honor of the event at Trenton pontificated at solemn high mass yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

These priests assisted: Rev. Father James J. Powers, assistant priest; Rev. Father Henry Ward and Rev. Dr. Rathner, deacons of honor; Rev. Father Thomas F. Rudden, deacon of the mass; Rev. Father C. F. Prendergast, sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Arthur D. Hassett, master of ceremonies. Among the priests in attendance was Rev. William E. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield. The music was furnished by the chancel choir, under the direction of Rev. Dr. E. C. Griffin.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor John H. Fox tendered to Bishop McFaul the congratulations and good wishes of the priests of the diocese and of the people following the mass.

Monsignor Fox said it would be a most interesting story and instructive lesson to review the splendid record of those fifteen years, but he would content himself by offering the sincere congratulations of the clergy and laity for the great work accomplished by the bishop and to offer him the assurance of steadfast loyalty for the future as well as hearty co-operation in all his undertakings.

Concluding his remarks, Monsignor Fox said: "Let us thank God today that after those fifteen years the bishop enjoys such splendid health, and let us pray God to give him many, many years of health and vigor to continue his magnificent work."

Bishop McFaul, in addressing the congregation, expressed his gratification at seeing such a large number present, and said he could hardly realize that he has surpassed in years the reign of Bishop O'Farrell, his distinguished predecessor.

Continuing, Bishop McFaul said that in looking over the period of his reign as bishop, and, in fact over the whole term of his priesthood, now amounting to more than thirty-two years, nearly all of which was spent in the diocese of Trenton, he could reiterate the words of Monsignor Fox and say that it was due to the fidelity, loyalty and co-operation of the priests and the people that his priestly and episcopal career has been rendered so happy. He dwelt at length on the press of the State, for which he had warm words of praise.

Speaking of the future, the bishop asserted that he saw a marvelous development for the diocese of Trenton, located as it is between New York and Philadelphia, as it was his opinion that at a day not so far distant there would be one continuous city along the sea coast from Jersey City to Cape May. In his term as bishop the population of the diocese has increased from 60,000 to 135,000.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The Glee Club held its first rehersal this afternoon in the auditorium. About forty pupils were present and Mr. Howe, the leader, is much pleased with the voices.

The sophomore class is organizing a football team to play the Juniors in the near future. There is excellent material in the class and it will be, without doubt, the strongest class team in the school.

The football team will play Pingry school at Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon. The team was beaten last year by a score of 10 to 0, but the fellows are going down this time with the intention of winning. A special car will be chartered for the school and those wishing to go will get cut rates.

The track meet which is coming off in a week will prove a great success. The entries have come in fast and already some events are filled. In the races it will be necessary to run several heats. For the winners of first places in the events medals will be awarded and ribbons for the second and third places. A gold medal will be awarded the champion of the meet.

Assistant Probation Officer.

Judge E. S. Atwater in the Union County Court, at Elizabeth, today, appointed Rev. William B. Hamilton, pastor of the Westminster Hope chapel, Elizabeth, assistant probation officer, to take the place of Major Charles Irwin, also of Elizabeth, who was appointed probation officer for the county. Mr. Hamilton was appointed today.

The Fanwood F. C. would like to arrange games with teams averaging 135 pounds. Address Albert Meyer, Scotch Plains.

THE UP-TO-DATE CONSCIENCE

Lamentable Incident That Drove "Still, Small Voice" to the Use of the Telephone.

The moral of this story may be that it is better to heed the warnings of the "still small voice" before it is driven to the use of the telephone.

A New Yory lawyer, gazing idly out of his window, saw a sight in an office across the street that made him rub his eyes and look again. Yes, there was no doubt about it. The pretty stenographer was sitting upon the gentleman's lap. The lawyer noticed the name that was lettered on the window and then searched the telephone book. Still keeping his eye upon the scene across the street, he called the gentleman up. In a few moments he saw him start violently, and take down the receiver.

"Yes," said the lawyer through the telephone, "'I should think you would start."

The victim whisked his arm from its former position and began to stammer something.

"Yes," continued the lawyer severely, "I think you'd better take that arm away. And while you're about it, as long as there seem to be plenty of chairs in the room—"

The victim brushed the lady from his lap, rather roughly, it is to be feared. "Who—who the devil is this, anyhow?" he managed to sputter.

"I," answered the lawyer in deep, impressive tones, "am your conscience!" And then he hung up.—Everybody's Magazine.

NAME THAT CAUSES A SMILE

New Yorker Would Seem to Have Real Cause of Grievance Against His Parents.

"There goes a man who would be justified in changing his name," said the city salesman. "His name is really Doe, and John in the bargain—John Doe. Moreover, he has a sister Jane. I wonder what kind of joke their parents were trying to perpetrate on those helpless mortals? Doe as a surname was bad enough, without adding to the offense by tacking on John and Jane. When I first met John Doe I did not take his name seriously. I thought the man who introduced us was enjoying a little pleasantry at my expense, or maybe at the expense of John Doe. I smiled. John Doe did not smile. I wondered just why he didn't.

"'You don't believe it,' he said, 'but unfortunately it is true. I am the famous Doe.'

"Later I met his sister Jane and the rest of that particular Doe family. They assured me that there are a number of Does in town. I presume there are, but I hope that in most cases the old folks had sense enough not to christen their offspring John and Jane."—New York Times.

Antidote for Suicide.

They tell of an Atchison girl who thought her heart was broken. She was so convinced of it that she began reading up on deadly poisons and cried softly to herself upon the thoughts of an early death. At this juncture a friend sent her a box of chocolates. She ate one; life looked a little brighter. She ate another; why not put off that death till next week? She ate a third, and forgot she ever had a trouble. All of which is proof of the claim of an Atchison physician that when people are morbid and unhappy the most effective cure is something to eat. No one, he says, can long for death while engaged in chewing something palatable. The man who talks suicide needs a beefsteak instead of advice.—Atchison Globe.

His Depressor.

He was handsome, young, talented. He had apparently everything one could wish for as a start in life, but every time he came into a room where there were mirrors he absorbed himself in contemplation of the back of his head.

"That spot is getting thinner and thinner," he complained when he called on the woman and sat down after looking at it in all the mirrors in her flat. "Don't make any difference what I do with it, it keeps on getaing larger. I've tried everything, rubbing it with kerosene, with hair tonics. Can't do a thing with it."

"It's just as well," she consoled him. "If you didn't have that little bald spot to keep you humiliated there'd be no associating with you."

Tale of a Shirt.

According to a Columbus (Ga.) report the body of Brady Grooms, a young man who was drowned in the Chattahoochee river, recently, was recovered in a remarkable manner. After searching in vain for hours, the father of the young man was advised to toss into the river one of his son's shirts and that it would sink immediately over the spot where the body lay. This was tried. The shirt drifted down the river near the bank then suddenly floated to the middle of the stream and sank. Groom's body was found with the shirt clinging to his legs.

A Bad Habit.

"Some barbers have a habit of asking a customer if he doesn't shave himself."

"What of it?"

"It ain't no business getter."

"Think not?"

"I do. Would you patronize a tailor who insinuated in a supercilious manner that you sometimes made your own clothes?"—Lousiville Courier-Journal.

ATLANTIC CITY COPS ALSO WANT MORE PAY

Claiming that it is impossible for them to keep their families comfortably on $900 a year, with the cost of living constantly increasing, 100 Atlantic City policemen are canvassing voters in behalf of the adoption of a State law increasing pay of patrolmen $50 a year until $1,000 is recahed. The question will be voted upon at the election in November.

There is exactly the same law that the Plainfield policemen asked the Common Council to take advantage of two years ago, again last year and then this year. As a last resort they secured hundreds of signatures to a petition which was presented to the Common Council, but it was decided by that body that it would not be wise to submit the question to a vote at the November election, owing to certain provisions in the law which did not seem suited, in its opinion, to Plainfield.

Although the question will not be submitted to a vote this year, the policemen are not discouraged and they will renew their efforts next year in the hope of accomplishing their fond hope.

DOESN'T WANT TO GO BACK.

Young Sailor Objects to Being Deported to Germany.

William Hornish, a young German sailor, was struck by a train at Elizabeth some months ago and was taken to the General Hospital in that city. While there he attempted to take his life by drinking poison, but recovered. He was released and was again sent back for an operation. Then he was committed to jail on the attempted suicide charge.

He was released from jail yesterday and will be deported. He declared that if the German Consul at New York does not interfere he will appeal to the Emperor.

The "Girl" and the Road Agent in David Belasco's greatest success, "The Girl of the Golden West," at which he offers at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, October 21.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The title role of David Belasco's great play, "The Girl of the Golden West," which comes to the Plainfield theatre Thursday night, is that of a favorite in a saloon and gambling room in a small mining town. She loves a highwayman and is loved by the sheriff. Her efforts to secure the safety of the man she loves, his arrest, condemnation to death and final escape furnish a series of tensely dramatic situations.

Lillian Russell, in "The Widow's Might" will be the next attraction at the Plainfield theatre appearing there on Saturday afternoon and night. Judging by the general comment of the critics during Miss Russell's run in New York, this wonderful favorite will be a surprise to her local admirers, as it is now generally recognized that she has developed into one of the most delightful and artistic light commediennes upon the English speaking stage. In her present vehicle, Edmund Day has given her the required opportunities to show her worth as an actress.

FIVE IN THIS FAMILY HAVE SAME BIRTHDAY.

The John Engel family, of Elizabeth, had a series of birthday celebrations on Saturday. Mrs. Philopena Engel observed her seventy-eighth birthday, while her daughter, Mrs. Josephine Koellhoffer, formerly of Newark, celebrated her forty-eighth natal day. Mrs. Engel's grandson, J. Francis Koellhoffer, Jr., born in Newark, was twenty-four years old on Saturday, while his youngest sister, Louise Koellhoffer, also a native of Newark, celebrated her twelfth birthday. Mrs. Philopena Engel's husband, the late John Engel, was Elizabeth's first receiver of taxes. A grandchild of Mrs. Engel, Joseph Engel, Jr., was twenty-four years old on Saturday.

ASSEMBLYMAN'S SURPRISE.

Perth Amboy, Oct. 19.—Former Assemblyman Frank Crowther, who is the Republican candidate for alderman-at-large, is receiving the praise of housewives here. In June Mrs. Crowther went to Seattle, Wash., to visit her mother, taking with her their only child. Three weeks ago she wrote naming Saturday last as the date of her arrival home. Dr. Crowther at once conceived the idea of changing his place of residence as a surprise to his wife, and he packed up and moved from Gordon street to High street.

Saturday night when Mrs. Crowther was escorted to her new home she found its contents arranged as they were in the house she left nearly four months before, even to the canary bird hanging above the potted geranium. Everything was in readiness for her to resume housekeeping without the trouble and annoyance of moving.

Metuchen Football Dance.

The Metuchen Football Club will hold its second annual dance in Robins' Hall, Metuchen, Friday night. A special auto 'bus will leave the hall for those who attend from Plainfield and vicinity. The committee comprises Dave Kramer, Harry Gilbert, Peter Kempson, Bert. Trotter. Music will be furnished by Prof. Oppie's orchestra, of New Brunswick.

Holy Cross thirds defeated Dunellen, Saturday morning, on the Cricket Field, by a score of 5 to 0. It was a hard-fought game, Dunellen outweighing the Holy Cross team. Carty, of Holy Cross, made the touchdown in the first half.

PRINCETON'S GIFT IS READY FOR USE

Princeton, Oct. 17.—Formal exercises in celebration of the opening of the new Palmer physical laboratory will be held here on the evening of October 22, in the large lecture room of the building. The laboratory is the gift of Stephen S. Palmer, a former resident of Elizabeth, and a member of the board of trustees of the university.

The building which, with its equipment, cost in the neighborhood of $650,000, is considered to be the finest of its kind in the collegiate world.

President Woodrow Wilson will formally receive the building from Mr. Palmer at the opening exercises, and Dr. Cyrus F. Brockett, representing the departments of physics and electrical engineering, will speak. The principal address will be made by Dr. Elihu Thompson, the inventor, of Boston, Mass.

After the exercises in the laboratory, the building will be open for inspection, and supper will be served to invited guests. Invitations have been sent to the trustees, faculty and friends of the university, to members of the American Physical Society, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the American Electro-Chemical Society, a large attendance being expected.

On the following day the American Physical Society will hold its regular fall meeting in the Palmer physical laboratory.

Following the scientific meetings, the Nassau Club will give a reception on Saturday, October 23, at which Senator John Kean, of Elizabeth, will be one of the guests of honor.

Other guests include Governor Fort, Mayor George B. McClellan, Senator Briggs, Judge C. C. Black, former Governor Edward C. Stokes, Frank S. Katzenbach and Congressman Ira W. Wood.

CATSUP GAVE GORY ASPECT TO A ROW.

Englewood, Oct. 19.—A bottle of catsup did bloody work in a scrap in Samuel Derlman's grocery store Saturday night. Their clothes dripping with tomato juice, the shouting contestants impressed the neighborhood with the certainty that gore was being shed regardless When the riot call had been sent in the police found it was a case for the laundry rather than the hospital.

William Small, a customer, wanted to return the catsup, which he had bought earlier in the day. He said it was spoiled. Derlman, his brother Thomas, a neighbor, Mrs. Sarah Shalinski, and George Snow, a friend of the Derlman's, protested that the catsup was all right. An effort was made to put Small out. Then Exhibit A got in its work.

The police were sent for. They gathered in the whole party, and on counter charges all were paroled for a hearing in Recorder Huckins' court.

NEW JERSEY'S PURSE FATTER.

Trenton, Oct. 19.—Notwithstanding the prediction made last winter that the close of the present fiscal year would find the State treasury with a big deficit unless the railroad tax act of 1906 was repealed or a State tax levied, it seems likely that on October 30, when the fiscal year ends, Comptroller West will be able to report a neat balance, probably close to $700,000. The financial bills passed by the last Legislature had much to do with augmenting this balance, but more than these, the figures have been brought up by receipts under the collateral inheritance tax act.

As several hundred thousand dollars are involved in the tax paid by one estate, which has brought suit to test the constitutionality of the act, there is a possibility that this money may have to be refunded out of the treasury balance should the courts find that the act is not constitutional.

Preparing Monmouth Poultry Show.

Red Bank, Oct. 19.—Although its annual show is three months off, the Monmouth Poultry Club is already making preparations for it. The exhibition will take place in the armory in Monmouth street, January 26, 27, 28 and 29. Peder J. Gisleson has been selected as superintendent of the show, and the judges will be William G. Minnich, of Carlisle, Pa.; W. C. Denny, of Rochester, and Frank H. Davey, of Yonkers. The club held its annual meeting in the Globe Hotel, last week, and elected the following officers: President, Melvin A. Rice, of Leonardo; vice-presidents, Dr. Edwin Field, of Red Bank; Dr. Robert Dickson, of Fair Haven; Carl F. Schwenker, of Red Bank; and Robert Evans, of Lincroft; secretary, P. J. Gisleson; treasurer, Alfred Schroeder; executive committee, William A. Winter, George A. Van Brunt, Dr. William Lawes, Wellington W. Kennedy, H. C. Talmage, Melvin Elston and Dr. Dickson. The membership of the club is nearly one hundred.

Policy.

Satan gloomily watched the boat unloading at the dock.

"We've got to make hell more exclusive or the best people simply won't come here any more!" he remarked, and gave orders accordingly.—Life.

A pitiful picture was Marsh, half stooped, half crouched, shuddering with horror at the thought of what he had helped to do. Frances saw and completely misunderstood his attitude. Her eyes filled with tears of sympathy. She stepped over and put her hand gently on the arm of the shuddering man.

"Mr. Bradley, I beg of you not to question Mr. Marsh any further," she pleaded. "I'm sure if Mr. Marsh knew anything about the forging he would tell you. No one knows the horrors of that accident better than he. No one could know. He had a son who was blinded in an accident"—

Her voice grew very gentle as she continued: "I was with him at his boy's bedside when he died. I know the anguish that he felt then." She let her arm slip gently around the old man's shoulder. "And I know if there was anything to tell he"—

She got no further, for, with a shuddering cry of terrible anguish, the man drew away from her arm.

"Don't," he moaned—"don't say any more! I can't stand it. I'm going to strip my soul naked to God and end this."

He stood up straight to face Bradley, no longer the frightened, shuddering coward, with a guilty secret, but a man who had done wrong and knew it, a repentant sinner eager to tell all. There was a look not merely of anguish, but almost of exaltation, on his face. Pinckney saw it and made his last desperate appeal.

"Here, Marsh!" he shouted sharply.

But the little man was past his influence now. He faced his former bully, wide eyed, unafraid, desperate.

"If you speak to me again, as there is a God above us, I will kill you where you stand!" he said in a low, tense voice of fury. Then with a quick move he reached to his pocket,

"You're a thief, Pinckney! Do you hear?"

and the watchers saw the gleam of a pistol. They did not know the little man now. He stood straight up, bold, eager, repentant.

"Listen," he said. "And any one here who values his life will let me alone. I am the inventor of the Rhinestrom patent. I know what Mr. Bradley meant about the royalty. You're a thief, Pinckney! Do you hear? A thief! Why don't you speak? Deny it if you dare, you thief!"

There was a gasp of surprise, of horror.

"You told me the royalty was to be a hundred dollars an inch. Now I find it's a thousand. That was why the patents could not be in my name—you wanted to steal. And that was why you wanted that gun of Sommers' killed, so that you could get the government to take mine—mine," he repeated, bringing his fist violently against his chest—"not Rhinestrom's, but mine! And you were to get nine times as much as me. You told me to forge that gun before Sommers came. You got Smith drunk and put him in charge of that tempering bath—you! And you know it—and I was a party to it. I stood for it. I saw the rotten work was done. And I waited, day after day, night after night—sleepless, afraid, I waited. And one day in a whisper through the works the news came. How do you think I felt since then? I am a murderer, and so are you! And you not only have that on your soul, but you would disgrace another man. The dead are enough for me." His face took on a look of awful, supernatural fear as he went on. "They whispered to me in the night, and the sightless eyes of the lad, blinded, blink at me through the darkness. And it's the face of my boy with sightless eyes accusing me. I won't stand it, I tell you. I'm going with my soul naked to the lash before my God and cry for pity and forgiveness."

Amazed, horror stricken, finally dumfounded, the listeners had hung spellbound through the terrible confession. When it was finished for one moment no one moved. Then Marsh, with a little gasping catch in his throat, turned and walked quickly out of the office, and as he went through the door they saw a gleam of his revolver. The door closed, and Bradley, the first to recover, sprang toward it, but even the quick secret service man was too late. He jerked open the door. There came a sharp report. Bradley stepped back inside and closed the door.

"He's gone," he said.

Next Pinckney, as one coming out of a daze, looked up, and the secret service man touched him sharply on the arm. Those curiously shrewd, hard eyes were looking into the eyes of the general manager, and in that look Pinckney read that the game was up.

"Will you come with me, Mr. Pinckney?" Bradley's voice was courteous, polite and cold and hard as steel. "I hope you won't make any trouble. I don't care to walk you out handcuffed before the men."

The chief conspirator, cool to the last, nodded.

"I'll come," he said curtly. Then, accompanied by Bradley and followed by Mr. Durant, he walked out coolly to the door through which Marsh had gone to death.

The stenographer already had taken her departure. Sommers and Frances were alone.

"My own!" he whispered.

The girl's arms slipped up about his neck naturally.

"Let us go away," she murmured. "Take me home."

STANDARD OIL CO. IS PRAISED BY FULLER.

In an address Sunday before the Men's Association of the First Baptist church, Bayonne, Col. Charles W. Fuller, the Bayonne legal representative of the Standard Oil Company, whose assessment has been increased $5,700,000 by Henry Hinse, assessor, declared that the big corporation is not as black as it has been painted.

He declared that between Ida Tarbell, Theodore Roosevelt, Judge Landis and Mr. Hinse, the corporation has suffered more abuse than any other corporation in the United States.

"The abuse culminated," said Col. Fuller, "when Judge Landis, in an attempt to advertise himself throughout the world, decreed that $29,000,000 fine. Everybody has slung mud at the Standard Oil Company, and without just cause.

"In North Jersey the city halls have two mottoes tacked over their doors for the benefit of the large corporations. One reads, 'Welcome to our city,' and the other 'Soc et tu um,' which translated means 'Soak it to 'em.'

"All America should be proud of the Standard Oil Company because of its honorable business methods. It is not a merciless, grasping corporation. The men who control it have the tenderest of hearts and every year spend thousands of dollars to alleviate suffering."

CALIFORNIA JUDGE PAYS VISIT TO BOYHOOD HOME.

Paterson, Oct. 19.—Judge William Patrick Lawlor, a former Paterson boy, who has risen to the judgeship of the Superior Court in San Francisco, is spending a few days in this city. He is the guest of Senator Hinchcliffe, but will go to New York in a day or two where he will make his headquarters at the Belmont Club.

Judge Lawlor presides over the court in which the San Francisco "boodlers" were tried. He sent Abraham Rueff, of that city, to prison for fourteen years. That series of trials is not yet over and when he returns to San Francisco he will have to resume the deliberations on the cases.

He is reluctant about speaking of his career, though when pressed he recalls with pleasure his struggle which led from being a bobbin boy in one of the Paterson mills to eminence on the bench. He came here in 1877 from New York and entered a mill. He went to California when he was nineteen years old, worked in the mines, studied law evenings and was appointed judge in 1898. The Superior Court in San Francisco corresponds to the Criminal Court in this State. It is in Judge Lawlor's court that Francis J. Heney, one of the men appointed by President Roosevelt to ferret out grafters, was shot during the recess of a court trial.

To Fight Street Improvement.

Englewood Cliffs, Oct. 19.—The recently organized Citizen's League, which was formed in the interests of taxpayers, has decided to employ counsel and apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari in connection with the governing body's action in deciding to macadamize Terrace avenue. It is asserted by the league's members that the improvement has been decided upon simply in the interest of certain officials. There are only twelve houses located on the thoroughfare.

Thief Robs Shoe Store Window.

Red Bank, Oct. 19.—A thief secured much plunder of boots and shoes from a show window in Dominic A. Mazza's store in Broad street, Sunday. With a brick he smashed the plate glass window, and using a stick dragged all the available footwear to the opening. The thief left the stick and brick as souvenirs of his visit.

TO DEEPEN ELIZABETH RIVER.

Senator Kean, Mayor Mravlag, City Council and Board of Trade Behind Project.

United States Senator Kean is anxious that the Elizabeth River, which is now being cleansed, be made navigable for boats of heay draught and declares that when the time is opportune he will use his influence to have the government make an appropriation for the dredging of the stream. Heartily in favor of the proposed plan of making the river a source of commercial benefit to the city is the Elizabeth Board of Trade, Mayor Victor Mravlag and practically all the members of the Elizabeth Council.

Mayor Mravlag is an enthusiastic advocate of the plan to deepen the river's channel and straighten the course of the stream. He is also in favor of the appointment of a River and Harbor Commission which was provided for cities of the size of Elizabeth under an act of the last Legislature, and which will have the power to appraise and condemn water front property.

It is expected that as soon as the river is cleansed the City Council will take up the proposition to have the river dredged and its docks and piers improved. Rapid progress is being made on the building of the intercepting sewer, which will divert all the sewage from the stream.

LICENSES TO JERSEY HUNTERS.

Five Thousand Have Papers Necessary Before Going Hunting.

More than five thousand gunners' licenses have been take out in the northern section of the State, where the season, excepting for rabbits, opened on October 15. The season for the southern half opens on November 15, which marks the beginnings of the rabbit season in all parts of the State.

For the first time in six years deer may be shot, the season being limited to the Wednesdays of November. Only one deer may be taken by a hunter, no doe or fawn may be taken no dogs may be sued in the chase and missiles larger than buchshot must not be used.

RUSTY NAIL IN HIS FOOT.

William W. Milford, superintendent of the James L. Taylor Manufacturing Company, is confined to home at Bloomfield, suffering from blood poisoning, the result of stepping on a rusty nail. The nail went through the sole of his shoe and penetrated the foot to the depth of an inch. His foot and leg are swollen to twice their natural size and the physician, Dr. Jacob S. Wolfe, fears are tetanus may set in.

Mrs. John Manley Will Sing.

FORMER PASTOR CHARGED WITH FRAUD AT WESTFIELD

William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, bondsman for the Rev. George R Francis, formerly a pastor and a licensed preacher, and charged with obtaining money under false pretenses from Jack Capitella, an Italian at Westfield, surrended him Saturday afternoon. Within a few hours Francis was again out on $2,000 bonds, furnished by his brother-in-law, John Z. Hetfield, of Fanwood. Judge Vail ordered the sheriff to take bail.

Capitella charged Francis with having obtained from him a power of attorney, on the plea that he wished to eject some undesirable tenants from Capitella's property at Westfield, but that with this power of attorney he sold the property without consulting the owner, and did not give him any of the proceeds of the sale. Capitello claimed that the first he knew of the sale was when one day he was walking across what he supposed was his own property, he was ordered off by the new owner.

Francis claimed that he was the agent of the Capital Real Estate Company, of Westfield, and that he had authority to sell the property, for which he received $4,100, and that Capitella had been paid all that was his due. The sale was made in May, 1907.

An indictment was found by the Grand Jury and the case tried in the Court of Quarter Sessions where Francis was convicted. An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court which later named Judge Whittemore of the Elizabeth District Court to hold further hearings in the case which was done last June. The evidence is now in Judge Whittemore's hands, awaiting his examination and decision.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD IN SESSION AT ATLANTIC CITY

The Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey is meeting in Olivet church, Atlantic City, for a session to run till Wednesday afternoon. Several hundred delegates were present before the convention got down to routine business today. In addition to the qualified delegates, there is in attendance a number of representatives from the various benevolent boards and societies of the church, expecting an opportunity to speak before the synod and urge the claims of their special departments.

There is considerable interest manifested as to just what form the expected protest on Atlantic City Sabbath conditions will take. The subject is to be considered at a meeting to be held this evening. The moderator of the synod, who preached last evening the annual sermon before the synod, is Rev. Dr. Davis W. Lusk, of Newark. He is being entertained at the Chalfonte, where other officers of the synod have put up.

This is the third session of the synod to be held at this resort. The pastor of Olivet church is Rev. Dr. Newton W. Caldwell, formerly of Westfield.

It is expected that some delegate of the Presbytery of Jersey City will be electd moderator to succeed Dr. Lusk, although the office may go elsewhere.

To just what extent the subject of lawlessness in local municipal centres will be discussed is as yet uncertain. There will be a meeting held tomorrow night which will be more or less of a massmeeting nature. Rev. Dr. Lusk will speak on "Conditions Confronting the Church" and the topic for discussion will be "Sabbath Observance." This, it is expected, will serve as an opening for the introduction of censure upon existing conditions in Atlantic City, for it is known that many of the delegates are not averse to denouncing the state of affairs that has made Atlantic City so unenviably prominent of late.

If the list of reports to be submitted is followed in its entirety much of the time of the three days' session will be consumed in hearing them.

Much interest is being manifested in the proceedings of the synod by local Presbyterians and members of that faith in adjacent localities, and the entertainment of the visting pastors is being provided for in a generous manner.

Pineapple Salad.

Shred two heads of lettuce as fine as you would shred cabbage for slaw. Have ready one cupful of English walnut meats, one cupful celery cut fine, one small pineapple cut into quarter-inch cubes, one cupful mayonnaise, and one cupful of whipped cream. When ready to serve in the centre of each plate scatter the lettuce, then on this sprinkle a tablespoonful of celery first, then one of pineapple, then one of nuts. Mix the mayonnaise with the whipped cream and put a tablespoonful of this on top of all. A very refreshing salad.

Must Deliver Ballot Boxes.

The Union county Board of Elections at its meeting yesterday ordered its clerk to notify all municipal clerks of the ruling of Attorney General Wilson, which provides that they must deliver the ballot boxes the day before election to the polling places.

PUBLIC SERVICE MENACE

Assemblyman E. L. Kenny Denounces the New Jersey Corporations.

BLAMES REPUBLICAN MACHINE.

Interesting Tale of Bad Legislation Due to Machine Politics—Assemblymen's Records Attacked.

Probing deep under the foundations of the Republican structure as represented by the present Legislature and swayed with the emotion of violent protest against the Public Service Corporation of Harrison, Assemblyman Edward E. Kenny presented to the members of the Democratic club of this city last night a vision of the "throttle hold," which these corporations have on the law makers of the State and revealed what he thinks is the only remedy for the conditions.

In his preamble Mr. Kenny congratulated the club on its growing numerical strength and exhorted them to work hard in the coming election for the success of the ticket. "Every man ought to use his utmost endeavor to place the control of the State in the hands of honest statesmen," he said, "and wrest the control of the State's legislation from the unscrupulous hands of the Public Service occopus." He repeated Bryan's slogan, "the people ought to rule and the people shall rule," and jumped into a scathing arraignment of the so-called State trust known as the railroad interests.

Governor Fort was quoted as being in favor of the rule of the people and his famous speech at Elizabeth, in which the machine politicians were denounced was referred to as a purely Democratic speech, and one that had lifted a veil from the faces of the politicians. Mr. Kenny said that in order to make this speech Governor Fort had hired and paid for the hall in which he delivered it all for the purpose of telling the gathering that they did not have any say in the management of the State, but that they were under the thumb of the P. S. C. And all this was with the connivance of the Republican bosses.

"In the Republican platform of 1907," he said, "it was promised that a Public Utilities Commission would be appointed with ample power to control the machinations of the Public Service companies, but this pledge has not been carried out. Attempts were made five distinct times to put through a bill drawn by Assemblyman Martin which would have accomplished the desired object, but four times in succession the bill has been killed in the Senate. Where it is now is a mystery."

Boulton and Brooks were termed mindless men, and were charged with being under the complete mastery of the Public Service corporations. The Trolley Freight bill came next. Mr. Kenny said he wanted to have that bill amended so that municipalities could have something to say in the regulation of the traffic at night, but a trio of "farmers" called upon the Governor and through these farmers the bill was allowed to pass. These were the farmers: Senator Gunn, Frank Bergen, counsel for the P. S. C., and Thomas McCarter, president of the P. S. C. That is the class of farmers who plead for the bill.

"Why was Whitney turned down when he was trying for a renomination?" asked Mr. Kenny. "Because he knew things and was working in the interests of the people and against the railroads, that's why. What happened to the bill introduced to tax the rolling stock of the railroads? It was killed in the Senate like the other measures. And why should not this bill become a law? If a man opens a store in any city or town and if he only remains there a week he will be taxed for a whole year because he is protected by the police, fire department and city government. Yet here these railroads run their cars, lay their tracks and use our streets without paying a single dollar of taxes for the privilege.

"Again, the water you drink is under the control of individuals whom you must pay. Water should be a free commodity. We once managed to get a contract for water for the trifling sum of $57 per million gallons and we tried to get a bill through so as to take advantage of this contract, but Senator Kean blocked that move in his blandest and most polite way, aided by all those who are in cahoots for the despoliation of the people. I tell you you must return Democrats to the Legislature and elect Democrats to the Senate, there will then be some hope for the people to get what they want in the way of government."

Referring to the attempted lowering of appropriations so as to show something of economy, Mr. Kenny

FORTY WILL PRESENT "THE JAPANESE GIRL"

An operetta entitled "The Japanese Girl," by Charles Vincent, is to be produced by the Cup Bearers Circle of King's Daughters under the direction of S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace P. E. church on December 9 and 10. The soloists for the different parts have not yet been selected, but the chorus of forty voices is now preparing for the presentation of the work and it will be given with a scrupulous regard for the best musical artistry.

The work of the King's Daughters is to be helped by the proceeds of these entertainments, especially that of supporting a trained nurse among the poor of this city. It is needless to say that under Mr. Smith's direction this musical treat will receive the most careful preparation. It is to be sung entirely by women

YOUNG HEBREWS FORM A STATE ORGANIZATION

At a housewarming at the new home of the Y. M. H. A. on Grove street last night, A. Sigmund Kanengeiser, secretary of the Newark Y. M. H. A., made the first public announcement of the incorporation of an organization to be known as the Young Men's Hebrew Associations of New Jersey, with headquarters at 156 Market street, Newark, which will place the Y. M. H. A. branches of the State on the basis of lodges. The idea is to make the branches subordinate lodges, with the supreme lodge at the headquarters in Newark, said Mr. Kanengeiser. A uniform ritual and password will be given each Y. M. H. A. in the state and each branch will be conducted as a portion of a fraternal order.

The evening was started with a dance, arranged by an entertainment committee consisting of Samuel Rothberg, Max W. Goldstein, Meyer D. Moldezky, David J. Wolfe, A. H. Richards, Morris L. Abrams and Samuel R. Meyers. After the dance Mr. Kanengeiser told of the new State society. He stated that the incorporators of the society in Plainfield were Abraham Victorson, Arthur H. Richards and Samuel Rothberg. He announced an open meeting of the organization to be held in Newark on November 7, when temporary supreme officers are to be elected. Rev. Dr. Solomon Foster, of Newark, will preside.

Israel Redling, vice-president of the Newark Y. M. H. A., rendered a variety of popular airs, accompanied by Miss Lena Kline, of this city, at the piano.

The dance last night was a strictly invitation affair. Music was furnished by a 5-piece orchestra, and the Hebrew Associations of Newark, Elizabeth and Passaic had representatives present; as had the Young Men's Clubs of Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and Metuchen. Guests were also present from New York, Brooklyn, Bound Brook and Somerville. Refreshments were served at midnight.

Y. W. C. A. BUSY SEASON IS WELL UNDERWAY.

The educational classes at the Young Women's Christian Association opened on Monday evening with a gratifying attendance. Some of the classes in domestic science were so large that many members had to be turned away. The able instructor, Miss Farrell, who had charge of the work last year, will continue teaching this year. The attendance in the gymnasium department is increasingly large.

One of the attractions of the week is a reading announced for tomorrow evening on "Vanity Fair," and slections from some other of Thackery's works by Mrs. Robert Lowry. At the close of the reading Mr. Frank Bostwick will meet members of the association who desire to pursue a course in stencilling and leather work. Another popular "get ready for Christmas" class will be a course in the making of raffia bags, which will begin next week.

William E. Moore, of New Rochelle, assistant counsel to the State Comptroller in Westchester county, N. Y., yesterday completed his examination of the large estate left by the late Mrs. Eva S. Cochran, of Yonkers, who left millions to charitable institutions and relatives and gave many thousands to employees and friends. Mrs. Cochran was the mother of Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, of West Eighth street.

The estate will pay the State of New York a transfer tax of more than $100,000 it is said.

Mr. Moore finds that the total value of the personal property which is taxable by the State is $8,238,738.44, divided up as follows: Bonds, $6,243,655; stocks, $1,268,016; mortgages, $42,000; miscellaneous personal property, $584,457.44. The total value of the real estate owned by Mrs. Cochran is fixed at $338,500.

The expense of administration of the estate is $50,000 and the executors' commissions amount to $30,000.

Men, women and children flocked around to bid a sad and loving farewell to those who have been friends indeed to the Park avenue church, both as a body and as individuals. Travelers notes, to be read at intervals on the way, and other gifts were proffered as tokens of the great good feeling existing between pastor and people.

COURT ORDERS RELEASE OF THEODORE D. WILSON

Justice Voorhees, at Trenton, yesterday, filed an opinion in the Supreme Court setting aside the arrest of Theodore D. Wilson, formerly of this city, and later of Asbury Park, and dismissed the order placing him under $10,000 bail to answer a civil suit instituted by Malcolm Hufty, formerly of Washington. Mr. Hufty charged Wilson with alienating his wife's affections and had him placed under bail to answer a declaration in a suit for $50,000 damages in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Wilson, who served one term as a member of the Common Council, was arrested more than a week ago while on a train en route to Philadelphia, on the complaint of Mr. Hufty, who alleged that he had been guilty of alienating the affections of the latter's wife. In default of bail Mr. Wilson was placed in the jail at Freehold. Bail was fixed at $10,000. Justice Voorhees yesterday signed the order placing him under bail and set aside the arrest. Mr. Wilson has been living in New York, where he is engaged in business as a broker.

FOR LAWS' ENFORCEMENT

Demand That Liquor and Amusement Laws Be Obeyed.

TO PROTECT PUBLIC MORALS.

Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough Dedicates Roselle Altar at Convocation's Meeting.

Episcopal clergymen and laymen of prominence from this section of the State attended the convocation of New Brunswick, held in St. Luke's church, Roselle, yesterday, and unanimously adopted a resolution pledging the support of the convocation to ministers of all denominations in an effort to secure a strict enforcement of the laws as to amusements and the sale of liquor.

This action followed an address by Rev. John C. Lord on the topic, "Some Present Dangers to the Morals of the Young." The paper was considered one of the best yet offered. It treated the question of saloons, especially the back rooms, all kinds of theatrical amusements, particularly those of the cheap variety, which appeal to the baser nature of the young, as well as older persons.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson and Rev. Dr. Gifford, of Elizabeth, told of the great amount of work accomplished by them in Elizabeth in this direction and their words of encouragement enthused the convocation. The resolution carried with it provisions that the clergy be permitted to go into theatres and saloons with a view to learning actual conditions, and that the convocation give its united support to all clergy in an united effort to suppress illegal acts.

The convocation met at 10:30 o'clock in the morning with the celebration of Holy Communion, and then followed the reports of the secretary and treasurer of the convocation, the mission work of the diocese, the work at the Associate Mission at Trenton. Luncheon was served at noon in the Roselle Casino, about sixty clergymen and lay delegates being present. Rev. George A. Warner, of the Church of the Holy Cross, was the only representative from Plainfield.

In the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. John C. Lord presented his paper which was followed by an interesting informal discussion. Among other things considered as dangers to the morals of the young, were postcards and various kinds of literature.

At the opening of the evening session, Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough, Bishop of the Diocese of New Jersey, dedicated the new altar at St. Luke's church, which was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. MacQuoid, of Roselle.

Afterward there were two addresses, one by Rev. Mr. Sadtler, of the Associate Mission at Trenton, and the other by Rev. Dr. Gilman, a missionary in China, who is home on a leave of absence. Both addresses were of unusual interest. The meeting adjourned about 10 o'clock, last night. The next convocation will be held at Metuchen in January.

IDENTIFIES HIS ASSAILANTS.

Adolph Snyder Recognizes Two Men in Jail in Elizabeth.

Adolph Snyder, of West Jersey street, Elizabeth, has identified the two men in jail in that city for assaulting him on Sunday morning as he was going to his barn. He was struck on the head with an axe and a blanket thrown over him. The men then fled. The injury did not prove serious, and Snyder reported the matter to the police.

The men are Bertrand Wilbur and Henry Benrick, negroes, both of whom gave their residence as Newark.

The trip was made in Mr. Ostrom's Matheson car without a mishap.

Men's Club Changes Quorum.

The Men's Club of Hope chapel held a business meeting at the chapel last night. An amendment reducing the quorum from seven to five was submitted. It will be voted upon at the next meeting to be held on Tuesday night, November 2. A failure to secure a quorum was given as the reason for submitting the amendment.

CHAPEL SUPERINTENDENT ENTERTAINS TEACHERS

Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Condict, of 922 Central avenue, entertained a number of the officers and teachers of the Hope chapel Sunday-school, last night, at their home. Plans were discussed regarding Sunday-school work at the chapel. Mr. Condict urged the attendance of all present at the annual convention of the Union County Sunday-school Association at Cranford tomorrow.

Among those present were Mrs. E. W. Williams, Mrs. G. Herbert Condict, Miss Marion Hutchinson, Miss Louise Andrews, Mrs. P. B. Cregar, Mrs. L. R. Howard, Frederick H. Andrews, Peter C. Sweeny, John Leals, G. Stuart Simons, William Doig, Arthur C. Maclay and G. Herbert Condict. Refreshments were served during the evening.

LUTHER SHEPPARD WEDS MISS MARJORIE COLLINS

Beneath a bower of chrysanthemums and smilax, Miss Marjorie Morse Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Collins, and Luther L. Sheppard, of this city, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, 520 Pacific street, Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony was attended by a number of relatives and friends from Fanwood, Brooklyn, New York and this city. Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, this city, officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was that worn by her mother at her wedding, and was of white satin and moire en train, trimmed with handmade lace, and her veil was of tulle caught up with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums.

The maid of honor was Miss Mazie E. Collins, of Westfield, cousin of the bride, who wore a gown of yellow satin messaline and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were the Misses Edna and Florence Aubrey, who wore yellow silk mulle. They also carried large bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. Miss Helen E. Garretson, niece of the groom, was flower girl. She carried a basket of yellow chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Rowland Rockfellow, of this city, as best man. The ushers were William I. Beckert, of New York, Lester R. Radford, of this city, and Elmer V. Young, of Brooklyn. The page, Malcolm Dunn Sheppard, nephew of the groom, carried the ring on a silver salver. Music was furnished by Austin's orchestra.

The usual gifts were exchanged among the wedding party, and after the ceremony a reception was held during which congratulations and best wishes were showered upon the happy couple, and a collation served. The house was tastefully decorated with schrysanthemums, palms and smilax, yellow being the predominating color. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and costly gifts, useful as well as ornamental.

Upon their return from a southern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard will take up their residence at 281 Clermont avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., where they will be "at home" after November 1.

The groom is a graduate of the Plainfield High School, class of 1903, and is well known. He holds a responsible position in the executive offices of the Remington Typewriter Company in New York. The bride is a former resident of Fanwood and will be remembered by her large circle of friends there.

ENTRIES FOR RACE MEET

Greatest Event Yet Scheduled by the Watchung Hunt Club.

TAKES PLACE ON SATURDAY.

Five Events in All Announced, Including Two Steeplechase and Three Flat Races.

The entries for the fall race meet of the Watchung Hunt Club, to be held Saturday afternoon at the club's grounds on Plainfield avenue, indicate that it will be most successful. In the third race, an open event, eleven entries have been received and it will be necessary to make a division of the horses. There will be five events in all, two steeplechase and three flat, and judging by the entries everyone will be closely contested. It is expected that this meet will equal in interest and sport the annual event in the spring.

The stewards of the meeting are J. Searle Barclay, Jr., Charles Pfizer, Edwin S. Hooley, Daniel Runkle, Frederick Lewisohn and H. L. Herbert. The judges will be R. Lawrence Smith, Harry S. Page and William C. Cammann. Frederick W. Jones, Jr., will be the paddock judge and James McAvoy the starter.

In addition to the interest in the meet there will be the usual luncheons, dinners and other social features at the clubhouse. The entries are as follows:

First race—For galloways, flat; three furlongs. Yellow Boy, Whirlwind, Fancy, Mary Delaney, Ranger, Hammond Lass.

Second race—Steeplechase; three miles. Essex B., Harry Baylor, Prince Henry, Tobosa.

Third race—Open; six furlongs. Ardinia, Malaga, Adele C., Blue Law, Mi Careme, Hugh Wynee, Pulky, Genesee, Hammond Lass, Prince Cning.

Fourth race—Hunters' steeplechase; three miles. Adjutor, Sue, Rifle, Rosebank, Borderland, Modest.

Fifth race—Hack and hunter race; 1½ miles. Al. Woods, Hogan, Borderland, Aurumaster, Rosebank.

The entries will close today and doubtless others will be added to the already strong list. "Ranger," entered in the first race, is owned by August Belmont, and his performances in the past should guarantee one of the best events of the day.

According to the usual custom, the farmers, over whose lands the members hunt during the season, will be extended the courtesies of the club and be admitted free to the races.

The race committee comprises C. E. S. Bellows, chairman; Charles J. Wildey, Jr., Charles W. Fisk, Lewis E. Waring and Rufus C. Finch.

RAHWAY HAS FOUR TYPHOID FEVER VICTIMS.

With four cases of typhoid and four cows put to death for being tubercular victims at the Rahway Reformatory, the State Board of Health has been called to take the matter up with an idea of preventing an epidemic at the institution.

The typhoid matter was reported to the board some time ago, and an investigation made. After the investigation of the institution the cattle were inspected, and the discovery made of the tubercular cows in the stables. The cows were killed and their bodies buried in an isolated spot.

About a year ago there was an epidemic of diphtheria at the institution and the place was quarantined for a time. This is the first since then that any illness of a serious character has occurred at the institution.

Plans were approved for the new sewage disposal plant at Chelsea, a part of Atlantic City.

PRINCETON UNIV. MEN TAKE THE RHODES TEST.

Qualifying examinations for scholarships in New Jersey under the Rhodes bequest were commenced at the Free Public library at Trenton yesterday and were continued today. Nine men, all from Princeton, are taking the examinations, the results of which will not be known until the papers are examined in England. Formerly Rutgers' men competed, but this year the men are all from Princeton. The examinations are being conducted by Professor William Gillespie, of Princeton, and Professor Mulford, of Rutgers College.

The selection of scholars will be completed before the end of January, 1910, and the elected scholars will begin their residence at Oxford in October of the same year.

The scholarships are of the value of 300 pounds a year, this to be paid quarterly. The first payment will be made at the beginning of the Michaelmas term.

Enthusiastic Selling of New Fall Millinery

Fall trade has opened briskly in our Millinery Department. Since the season opened we've sold more hats than ever before in the same period. This proves that more and more women are recognizing the fact that our varieties, styles and values are far superior to any others offered in Plainfield. At no other store in the city will you find such wide and satisfactory selection, such smart, beautiful and becoming styles as we show here, and comparison will prove that Our Prices are Fully 25 per cent. Less than those of other Plainfield stores. Many charming new models are constantly being added to the display, and today the showing is at the height of variety and completeness. Don't fail to visit this Department before buying a new hat.

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

ISN'T THAT FAIR?

EASY CREDIT 6 months, 1 year, or 1½ year's time to pay—or 10 per cent off for cash.

The Old Bureau and the Missing Will

An illustration of some of the difficulties which may arise in the administration of an estate is found in the following case, which was mentioned in the daily papers recently.

STRANGELY COME TO LIGHT.

Will and Valuables of Dead Man in Secret Place in Discarded Bureau.

A second-hand furniture dealer while going over an old-fashioned bureau which he bought a few days ago from Mrs. H., widow of John R. H., came upon a secret compartment filled with papers.

Mr. H. was a wealthy man and was secretary of a company in Newark. After his death no will could be found, and although it was known that he carried life insurance policies they could not be located.

The compartment discovered contained the will, life insurance policies and stock in telephone and telegraph companies. The will gives all of the deceased man's property, real and personal, to the widow.

When it is taken into consideration that this means AN ENTIRE REDISTRIBUTION OF THE ESTATE, with its CONSEQUENT DELAY AND EXPENSE, one wonders why the will was not simply and safely lodged in a SAFE DEPOSIT BOX in the first place.

When the

is named as Executor, not only is the preparation of the Will itself a matter of concern, but its safe keeping as well.

"Come in and Talk It Over."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The Irish amateur golf championship tournament has this year been won by an Irishman, Lionel O. Munn, and every golfer on the Emerald Isle is happy. As a rule, either an Englishman or a Scotsman has carried away the title, and with players of the calibre of John Ball and H. H. Hilton making a holiday outing of the championship, this is not to be wondered at. Several of the leading British golfers did not enter the lists this year, but the field was strong enough to reflect the highest credit on the son of Erin for his success. Munn had some hard matches, but played a sound game, and has won the respect of some of the best golfers on the other side. His driving is said to be clean, straight and powerful. Last year America had a representative in this tournament, Douglas Grant, then of Yale. Grant went far into the match play, and caused some confusion by coming straight from there to the fall event of the Atlantic City Golf Club as a member of a golf club in Richmond, England.

The program of the Country Club for the Atlantic City tournament on November 4, 5 and 6 has been prepared by the committee—Walter E. Edge, J. Haines Lippencott, Frederick S. Sherman and Frederick C. Robbins. The qualification round on November 4 will last all day at eighteen holes for a low score prize and to qualify in any of five sixteens. There will be a cup and a runnerup prize in each. The first sixteen qualify for the governors', second for the President's, third for the Atlantic City, fourth for the Northfield and fifth for the Absecon cup. All the match play will be at eighteen holes, the first and second rounds on November 5 and semi-final and final on November 6.

There will be consolation events for all the beaten eights of the first round, so that all attending the tournament will have an opportunity for competition during the entire three days and on Saturday an eighteen hole medal play handicap to which all are eligible. Tournament entries close on November 3 and for the handicap at the first tee. Excepting the low score prize of the qualification round a contestant may win but one prize. All prizes become the property of the winner without further competition. There are sixteen cups to be played for and two gold medals.

said the only thing they could find to lower was the appropriations for schools, which they did in the sum of $450,000. They (the Republicans) tried to take away from the National Guard the paltry $35,000 a year necessary for the maintaining of the real second line of the nation's defence, but this was frustrated by the united efforts of the men who stand for press in the Senate. To cap the climax they attempted to withdraw the money devoted to the maintenance of the old soldiers home, something that every one of them ought to be heartily ashamed of, but they were beaten again.

In conclusion Mr. Kenny paid his respects to Mr. Pierce in no uncertain terms and urged every man present to use his influence to bring Republicans into the right way of thinking and voting.

Frank Halliday, nominee for the assembly from Union spoke along lines of greater enthusiasm in work for the entire Democratic ticket and pleaded with the young men to go out and work for all the candidates, doing such missionary work as they would do if they were all church wokers. W. E. Tuttle, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee, also addressed the meeting.

LINBARGER FORMALLY DECLINES NOMINATION

Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, who received the nomination from the Democrats of the borough has, come out with a written declination of the honor which he says is purely because of business reasons. Mr. Linbarger is in all things modest and while he is and has been willing to sacrifice personal ambition to the demands of his party he cannot at the present time see his way clear to accept the honors that have been thrust upon him and says so in the following letter to the clerk of the borough:

"To the voters of the Borough of North Plainfield: At the primaries recently held in the borough of North Plainfield I was honored with the nomination for Mayor on the Democratic ticket. I am not insensible of the honor conferred upon me and I regret exceedingly that I am compelled for various reasons to decline, with thanks, the nomination.

"I desire to publicly acknowledge my deep gratitude to my many Democratic and Republican friends who have so graciously volunteered their hearty support should I decide to remain a candidate. Trusting this declination will be received in the spirit in which it is made, I am, yours truly, (signed) Walter C. Linbarger."

Mr. Linbarger said this morning that he was declining to run against the wishes of many of his friends, both Republicans and Democrats, but that under the pressure of private business interests he is forced to decline the responsibility.

TWENTY HOURS OF TALK; WILLIAM JEFFERY'S WORK

William Jeffery, president of the Circles on the Square, of Warren Township, is going to stir things up some next week, when on Wednesday, a week from today, he will devote twenty consecutive hours to the task of urging the voters of the township to defeat Joel Codington at the coming election in that township. Mr. Jeffery will continue the vigorous campaign he has begun until the candidates whom he favors are elected. He has unlimited faith in the common sense of the people and believes that the recent disclosures made will have a large influence in determining the outcome on November 3.

Mr. Jeffery will duplicate his performance on other days of the coming week and will urge the election of Zergeibel for freeholder and Binz for Township Committee. Some of the campaign literature of the Circles on the Square is original, consisting of postal cards containing riddles and jingles which are at once funny and illustrative of the motives of the Circles.

There will be initiation at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., tomorrow night.

Miss Marie Jones, of Jersey City, has returned home after spending several days with friends here.

Special Sale Suits

Two women examined our suits yesterday. They were looking for suits that would not cost over $20.00. They spied a rich broadcloth suit, and one of the women asked to try it on.

It almost fitted—but she groaned, as she said: "I suppose I've picked out a $40.00 suit and I don't want to pay over $20.00."

To her amazement the price tag read $19.95. There never has been a richer assortment of suits for women and misses in our store than now. Never have such suits sold at such prices—suits that compare even to the highest detail with fine custom tailor's work, are $15.00, $20.00, $25.00, $30.00, $35.00, $40.00 and $50.00. And we make them fit so well that they are mistaken over and over again for custom made suits.

Yet we have Suits worth 15.00 for as little as - - - 9.98

An elegant Suit, worth 20.00, at - - - - 12.98

Suits sold elsewhere for 25.00, special here at - 15.00

Styles that are making all Plainfield talk, for such suits were never sold at such prices before.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

William Sanford, Republican candidate for mayor of Dunellen, is waging a warm campaign for the office, although he has not reached the kissing-the-babies stage of the game yet. He announcees that he will make no promises or pledges to anyone, but that if he is elected he will do his duty to the best of his ability and will be a mayor to Dunellen's own taste.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lauritzen, who were married here Saturday night, left last night for Trenton on a wedding trip. The bride was formerly Miss May Sullivan, of Summit, and the groom is a motorman on the main line between Bound Brook and Newark. On their return they will reside in Lincoln.

Rev. George H. Gardiner, Superintendent J. M. B. Pryatt, W. Piddington and W. E. Nelson have been appointed a committee to arrange for the observance of Bible Day at the Sunday school of the First Baptist church on Sunday, November 14.

Charles Starker, the Democratic nominee, is confident of his election, but he is taking no chances and is conducting a live campaign himself. So Dunellen is rather in the throes of an exciting election and the result is awaited with interest.

Miss Ethel Garretson, of Dunellen, is in Newark today and will be in New York tomorrow. She will return here Friday.

Mrs. Ogden Meeker entertained the members of the G. E. club at her home in Plainfield, last night.

An addition is being built to the eastern front of the Stillwagon hotel.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Registry Board meet Tuesday, October 26, in the town rooms to revise and correct the registry for the November election. This will be the last opportunity to register.

The newly organized Fanwood Field Club football team plays its first game Saturday afternoon, when it meets the Roselle High School team on the latter's grounds.

Marshal Logan, of the borough, picked up a boys' bicycle on South avenue several nights ago. The wheel had evidently been abandoned by some one.

James Fitzgerald has resigned his position with the Eastern Bottling Co., of Plainfield, to take a position at his trade with Louis Noul, the plumber.

A number from here attended the concert given by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra last night in the Association hall, Plainfield.

Mrs. Samuel Taynor, who has been visiting friends at Cranford, has returned home.

Miss Cora Miller has returned from a visit with out-of-town friends.

NEW PROVIDENCE.

Richard Jeffery, son of William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, who was accidentally shot by his brother Fred in the leg while at target practise one week ago last Saturday, came home yesterday from Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, fully recovered.

Mrs. Louise Stryker, formerly of Whipany, but now of Summit, returned home yesterday, after a three weeks' stay with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Genung.

Mrs. Harry O. Short and daughter Thelma, of Mt. Olive, after spending the past two weeks with Mrs. Short's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Peck, returned home yesterday.

Mrs. Joseph E. Bailey and granddaughter, Lola M. Bailey, after a week's stay with Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus B. Lamberson, returned yesterday to Keyport.

Mrs. H. Wahl, postmistress of Berkeley Heights, is suffering at her residence with an attack of nervous prostration.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

"Our Mission Station in Tokio, Japan," will be the subject of the prayer-meeting at the First Presbyterian church tonight. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, will be in charge.

At the regular midweek meeting at the Congregational church this evening the subject will be "Personal Relation to Christ" in chapters from the letter of experimental religion, Phillipians 1: 21.

G. P. Hinman, of this city, will conduct the Christian Endeavor Society meeting at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Friday night. His topic will be "Why Some Men and Women Never Succeed." There will be special music.

FAIR LILLIAN'S GOWNS ARE AMERICAN MADE

"It must not be understood because I wear Parisian gowns in my present comedy," says Miss Lillian Russell, who appears here on Saturday night in 'The Widow's Might,' "that I have receded one step from an original regard for American made clothing," in discussing her wearing apparel, personal and stage costumes being embraced in the list.

"I have maintained for some time, and see no reason to alter that opinion, that the workmanship in this country is vastly superior to any that can be found on the European side of the Atlantic. People who are in the habit of purchasing Parisian gowns will bear me out in this, I am sure. Of course Paris sets the styles of the world. That has been so long recognized as a fact that it has become a habit. Here, however, its usefulness ends. I never purchased a gown over there that I did not have to make over or materially alter and improve after getting home.

"For a good many seasons I have paid the annual visit to Paris but have always while there worn my home made clothing, and I do so still. In the street clothing and personal effects that I own you will not find an imported gown. I like the work and the results over here much better and satisfaction is the principal aim in dressing, so my needs are supplied.

"Some of the critics in New York raised a question of my sincerity in this direction when it was made known that in 'The Widow's Might' I wear imported gowns. The character I portray is a woman of present tendencies and it is natural to suppose that she wears Paris dresses. To fill the picture in a realistic sense I ordered my stage dresses from Callot while in Paris. These were imported at a heavy cost and in addition there was the full tariff to be paid on them, for believe me the days of slipping through the Customs officials when you dock in this country are over. But it is a matter of record that I only paid the duty on the stage gowns I brought back with me and aside from this my custom fees would not have purchased a sandwich for a butterfly."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Girl of the Golden West," written, staged and presented by David Belasco, will be the offering at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night. The play has been one of the few truly great successes in New York, continuing through the winter and spring months, it crowded the Belasco theatre at every performance until late midsummer, when the company was given a fortnight's vacation. The engagement was resumed in August and up to the very time of the company's departure from New York the nightly audiences were as large and as commendatory as those during the first weeks of the play in the metropolis. This was followed later in the season with four weeks at the Academy of Music to record-breaking audiences. "The Girl of the Golden West" is a four act play of California in the days of '49, written by Mr. Belasco and produced in person by him.

Lacas, Jr., and Mrs. J. H. Vail, as guests. The names of the last two named, were proposed for membership.

"FLOWERLAND" CAST IS UNNSUALLY LARGE

Miss Bertie K. Shipley the unique entertainer, who will present "Flowerland" with one hundred Plainfield children in the cast, at Hope chapel Friday and Saturday nights of this week, is related to both Daniel Boone and Abraham Lincoln through her father, the late Dr. E. S Shipley, of Athens, Tenn. Her great grandfather was a co-worker with Patrick Henry, of Virginia, and her grandfather an orator in the cause of Henry Clay, of Kentucky.

Miss Shipley is a story teller and orator, the traditions of America's old orators being handed down to her through her people. Being a daughter of the Buckskin Knights of America, she has chosen their costume in which to tell her original stories of Tennessee, North Carolina and Kentucky. She wears the coonskin cap and the buckskin suit, the style of dress adopted by Daniel Boone, Davy Crockett and Abraham Lincoln.

Miss Shipley has appeared before the most distinguished audiences in churches, chautauquas, societies and assemblies. She is the directress of "Flowerland" which is to be given as noted above.

The Council of Hapton, Hunterdon county, will ask the State Railroad Commission to order the Jersey Central Railroad to construct a wider bridge across its tracks at main street. The present bridge is but sixteen feet wide.

The body of Joseph Wheelock, the actor, who died suddenly in the Broadway Hotel, Paterson, last Saturday, was claimed by a brother of the man, who Monday sent an undertaker from New York to get the body from Vermeulen's morgue.

The annual conference of the New Jersey Methodist Protestant church began today in the First church, Bridgeton. Rev. L. D. Stultz, the president, will preside, and it is expected that he will be re-elected without opposition. There are likely to be more important changes in pastorates than for years. President Stultz, who has been pastor of the First church, Newark, fourteen years, is demanded by several other influential churches, but is expected to be returned.

Plans of Atlantic City Council and business bodies of the resort to carry to Broad street station a united demand for the restoration of the six-month commutation tickets over the Pennsylvania lines to the seashore, took shape Monday, when President C. D. White selected H. J. Dynes, of the Raleigh; William Hanstein, Royal Palace, and Albert T. Bell, Chalfonte, to represent the Hotel Men's Association in a protest committee of twelve. President Carmany, of the Council; President Buzby, of the Board of Trade, and President Salus, of the City Business League, will appoint similar committees at once.

Seeking a divorce from his thirty-one-year-old wife, on the ground of desertion, John W. Davis, sixty-seven years old, alleges that she remained away from home for twenty-three days. Vice-Chancellor Leaming heard the case in Camden yesterday. The couple were married September 6, 1906, and located at Beverly. Two weeks after the honeymoon, Davis alleges, his young spouse wanted him to dispose of everything he had, but he declined because he had spent most of his days in the place. He claims that he made an effort to please his bride, but it seemed impossible. Davis also claims that during his absence his wife and her sister caused much of the furniture to be removed from the house.

MANY ARE INDICTED; REGISTRATION ARREST.

The Union County Grand Jury for the October term went into court yesterday and presented to Judge Atwater twenty-three bills of indictment. The jury has not finished its labors. It will be called upon to investigate several charges of alleged illegal registration frauds in the city at the direct primary election.

James Hayes was arrested Monday on a charge of fraudulent registration in the First ward and was taken before Police Justice James P. Kelly, who held him in $500 bail to await the grand jury's action.

John J. Collins, president of the Elizabeth Board of Fire Commissioners became the prisoner's bondsman. While the arrest of Hayes is known to be an outcome of the fierce factional fight for alderman in the First ward between Jeremiah H. Leary, independent Democrat, and Jeremiah J. McNamara, "regular" Democrat, it is claimed there are a number of other cases in various wards of the city that will be called to the notice of the grand jury.

A New Back for an Old One—How It Is Done in Plainfield.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the lions are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Follow the example of this Plainfield citizen.

Albert Naylor, 519 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several years ago I was afflicted with a dull ache in the small of my back and sharp pains darted through me when I stooped or lifted. I was told that Doan's Kidney Pills were a sure cure for such troubles and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began their use. Two boxes of this remedy fixed me up in good shape and I have often recommended it since to other persons suffering as I did."

For Goodness' Sake

By CLIFFORD HOWARD

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

When I picked up the pocketbook which I found lying on the sidewalk within a few steps of the house, I said to myself: "For goodness' sake!"

I opened the pocket-book as soon as I got to my room, because I wanted to discover, if possible, to whom it belonged. Yet, at the same time, it was so truly feminine in its daintiness, and so distinctly suggestive of privacy in its tight silver clasp and its delicate fragrance of heliotrope, that, had it not been for my habitually rosy face, I think I should have blushed with the guilty conscience of a Peeping Tom as I prepared to pry into its guarded contents.

I discovered, first, a small bunch of dress-goods samples; and two or three of them were really rich and charming bits of fabrics. Then I found a dollar bill and two quarters, and a hair pin, and a book of postage stamps. There was no token of the owner's identity in any of these trifles; so I went further and fished out a tally lead pencil, a street car transfer, a silver glove-buttoner, a latch key, a programme of a Strauss concert, and a prescription—to be taken in half a glass of water before each meal. After that I discovered a piece of poetry. It was very neatly folded and occupied a pocket by itself. It looked as though it had been clipped from a magazine. If I remember correctly, it was entitled "Some Day," and ran something like this:

I know not when; I know not how nor where;
I know not if the day be far or nigh.
I only know, thro' faith in answered prayer,
That some day we shall meet, my Love and I.

I felt at once that the sentiment of the clipping reflected the personality of the clipper. It told me she was still young and heart-free; that she was a refined, gentle soul, in whom the romantic was artistically blended with emotional culture, and that her disposition was thoughtful and sensitive, if not actually angelic.

For a moment I feared that that was all I was destined to learn about her, for it seemed to me that I had by this time exhausted the contents of the purse. But this was merely because of my ignorance of the anatomy of a feminine pocketbook, as is shown by my unexpectedly fumbling into another compartment. And here it was that I came upon the clew for which I was searching. Turning up the flap that concealed its resting place, I found a small card on which was inscribed in particularly graceful chirography:

Bertha Gillmore,
1472 Euclid Place.

For some occult reason, that name Bertha appealed to me. It seemed to associate itself at once in the most natural way with the poetry and the seductive odor of heliotrope and fresh leather, and with the patrician style and good breeding that belongs to the aristocratic neighborhood of Euclid place.

The consciousness that I had found Bertha Gillmore's pocketbook exhilarated me. I don't pretend to know why, but, somehow, I had a feeling that Fate was at work; that I was drawing close to my affinity. Were I a Theosophist, I should probably have understood it. As it was, however, I did not attempt to analyze my emotions. I simply became eveloped with the idea that perhaps it was I for whom Bertha was waiting; and that perhaps—ah me; perhaps it was Bertha for whom, all unconsciously, I had been waiting during these lonely years of unsatisfied bachelorhood.

So I made up my mind I would call at 1472 Euclid place that very evening and return Bertha Gillmore's pocketbook to her. And as I arranged myself in a choke collar and swallow-tails I conjured up alluring pictures of Bertha, in each of which she had nut-brown hair and lustrous blue eyes, soft and child-like, that gazed into mine with a light of soulful understanding.

Timing my departure so that I might reach her house about quarter of nine, I sallied forth into the winter's night, caparisoned with buff-colored spats and a rosebud boutonniere, and carrying my silver-handled walking stick, which, by the way, I found of much service in keeping myself upright on the icy sidewalks.

As I had anticipated, the house was a handsome one, set well back from the street and fronted by a terraced lawn. A flight of broad stone steps led up to the doorway.

The bell was an electric one, and when I withdrew my finger after pressing it, it continued to ring. The push-button had evidently stuck; and I said to myself: "For goodness' sake!"

It was a very loud bell. I don't think I had ever before heard quite so loud a one.

I picked at the button with my gloved fingers, but it refused to come out. Then I jabbed it with my cane, and that seemed to make it worse. So I pulled my silk hat well over my ears—for the wind was blowing a perfect gale up there—and went at the push-button with both hands. I thought perhaps I might be able to wrench the socket off and in that way release the button. But just as I was getting a hold on it a lady opened a window in the third story and poured a pitcher of water on me.

I called up to her that she had made a mistake. I told her I was doing the best I could; that if she would only have patience I would explain. But she wouldn't listen to a word I said, and I think, too, she must have been near-sighted, for she broke right in upon my remarks and told me that I was a naughty, naughty boy, and that if I didn't stop ringing that bell she would call a policeman.

Then I heard somebody on the lower floor calling for "Bruno," and insisting that it was a perfect outrage.

Really, I felt awfully mortified. It was the first time anything of the kind had ever happened to me, and I particularly regretted that it should have occurred at Bertha's home. I realized keenly that I ought to do something decisive at once; so I grasped my cane in the middle and aimed a desperate blow at the push-button. But just as I swung back my arm a light suddenly shone in the glass panel of the door, there was a galloping noise, as of a human being and a quadruped coming along the hall, regardless of the umbrella stand, and amid the snarls of a dog an elderly gentleman could be heard announcing his intentions of breaking somebody's neck.

So I said to myself: "For goodness' sake!" and the dispatch with which I got down to the sidewalk was a revelation. I didn't know that I had it in me to be so nimble.

I had barely reached the bottom when the cross man let the dog out and told him to "sic" me and "chew the pants off" me. At the same time he flung a stick of wood after me, and made use of a very ungracious expression.

I can understand why he might have liked to hit me with the stick, but I am at a loss to know why he should have wanted the dog to treat me so shabbily. I certainly had not done anything to the dog.

I thought it best to run all the way home. It was only a matter of a few blocks anyhow, and I planned to get into the back alley and jump the fence. I was worried, though, to know how I was going to get around the corner at Butternut street. It is no easy task to go round a corner on an icy pavement at full speed without either breaking your neck or losing ground, and I had before me the further possibility of losing a portion of my apparel should I invite the nearer approach of the dog by slackening my gait.

Therefore, when I beheld standing on the corner a tall, flat-footed man who looked like a Presbyterian, I said to myself: "For goodness' sake!" and the next moment I grabbed him about the waist and swung myself around the corner with a dexterity that surprised my most hopeful expectations. As I did so, I hurriedly begged his pardon and told him to believe me that I should never have taken the liberty had I not been sore pressed.

I really was very sorry when I heard with what a loud whack the old gentleman fell down; and when I heard him grappling with the dog I said to myself: "For goodness' sake!"

I don't know just what the cross dog did to the good man, or what the good man did to the cross dog, but the two of them together certainly made an unholy disturbance. And three or four timid pedestrians, scenting danger in the commotion, took their cue from me and began to run.

It was exceedingly disagreeable to me to be the cause of so much public excitement; and when windows began to go up and men and women poked their heads into the night I felt positively humiliated. By the time I got into our back alley there was a perfect stampede of boys and men coming down the street. There did not appear to be any clearly defined notion among them as to what it was all about, but, so far as I could judge, the crowd was made up of two factions—one running away from danger and following me as a leader, and the other impressed with the conviction that I was being chased. Included in the latter faction were two policemen.

Fortunately, I happened to know one of these and when they nabbed me as I was about to scramble over the fence I said to him: "Believe me, O'Hara, this is all a very painful mistake. I am simply running away from a dog charged with a mission to injure me and disgrace me."

After a moment's consultation, in which O'Hara assured his fellow officer that he knew me to be a perfect gentleman, they agreed to allow me to proceed unmolested, with the understanding, however, that I would appear in court should developments make it necessary.

Our cook having in the meantime opened the back yard gate to ascertain the meaning of this unusual commotion in the alley, I slipped in and told her it was all over and that she had better lock up and go to bed.

The family were somewhat surprised to hear me come into the house through the kitchen, but I said nothing to them at the time concerning my misadventure, except to confide to my sister Ellen that I had inadvertently got some ice water down my neck, and that one of her hot lemonades, with a dash of brandy and nutmeg, would be particularly agreeable.

She responded at once with her usual tact and goodness, manifesting no curiosity and asking no questions until I tossed the fateful pocketbook upon a chair. Then, with a little start of surprise as she picked it up, she said: "Why, where did you find this? I have been looking everywhere for it. It has in it the name of a dressmaker on Euclid place that I want to go to to-morrow, and I have been racking my brains this whole evening trying to recall her address."

Said I to myself: "For goodness' sake!"

MRS. BONNELL TALKS AT MISSION MEETING

"The Frontier—In the Making," was the subject of a paper full of interest, presented by Mrs. Judson Bonnell at the meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. She described the Atlantic strip with which the United States began and the enlargement of the territory by the Louisiana Purchase and other accessions until the Pacific coast was reached.

Mrs. Bonnell told of the pioneers, who migrated to the West with the hope of gain and the missionaries who did valiant service in the new territories. Among those mentioned were Roger Williams, Whitman and Jonathan Goings. She said that it was through the efforts of Whitman that much of the northwestern territory was saved to the United States when claimed by the British. Mrs. Bonnell also described the formation of the home missionary society to evangelize the newly settled frontiers. Miss Jennie Whitney led the devotional services. Notice was given of the semi-annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the East Association of New Jersey to be held at the First Baptist church Friday, November 5.

DIRECT PRIMARY LAWS NEED SOME AMENDMENTS

Former Governor Edward C. Stokes, who has made as close a study of direct primary legislation as any man in New Jersey, and has in addition to this, passed through several political battles fought out under the direct primary system in this State, declared today that from his observation and experience, there is still much legislative work necessary, to make the direct primary laws satisfactory.

Mr. Stokes was chairman of the commission appointed by Governor Murphy, that drew the original direct primary act enacted by the New Jersey Legislature. By appointment of Governor Fort he was also chairman of the commission to revise the election ond primary laws that reported by submitting a bill to the last Legislature which dealt in an exhaustive manner with the subject.

When asked for his views concerning primary legislation, the former Governor replied that the last word on primary legislation has not yet been said. "There is no finality in progress," he said. "Men whose sincerity and patriotism cannot be questioned differ widely as to the character of proper primary legislation. Primary reform in Oregon takes one aspect, in Wisconsin another; and Governor Hughes' motion of a primary law differs fundamentally from what the so-called 'progressivists' advocate in our State. There is nothing sacred about primary legislation."

Mr. Stokes believes that one of the seriously weak spots in the New Jersey primary law is that under its operation there is no declaration of party principles such as was the custom in the days of conventions. He belives that this weakness can be readily and successfully overcome, however, by amending the law so as to provide that after candidates for the Legislature have been named by direct primary voting, the aspirants shall confer with the members of the county committee of their respective party, and out of the conference a declaration of principles shall be made by the candidates. On this point, however, he would repose in the candidates the power of finally adopting a platform so that a hostile county committee could not force them to run on declarations with which they were not in accord.

Mr. Stokes said, among other things:

"I regret very much to note the tendency to bribery and corruption in our present primaries. This cannot, of course, be charged as a defect in the primary system, as the laws against fraud and corruption are amply efficient if only properly enforced. I suppose, however, we cannot hope for their enforcement until we provide a system of grand jury reform, clear and free from political and factional influence. Grand juries as now selected, will not indict their factional friends for bribery at the primaries. Every good citizen, however, will regret the growing practice of bribery at our primaries.

"I do not belong to that class of enthusiasts who are either for or against any system of primary. I want the best there is. I have no prejudice in favor of or against any. I believe the primary question should be approached not in a partisan, but in a judicial spirit, and that the good citizens should be willing to pick out the virtues of all the systems and combine the best and likewise reject their defects.

"Primary terminology is not important, and yet it might be well to suggest that the terms 'open' and 'close' primary are, as a rule, entirely misused in primary literature and discussion. We have no 'open' primary in this State. When I was studying the primary system of the country in preparation of the primary act, I found at that time only three States where the open primary existed. An 'open' primary disregards parties. It permits any citizen to vote in any primary regardless of his party connections.

"A 'close' primary recognizes parties. It permits Republicans to vote only at the Republican primary, Democrats at the Democrat primary, Prohibitionists at the Prohibitionist primary. We have the 'close' primary in this State."

ALLEGED MURDERER WANTS CHOICER MENU

County Attorney William R. Codington, of this city, appeared before Justice J. J. Bergen in the county court at Elizabeth, today, to oppose a motion of Attorney Eugene Datto, for a rule to show cause why a writ of mandamus should not be issued compelling Sheriff Robert Kirkland to serve better food to Herbert Alessi, now a prisoner in the county jail charged with the murder of two men, or allow his relatives to do so.

Lawyer Datto claimed that Alessi was not getting sufficient food of a good quality and explained to the court that he thought the sheriff should serve better food or allow the prisoner's relatives to provide such things as he might need.

After considerable argument, Justice Bergen allowed the rule and fixed Wednesday, November 3, as the time when he would hear argument on the motion of Lawyer Datto. Attorney Codington in opposing the motion said that the food served in the county jail was as good as that served in any similar institution and he could see no reason for complaint.

There are representatives of nearly every Sunday school in the county present. Three sessions are scheduled, morning, afternoon and evening.

The morning session opeed at 10 o'clock with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. George F. Greene, pastor of the entertaining church. This was followed by the annual reports of the officers and various departments. Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, State secretary and Rev. W. E. Fotte, State superintendent of teacher training, made addresses this morning.

The afternoon session opened with addresses by E. W. Dunham, treasurer of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association; Miss Alice B. Hamlin, State elementary superintendent; Rev. Abram Duryee, State superintendent of evangelistic work and Rev. Stanley F. Davis, of Elizabeth, president of the county organization.

Rev. A. E. Finn was to have addressed the convention on Home department work, but his removal to Rochesterr, Pa., prevented this. James E. Church, of the First Baptist church, this city, will make an address this evening on "The Organized Adult Class." He is State superintendent of organized adult class work. He will also conduct a conference on his work from 5:15 to 6 o'clock. The address of the evening will be made by Rev. Dr. W. H. Morgan, pastor of the Central M. E. church, Newark, on "The Church's Greatest Opportunity." Officers will be elected at the afternoon session.

Thomas Muir, a former newspaperman, will be the toastmaster.

Mayor Fisk, of this city, and Mayor Townsend, of North Plainfield, with the members of their Common Councils, will also be present.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION BURIES HORATIO BILYEU

Funeral services of Horatio S. Bilyeu, a former resident of North Plainfield, were held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at D. A. Hogan's undertaking rooms in Stamford, Conn., where he died suddenly last Friday after drinking a glass of water. Because the relatives of the dead man declined to show any interest in the death of the man or stand the expense of burial, this was done by Stamford Typographical Union, No. 503. Rev. F. A. Coleman, of Stamford, officiated. The burial was in Woodland cemetery, the finest in the State, and the plot was secured by the Typographical union.

Efforts were made by the officers of the Stamford union to get into communication with friends of Bilyeu, but there was no response to letters sent to addresses found among his papers. Bilyeu was well-known in this city, where he lived for many years. He was a printer by trade.

TRINITY PEOPLE TALK OF NEW CHURCH EDIFICE

At the annual congregational meeting at Trinity Reformed church, last night, H. W. Marshall brought up the subject of the purchase of a lot for the erection of a new church in the future. The idea was favored by Mr. Marshall, F. S. Cutter, Horace J. Martin, Sr., and William A. Woodruff, and a motion was made and carried that the chairman appoint a committee of three to investigate the advisability of purchasing a lot and report the result of its deliberations within one month to the congregation. The committee will be appointed and announced on Sunday.

Among the sites offered is the Embury property at East Front and Church streets, which at one time was suggested as a possible site for the new Federal building.

F. S. Cutter was made chairman of the meeting last night and Edgar F. Sheppard acted as secretary. There was an election of three elders and three deacons. F. E. Smith, Horace J. Martin, Sr., and A. L. Force were re-elected elders, and Charles M. Dolliver, Edgar F. Sheppard and M. F. Gano were re-elected deacons.

The matter of adopting the duplex envelope system for church support and all benevolences of the church, was very clearly explained by Mr. Sheppard and a ballot taken. Sixty-seven voted for adoption of the system, four voted against it and four voted blank.

Chasing the Hounds.

The members of the Watchung Hunt Club chased the hounds yesterday morning, meeting at West End and Rockview avenues, at 6:15 o'clock, for a run through the surrounding country. Saturday, the chase will be held in the morning on account of the steeplechase meet at the club's grounds in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The members will meet at 9:30 o'clock at Mt. Pleasant schoolhouse.

Tuesday, October 26, will be the last day to register for the general election. The several district election boards will sit for that purpose from 1 until 9 p. m. on that day. If you are not registered you cannot vote.

SHE SEEKS BIG FORTUNE

Mrs. Eleanor Dunn Goes to England in Behalf of Local Claimants.

AN ESTATE OF OVER $12,000,000.

Representative Carries Credentials—She Wants to Recover Sir Francis Drake's Estate.

Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, of Norwood avenue, sailed yesterday on the Caronia of the Cunard line for England, where she will make an attempt to prove the claims of the many heirs in this part of the country to the estate left by the renowned English admiral, Sir Francis Drake in Devonshire. There are said to be some twelve millions of dollars in landed estates and money now being wrongfully enjoyed by other English heirs and it is an attempt to recover this for the rightful heirs that Mrs. Dunn has gone abroad.

Mrs. Dunn is president of an association which was formed here two months ago and the funds necessary for her trip and the legal expenses of her search of the records have been subscribed by the sixty odd members of the Drake Association here. Since the formation of the society many new names have been added to the roll and others are inquiring every day for permission to subscribe to this fund, believing that they are entitled to a share in any of the proceeds to be derived from Mrs. Dunn's work.

The mass of evidence which Mrs. Dunn has accumulated here and in other places is considered by those best informed to be positively convincing and no doubt is expressed by the members that her quest will be successful. When interviewed yesterday Eugene M. Laing, president of the Watchung Silk Company, said that Mrs. Dunn's credentials from this country would no doubt secure for her prompt and courteous attention from the English Chancery court. She bears letters of introduction from Senator John Kean and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, both of whom are well known abroad, especially in England.

Mr. Laing also said that the researches made by Mrs. Dunn were exhaustive and covered a great deal of necessary ground, in fact the claims would in all probability be proved. Mrs. Dunn is a woman of much tact and diplomacy and the claims could not have been placed in more competent hands. The journey will, of course, be a hard one for her owing to her age which is said to be about sixty-four, but she goes with a firm determination to search thoroughly the English court records and to do all in her power to reclaim the portion of the vast fortune which she and the other officers of the association believe to be theirs.

"FLOWERLAND" PROMISES TO BE A GREAT SHOW.

The rehearsals for "Flowerland," which have been held at Hope chapel under the direction of Miss Bertie K. Shipley, have been very satisfactory. The final dress rehearsal will be held this afternoon. Everything is in readiness and the children are eager to appear in costume before the footlights. Little Walter Miller, Jr., a two-and-a-half-year-old boy, who plays the part of "Cupid," is exceptionally good in his portrayal of the part.

A flashlight picture will be taken this afternoon by Charles Brown, of Verdon street. "Flowerland" will be presented tomorrow and Saturday nights. While the sale of tickets has been good, a number of excellent seats remain and may be secured either Friday or Saturday night at Hope chapel from Peter C. Sweeny, business manager, or Frank Rimmer, treasurer.

The proceeds from the entertainment will be used to purchase toys, games, dolls and books to make glad the hearts of the little folks at Christmas time. The entertainment will be one of the best ever given at Hope chapel, which means that it will have to be exceptionally good.

Dr. A. C. McCrea Plans Revival.

Rev. Dr. Abel C. McCrea, pastor of the Centenary M. E. church, Newark, is preparing for a special evangelical program, which he will conduct in his church. The first lecture will be given tonight by Rev. Dr. David Hughes, who will speak on the topic, "From the Theatre to the Pulpit." Under the leadership of Pastor McCrea the congregation will also promote an active membership campaign during the coming months.

Attended Meeting of Classis.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. C. H. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, attended the fall meeting of the Classis of Newark held yesterday in the New York Avenue Reformed church, Newark.

CHAPEL'S RAPID GROWTH

Netherwood Reformed Congregation Soon to Be an Independent Church.

WILL ENLARGE THE EDIFICE.

The Classis of Newark Gladly Receives Dr. Vance's Offer to Add to the Structure.

Preliminary steps for making the Netherwood Reformed church an independent body, were taken at the fall session of the Classis of Newark, held in the New York Avenue Reformed church, Newark, yesterday. Matters of importance as to the future organization of the church were discussed and favorable action was taken by the Classis.

Upon the petition of over twenty-five people, who are at present identified with the church, the Classis decided to organize the work into a regular church organization on Monday night, November 22. The Classis will meet for this special purpose on that evening, when the charter members will be received, elders and deacons elected and the entire government of this church placed in the hands of the local congregation.

The present building will be enlarged for adding a primary room and a committee room to the structure. This work will be started at once as the money covering the cost of the improvement has been pledged by the Rev. James L. Vance, of the North Reformed church, Newark. The lot will also be graded and cement sidewalks will be laid.

The work in the Netherwood section has grown in an encouraging manner since its inception on July 4 last. On last Sunday, a Christian Endeavor society was organized with twenty members. A boys' club is in process of formation and a Hallowe'en social will be held under the auspices of the Christian Work Society on Tuesday night, November 2.

A system of heating has recently been installed, the cost of piping the building being kindly donated by Enoch Berry, who is greatly interested in the work. The bell in the tower, the gift of Mr. VanderHoef, of Newark, will soon be installed. Rev. Royal A. Stout, of New Brunswick, is in charges of the work at the Netherwood Reformed church.

"VOTES FOR WOMEN" COST A NEGRO $50.

Benjamin Green, colored, of North Plainfield, who on Sunday, October 15, administered a severe beating to Richard Johnson, colored, who also lives in the borough, and was employed with Green at the Hand brickyards at the time of the trouble, was fined $50 for assault by Judge Schenck in the Somerset county court at Somerville yesterday. By the court's order, Green must also report weekly to Probation Officer Osborne at Somerville. The court has permitted him to pay his fine in $1 weekly installments. So, from now on, Mr. Green must save from his weekly wage an additional $1.30, the thirty cents being the fare to Somerville by trolley; he's hardly likely to squander money by going by train. Still he'll feel it less than if he had had to lay down an entire $50 right then and there in court yesterday.

Green had an interesting experience with the law. After being arrested for assaulting Johnson, he was discharged by Justice Snape of the borough for want of sufficient evidence. The next morning Green was re-arrested and brought for hearing before Recorder Dolliver. The recorder deemed it worth while to hold Green for the grand jury in $1,000 bail. The grand jury indicted the man and Judge Schenck supplied the final chapter of the story yesterday.

Green and Johnson were alone in a shanty near the Hand brickyards on the eventful Sunday when one declared himself a suffragette and the other said he couldn't see anything in "Votes for women" no how. The discussion was carried on by word of mouth until both debaters got tired, when they argued it out with their fists. After a bit, Johnson wasn't in a position to discuss woman's suffrage or anything else—he was too busy getting stab and other wounds sewed up by Drs. Pittis and Dundon.

Green left off the discussion to visit his home, where he put up a bag of clothes incidental to a hasty trip out of town. But before he could leave the house, Chief Weiss walked in and arrested him.

Samuel St. John McCutchen has returned to his home on Myrtle avenue, after spending the summer at Belmar.

GEORGE G. ANDREWS WEDS

He Takes Miss Helen Harring, of Hackensack, as His Bride.

AT HER PARENTS' HOME.

The Rev. James Lisk Performs Ceremony—The Groom Is a Native of Brazil.

Last night at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harring, 201 Union street, Hackensack, Miss Helen Harring became the bride of George G. Andrews, local manager of the electrical department of the Public Service Corporation. The house was handsomely decorated with smilax and roses, the color scheme being green and white. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Lisk, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hackensack.

The maid of honor was Miss Alberta Harring, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Charles H. Andrews, of Greensboro, N. C., a brother of the groom. The wedding was witnessed by about fifty guests, friends of both parties. Otis' orchestra, of Hackensack, played Mendelssohn's wedding march while the couple were on the way to the improvised altar and as a recessional the wedding march from Lohengrin.

The bride was attired in a Directoire gown of white satin, with pearl trimmings with a duchess lace yoke, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a pale green directoire gown of satin and carried a huge bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The ushers were Dr. Willard Duckworth and his brother, Roy D. Duckworth, of New York city, J. A. LeRoy, of Elizabeth, and Edward P. King, of New York city.

Mr. Andrews is a native of Brazil, Indiana, and has been in the employ of the Public Service Corporation in this city for a number of years. The couple will make a trip through the West on their honeymoon and will return to take up their residence at Truell Court. While on their trip they will visit the home of Mr. Andrews' parents in Brazil, who came on to attend the wedding of their son yesterday.

Last Monday morning when the groom entered his office on Second street he was much surprised to find it decorated with American flags and several tell-tale signs indicating the glee with which the approaching nuptials were regarded by the office staff. One of the handsome gifts received by the happy couple was a complete silver service from the employees of Mr. Andrews' office. Many other beautiful and appropriate gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Andrews.

MISS ELEANOR GRIGGS WEDS WM. LATOURETTE.

Miss Eleanor Griggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Griggs, of Ringoes, and William McCrea LaTourette, of East Fifth street, were married at 12 o'clock yesterday at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Mr. Frith, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiated.

The bride was gowned in a travelling dress of green chiffon broadcloth. The couple was unattended, but the ushers were J. Bodine Griggs, brother of the bride and Charles F. Windham, of North Plainfield. Only the immediate relatives were present. The bride received many useful and costly gifts.

The home was decorated with autumn leaves and potted plants. A reception followed the ceremony, during which a wedding repast was served. Those present from Plainfield were Mr. and Mrs. P. H. LaTourette, Miss Nora B. Schenck, who played the wedding march, and Charles F. Windham. The couple left for a ten days' wedding trip to Washington. They will reside in this city.

Mr. LaTourette is well known here. He is treasurer of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union, and an active member of Trinity Reformed church. He is also a member of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., and several other fraternal organizations.

Will Hold Hallowe'en Social.

The Mrs. Wilhelmina Runyon and Mrs. W. S. Lowry's Bible classes at the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a Hallowe'en social and entertainment at the church on Thursday night, October 28, to which the members of the church and Sunday-school are invited. There will be many novel features and refreshments will be served.

Don't Forget to Register.

Tuesday, October 26, will be the last day to register for the general election. The several district election boards will sit for that purpose from 1 until 9 p. m. on that day. If you are not registered you cannot vote.

VERDICT IS AGAINST FELLOW CARPENTER

In the District court this morning before Judge William Newcorn and a jury, Vincent Koldeshes, a carpenter, of North Plainfield, recovered a judgment for $220.73 from James P Dawe, a carpenter and builder, of Leland avenue, on a claim for wages and money loaned.

Koldeshes claimed that while Dawe was in financial straits he loaned $80 to Dawe and no payments had been made on that loan besides the money due him for wages had not been paid. The jury believed the testimony of Kolheshes for they rendered a verdict for the full amount with interest from April 4 to date.

Another case in which wages figured was that of Mary Barnes against E. G. Hulling, proprietor of the Wetumpka Inn. An attempted evasion of responsibility was shown and Miss Barnes got a judgment for the full amount, $31.

PREVENTED ACCIDENT TO PHILADELPHIA FLYER

What might have caused an accident entailing loss of life was prevented this morning by Alexander C. Ayres, Overseer of the Poor and Frank L. C. Martin. They were standing on the platform of the North avenue station when the 10:09 train pulled in on its way to New York. They noticed the brake hanger on the last car of the train, No. 1029, hanging loose and in a position presenting possibilities of an accident should the hanger meet with an obstruction. They promptly notified the conductor who on seeing the danger immediately had the car detached from the train and the passengers transferred to the 9:59 train which pulled in just in time to take them, and which was some minutes late.

Had the train proceeded with the hanger in the condition in which it was found there would undoubtedly been an accident which would have resulted in loss of life.

WILL CASE HEARING IS LONG DRAWN OUT

The hearing in the Cora Hetfield will case was continued yesterday in the Union county courts, when the whole afternoon was practically taken up with an examination of Joseph Gallagher, the hotel-keeper, who, according to the Hetfield will received the property and money of Mr. Hetfield. He is represented by Lawyer Charles Trimble, while Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Judge William Newcorn represent the caveators.

In the cross-examination of Gallagher by Judge Newcorn, the latter inquired whether it was true that he ever struck and beat Mr. Hetfield, or had locked him up in the garret at his hotel. The witness replied in the negative.

One of the important features of the hearing yesterday was the presentation of receipts, showing that while Mr. Hetfield remained at Gallagher's hotel, his board was paid and clothing furnished by William Hetfield, an uncle. Late yesterday afternoon an adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Thus far nine days have been occupied with the taking of testimony.

MARTINE KEPT HIS DATE

How Farmer-Orator Missed His Train But Caught Up With it Later.

HE HAD "FLYER" FLAGGED.

Brakeman's Ignorance Promptly Rectified by the New Jersey Central Officials.

That James E. Martine believes in asserting the rights of the sovereign people when the opportunity arises and the occasion demands was demonstrated Tuesday evening when he caused the Royal Blue flyer due to pass here at 6:30 o'clock to be held up and another train, No. 125 to be held at Bound Brook to accommodate him and a Mrs. Gresham, of Cranford.

Mr. Martine did not accomplish this feat without some expressive talking, but he managed to convince the railroad officials that the traveling public cannot be held responsible for the ignorance of train hand. It all came about this way:

Mr. Martine was due to make a speech at a political gathering in Flemington and in order to keep his engagement attempted to board the 6:15 train here. He was informed that the train did not make connections for Flemington and that he would have to take the following train. When this latter train pulled into the station he was informed that it did not go beyond Dunellen.

Then there was something doing. Mrs. Gresham was reduced to hysteria, asserting that her husband was awaiting her arrival at Flemington and it would be a catastrophe if she did not get there. Mr. Martine reassured her stating that he would get there and the train would take them both. Stepping into the train despatcher's office he notified that official of what had occurred and instructed him to get busy on the wire at once to see what the Chief could do about it.

In a few moments the ticking gave out the information that the flyer was to be flagged for the two passengers and that train 125 was to be held at Bound Brook until its arrival. Thus did this solid man of the people fulfill his engagement, and at the same time prove his chivalry to the weaker sex. Mrs. Gresham was profuse in her protestations of gratitude for Mr. Martine's prompt and efficient aid.

It is needless to say that the farmer-orator was more than ever eloquent at Flemington and this morning he is quite happy in not being in that brakeman's shoes.

FIRST HEARING HELD IN BRUNSON'S ACTION

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders was represented yesterday at a hearing before Vice-Chancellor Stevens in Newark, in an action started by Augustus J. Brunson to prevent the freeholders from destroying several trees on his property on Greenbrook road. Little or no progress was made yesterday and the hearing went over to a later date.

Greenbrook road from Gavin's Corner to the borough line has been widened and macadamized, but in order to complete the improvement, the freeholders think that the trees in front of Mr. Brunson's property should be removed. Mr. Brunson is proud of the trees because of their age and beauty and naturally has opposed the plan.

"Fat Frying" Is Alleged.

Bayonne, Oct. 21.—An effort has been made, it is alleged, to secure a contribution or assessment of $300 from the local police force for the Republican campaign fund. Some of the policemen, the story goes, are willing to give up and are trying to persuade their colleagues that to contribute would be right. It is reported that in an argument over the matter there was almost a riot at a recent meeting of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

Lucky Friday.

The second annual dance of the Metuchen Football club to be held at Metuchen tomorrow night, promises to be a record-breaker in point of attendance, judging by the sale of tickets. The committee is now busy decorating the hall for the affair. The New Brunswick Athletic club will attend in a body.

BLIND NEGRO SLAYER GETS FORTY YEARS

William Fason, a blind negro, was sentenced to forty years in the State prison at hard labor by Supreme Court Justice James F. Minturn in the Court of General Sessions Tuesday at Paterson for killing two men. On June 26 Fason shot George Hummell and Robert Ferguson in a River street cafe in Paterson.

"I din't mean to kill these men, Judge," said Fason. "I went into the saloon with Robert Ferguson, my best friend, and asked for a drink. The proprietor told me to get out, and when I told him I needed a drink, he said: 'Throw him out.' I backed up and sat down in a chair. There was a scuffle, and I was hit on the head with something that felt like a blackjack. In order to protect myself I pulled out my revolver, which I had been trying to sell, and fired. I did not mean to shoot any one.

"I just wanted to scare them off. I shot, not knowing where, and I was afterward told I had killed by best friend and George Hummell, a white man, whom I did not know. Be kind with me, Judge, for I didn't know what I was doing."

CUPID BUSY AT CHATHAM.

Chatham, Oct. 21.—Cupid is busy here. With the weddings of Principal Charles E. Philhower and Lewis R. Brown last week, now come three more nuptial ties this week. Miss Delia A. Hendershot, a former teacher in the public school, was married Tuesday night to Oscar C. Dickinson, of New Providence. Last night Miss Florence Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Collins, of Main street, became the bride of John Baldwin, Jr., of River road, and Wesley R. Dickhut, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dickhut, wedded Miss Amelia Grohman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grohman, of Newark.

The wedding of Miss Hendershot to Mr. Dickinson, at her home in Washington avenue, was a quiet affair, only immediate friends and relatives witnessing the ceremony. It was performed by the Rev. Jesse L. Peck, pastor of the New Providence M. E. church. A reception followed the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson will reside in Washington avenue, in the new home that William Hendershot, the bride's father, built for them.

MOTORCYCLISTS TO HOLD BIG MEET AT GUTTENBERG.

Arrangements have been completed for a big motorcycle meet at the Guttenberg Motordome, Saturday, at which all the crack riders of the country will be seen in competition. A series of meets between the best motorcycle riders and racers will be put on, for that day there will be a five mile event for seven horse-power machines. There will be a world's championship event and the foremost riders will start.

Instead of running long races the program will be made up of short events. The track is now being finished up and placed in the best possible condition, which was not possible until a race had been run and the weak spots developed.

Mr. Kelsey Home from Europe.

Trenton, Oct. 21.—After a four months' tour of Europe, former Secretary of State Henry C. Kelsey arrived in this city Tuesday night and went direct to the Trenton House, where he was met by former Governor E. C. Stokes and Dr. H. G. Norton, Mr. Kelsey's physician. Mr. Kelsey was in excellent health and spoke pleasantly of his trip. He said that he had the roughest experience in all his trips across the water on his return this last time. He added that just as his vessel, the Zeeland, of the Red Star Line, was on the northwest coast of England, a severe gale came up and continued all the way over. The boat pitched so much that he was slightly ill during the voyage, something new for Mr. Kelsey, who has made twenty-seven trips across the Atlantic.

Requisition for Elizabeth Fugitive.

Trenton, Oct. 21.—Governor Fort yesterday issued a requisition upon the Governor of Illinois for the return to this State of Howard J. Jennings, who is wanted in Elizabeth on the charge of embezzlement. It is alleged that Jennings took $1,150 from the John Stevenson Car Company in Elizabeth, where he was employed as a confidential clerk. He fled west and was arrested in Chicago, where he is held to await the requisition papers. Chief George C. Tenney, of Elizabeth, and County Detective John A. Galatian, of Union, will take the papers to Chicago and bring Jennings to Elizabeth for trial.

Returned to Find House Afire.

Rahway, Oct. 21.—As Fred M. Miller, of Franklin Hose Company, went to his home on an errand at the close of the business session of the company Tuesday night, he found neighbors breaking in the front door to get inside and extinguish flames from an exploded lamp in the hall. A brother was sleeping in the room upstairs and knew nothing of the troubles. The flames were soon extinguished.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., hold a regular meeting tomorrow night, when a program of interest will be presented.

SOMERVILLE.

John Rockafellar, a passenger brakeman on the Central Railroad, while assisting in drilling some freight cars in Somerville on Monday, was knocked off a freight car by the Centre street bridge. He was standing with his back toward the bridge and did not know the car was getting so close, when he was knocked to the roadbed, about twenty feet below. He was picked up unconscious and carried to his home on Mechanic street. He remained unconscious about an hour. The doctors found no bones broken.

MURDERER LIKELY TO GO TO INSANE ASYLUM.

Toms River, Oct. 21.—The probability is that David Webb, who killed his brother, John I. Webb, last Friday, will be sent to an insane asylum, despite the fact that the coroner's jury found him guilty of murder.

While the coroner was holding the inquest Tuesday the funeral of Mr. Webb was being held from the lonely house in the woods at Webbsville, crowds gathering from the countryside to attend. Services were held in the little Presbyterian church at Holmansville, which was jammed. Among those who attended were David's wife and his son Edward, the latter of Pittsburg, who arrived here Monday night. Edward and a sister have supported the mother since their father, with his insane delusion that they were trying to poison him, left their home in Brooklyn.

The wife and son visited the prisoner in the jail here Tuesday and there was a pathetic scene. David recognized them, but would have little to say to them. He said he had killed his brother because John and his mother were plotting to kill him to get his money. Edward said his father had been insane upon this subject for some time, but there was no thought that his trouble would take a homicidal turn.

"ANGEL DANCER" CHIEF WINS.

Hackensack, Oct. 21.—Paul B. Mnason, who was recently ejected from the "Lord's Farm," in Bergen county under the landlord and tenant act, at the instance of Garret Storms, one of his early disciples, has at least won one legal point against Storms, and is now in possession of Farmer Storms, a nine-year-old boy, who was raised on the farm.

When Mnason was ordered off the place, to take up his abode on a neighboring farm, this boy, who was raised on the "Lord's Farm," desired to go with the former leader of the "Angle Dancers," Garret Storms objected to this, so Mnason consulted Superintendent Pratt, of the Children's Home at Hackensack. The latter conferred with Judge Demarest, and it was decided to let Farmer Storms have his own way. The lad was only a babe in arms when he was given shelter on the "Lord's Farm." The sect named him Farmer Storms. It is said the whereabouts of his mother are not known. Mnason has contested the ejectment proceedings, and the case is pending.

VERDICT FOR A HACKMAN.

Freehold, Oct. 21.—A verdict for $250 damages was awarded Joseph S. Taylor, an Asbury Park hackman, against the New York and Long Branch Railroad Company for false arrest on July 14, 1908, by a jury before Judge Heisley, late Tuesday. Mr. Taylor had been sued for trespass on three occasions by the railroad company.

Another suit had been brought, in which he declared he was not served, and an execution was issued by Justice Edward W. Wise. H. F. Lankahaw, an employe of the railroad, on the above date called Taylor from his carriage over to the depot at Asbury Park and Special Officer William W. Wilson placed him under arrest under the execution. Instead of taking him to Freehold, Taylor was taken before Rufus Blodgett, superintendent of the road, at Long Branch, who ordered his release.

THREAT SOLVES $1,115 THEFT.

Mt. Holly, Oct. 21.—John Wessel's threat to have Joseph Zozk hanged if he did not return the $1,115 which were stolen from Wessel's trunk, resulted in Zozk not only confessing the theft, but disclosing the muskrat hole in which he had hidden the money. From it about $1,020 were recovered. The total amount represented the savings of fifteen years' work. Zozk, who was a room-mate of Wessel, was arrested. He admitted that he had stolen the trunk key from Wessel's clothes while he was busy milking.

GEN. RUSLING'S DAUGHTER MARRIES CONGRESSMAN.

Trenton, Oct. 21.—Congressman Arthur Laban Bates, of Meadville, Pa., and Miss Emily Welch Rusling, of Trenton, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, General and Mrs. James F. Rusling, in the presence of a distinguished gathering. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. John D. Fox, pastor of the State Street Methodist church. It was followed by a reception, after which Congressman and Mrs. Bates left Trenton for a honeymoon trip, previous to taking up their abode in Washington for the winter.

The bride was attended by Miss Florence L. Bates, sister of the Congressman, and by Miss Elizabeth Bodine, of this city. The bridegroom's best man was his brother, Major Walter Irving Bates, of Meadville, and the ushers were the bride's brother, James W. Rusling, and her uncle, Congressman Ira W. Wood, both of this city.

The wedding is the culmination of a romance which began about two years ago when the Congressman met Miss Rusling at a social function at the home of her Congressman uncle in the National Capital. Mr. Bates has been in Congress for five terms.

Mrs. Frederick J. Harrington, of Rockview Terrace, who has been visiting in Boston, will return home on Saturday.

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA.

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin disease. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure after cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This first bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and, at any rate, it will surely take away the itch at once.

L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

GOLF.

Walter J. Travis hits the slow back fetich a hard rap in the American Golfer. He says in part:

"Slow back" is the parrotlike cry of nearly every instructor to beginners. It is interesting to trace its history. In the old days, the days of feather balls, the shafts of all wooden clubs were very whippy. To swing fast with them meant disaster, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred.

Experience taught the wisdom then of "slow back." But with the evolution from the feather ball to the guttie and more recently to the rubber core all this has greatly changed.

At the hands of players of class, both profession and amateur, the back swing has been materially accelerated since the advent of stiffer shafts, until now it is the rare exception to see any crack player who does not go back as fast as possible consistent with safety.

No greater fallacy exists than to suppose the road to success as a long and accurate driver lies along the path of "slow back." The harder a ball is hit, the longer it will go and the straighter it will go. To gain distance hard hitting is essential. Hard hitting means speed. Speed properly applied, means harmony of swing. "Slow back" and fast down are more than likely to introduce jerkiness, which is fatal to accuracy.

All of which agrees with the experience of Marc M. Michael, the former New Jersey champion, when at old St. Andrews. He had a particularly sour and solent Scot as caddie, a man of 50, and to draw him out Michael asked: "I suppose the players here believe in 'slow back'?" "Na', na'," said the Scotchman, "th' players all go back like th' deil and come down like th' deil."

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The following men have been taken to the Cornell cross-country training table: Young, Berna, Tappan, Fleming, Hickok, Bogert, Hunger, Atwood, McLaughlin, Nelson and Patterson.

James Curren, a Scotch distance runner, is helping to coach the Pennsylvania cross-country men. Dr. Orton is working with the squad too, that that Penn expects to give Cornell something to think over at Boston Tech on November 20.

Both the varsity and freshman crews at Georgetown show small balances of receipts over expenditures, which is encouraging to those who hope to stimulate rowing again at the Washington institution.

The fall regatta dates at Pennsylvania have been settled upon. On October 27 achitectural first and the second eights of the dental and veterinary departments will race. The first boats of dent and vet also will meet. The interclass regatta will be held the next day. On October 29 the winning crews of the preceding two days will meet for the university championship.

The interclass track meet at Yale will be held on October 27. This is going to be a good year for brand new men at Yale, because veteran material is so scarce.

Gil Crawford, the new commodore of the Cornell navy, never rowed in a varsity eight at Poughkeepsie. He stroked two successive four oared varsity crews on the Hudson. He was a substitute for his freshman class boat in 1907.

Steve Philbin, captain of the Yale baseball team and also some football player, is up at the top of the list of the men who got highest honors in junior year.

Barney Reilly may be the coach of the Yale baseball team next season.

J. L. Hartranft, the Penn hurdler, is going to re-enter the university for a post-graduate course. During the summer Hartranft ran for the New York A. C. and improved over his showing in the intercollegiate games in May. With him back Penn's chances of winning the I. C. A. A. A. A. championship boom a whole lot.

The rewards of professional sport are obvious. What college athlete, great though he was, ever had a cocktail named for him?

They say in Washington that the Yale crew may come down to the Potomac for a little practice in the Easter vacation. If the weather isn't any better than it was for the track men in Charlottesville last Easter it won't be worth while.

The Princeton baseball team will play three games in Richmond next March with the University of Virginia team.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Acute indigestion caused the sudden death in Camden of William Schwank, forty-nine years old, of 1823 Fillmore street. Coroner Litchfield gave a certificate.

Slipping on a banana peel Carl Kautz, nine years old, of 82 Vine street, Camden, badly cut his wrist on an open penknife, and was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

Running for a trolley car Michael Kelly, fifty-four years old, of 440 South Second street, Camden, stumbled and badly injured his knee. He was cared for at Cooper Hospital.

Word was received at Trenton of the sudden death in China of Mrs. John H. Stewart, of that city, widow of former Judge Stewart. She was visiting her daughter, a missionary's wife.

An offer of Justice of the Peace Birch to perform the marriage ceremony free of charge for any couples who will present themselves at the judges' stand immediately following the Hallowe'en pageant in Millville, Saturday evening, October 30, has caused a storm of criticism from pastors and church people generally.

Falling about thirty feet down an elevator shaft at the Camden Paper Box Factory, Seventh and State streets, Edwin Jarvis had no bones broken, but was detained at Cooper Hospital, fearing he might have been injured internally. Jarvis is eighteen years old and resides at 439 Vine street, Camden.

It was because satirical remarks had been hurled at him by Loney Haskell, a vaudeville artist at an Atlantic City theatre, that "Zoza Kenilworth," a Boardwalk "palmist," waylaid the actor at the stage entrance and beat him so severely that doctors had to labor for an hour to get the comedian in shape to meet his friends, according to testimony in a magistrate's court, when Kenilworth was held in $500 bail for the grand jury.

When a team was struck by a trolley car on the Haddonfield line of the Public Service Railway Company, at Westmont Terrace, James Caldwell, forty-three years old, of Collingswood, sustained a fracture of the left arm and a lacerated scalp, and the head of John Holmes, twenty-one years old, of Gloucester City, was badly cut. They were taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, Camden, where for a time Caldwell was in a serious condition, but there is hope of his recovery. The accident is said to have been due to the horse becoming frightened at a passing automobile.

BREWERS IN WARD FIGHT.

Contest for Controllership in Elizabeth Causes Bitter Factional War.

Elizabeth's Democracy is facing a probable defeat on Election Day because of the fact that General D. F. Collins, commander of the Second Brigade and treasurer of the State Democratic Committee, wants to be City Controller. There are others who have a like ambition—John S. Sauer, a former mayoralty candidate, and Peter Bonnett, ex-Mayor, both Democrats.

General Collins is said to be supporting Democratic candidates in the First and Third wards who are in a sense not regular nominees for the City Council. The Council has the appointment of the Controller. The split in the First has resulted in bitter contests and faction fights. Already one arrest for illegal voting has been made and more are threatened. It is a strength test between Jeremiah Leary, a Rising Sun brewery official, and Collins, who is head of the Breidt brewery.

At Proctor's.

The new vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre today and the rest of the week will equal in excellence that of the forepart of the week, and will be of Proctor standard. It will include LaMonts animal circus, trained cats and dogs; Musical Buskirks, in a musical act; Miller & Atwood in a comedy sketch and Conroy & Smiley, Irish comedians. The films d'art are improving constantly and only the latest subjects are shown. The character and tone of the popular playhouse is of the best.

TO THE INDEPENDENT.

The Independent, he who is not a hide-bound party man, in other words the man who votes for the best administration of public affairs, in this campaign should be in favor of the Republican ticket in county and city politics. The reason is self evident. With but two exceptions the candidates are citizens who now are serving in the office to which they seek re-election and in every instance they have been creditable servants of the people.

It is quite unnecessary to make any argument in favor of the re-election of either James C. Calvert or Frank H. Smith. As county clerk and as county register, respectively, their records are known to every taxpayer. They have devoted their time, conscientiously and efficiently to the trusts reposed in them by the people. The same may be said of Carlton B. Pierce and Augustus W. Schwartz, the men who have been renominated for the Assembly. These two men are a credit to their constituents and are deserving of popular approval at the polls. Lloyd Thompson, their running mate, is an equally capable man, and while he has had no experience as a legislator he is well equipped for the responsibility to be placed on him.

The majority of the party's local candidates are all well known to the taxpayers. Their course as public servants, therefore, need not be dwelt upon at any length. This applies not only to the candidates for Common Council but as well to the nominees for board of education and tax collector.

DISGRACEFUL CONDITION.

Millville suffers from a type of a justice of the peace who is a cancer on a community, but, fortunately, it possesses a clergyman who has the courage to denounce him. A dispatch from that place states:

"Justice Birch's offer to perform a marriage ceremony free of charge for any couple who will present themselves at the judges' stand immediately following the Hallowe'en pageant, in Millville, on October 30, has aroused much criticism among pastors and church people.

"The Rev. William J. Fitzgerald, rector of the St. Mary Magdalene church, said yesterday: "For the sake of Millville's good name and the honor of her young men and women, I sincerely hope that no one will be found to accept Squire Birch's indecent offer—a free public show marriage. It is because we have men like Squire Birch allowed by law to officiate at marriages, but evidently without any appreciation of the sacredness of matrimony, and ready to degrade it to the level of a street show, that this country is cursed with the evil of one divorce in every twelve marriages.

A bridal bouquet worth $10 and several artices of furniture have been offered to the couple who will allow Birch to perform the ceremony."

Is it not high time that ministers of the gospel should act in other parts of the State, where justices of the peace are to be found, who in their eagerness to get an ill-gotten fee would dishonor a sacred ceremony, by using their honorable office for such an unholy work?

THE FORUM.

Who J. B. Yeats Is.

Editor The Daily Press:

Sir.—I hope that we Plainfielders who enjoy ideas and well-chosen words will not miss the approaching lecture of John Butler Yeats. This distinguished Irish painter, who has been for many years a Royal Hibernian Academician, has been spending two years in this country, painting portraits and gathering impressions. Thirty years of residence in London enables him to speak with some authority on the subject which he has chosen for his talk, "An Irishman's Impressions of England, Ireland and America." A list of his portraits, ten of which hang in the Modern Gallery in Dublin, includes such celebrated men and women as York Powell, Sir Horace Plunkett, Isaac Butt, Lady Gregory, Katherine Tynan, Standish O'Grady, George Moore, Arthur Lymons, John Linge. Those who know him and have heard him speak remember his gift of words and tell of it as an experience. Plainfield has many opportunities to hear discussions of literary and philosophical questions, but there are not many wise men who are full of humor, nor learned men who are full of kindliness. Mr. Yeats is the father of the celebrated poet, William Butler Yeats. B.

STATE PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD SEEKS NEW LAWS

At yesterday's session of the forty-seventh annual meeting of the Synod of New Jersey a resolution, offered by the temperance committee, was adopted urging the State Legislature to pass a law changing the present method of drawing the Grand Jury. The plan proposed is for the jurors to be selected by a commission named either by the Governor or the Supreme Court.

Resolutions praising the efficient work of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League during the past year were passed, as were also features urging the Governor and Legislature to promote a local option law similar to those now in force in many States.

The synod adopted resolutions petitioning Congress to enact legislation prohibiting the introduction of alcoholic beverages in prohibition territory.

The delegates expressed appreciation of the efforts of the Senators who introduced and supported local option, and at the same time condemned the spirit of lawlessness displayed by the 200 liquor dealers of Atlantic City during the past summer.

HAD MY SAY ON HIM, REPLIES MR. FOWLER

Declaring that he didn't want his differences with Speaker Cannon to develop into a personal controversy for fear the public might lose sight of the real issue of "Cannonism," Congressman C. N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, Cannon's chief opponent in the House, yesterday refused to reply to Cannon's speech of self-defense at Elgin, Ill., Tuesday night.

"I have had my say for the present regarding Mr. Cannon," Congressman Fowler said. "There is no personal dispute between us and for this reason I don't feel called upon to reply to him every time he assails me or attempts a defense of himself.

"The speech speaks for itself. It looks as though he at last realized that the public was demanding an explanation of his conduct from him."

William J. Hammond pleaded guilty to two indictments charging with stealing goods belonging to the John Stevenson Car Company from its plant in Linden Township.

TO CONVENE LAWMAKERS

Governor Expected to Call a Special Session of Legislature in a Few Days.

FOR RAILROAD VALUATION.

Commissioners Appropriation Exhausted and a Completion of the Work Is Imperative.

In a statement issued today concerning the work of the special commission which was authorized by the last Legislature to revalue all the railroad and canal property in New Jersey, Governor Fort, at Trenton, broadly intimates that a special session of the Legislature will be called within a few days to provide means by which the work of ascertaining the present value of physical holdings of the railroad companies may be continued without interruption.

The resolution authorizing the revaluation of the railroad property carried with it an appropriation of $20,000. This sum, the Governor states, is practically exhausted, and it is now a question of either stopping the work for the time being, at least, or the State taking action to provide additional funds for the expenses of the commission. On this point the Governor says:

"The people want this work done and want it done right, without political considerations entering into it, and if I am to have anything to do with it that is the way they will have it done. The Legislature will have to settle it and they will probably get an opportunity to do so in a very few days."

In authorizing the revaluation work the Legislature provided that it should be done under the direction of the Governor. Mr. Fort's first move was to appoint a commission of three members. In this connection he sought the services of competent civil engineers with experience in railroad construction for two of the places, and for the third place he decided to pick out a man acquainted with real estate values in New Jersey, particularly in Hudson county, where there are great terminal facilities. Charles Hansel, of Cranford, and Samuel Whinnery, of East Orange, consented to become members of the commission as civil engineers. Frank Stevens, of Jersey City, as a real estate expert, was named as the third members. Mr. Whinnery is an expert in the valuation of roadbed and bridge work.

Acting by Legislative authority the Governor fixed the pay of the commissioners at $1,000 each per month. Of his action in this matter the Governor says today: "It seems, and it is, a large salary. But these men are worth it and can earn it many times over for the State if they are given a sufficient sum for the completion of their work. They would not agree to enter upon their duties for less."

The Governor says that previous to beginning the actual work of ascertaining the present value of railroad property, he addressed letters to the presidents of the principal railroads in New Jersey and requested the co-operation of the corporations in the undertaking. The Governor received favorable answers from Presidents McCrea, of the Pennsylvania; Underwood, of the Erie; Besler, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; Thomas, of the Lehigh Valley, and Brown, of the West Shore. President Truesdale, of the Lackawanna, stated that he was "reluctant to lend aid to the commission whose appointment was openly authorized for the purpose of still further increasing the burden of taxation which we now bear." Mr. Fort assured Mr. Truesdale that "there is no purpose to increase the values of railroad property unless such incease is absolutely justified and is established to be justified by the appraisers themselves."

—Walter Smalley, of Linden avenue, has purchased the property at 145 Duer street, and will soon take up his residence there.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

David Belasco's use and mastery of the science of lighting effects on the stage is probably more clearly shown in "The Girl of the Golden West," which comes to the Plainfield theatre tonight, than in any other production credited to this producer. The fourth act shows a prairie at sunrise with the Girl and the reformed road agent bound eastward, there to work out their destinies away from old faces and old associations. When the curtain rises the time is a few minutes before dawn. The stage is one black, unfathomable mass, the only light being the flaming end of a cigar in the man's mouth. Slowly the darkness becomes fainter and fainter, and then, gradually, but in a burst of glory that never fails to evoke an outburst of applause, the sun rises over the tops of the Sierra Nevada mountains in the distance, and its beams, creeping onward, illumine the prairie foot by foot until the little camp of the travelers rests in the full light of the dawn. The effect cannot be adequately described in type. It must be seen to be appreciated.

Wee and Price's scenic production of the successful four-act melodrama, "The County Sheriff," by C. C. Hoyt, will be at the Plainfield theatre Tuesday night. The whole story is thoroughly American. It is lively and breezy throughout with an abundance of good hearty laughs and a story of an attractive sort. A play that will please. The cast includes Miss Frankie McCoy, a young and clever actress, in the part of Tuesday, a mountain girl. The balance of the cast includes a number of well known and exceptionally clever people.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church, has been registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cotrell, of East Second street, leave next week for their winter home at Lawrenceville, Ga., where they will remain until spring.

RING IS RESTORED TO MRS. T. A. EDISON

For six years Robert F. McCarthy, of 52 Mt. Vernon avenue, Orange, has had in his possession a ring with a large white stone slightly over two carats in size, which he thought to be valueless. While chestnutting in the fall of 1903 in Llewellyn Park, West Orange, McCarthy came upon the ring near the driveway leading to Glenmont, the residence of Thomas A. Edison. The boy did not think the ring to be of any value owing to the large size of the stone, which he thought must be glass. A short time ago he learned the value of the ring and searched for the owner, who proved to be Mrs. Edison herself.

When McCarthy found the ring he showed it to several friends, but they only laughed at it. He offered to sell it for a small sum time and again; he loaned it to friends on several occasions, but he was never able to dispose of it.

However, he kept it, and a few weeks ago a friend told McCarthy that it was a perfect stone. McCarthy took the ring to an expert then, who told him that it was worth $1,100.

McCarthy at once set out to discover the owner of the precious stone. He consulted with several young men who were with him at the time of the find as to the exact location and they remembered that it was in front of the Edison driveway. McCarthy then thought that he would make a house to house canvass of the park, and he called first at the Edison home.

Mrs. Edison was as surprised as the youth had been when he discovered the value of the ring, and she was equally surprised to find that no one discovered its value before.

A few days ago he received a letter from Mrs. Edison, telling him to call at the house. There he was handed a check for an amount beyond his expectations as a reward.

McCarthy, who is a graduate of St. John's School in the class of '06, had been out of employment for several months and Mr. Edison will give him a situation as a further reward for his honesty.

Mrs. Edison advertised the ring at the time but McCarthy, thinking that it was only a cheap trinket, took no steps to inquire as to the ownership.

WILSON'S RULING ON THE NEW PRIMARY LAW.

Attorney General Edmund Wilson Tuesday informed Chairman Alfred H. N. Dalrymple, of the Essex County Republican Committee, that, in his judgment, the law regulating the organization of the committee does not require that the secretary, sergeant-at-arms or treasurer must be a member of the committee. This ruling is at variance with the recent construction placed upon the previous opinion of the Attorney General by Major Carl Lentz, of Newark.

Mr. Dalrymple sought the advice of the Attorney General with a view of determining just what construction should be placed upon his opinion in regard to several points in dispute. One of the things decided by Mr. Wilson was that the chairmen of the wards, boroughs or townships need not of necessity be members of the county committees. He held that the law regulating the membership on the county committee is applicable to that body as a whole and not to the ward subdivision into which it may be divided. As regards the latter, the Attorney General was of the opinion that the constitution and bylaws of the county organizations might control equally with the selection of a secretary, treasurer or sergeant-at-arms or other officers going to make up the machinery of the committee.

ELIZABETH OBJECTS TO ANY HIGH TARIFFS.

The whole day session of the State railroad commission Tuesday was given over to the complaint of the Elizabeth board of trade about an alleged express monopoly by the United States and Adams Express companies on the Central and the Pennsylvania railroads at that point.

E. McCabe Whittamore, representing the board of trade, made the argument that there was an agreement between the two express companies by which they charged exorbitant prices for the same class of merchandise. If one was incensed at the high rate of one company and went to the other, he would find the same price.

As the two companies controlled the railroad business in the town, there was nothing to do but submit, or to make the matter public in an appeal to the State board.

Jackson E. Reybolds, representing the railroad companies, appeared in defense, saying the charges were not exorbitant, and producing figures to show that the rates were not higher, proportionately, than to other points on the two roads. No opinion was expressed by the board. The matter goes over for conference.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and it is expected that there will be initiation.

The Women's Relief Corps of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet in regular session tomorrow night.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 24, 1909.

Topic.—Why some men and women do not succeed in life.—Josh. i, 1-9.

The story of Joshua's life is a story of continued success. In his first appearance as the leader of Israel's army at the battle of Rephidim against the Amalekites he won a signal victory. As one of the twelve spies sent into Canaan, when Israel first reached Canaan, he, with Caleb, brought back an honest report. The majority were against him, and his counsel was disregarded. But his seeming failure was finally a success, for he and Caleb were on the Lord's side, and they of all the original hosts of Israel who came out of Egypt entered the promised land. The mantle of Moses fell upon him when that great leader and lawgiver died, and he was a most worthy successor of his distinguished predecessor. Canaan was conquered. The land was peaceably divided. In good old age Joshua died after delivering to his fellow countrymen a most inspiring address, which has had an influence upon all succeeding generations of his own people as well as upon Christianity, the flower and fruit of Judaism.

Such success in high places is not possible to all. But he who in any walk of life fully meets the duties and responsibilities that fall to his lot attains as great success in life in degree if not in kind as Joshua did. Successful lives explain the cause of life's failures by contrast. If all men and women possessed the characteristics of Joshua and wrought into their lives the elements that were woven into his there would be no failures. But, alas, in too many instances such is not the case! The result is that life's pathway is strewn with many wrecks and failures. Contrasting such lives with that of Joshua, let us study the causes of these failures.

1. Joshua was a firm believer in God and a true follower of God's commands. God was writ large in the entire life of Joshua. Its opening at Rephidim was mingled with an appeal to God. As the successor of Moses he had the promise of God to be with him, which he believed. His life work closed with an appeal to Israel to put away idols and to serve their God. No life is a failure that gives God His proper place in it. Every life is a failure that does not do so. Many keep God out of their life. Disobedience to His commands explains the vast majority of failures. If we would avoid failure let us therefore give God a still larger place both in our inward and outward lives.

2. Joshua had capacity for thought and labor. He had mental ability and used it. He had physical endurance and preserved it. Genius has been defined as "the capacity for hard work." Incessant toil has often accomplished what to the world has seemed impossible except through some special gift or exceptional mental power. But how many brilliant men and women have not succeeded in life through failure to use their splendid gifts! They have idly dreamed life away or wrecked it through dissipation. How many possessed of physical capacity have failed in accomplishing anything in life! Thus talents have lain dormant. In idleness or as human parasites they have made their lives failures. If the ingenuity and perseverance of half the idle bums and beggars in the world were put into legitimate channels of business they would produce success.

But some may disclaim the possession of capacity. If this be entirely so they should become the wards of the state and taken care of. But it is not usually so, only an excuse for failure to do life's work. Moreover, capacity increases with use. Christ taught this fact in the parable of the talents. Joshua increased in military mastership, as he used that which he possessed. Our capacity for doing things may seem small to us, but having something to do and doing it to the very best of our ability will produce results of which we have never even dared to dream.

3. Joshua had self reliance, founded upon his reliance in God. Self reliance, confidence in one's ability to do things, is a great factor in success. The absence of it is a great factor in failure. In the most critical period of his life the Lord said to Joshua: "As I was with Moses, so I will be with thee. * * * Be strong and of good courage." And Joshua was strong and courageous. He trusted in God and believed in himself. Success therefore crowned his labors. God's promises apply also to us. Let us follow Joshua's example—have faith in God and faith in ourselves. The rest will be easy. Put away fears and doubts and murmurings. "Be strong and courageous."

In the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb driven cattle.
Be heroes in the strife.

BIBLE READINGS.

Josh. vi, 12-21; viii, 1-7; xxiv, 14-18; Ps. i, 1-6; xxiii, 1-6; xxxvii, 1-5; Matt. xxv, 14-30; I Tim. vi, 17-19; II Tim. iv, 1-8; Heb. xii, 14-17.

Its Strongest Point.

A minister who was asked, "What is the strongest point in the work of your Christian Endeavor society?" replied: "The number it has added to the week night prayer meeting, not merely of those who attend, but of those who are ready to take an active part. There are thirteen or fourteen from the Endeavor society who will lead in prayer at this larger service. Besides, it is wonderful how much sympathy in his work the minister gets from these young people, who themselves write papers or otherwise assist in Endeavor meetings. They come to understand how much a minister's work costs."

A CLEVER WOMAN

Mr. Ellsworth Was Pleased with Her Sagacity

In the days of their courtship Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth often compared themselves to David Copperfield and Dora. The fantasy seemed very delightful to Ellsworth then, but it wasn't so nice after he got married. The glamor of uncertainty having worn off, he began to wonder why Mrs. Ellsworth could not display a glimmering of common sense on rare occasions.

"It's mighty unpleasant for a fellow," he growled. "Here I am, plunged up to my ears in business schemes that promise to turn out better than anything I ever touched, yet not one word of sympathy can I get in regard to them. I don't want to talk shop all the time, but if I could just come home once in a while and go over my plans and have them listened to with interest and appreciation it would make me feel that all this digging was worth while. But I can't do that. No matter how hard I try to talk sense the only thing I can get out of you in reply is, 'Tra-la-la-la.'"

"Well," returned Mrs. Ellsworth calmly, "what do you expect? You knew when you married me that I was a tra-la-la girl and could never become anything else."

Ellsworth groaned. Finding that that sepulchral expression of despair was going to be his only reply, Mrs. Ellsworth went on:

"If you want somebody to talk business to every night after dinner, I will invite Martha Bennett to say with us while she is in New York. She is a sensible, strong-minded girl."

Ellsworth suddenly ceased to sulk. "Who is Martha Bennett?" he asked.

"A girl I knew at Smith college. She really has a masculine intellect. Moreover, she is of a decidedly practical turn of mind and is going into business for herself. She is coming to New York to take lessons in brokerage or insurance or some other line of work that will give her a chance to exercise her exceptional mental qualities. I always liked Martha in spite of her superiority. If you wish it I will ask her to stay with us until she gets settled."

Ellsworth hesitated. He did not exactly relish the prospect of a triangular household; still he recognized the possibility of cultivating his wife's mind by demonstrating in her presence the immeasurable benefits accruing to a man through a sympathetic discussion of his affairs with a clever woman, and he consented to the temporary entertainment of Martha Bennett.

Ellsworth considered himself very deep. It was his plan that he and Martha should speedily become good friends. He hoped by means of that friendship to influence Mrs. Ellsworth's gentle heart with the fires of jealousy, which would, in turn, arouse her to a real or simulated interest in his affairs. To that end he labored arduously. He was interested in mining deals just then. A certain company was known to be looking for a capable person to take charge of a new enterprise, and it was Ellsworth's ambition to procure the managerial position. He was familiar with the details of the business, and he explained them to Miss Bennett.

But Mrs. Ellsworth's mind showed no sign of quickening. She sat in her favorite corner of the room, from which comfortable nook she beamed with pleasure and affection upon her husband and their guest. Finally Ellsworth began to despair of ever grounding his wife in commercial principles, but he kept on talking to Martha Bennett. He not only talked to her; he talked about her.

"By Jove!" he said to Mrs. Ellsworth, "that woman is a gem. The fellow that gets her will have a helpmate that is a helpmate, I tell you."

Mrs. Ellsworth smiled affably. "I'm glad you like Martha," she said.

"Like her?" echoed Ellsworth. "Well, I should say I do like her. I should be ungrateful if I didn't. She has been an incalculable help to me. If it hadn't been for her sympathetic attention I could never have got my ideas into shape for presentation to the Big Steal Mining Company. I had a long talk with these fellows this morning. I think I made a good impression. The only thing that will stand in my way is the salary. They don't want to pay my price. They seem to have found some person, a woman, too, by the way, who has offered to undertake the job at a much lower figure, and they may be persuaded to give her a trial. They were to have a final talk with her this afternoon. They say she seems quite competent. That's the trouble with these educated freaks in petticoats—they're apt to steal the bread right out of a fellow's mouth.

"But they are very companionable," remarked Mrs. Ellsworth, sweetly. "Take you and Martha Bennett," for instance. You have been mutually helpful. She was telling me when she came in this evening that you have been the making of her. She got a position to-day. It seems to be something very good. Martha says she will be eternally grateful to you."

Ellsworth stopped whistling. "Got a job, did she?" he said. "What kind of a position? Who with?"

"O, you can't expect me to know anything about the particulars. Martha told me all about it, but, of course, I couldn't understand. The only thing I can remember is the name of the firm. That is the Big Steal Mining Company."

Ellsworth did not speak for fully five minutes. The only thing he then said was:

"Well, I'll be jiggered."

FULL SIZE LOOM IN OPERATION

SHOWING HOW RUGS ARE MADE.

Likely you have never seen a carpet loom in operation— and maybe you have wondered how such beautiful patterns and colorings were woven into carpets and rugs. And because there were no carpet mills in Newark, and you wouldn't visit them if they were here, you had not hoped to see such looms at work. But we have planned a treat for you, and through the generosity of the Whittall Carpet Mills we will have in operation for a week a full-sized loom right here in the store of your choice, where you can see it at work any day you come.

This great loom comes from the famed Whittall Carpet Mills of Philadelphia, where they make those charmingly beautiful rugs so closely resemble the richest Oriental product, assembling yarns of many different colors into rugs of rich and beautiful designs—a most fascinating spectacle, indeed, educational to both old and young.

As you watch the process of weaving you will note the soft luster of silk into which the rich hues blend so nicely, demonstrating the fact that all things have been made to work together to produce rugs as will satisfy the home-keeper's love of beauty and art, and yet appeal to the strictest sense of economy. Here you will see Whittall Rugs produced at one-tenth the price of the Oriental, possessing equal beauty, luster and wearing qualities—a feat that all Americans should be proud of.

We invite all our friends and patrons to see this wonderful loom at work, beginning Saturday, October 23d. We especially desire the attendance of school children and extend a special invitation to them.

The operators will be glad to answer any questions you may ask.

In conjunction with this loom exhibit we will make a generous display of the beautiful Whittall Rugs we have in stock. There are many sizes and qualities, a few of which we here describe:

ANGLO-PERSIAN RUGS.

This is Whittall's finest quality, made in patterns and colorings suitable for any part of the home, and rivaling the finest Oriental in texture and design—

9x12 ft., $53.50. 36x63 in., $8.50.
8¼x10½ ft., $48.50. 22½x36 in., $4.00.

ANGLO-INDIAN RUGS.

Especially recommended for offices and public places where service and dust-resisting qualities are specially desired—

9x12 ft., $45.00. 36x63 in., $7.50.
8¼x10½ ft., $41.00 22½x36 in., $3.25.

ROYAL WORCESTER RUGS.

These are made of lustrous worsted yarns—the designs and colorings closely approaching the finest grades—

9x12 ft., $40.00. 36x63 in., $7.00.
8¼x10½ ft., $37.50 22½x36 in., $3.00.

BRUSSELS RUGS.

No fabric equals good Brussels for the sleeping-room, yet you must avoid the many inferior makes upon the market. We can recommend Whittall's Childema Rugs—those in the dainty chintz bedroom effects being particularly delightful—

9x12 ft., $30; 8½x10½ ft., $27.50; 22½x36 in., $2

Peerless Brussels Rugs are also one of the good Whittall makes, in which you will find a splendid variety of patterns and colorings at an extremely moderate price—

9x12 ft., $27.50. 6x9 ft., $17.50.
8¼x10½ ft., $25.00. 27x54 in., $2.75.
22½x36 in., $2.00.

FRESH AND FANCIFUL.

About the hardest crop to raise on a farm nowadays is the boys in the family.

"Don't walk around the owl and stare at her," said the keeper of the menagerie. "It turns her head."

"One feature about this bureau that I recommend," said the salesman, "is that it has been carefully oiled all over the back. Gum won't stick to it anywhere."

"My daughters," said the customer "are all married. Show me one that you can't drive a nail into. I want it for my boy."

"That was a pretty hard story to swallow," said the cellar when the upper part of the house fell into it.

A sufferer from a severe cough says that his complaint has one of the modern improvements—a pneumatic tire.

It's a little queer when you think of it, that in a run on the bank you have to get in line and walk.

The boy had been passed on the conductor at half-fare rates, and later the official saw him in a seat by himself and began to talk to him.

"Hold old are you, sonny?" he

"Ten years old," said the boy.

"Aren't you rather large for your age?"

"Maybe I am on the train, but I ain't when at home," was the ambiguous answer.

And the conductor let him alone.

When the typewriter is introduced into the public school course, will the small boy who is learning to write continue to stick his tongue out as of yore?

Silk for Face Massage.

A woman who pays careful attention to all the details of her toilet says that she finds a piece of soft white china silk better for massaging the face than chamois, linen or any other substance. It is so soft it will not injure the texture of the skin and it seems to possess a quality almost magnetic when rubbed vigorously across the skin. Then, too, she says, another great advantage is that a piece of silk takes up such small space that she can easily carry it in a hand bag. This means that it is at hand in case of necessity.

Alluring Fancy Scarfs.

Exquisite are some of the chiffons and liberty silks shown in the shops. These make the most alluring scarfs. The ends may be left unfinished or neatly hemmed. Some are finished with a fringe and others with a simple design outlined in beads.

Velvet-Covered Hats.

Velvet-covered hats will be worn much this fall. That they will not be too heavy a special lightweight millinery velvet is to be had. Black hats will be exceptionally smart this season.

CHESTER'S ROUGH WAY

"Of course, I'm glad Guy is coming," said Mrs. Drayton with a sigh as she folded a letter from her bachelor brother which she had been reading to her mother. "Still I hope he won't expect perfection of Chester. He was so critical of the child when he was here the last time that I was quite worn out when he left."

"It's Only Natural."

"His ideals for the youngster are pretty high," replied Guy's mother. "I suppose it's only natural that he should think women can't bring up a boy in a manly way. Still, I did most of his bringing up and he seems well satisfied with the result," added the older woman, with a gleam of humor in her eyes. "Now, dear, let me give you a little advice.

"Don't try to shield Chester, and don't apologize to Guy for any of the boy's little failings. The situation won't be nearly so trying if you let Chester answer for himself when his uncle finds fault with the easy freedom of his table manners, discovers the high-water mark on his supposedly washed hands and accuses the restless little fellow of the crime of perpetual motion. Let Chester defend himself."

"When Guy hears those slangy expressions Chester has acquired since he began to play ball," mourned Chester's mother," he will think me a neglectful parent. But you know how futile have been my efforts to make Chester stop using those coarse expressions."

"I sometimes think you try too hard," said the grandmother. "But don't worry, dear. Remember to let Chester stand on his own legs if his uncle sees fit to criticise him. It will be much better for all concerned than for him to lean on you for protection."

The very first evening after her brother's arrival Mrs. Drayton found herself informing him that Chester had come in from play too late to change his clothes for dinner.

"His tardiness is really my fault," she said almost penitently, "for I should have had his watch put in order so that he could know what time it is. I've been rather discouraged because it's been broken so often. You know, Guy, how unreliable an inexpensive watch is."

"Yes, I know," said Uncle Guy severely. "Especially when a boy isn't taught to take care of his things. Perhaps if Chester had to earn his watches he'd value them more highly."

"What do I want with that turnip, anyway?" asked Chester, with an air of scorn that made his mother shudder. "It's only the sissies that sport gold watches and chains. There's not a boy in our nine who carries a watch."

"Are you on a baseball nine?" asked Uncle Guy with a sudden softening of his voice.

"Well, I guess yes. Maybe you think, Uncle Guy, I can't play the game because I am a southpaw, but—"

"Oh, Chester, you mustn't—" began Mrs. Drayton, but her mother's quick cough interrupted the reproof.

"I wish you'd seen me to-day," went on Chester. "I had one ball and two strikes and then I knocked a home run. Gee, those other kids were surprised. They think we fellows haven't got the dope, but—"

Mrs. Drayton's mother beckoned her into the back parlor. There they caught only occasional fragments of the highly technical discussion that the masculine members of the family were excitedly carrying on.

"Rotten player—bases full, two gone, two strikes and fanned out."

Mrs. Drayton made a whimsical grimace at her mother as these bits of conversation floated into the room.

"Did you ever hear such jargon?" she said. "Guy's language is every bit as impossible as Chester's."

An hour later, after Mrs. Drayton had been obliged to assert her personal authority in order to get her son to go to bed, Guy addressed her very seriously.

"I tell you," he said, "that boy is coming on wonderfully, and I hope you and mother won't spoil him by your continual training and criticism. Let the little chap develop naturally and you'll see that he comes out all right. You can't expect a boy to be absolutely perfect. I see marked improvement in him since my last visit. He's a great deal more manly and self-reliant. It's a relief to me to find that the fussy training you have given him has not weakened his character."

He was too much engrossed in the airing of his views to notice the sarcastic remarks that his sister threw to him occasionally as he talked.

"Well," he said at last, "I'm off to bed. "I promised to get up early and give Chester some points in pitching before breakfast. He wants me to umpire the game that's on later in the day. I'm going downtown first, though, to get him a league ball and a first-class glove. Any one would have known a woman bought the poor little chap the cheap outfit he has now. Well, good-night."

Mrs. Drayton looked at her mother in comical bewilderment.

The older woman laughed. "Didn't you ever hear, my dear, that fellow feeling makes us wondrous kind?"—Chicago Daily News.

WALLOP PINGRY SCHOOL

Elizabeth Boys Trounced by Plainfield High School's Crack Eleven.

THE SCORE WAS 39 TO 0.

One-sided Game at County Seat Ends in Great Victory for the Local Aggregation.

In one of the hardest games of the season, the Plainfield High School football team defeated Pingry School, of Elizabeth, at the latter place, yesterday afternoon. The final score was 39 to 0. Pingry put up a hard fight, but Plainfield was too much for it.

The game started with Pingry kicking off to Plainfield. Riffert caught the ball and ran with it to the 25-yard line. In a few minutes the Plainfield team had the ball down the field and Nash, by a series of rushing, made a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal.

Plainfield kicked off again and within a few minutes had the ball, rushing it down the field. Nash then made another touchdown and Phillips kicked the goal. In the same manner Smith made another touchdown. Just before time was called Doane made a pretty touchdown by catching a forward pass.

In the second half, Pingry braced up, but so did P. H. S. After the first kick-off, Pingry lost the ball on downs and Nash rushed it down the field again making a touchdown. It was up to Plainfield to kick off again and in a similar manner, the local boys got the ball and worked it down the field. When the 25 yard line was reached, Nash kicked the goal with a drop kick. During the last few minutes of play, Pingry braced up so that its opponents had to play their very best. Plainfield finally got the ball and Smith made a touchdown and Phillips kicked the goal.

Everyone of the Plainfield team played a splendid game. Nash was the all-round star with several touchdowns. After the fourth touchdown, Principal Lindsey Best remarked that the fellows might as well keep up their good work for practice. Much credit is due Smith and Carpenter for good work. The lineup:

P. H. S.	Pingry.
Phillips	Best
right end.
VanZandt	Blatz
right tackle.
Widowson, Thompson	Carr
right guard.
Bellows	Barr
centre.
Ramsey	Slauson
left guard.
Carpenter	Pope
left tackle.
VanZandt, Doane	Brown
left end.
Nash	Chase
right halfback.
Bristol, Ricketts	Towl
left halfback.
Smith	Tieman
fullback.
Riffert, Clark, Uhler	Banker
quarterback.

The touchdowns were made by Nash, Smith and Doane. Phillips kicked all the goals. The halves were 20 and 25 minutes Timer, Woodhull; linesmen, Parker and Ross; umpire, Phillips; referee, Hall.

COUNTRY CLUB GOLFERS IN WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT

The Plainfield Country club was well represented at the one-day golf tournament for women held at the Montclair Golf club, yesterday, which was won by Miss Frances Cooper of the home club, by a score of 107, 24-83. It was an 18-hole medal play handicap.

These scores were posted by the Plainfield women:

Miss A. M. Elsberg, 110, 20-90; Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, 95, 3-92; Miss Maud VanBoskerck, 112, 12-100; Mrs. Arthur Wellington Opp, 117, 16-101; Miss Martha Robert, 120, 18-102; Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, 115, 12-103.

CAMPBELL AND STOUT WINNERS AT BOWLING

Two victories for Campbell and one for Stout was the result in the individual tourney last night, Campbell winning from Laing and Stout, while Stout scored his victory at the expense of Ed Laing.

The scores:

Stout		186	175
Campbell		199	177
Laing	165	211	180
Stout	176	182	203
Laing		177	191

STILLMAN DEFEATED BY THE N.P.H.S., 22-0

The Westfield eleven being unable to play the game scheduled for yesterday afternoon with North Plainfield High School, the latter team met instead the Stillman School boys on the cricket field. The Stillman eleven being a very light one, N. P. H. S. agreed upon fifteen minute halves. N. P. H. S. won by a score of 22 to 0, Carlton Smith, the fullback, making all four touchdowns. Smith also kicked one goal. Percy Bailey kicked another. Because of the light weight of the Stillman eleven, N. P. H. S. put practically its second team into the game. Considering their weight the Stillman boys played well.

There is no game slated for Saturday on the N. P. H. S. schedule and the team will take advantage of the gap to practice.

NEWARK'S CRACK TEAM AT CAMPBELL'S TONIGHT.

High scores are looked for tonight at Campbell's alleys when the Newark Eastern league bowling team meets the Plainfield five in a match game. Local bowling fans will probably remember that the Newarkers did some sensational pinning when they rolled on the local alleys last season and similar results are anticipated in the match tonight. The match will begin at 7 o'clock promtly.

The Newark line up will be: Meyer, Pierson, Hoagland, Noack and Weingarth, while the home team will be Kiely, Blatz, Laing, Stout, Nash and Campbell.

ALLEN GETS THIRTY YEARS FOR MURDER

New Brunswick, Oct. 21.—Robert Allen has escaped the electric chair and will spend thirty years in State prison for the murder of Charles McLaughlin. After two hours and twenty-five minutes deliberation, the jury which heard the case brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree yesterday afternoon. Justice Bergen at once imposed the extreme sentence permitted by law, thirty years.

Justice Bergen charged that the jury should take into consideration the question as to whether Allen knew what he was doing at the time he made threats testified to by the State's witnesses and all the circumstances connected with the shooting when Allen declared he was drunk.

Both sides concluded their case Tuesday afternoon, but Justice Bergen decided to continue the case yesterday morning, when Prosecutor Booraem summed up for the State and the jury was charged.

Chief of Police Michael O'Connell and Sergeant John Clinton were placed upon the stand in rebuttal, and both testified to Allen, at the time of his arrest, not saying anything about a fight with McLaughlin in 1904 as he narrated upon the stand. Former Senator Robert Adrian, in summing up, made a strong plea for the man's life on the ground that he was intoxicated. He declared it was a shame that young McLaughlin should be taken away in the fulness of life, but the defendant he held, had no intention of murdering him at the time of the firing of the fatal shots.

The fact that Allen had been convicted of bigamy, he held, should have no weight in the case. Allen had secured separation papers from his wife and thought this gave him the right to remarry.

Lawyer Adrian said if the defendant was convicted of murder in the second degree it would mean thirty years in State prison. Allen was now fifty-five years of age and at eighty-five years of age he would hardly be alive.

Allen seemed quite happy at the end of the day's proceedings. He shook hands with his counsel and seemed to be in the best of spirits.

UNEARTH SKELETON OF "JERSEY DEVIL"

Hundreds of citizens of Burlington who examined the bones of a hideous-looking creature discovered in the Kinkora woods near that city by Morris Sapovits and Charles Malsbury, believe the original of the famous "Jersey Devil" has been found. The young men were chestnutting when they noticed the skeleton, and struck by its freakish appearance, decided to bring it home.

Apparently, the animal had been dead several months. Its frame is well preserved and the dried flesh and remnants of long hair stretch over the rack. Its appearance, the head and hindquarters, resemble a cat, but there the resemblance ceases. The front legs consist of four distinctly jointed sections, and instead of feet there are flat bones three inches long and half as broad, with a half-inch keel on the bottom. The front legs are about fourteen inches long, while the entire animal is about a foot and a half in length, with a kangaroo-like tail and what appears to be the frameworks of wings.

Sapovits and Malsbury have made affidavits that the skeleton is just as they found it, and school teachers, city officials and physicians who have examined it are satisfied as to its genuineness.

Sapovits says that he will turn his find over to the Academy of Natural Sciences, of Philadelphia.

What many believe offers a possible connection between the freak animal and the pony hoof prints in the snow, which last winter disturbed South Jersey, is the fact that the animal, if it progressed by leaps, would, by landing on both fore feet, make an almost perfect print of a hoof.

SWINDLER IN AUTO WORKED BUNCO GAME.

Elizabeth, Oct. 21.—A swindler with an old game buncoed Christian Hansen, a real estate agent at 842 Garden street, this city, out of $20 Tuesday afternoon. The man, who was smartly dressed, was driving a touring car and stopped at Mr. Hansen's office. He informed the latter that his automobile had just broken down. He came from Linden, he said, and was on his way to Staten Island. It would cost $20 to have the machine repaired in Elizabeth. He only had a couple of dollars when he left home, and could Mr. Hansen let him have $20. He would give as security a diamond ring valued at $200. He took the ring from his finger and offered it. Hansen fell for it. The stranger promised to return the money at 11 o'clock this morning.

He failed to show up, and when Hansen took the ring to a jeweler he was informed that the "diamond" was paste and the whole affair was worth about one dollar. The police have been notified.

DUKES PLAN MERGER OF BIG COTTON MILLS

An alliance of the largest cotton manufacturers of the Southern States and the establishment of a chain of cotton mills in the Piedmont section of North and South Carolina that will overshadow Fall River, Lowell or New Bedford has been planned and is being put into effect by James B. Duke, of Raritan, the tobacco magnate of New York and associates, including his brother, B. N. Duke, of Durham, N. C., it is believed.

The fact that James B. Duke is the moneyed man in the Southern Power Company at Charlotte, N. C., which owns more than half the water powers in the South, lent color to a recent rumor, and yesterday the organization was announced of the Republic Mills, which will establish a $600,000 plant at the river falls station of the power company below Chester, S. C. It is known that Duke was active in the promotion of the company and is interested. The Republic will be the first of the alleged string of mills.

PATROL JERSEY SHORE TO BLOCK A WATER CO.

In order to prevent the East Jersey Water Company making any excavations for the purpose of laying a water pipe line beneath the Kill von Kull, at the foot of Ingram avenue, Bayonne, to connect with Port Richmond, Staten Island, Mayor Pierre Garven last night had a detail of policemen guarding the shore. The company several years ago obtained a contract to supply Staten Island with water and laid a thirty-inch main from the line dividing Jersey City and Bayonne along Avenue E and Ingram avenue to the Kills. The Legislature upset the company's plans by passing an act prohibiting the conversion of New Jersey water to any other State.

The water company is now planning to supply the borough of Richmond with water taken from driven wells at Belleville. It claims the act meant that only water taken from the surface could not be taken from the State. Mayor Wittpenn and the Jersey City Street and Water Board claim that the company, by taking water from wells, would violate the law. Recently the Jersey City officials tore up pipes the water company had laid along the Morris Canal, intending to connecting them with the Bayonne main.

Tuesday Mayor Wittpenn was informed that the company would start a gang of men to work to begin the extension of the main across the Kills. He telephoned to Mayor Garven, who had Chief of Police Yore send policemen to the scene. They found pipes piled along the shore and learned that a dredger had been at work from the Staten Island side. No attempt was made during the day to start work on the Bayonne side.

Mayor Wittpenn says it is in violation of the State and United States laws to lay pipes beneath the Kills without the necessary permit.

INTERSTATE COMPANY NOT FOR BELL COMPANY.

Trenton, Oct. 21.—An order was granted Tuesday by Vice-Chancellor Howell restraining the transfer of any of the property or securties of the Interstate Telephone Company to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, or any of the subsidiary corporations comprising the Bell system. By the order the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its associate corporations are restrained from taking any action to have the Bell system acquire control of the Interstate.

The injunction was applied for by former Attorney General Robert H. McCarter, representing Charles West, of Harrisburg; Louis Kuehnle and Charles Fortner, of Atlantic City; the American Electric Telephone Company of Chicago, and the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing Company, all of whom are stockholders of the Interstate. One of the grounds for the injunction is the charge that many of the franchises obtained by the Interstate company were granted on the express understanding that its lines were to be operated in opposition to the Bell system.

GIVES HIS EXPERIENCES

Father Bogan Talks Interestingly of His Trip While Abroad.

BEFORE THE T. A. B. SOCIETY.

He Pictures Beauties of Rome and Predicts the Dawning of a New Day for Ireland.

Rev. B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church, told the members of the T. A. B. society of the church at their hall on Fourth street, last night, about his experiences while touring Europe. The priest journied through the old world for two months, after having first visited Rome. He was a member of a party of fifty priests with Bishop O'Connor, of Newark, and other prelates. All of the fifty were graduates of the American College at Rome.

"We went across on the Campania, a slow but commodious boat;" said Father Bogan, "and while I had little money when I boarded her, I was completely broke when I reached the land of liberty again—not completely, at that; I had seven dollars and twenty cents left.

"The first stop our boat made was for a sad purpose. On my fifth day out I had noticed a pale young girl stretched out on a steamer chair, with her mother by her side watching her solicitiously. I gave her young woman an orange. Next day I failed to see her in her chair and then I learned that she was no more. Later the boat stopped, her body was dropped into the ocean, and then we went on.

"A few days later the boat again paused in her voyage and for the same cause as before. A mother of eight children was stricken in the morning and was dead in the afternoon. Late that day she, too, was dropped into the waters. We discerned what seemed like clouds in the distance one morning, but they gradually took the shape of islands, and we learned they were the Azores. Several of the passengers asked the captain of our boat to sail closer in, so that we might get a better view of this, our first real view of real land since leaving America. But he refused, and for good reasons as turned out later, for one week afterward the sister ship of our boat grounded near the Azores and it was several weeks before they got her off.

"We reached Gibraltar on a moonlight night and cast anchor under the guns of Great Britain. Just before we went ashore at Gibraltar I was called upon to speak before the passengers, and there were so many of the latter assembled to hear me that I became shaky and resolved not to rely upon an original speech. So I looked up my scrap book and Joaquin Miller's poem "Sail On," fell into my hand, so I read it to the passengers. I made a notable hit with it, too, and that's something I'd never have done had I relied upon my own wits.

"On our way to Italy, all fifty of us were on the look-out for the Isle of Elba, and we each and all pointed it out. If every place we pointed out was Elba, the great Napoleon must have had more lives than a score of cats. At Pompeii we saw how the hand of God had reached toward the immoral and the wicked. The destruction was fearful to behold. What a lesson the sunken city is to the infidel of the present day!

"My first experience in an Italian railroad coach was a peculiar one. It seems that the coach is divided off into what looked like private compartments. A guard threw me into one of them, and there I found two young women who eyed me with curiosity. They were young Englishwomen and they took me for an English parson of the Episcopal faith. I disillusioned them. I said that I was a real dyed in the wool Roman Catholic priest, but that I didn't bite in the daytime.

"Arrived at Rome I found it thronged with tourists. It still seems a magnet for travellers despite what is said to the contrary. I cannot describe the magnificence of St. Peter's. Truly, it must be seen to be appreciated. The leaning tower of Pisa is wonderful enough, but it didn't impress me very strongly. It leans quite a little, it is true, but not as much as the city of Pisa does to the money of American tourists. In Venice I travelled to my hotel in a gondola. I don't think that any other conveyance known to man gives you the feeling of luxury of the gondola. In Milan I was driven about in a mule cart and encountered my first acident when a trolley car ran into me. I was pitched into the gutter and mussed up a little, but I sustained no injuries.

"Arrived at Ireland I found every indication of the dawning of a new day for her. May the noon of it come soon, and the night never! The

SMALL-POX CLOSES SCHOOL; DISEASE AT SO. PLAINFIELD

Smallpox has made its appearance at South Plainfield and caused the closing of the public school yesterday afternoon. Township Physician William Nelson, discovered the victim in the person of Frank Pomponio, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Pomponio. It is said that four other cases of the disease have been discovered in the village, but no confirmation of this report was to be had this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Pomponio have been doubly afflicted this week, having lost their infant son last Wednesday from pneumonia. The school was ordered closed by Dr. Nelson and it will be thoroughly fumigated before the children are allowed to return to their studies.

COUNTY HIGHWAY WORK DELAYED BY RAILROADS

Work on the roads being built in various parts of the county is not progressing as rapidly as it might. The delay is unavoidable, however, and is caused by the shipments of material being held up along the railroads.

Director King, of the Board of Freeholders, yesterday in talking about the matter, said that so much road work is being done all over the country that the demand for material exceeds the supply. For this reason deliveries are not rapid enough for the contractors.

What work has been done is very satisfactory. The County Road Committee is watching the construction work very closely.

THACKERAY READINGS BY MRS. ROBT. LOWRY

Mrs. Robert Lowry gave a variety of interesting readings from Thackeray to a large audience at the Y. W. C. A. rooms last night. She began with a story of the life of the author. Mrs. Lowry then read the poem "The Old Arm Chair," and related the dictionary episode in "Vanity Fair." Two essays on Thackeray's heroines written by William Dean Howells followed, and Mrs. Lowry showed her auditors an autograph letter from Mr. Howells.

Arthur Bostwick, of the Plainfield High School, gave an informal talk on stencil designing and illustrated it with samples of his own work. His talk was well received and two classes in stencilling were formed immediately after his discourse. Both will be in the charge of Mr. Bostwick and will meet regularly every week beginning next Thursday. One class will meet at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the other at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

The War of the Roses closes tomorrow evening, so contestants have but a single day more to get in new members listed. The red roses lead by a slight margin, but just now there is no telling as to how the battle will result.

WANT NEW FIRE WHISTLE

Councilmanic Committee Discusses Subject of a New Alarm System.

SEVERAL SUGGESTIONS MADE.

COST AS HIGH AS $3,500—A New Switchboard at About $2,500—May Buy Another Steamer (?)

The Councilmanic fire committee, of which Duncan W. Taylor is chairman, together with Mayor Charles J. Fisk, met in the office of the latter, last night, and among the important matters discussed was that in reference to provide an alarm at headquarters to replace the present fire alarm whistle now at the electric light station. The Public Service Corporation has notified the Council that it will soon abandon the station and other arrangements will have to be made for sounding alarms of fire.

It was suggested last night that a compressed air whistle be located at fire headquarters, at a cost of $3,500, and other members suggested an electric vibrator, but this is in the experimental stage, and was not thought advisable. Chief Doane offered the suggestion that an iron tower with a large bell in the top be erected. He said that this could be done at a cost of about $2,500. Then it was proposed to do away with the public alarm and place tappers in the homes of the call-men, but as the men are not home during the day this system would not be satisfactory.

It was finally decided that for the present the department will secure the use of two church bells, one in each end of the city, until other arrangements can be made.

Another important matter discussed was that of the temporary switchboard which has been in use at fire headquarters for nineteen years. Its present condition is considered dangerous and a new board will have to be installed at a cost of a little more than $2,500.

It was suggested that No. 1 steamer be placed in the new fire house on South avenue and that another steamer be purchased for the business section. This change is not likely to take place, however, very soon.

MT. ZION'S YOUNG MEN AT A WAFFLE SUPPER.

Under the auspices of the Young Men's club of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, a waffle supper and musical and literary entertainment were held in the church, last night. There was a large attendance and the supper was well patronized. The church was decorated with chrysanthemums and other flowers, red, white and blue being the prevailing colors.

The waffle supper was served by the men and was thoroughly enjoyed. Afterward there was a program of music and recitations. Alfred P. White gave recitations and songs; Aubrey J. Lambert recited "The Murderer," and also sang a song, and a trio, Aubrey J. Lambert, Alfred P. White and Edward Blair sang a popular number. A quartet comprising Aubrey J. Lambert, Edward Blair, Walter Johnson and Alfred P. White sang "A Bill of Fare," which was heartily applauded. There were also vocal solos by Walter Johnson, Seymour VanBlake and recitations by Edward B. Maynard and Augustus Clark. Spencer Kelly was chairman of the committee of arrangements and Alfred P. White was chairman of the entertainment committee.

E. church, Avenue C and Thirty-first street, Bayonne, last night, the occasion marking the twenty-seventh anniversary of Mr. Coward as superintendent of the Sunday-school at that church. He entertained the officers and teachers of the school and the members of the church orchestra, composed of young people.

Lost Valuable Beagle Hound.

George Hooley, of 912 South avenue, lost a valuable Beagle hound last night, and in another part of The Daily Press he offers a reward for the return of the dog. Sometime during the night all of his valuable dogs got out and after considerable trouble he caught all but the one small female Beagle hound. It has a white body with black spot, tan head and ears and a white blaze on the face.

COMMERCIAL MILLS SOLD

After Fifty Years Activity, Abram L. Cadmus Disposes of Business.

THE CONSIDERATION IS $35,000.

Otis Corbett, of New York, the Purchaser—To Make Improvements at Plant.

The Commercial Mills on South Second street, which have been owned by Abram L. Cadmus for more than a quarter of a century, have been sold to Otis Corbett, of New York city, for $35,000. The deal was made yesterday by Isaac E. Giles, real estate broker, and Mr. Corbett takes possession November 1. He will make a number of improvements and continue the business.

Mr. Cadmus retires from business after a period of fifty years as one of Plainfield's leading merchants. William H. Shotwell, his brother-in-law, who for seventeen years has been associated with him, also retires.

Mr. Cadmus first began business at the old mill on what was known as the Cadmus property, off of West End avenue, the borough, which is now owned by C. W. McCutchen and W. J. Buttfield. A few years later he established the Commercial Mills, which he has conducted for more than twenty-five years and with much success.

Mr. Corbett is the manager for Park & Co., public accountants, at 52 Broadway, New York. He will make his home in Plainfield and personally supervise the business at the mills.

MCINTYRE TRIO CONCERT AT P. H. S. MONDAY NIGHT.

The musical season in Plainfield will be inaugurated Monday evening when the first of the McIntyre chamber music will be given at the High School auditorium. The program is so replete with gems that it is difficult to make a choice. The soloist of the evening, Sidney Biden, of Berlin, has chosen two delightful groups of songs and those preferring vocal to instrumental music will be in their element. On the other hand, the trio number, Smetana's G minor, is one of that great composer's greatest efforts, and devotees of instrumental music will be just as well provided for in the evening's offerings. Other numbers which will be received with great enthusiasm are the solos by Hans Letz, the violinist.

The personnel of the trio this season is the same as last. Mr. McIntyre at the piano, Hans Letz, violinist and Vladimir Dubinsky, cellist.

RICHTER HELD FOR THEFT

Confesses to Stealing Revolver at Long Branch Last June.

SIMILAR ONE MISSING HERE.

Claims to Know Nothing About Weapon Missing From A. M. Griffen's Store Since July.

William Richter, a seventeen-year-old youth, of this city, was taken into custody by Roundsman Higgins and Sergeant Overbaugh about 11 o'clock last night, while leaving the Plainfield theatre, on suspicion of having stolen a revolver from the stock of A. M. Griffen, of West Front street.

It was reported to Chief Kiely yesterday that young Richter was trying to dispose of a revolver at a pool room on Watchung avenue, and as the circumstances surrounding the sale were suspicious Chief Kiely determined to apprehend the young man and get an explanation of how he came into possession of the gun.

At first Richter refused to reveal how he came to have the gun in his possession, in fact denied all knowledge of it, but after a night in the lockup he confessed to having stolen it from a hardware store at Long Branch. In telling his story to Judge William Runyon in the city court this morning Richter said that last June while on his way from Asbury Park to New York, he stopped off at Long Branch to wait for a boat. His finger nails required attention so he stepped into a hardware store on the main street and asked to be shown some nail files.

Lying temptingly before him on a window sill he saw several revolvers exposed for sale. He had always wanted to possess a gun that would shoot bullets and while the clerk was looking for the box containing the nail files Master Richter appropriated an Iver-Johnson self-cocker, slipping it easily into his trousers pocket, he paid for the file and made his exit.

That was Willie's tale. Now, it seems that about three months ago a revolver, the exact counterpart of the one Willie tried to sell, was taken from the show case of A. M. Griffen's store, and singularly enough, the price and number ticket corresponds with the tickets used in Mr. Griffen's store and even the figures on the ticket have been identified as the writing of Andrew Vanderbeek, one of Mr. Griffen's clerks. When told of this Willie reaffirmed even more strenuously his original story, even going so far as to give the details of the location, next to a bakery, of the hardware store in Long Branch. His story will be thoroughly investigated and if Willie's story is found to be untrue it will go hard with him.

The officers elected at the Union County Sunday-school convention in Cranford last night are as follows: President, Thomas B. Lindsay, of Rahway; first vice-president, Rev. John Y. Broek, of Plainfield; second vice-president, Rev. N. A. Merritt, of Rahway; third vice-president, Philo M. Schofield, of Elizabeth; secretary-treasurer, George H. Gabler, of Westfield; recording secretary, Rev. S. G. Snowden, of Elizabeth.

Superintepdents of the various departments were: Home, Mrs. Elmer Cornell, of Union; elementary, Miss Beulah Valentine, of Elizabeth; organizing adult Bible classes, James Johnston, of Westfield; children's department, C. C. Woodruff, of Roselle Park.

Several highly interesting addresses were given during the afternoon session especially that of Rev. E. E. Foote, of Freehold, who told of the arduous work necessary for the proper conduct of the schools. He said that teaching in the schools was a vocation in itself, and not an avocation as some were inclined to think. It is as necessary to study for the work as it is to study for any other vocation.

TUBERCULOSIS MEETING

Great Gathering of Jerseymen Hear of the White Plague Crusade.

GOVERNOR J. F. FORT PRESIDES.

State Senator Ackerman, Dr. B. vanD. Hedges and Many Others From Here Attend the Meeting.

The public meeting in the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, last night, inaugurating the State campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis, was largely attended and among those present were Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, James P. Murray, Dr. H. D. Corbusier, Dr. F. C. Ard, Dr. F. E. DuBois, Miss May Leahy, Miss Olive DeLany and Miss Harriet O. Mattison, the last named connected with the Board of Health office, this city.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the State Tuberculosis Commission, New Jersey Association for the Prevention and Relief of Tuberculosis, State Board of Health, State Charities Aid Association and the officers and members of the Medical Society of New Jersey.

Governor J. Franklin Fort presided, and the meeting opened with a prayer by Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, D. D., LL.D., Bishop of Trenton, and chairman of the State Tuberculosis Commission. Of the announced speakers Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Dr. Livingston Farrand, Secretary National Tuberculosis Association, were the only ones who could not attend.

The speakers, besides the Governor, who introduced those on the program, were Dr. Henry Baird Favil, of Chicago; Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of Boston; Homer Folks, secretary New York State Charities Aid Association; Prof. William H. Welch, M. D., LL.D., of John Hopkins University, President Board of Trustees Rockefeller Institute of Medical Science; Dr. William A. Evans, Health Commissioner, of Chicago. Dr. Henry VanDyke, of Princeton, pronounced the benedictoin.

It was learned that the number of deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis in the State of New Jersey during 1907-08 was 3,479. Governor Fort in his opening remarks suggested that it might be a good thing for the State to appropriate about 3,000 acres of land which it owns in Burlington county, for the care and treatment of advanced cases of tuberculosis. The suggestion was received with much interest and enthusiasm.

There were 119 cases of tuberculosis treated at Glen Gardner last year, and of this number one was from Plainfield, Miss Paula Mast, who has been discharged cured. The keynote of the meeting was to promote health and prevent disease.

Dr. Favel's subject was "Shall the State Take Over the Tuberculosis Work of Private Institutions," and his conclusion was that it is better for the State and others to work together. Dr. Cabot spoke on the topic, "Why the State Should Concern Itself with Tuberculosis," and his chief thought was that the campaign against tuberculosis is one against all bad conditions.

Homer Folk spoke on "The Value of Hospitals in the Treatment of Tuberculosis," and he brought out this fact that tuberculosis is transmitted by each other and not through food. Prof. Welch spoke on the general problem of tuberculosis, and described it as a campaign for life, and he declared that any community falls in disgrace that has no part in this work. He also referred to tuberculosis as a social disease. Referring to the progress made, he said that it had reduced to a minimum the practice of expectorating in public and has educated people to seek more fresh air and those things which serve to combat the progress of the disease. He startled all with the announcement that 90 per cent. of the people have tuberculosis, but qualified it by adding that the germs are not active in all. For this reason it is necessary for people to observe approved rules of health.

The speaker also referred to the economic value in preventing the disease. He explained that the loss to the country in the death of 138,000 persons with tuberculosis in one year aggregated many millions of dollars.

Dr. Evans, health officer of Chicago, stated that consumption is a great pauperizing disease, although not a pauper's disease. He related interesting facts regarding experiments with monkeys in Lincoln Park, Chicago, showing that several had been saved from tuberculosis by giving them plenty of fresh air. The conclusion of the whole matter was that it is cheaper to prevent tuberculosis than to pay the cost.

GIRL SAILS OVER JERSEY.

Miss Villet Ridgway in Balloon Which Startles Sussex Folk.

Philadelphia, Oct. 22. Miss Villet Ridgway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ridgway, yesterday was one of a party of five who made an ascension in the balloon "Philadelphia II," the property of the Philadelphia Aeronautical Society. Miss Ridgway is the first member of Philadelphia society to make such an ascension. Piloting the car was Dr. Thomas E. Eldredge, president of the Aeronautical Society, and the other passengers were Lieutenant Arthur T. Atherhold, A. Bailying and C. G. Eldredge.

About 6 o'clock last night a telephone message was received from Miss Ridgway stating that the party had landed in New York State. The message came from the town of Woodstock, in the Catskills.

The baloon passed over Sussex, N. J., at 1:10 p. m. The farmers were startled by its appearance close to the earth. In Howell's four miles west of Middletown, N. Y., the balloon dropped to within 100 feet of the ground and the occupants hailed Samuel Finklestone, of New York, who was driving along the highway, asking him what place it was.

MASON DEFENDS SALOONIST.

Acts as Counsel in Suit Brought by a Brewery.

Charles M. Mason, former deputy sheriff of Essex county, was counsel for Andrew Bertram, a former saloon keeper in Elizabeth, who is defendant in a suit brought against him by the Rising Sun Brewery. Bertram conducted a saloon on Livingston street some time ago which had previously been run by Valentine Bolling, who was indicted for illegal selling. Bertram was finall forced to leave the place.

His counsel contended yesterday that he had a right to refuse to pay for $833 worth of beer, which he is being sued for by the brewery, because the head of the brewery, George Selbert, declared that the saloon license was all right, when in reality Bolling's indictment had nullified it.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

An old time crowd, one of the best in years, took part in the seventeenth semi-annual golf handicap of the University club at St. Andrews Wednesday. As usual the short mark men were unable to get near the front, and on this occasion Frank Enos, Princeton, showed the way with 179, 32-147 for thirty-six holes. J. S. Wood, of Yale, 186, 36-150, and R. L. Tarlton, John Hopkins, 182, 28-154, won second and third prizes respectively, while John Reid, Jr., who when a student at Yale won the intercollegiate title, captured gross score honors with 165. He started from scratch and had consistent rounds of 82 and 83.

The ball sweepstakes in the afternoon was won by J. T. Gillespie, of Yale, 88, 15-73. C. W. Pierson, another New Haven graduate, got the second share with 86, 11-75.

FOOTBALL.

One disadvantage smaller teams experience yearly is that they have to play more games on foreign fields than the bigger fellows. The big teams won't come to them, so they have to go to the mountain. There are reasons why they aren't entirely averse to that, seeing that money is necessary to conduct football campaigns, and the sinews of war come more readily in the football centres. So the smaller teams are accustomed to bearding the lions in their dens and are not feazed at all at playing amid hostile surroundings. The stoical Carlisle Indians do all their playing of big games away from home, and the position they have earned high up in the football ranks is all the more creditable on that account.

Contrast the schedule of the Indians and Pennsylvania this year. The red men play six games away from home in succession: New York, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Washington, New York and St. Louis on successive playing days. As for the Pennsylvanians, they have a unique schedule this season. Every game is a home game. That's as unusual in football as goals from the 110 yard line. Probably the only travelling the Quakers will do will be to a near by retreat to tone up for the Michigan and Cornell games.

Dartmouth has to go away from home three times, to Amherst, Princeton and Cambride, the Princeton trip being anything but a soft one on account of the distance and change of cars. Brown makes four trips—Philadelphia, Cambridge, New Haven and New York—but all within easy striking distance of Providence. Cornell has a couple of hard trips, one to Cambridge, the other to Philadelphia. Yale and Princeton go away twice each, while the West Point game is the only out of town contest on the Harvard schedule.

A play in the Indian-Syracuse game recalled to one expert the split play used by Chadwick and Metcalf of Yale against Princeton and Harvard with distinct success. The Indians used the variation, and, according to the expert, "the hole was always open as it was against Princeton and Harvard." As this man saw it the quarterback passed the ball to the right halfback, who passed it to Houser, the fullback. Houser and his interferers went for the hole in a compact group, the fullback cutting away just as the line was reached. The interference shot through between tackle and guard, but Houser made a straight plunge of it and rammed through a gap between centre and guard. Often he got clear through, so much so that he almost fell from his own momentum, the Syracusans being fooled by the intreference coming through at another place and rushing over to plug up the spot where they thought the ball was coming. It was an attacking device well covered up, the fake interference being deceptive and the double pass behind the line complicating the manoeuvre.

The game was one of a number this fall in which the tackling was very poor. Among teams from which better work in tackling was to be expected who have given poor exhibitions are Syracuse, Princeton and West Point, Syracuse against the Indians, Princeton against Fordham and West Point against Yale. With the offenders on those days diving tackles were a lost art.

Miss Nettie Schmidt, of Trenton, has returned after a visit with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Gains, who were recently married at Grace church, have returned from their wedding trip. They did not plan to remain away very long on account of the illness of the bride's mother, Mrs. I. Renwick Glen, of West Sixth street.

Irish spirit is responsible for Ireland's uplift. It shows that Ireland has been overwhelmed by Britain, but never conquered. Ireland has now carried her fight for freedom right into London, where she has doughty representatives battling for her in the halls of Parliament. I found that hotel help in Dublin, in marked contrast to that of other Old World cities, didn't expect tips. In fact, the only tips in Ireland come from a certain county—Tipperary. The universal cleanliness is what gratifies one. It refutes the story about the Irishman bringing his cattle and pigs into the parlor. This may have been in a former day, when the people were forced to live with pigs, but it is now only a memory of the past. All hail the New Ireland!"

An informal musical program was furnished by Beulah Rogers, pianist, and Jeremiah Welsh, violinist, in a duet, and by Miss Lucy Lannon with a solo, accompanied by Miss Mary Smith, organist of St. Mary's at the piano.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The P. H. S. girls' basketball team has chosen nearly all its players. They include Katherine Sminck, forward; Dorothy Merrill, centre, and Ruth Wean and Helen Wooley, guards. The forward position is being tried for by Jessie Stuart, Frances Newall and Katherine Todd. The positions already filled are last year's team. The idea of having side centers is in consideration, but is very uncertain. No games have been scheduled yet, as it is very early in the season, but Miss Sminck, the manager, is expecting many.

The football team will play Holy Cross tomorrow afternoon at the Cricket Field. The fellows are in the best condition and it looks like a fast game.

Widowson played so hard in the Pingry game that he injured his ribs again. It is very doubtful if he plays for two or three games.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Union county Republican candidates spoke last night at a mass meeting in Rahway.

The Circles on the Square of Berkeley Heights at a meeting last night by an unanimous vote of its full membership, ninety-five, pledged its support at the polls for Frank H. Smith for county register and James C. Calvert for county clerk, as well as for the Republican assembly ticket. In New Providence township there are a total of but 118 votes.

Not since Union county was organized has there been a more clean, able and admirable set of candidates for county offices nominated by any political party, than those named by the Republicans at the recent direct primaries. Everyone of them is a splendid type of American citizen, men for whom it will be a pleasure to vote. It is with much satisfaction we point their names: Frank H. Smith, Register; James C. Calvert, County Clerk; Carlton B. Pierce, Augustus W. Schwartz and Lloyd Thompson for Members of Assembly, and Dr. C. B. Holmes for Coroner.—Summit Herald.

BAPTISTS' CONVENTION ASBURY PARK MONDAY

The eighteenth anniversary of the New Jersey Baptist Convention will be held at Asbury Park on October 25, 26 and 27, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Plainfield will be represented by delegates.

The sessions will begin at 2:30 p. m., Monday, and will be presided over by Rev. N. A. Merritt, of Rahway, president of the Pastors' Conference. At this session addresses will be made by Rev. H. T. Musselman, on "The Pastor and the 20th Century Sunday-school," and by Rev. S. B. Meeser, of Crozier Seminary, on "The Minister's Self-appreciation of His Work in the Ministry."

The convention president is F. Wayland Ayer. Its sessions will begin at 7:30 Monday evening. The addresses will be by Rev. W. B. Matteson on "Baptist Responsibility in Christianizing New Jersey," and by Rev. S. H. Potter, on "Our New Denominational Consciousness."

Tuesday morning will be devoted to reports and the president's address.

At 11:15 Tuesday the session of the Young People's and Sunday-school section will be held, followed in the afternoon at 2:00, by various addresses on Sunday-school topics.

Tuesday evening will come addresses from speakers from Montana and China.

Wednesday morning will be devoted to reports and the Education Section, and in the afternoon addresses will be delivered by Rev. N. A. Merritt, Jr., of Rahway, on "Flood Tide of Opportunity.'

Wednesday evening will occur the Social Union banquet at the Hotel Marlborough.

The Baptist churches of this city will send delegates to the convention. They will travel by auto and train.

ANGRY AT MERCHANTS OVER TOBACCO SALES

Prosecutor C. Addison Swift will be asked by the Springfield Board of Trade to make an effort to have the Grand Jury bring in indictments against certain merchants in that township charged with selling tobacco in various forms to minors.

The resolutions adopted by the Springfield board were pursuant to alleged evidence collected against the men by the Rev. Frederick B. Curry, pastor of the Springfield Methodist church. Some of the members of the body, at the meeting Monday night, expressed a willingness to appear before the Grand Jury and tell what they know concerning the character of the places, especially the "speak-easy" and like resorts said to exist in the township.

Mr. Curry, who is a member of the Board of Trade, suggested that the resolution be passed. He declared that if the prosecutor received a letter from the body approving of the clergyman's action, the official and Grand Jury would, no doubt, take more interest in the matter.

"When a minister appears before a grand jury he is looked upon only as a reformer," said Mr. Curry, "and sometimes his case is not given careful consideration. But if you gentlemen, business men of the township, approve of my methods and so inform the prosecutor, there is no doubt that he will use more efforts to bring these offenders to justice."

GIVES HALF MILLION FOR GRADUATE SCHOOL

After one of the longest meetings that they have had for years, the trustees of Princeton University at Princeton yesterday announced that William Cooper Proctor's gift of $500,000 for the new graduate school had been accepted.

Mr. Proctor, who is a Cincinnati man, made the offer last spring, with the proviso that an equal sum be raised for the school by May 1, 1910, and the buildings of the school should not be located near Prospect, the president's house, which would place them in a central part of the university campus.

As this second provision was at variance with the plans of the university architects, a good deal of discussion arose, which was settled by the decision of the trustees yesterday.

Wilson Farrand, '86, of South Orange, qualified as a member of the board for five years.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

Miss Winifred McClintock, of Plainfield, returned home yesterday after spending a short time with her friend, Miss Pearl Shrope.

P. F. Kaine, who has been spending the past two weeks in New Haven, Conn., returned home last night.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Sharkey, of 47 Whitewood avenue, announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Agnes Wilhelmina Sharkey, to Walter Scott Stewart, both of this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

"GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST" PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE.

The "Girl of the Golden West!" Ah, what a girl, indeed. Mr. Belasco has given us a character of a species quite unknown to the present generation and one to admire. Roused in an instant from a sordid atmosphere, into the realms of supreme happiness, hapiness bought at a fearful sacrifice, "the girl" is transformed from the uncouth to the beautiful and sympathetic woman. Miss Tannehill handles the part of the heorine with consummate ease and is truly the figure which Mr. Belasco has created. All the other parts were in competent hands and curtain calls were the order of the evening. Miss Tannehill also received a handsome floral tribute.

The squaw, wife of "Billy Jackrabbit," is Miss Tannehill's mother. The play is one which appeals to those who love a stirring drama, but it was whispered about, that some of the anathemas could have been dispensed with. Some people believe that profanity is out of place on the theatrical stage, as well as elsewhere.

Lillian Russell in "The Widow's Might," at Plainfield Theatre Saturday, October 30.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

An engagement extraordinary is announced for the Plainfield theatre for Saturday, October 30, when Lillian Russell will appear for a single performance in her newest success, "The Widow's Might." This interesting and appealing story of contemporary life in Wall Street was written for her by Edmund Day, the author of "The Round Up" and other big stage hits.

No author of recent years has written more successful plays than has C. C. Hoyt, the author of the new "County Sheriff." As usual he has combined the many sparkling dramatic scenes with plenty of good, clean, witty comedy, the kind that all enjoy. Among some of his most successful plays may be mentioned "When Women Love," "Lured from Home," and a score of others, but in no one of these has he so happily blended the many intense dramatic and amusing situations together with the story of human interest as in this his latest play, "The County Sheriff," which will be presented with a large and capable cast and a complete scenic production at the Plainfield theatre on Tuesday night.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Three bookings of importance—and ones that should prove of particular interest to theatregoers—are announced, hand-running for the Academy of Music. The first of these, which comes next week, is the Shuberts' play of Wall Street, "The Ringmaster," which, as probably everyone knows, made the first hit of the present dramatic season at Maxine Elliott's theatre. It is now coming to the Academy at the Academy scale with the original cast and production. Following "The Ringmaster" will be seen Bertha Galland in the fantastical comedy, "The Return of Eve." This play, one of the most delightful and amusing of comedies, ran all last spring at the Herald Square. Miss Galland will be supported by the same cast seen with her last spring. Following this engagement will be John Mason and the original company in Augustus Thomas' greatest play, "The Witching Hour." The stay of Mr. Mason will be for two weeks.

"Springtime," a new play by Messrs. Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, presented in New York for the first time on Tuesday evening with Nell (Miss Mabel Taliaferro) as the star, was reveiwed in some of New York's newspapers. Extracts from some of the criticisms were as follows:

The World—The play is like a page torn from some old forgotten book. It is aptly named, for it sounds the note of youth and it constantly contrasts sunshine with April showers.

The Tribune—The play is worth seeing. It tells a story as the public likes to have a story told. The breath of spring, the spirit of young love and innocence run through it. It will hold the stage for a long time.

The Evening Sun—It has a quaint picturesqueness which is captivating, and Miss Taliaferro imparts to it a great deal of girlish charm.

LEARY'S PROTEST DENIED BY CLERK.

County Clerk James C. Calvert, acting on the authority vested in him by the election laws, denied the petition filed with him Wednesday afternoon by Jeremiah E. Leary, of the First Ward, Elizabeth, claiming that the Citizens' party of that ward had no legal status. The matter will now be taken to the Supreme court.

An appeal for an injunction restraining the County Clerk from officially recognizing the party will be made before Justice James J. Bergen, probably the next time he sits at Elizabeth.

Richard Cavanagh, Independent Democratic candidate for Council in the Third ward against John F. Byrnes, withdrew his petition yesterday. He declared that it was for the good of the party. Republicans were becoming somewhat elated over the Democratic split. They are more numerous there than they are in the First, and were confident of winning out on election day. With the Democrats united their chances are considered almost nil.

At Proctor's.

The high-class vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre is delighting capacity audiences every day. The new acts include the famous La Monts, animal circus, trained cats, dogs and monkeys; the Musical Buskirks, musical comedy act; Miller & Atwood, in a comedy sketch, and Conroy & Smiley, Irish comedians. The films d'art represent the very latest achievements in the motion picture world and are a strong attraction.

Miss Edna Haynes, of Dunellen, has been visiting relatives in this city.

Mrs. A. D. Edgar, of East Front street, has returned from a visit with her mother at Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

TAKE OFF THE FAT WHERE IT SHOWS.

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slender figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women may not know it, but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street or in public places make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unmanly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed, and as quickly as possible. This season's dresses seem to be made for the fat woman's misery and the slender woman's delight. They expose all the charms of woman and her ugliness as well. Exercise and diet will not remove fat. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its sponsors, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and digestive apparatus from producing fat and reduce the fat upon the body at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. They are harmless and can be carried in your purse and taken even after you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a case, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Dept. 988, Detroit, Mich.

This is the Square Pot of the BOYNTON FURNACE that saves fuel and dollars and will heat the whole of a house. In every great engine and under every big boiler you'll find a square fire box. Ever noticed it? Well—we have adapted that principle to our furnaces. A square pot gives a clean, hot, clinkerless fire without waste of fuel. It requires the least attention and responds instantly. BOYNTON furnaces only have square fire-pots. It is our patent. There are other improvements. A square ash pit that improves the draft and makes removal of ashes easier. A pure air supply—for health's sake. A dust flue that saves the rooms above.

Look up the BOYNTON dealer in your town and talk it over.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

GOOD OLD WORLD, AFTER ALL

Let the Pessimist Read This and Get Into a Better Frame of Mind.

This is a good world. It's growing better every day. We can't say this often enough or strong enough, for it is not only recording a fact but it is getting behind the chariot of progress and giving it a push ourselves.

Rich men's sons are not all "rounders" because a few singe their wings in the white lights. Most of them set about mastering the intricacies of dad's business so they ease his shoulders of some of the strain and get in trim to take it all themselves, some time. Others, still more independent, strike out for themselves.

Rich men's daughters are not all brainless and snobbish and extravagant. For one that runs away with a chauffeur there are thousands who go to college and come out of it noble women.

And the poor do better, with less to help them. Most boys put their necks in the family hearness and help pull with their fathers. It is the girls, however, who pass them in this service. If the average girl elects to stay at home—and the one serious point of criticism is that not enough do—she doesn't have to write abroad for advice to ease her mother's grind. And if she goes into shop or office or factory, the mother often gets the sealed pay envelope at the end of the week and doles out the spending money to the girl who earns it. More girls than the world knows about, or, knowing, praises as it should, put aside their chances for a home of their own to keep that of their mother secure.

It's a good world and the overwhelming majority of good girls not only help to make it so, but brighten it as well.

ACTOR A MAN OF RESOURCE

Saved Cab Fare and at the Same Time Got Even with Unkind Critic.

District Attorney Jerome of New York was praising at the Union club a resourceful lawyer.

"Get him in a hole," said Mr. Jerome, "and he is out of it the very next second. He is as resourceful as an actor I recently heard about.

"This actor, at two or three o'clock one morning, got in a taxicab to drive home, and when almost there discovered that his money was spent. He had nothing for cab fare.

"A famous physician lived near by, and the resourceful actor told the chauffeur to stop there. Then he jumped out, rang the physician's night bell and screamed up the tube in an agonized voice:

"'Doctor, our baby! It has swallowed its rattle! Quick! I've got a taxicab waiting.'

"'I'll be down at once,' said the doctor.

"And he appeared at once, an overcoat over his pajamas, and a case of instruments under his arm.

"The actor bundled him into the taxicab.

"'To 84 West Steenth street,' he said to the chauffeur. 'I'll go on to the druggist's.'

"And the actor walked off chuckling, for the address he had given was that of an old maid dramatic critic who had dared to roast his last play."

"Lagniappe."

"Lagniappe," a New Orleans custom, dies hard. A year ago the retail grocers of that city agreed that they would refrain from giving a bonus or present to customers, as it was a burden they could not support, but since then some two hundred of the retailers have resumed the practice. The others now say they will boycott the wholesalers who sell to the retailers who have violated the agreement. The seat of the trouble, however, is in the habit of expectation that has long been cultivated in the customers. "Give me my lagniappe," is regarded as a legitimate demand, and the lagniappe is not held to be a gratuity or gift, but a commission earned by the purchaser for having conferred his or her patronage or the patronage of the family the purchaser represents.

Saintly "Guide."

An Englishman having business in a certain Danish town arrived at the railway station. He inquired of a group of men standing near the way to the house he wanted, whereupon one of them offered to go with him and show him. With recollections of what such a service meant in England, he said: "I don't want a guide." "But surely you asked us to show you the way," said one of them. "Yes, but I don't want a guide." "My dear sir, I am not a guide; I am the bishop."

A Home for Spirits.

Andrew Hale, a recluse who recently committed suicide at Lebanon, Ore., had a house to which he had about twenty additions. Each of its small rooms was for the abode of the spirit of a departed friend. The house was filled with curious things, gathered together to amuse the spirits. A lot of shoe strings, several clocks, musical instruments and various articles were there. The collection must have cost Hale more than $2,500.

POOR SPELLING TOO COMMON

Important Branch of Education Seems to Be Neglected in Schools of To-day.

Misspelling among the educated, or the supposedly educated, is apparently on the increase—thanks, it may be, to the passing of the "spelling bee" and to the crowding of the school curriculum with a multitude of studies unknown and undreamed of by our sturdy ancestors; and thanks also, perhaps, to the present movement for phonetic spelling, which the indolent are tempted to interpret as "spelling as you please."

In a statistical analysis of the spelling of his students, Prof. William B. Bailey of Yale makes some startling revelations. Of 171 essays written by seniors and juniors, only 25 were orthographically correct, while 14 per cent. contained each ten or more misspelled words, and one heterographic genius achieved 31 mistakes of this sort.

There were 443 misspellings in all, and six especially troublesome words were "separate," "superintendent," "governor," "committee," "comptroller," and "privilege," the last masquerading as privalege, privilige, privledge, privelege, privilridge and privaledge.

Certainly the later years of a course in a great university are not the occasion for remedying the deficiencies of elementary studies in the common schools. Ill fares the school, to latest fads a prey, where courses multiply and the three R's decay.—Dial.

FOUND HIS LANDMARK GONE

Trouble That the Moving of a Trunk Made for Man Who Was Looking for His Room.

The hour one a. m., and all silent along the hall of this sleeping floor in a hotel save for the occasionally heard muffled note of a foghorn, the sound of somebody snoring in one of the rooms, and then presently the sound of somebody moving quietly, almost stealthily, along the long hall, and then under the breath, spoken in a low tone:

"Devil! Where's that trunk?"

And I knew that trunk he was looking for well, for it had been a landmark for me too, standing in the hall outside of one of the rooms. My room was two doors beyond the trunk on the right, and always when I didn't need to look for my number—my room was two doors further on—and apparently he had been doing the same thing.

But now the trunk was gone, and in that long hall there was no landmark for him, and then I heard him moving about quietly, almost stealthily, in the dim light scanning the numbers on the doors, and then I heard him set a key in a lock and open a door and go in somewhere and shut the door behind him, and apparently he had hit the right room, for then again all was still save for the occasionally heard muffled note of that foghorn.

Whistling Trees.

Among the curiosities of tree life is the sofar, or whistling tree of Nubia. When the winds blow over this tree it gives out flutelike sounds, playing away to the wilderness for hours at a time strange, weird melodies. It is the spirit of the dead singing among the branches, the natives say, but the scientific white man says that the sounds are due to a myriad of small holes which an insect bores in the spines of the branches.

The weeping tree of the Canary islands is another arboreal freak. This tree, in the driest weather, will rain down showers from its leaves, and the natives gather up the water from the pool formed at the foot of the trunk and find it pure and fresh. The tree exudes the water from innumerable pores situated at the base of the leaves.

Colors for Houses.

The safe colors for a house, besides red, are white, gray, yellow and brown. Yellow or gray, with white trimmings, suits many a plain pitch-roofed or square colonial house. Grays and browns are good for ugly, nondescript ones; the grays always being pleasanter on the yellower shades than on cold blue tones. White suggests the formal type again. It is a very good color for a country house, showing it up from a distance in fascinating glimpses, for it needs trees about it and flowers to sparkle against its walls. Such a house will be attractive when the leaves are gone from the trees, for the bare boughs will serve to soften the effect.—Scribner's Magazine.

Got Out of His Dilemma.

A new "copper" just appointed and not long over, was put out in Brooklyn. He found a large dead dog at the corner of two streets. He took out his book and wrote: "This morning at 1:45 a. m., I found a dead dog at the corner of——" and he looked up to see what the streets were and discovered they were Keep and Kosciuszko.

He studied for a long time. Then he dragged the dog by the tail to the corner of Keep and Kent streets.

In Pittsburg.

The City Editor—Here's a mighty good story about a young fellow who runs away with a chorus girl.

The Night Editor—What's that! A good story? Why, it's been done to death.

The City Editor—This one hasn't. It's an absolute novelty. The young fellow is neither a millionaire nor a Pittsburger!

FEATHERS.

They are fine.

And they do make fine birds.

Ostrich plumes are very modish.

The ostrich feathers are heavy-headed.

Five half-length ostrich plumes trim superb hats.

The paradise is not as much used as the aigrette.

Crowns of splendid evening hats are surrounded by aigrettes.

Coque feathers are again modish, and nothing is better style for walking hats.

Breasts and wings, especially wings, are on many of the smart chapeaux for street wear.

Cannot Afford It.

"Roosevelt has not shot many rhinoceroses, has he?"

"Nope, he'd lose too much money by doing that."

"How so?"

"That is too big a word to sell for a dollar."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Soaked.

"What time is it?"

"I don't know."

"Isn't your watch going?"

"Worse; its gone."—Cleveland Leader.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The game wardens of Cumberland County report that never before were quail and rabbit so plentiful.

A small dog Wednesday bit Edward Hardiman, aged twelve, of 833 Fifth avenue, Paterson. The wound was cauterized at the General Hospital.

Frank and Harry Coombs, former Gloucester boys, who went West thirty years ago, are now known as the "Apple Kings of Kansas," where they own immense orchards.

The Needlework Guild of America met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. E. Burd Grubb, Edgewater Park, about 100 members being present. Over 500 garments were donated.

Struck by a trolley car at Front and Federal streets, Camden Wednesday, Willard F. Crandol, forty-six years old, of 539 Haddon avenue, was injured about the head and body. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

A thief entered the room of Louis Murray, at the Palm Hotel, Millville, Tuesday night and removed a roll of money of about $150 from a coat pocket, but became frightened, and in haste to leave dropped $105 upon the floor, where Murray later found it.

As he turned the corner of Locust and Spruce streets, Camden, Wednesday night, William Brown, colored, twenty-seven years old, of 241 Cherry street, was slashed on the right arm by a man who disappeared in the darkness. Brown was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital and the police are investigating. Brown says he thinks the slasher was a colored man.

Bessie Bergman, aged eighteen months, of 117 Matlock street, and George Pulford, one year old, of 166 Oak street, both of Paterson, were treated at the General Hospital Wednesday for scalds. The little girl had her right forearm scalded and the boy will be marked for a time on the upper part of his face, where boiling water accidentally splashed on him.

Edgar Jarvis is in the Cooper Hospital, Camden, suffering from internal shock as the result of a fall off an elevator at the Camden Paper Box Factory, at Seventh and State streets. His escape from fatal injuries is considered wonderful. Jarvis was at the third floor when the elevator, which is on the outside of the building, dropped by reason of a cable parting. He fell thirty-five feet and was lying on his back when picked up. At first it was supposed he had been injured about the spine. He did not lose consciousness.

In order to fool would-be hazers, Miss Lena Brothers, who became the bride of William H. Garwood, at 610 Walnut street, Camden, climbed over a roof from the home of her parents into a next-door window early Wednesday morning, wearing a bonnet and spectacles, and succeeded in reaching a nearby corner, where she managed to escape in a cab with her husband, who had planned to catch an early morning train for Washington after the wedding reception. The young bride passed several of her friends, who failed to recognize her.

Nearly 400 police and firemen paraded before Atlantic City officialdom and 25,000 enthusiastic citizens Wednesday afternoon in the annual review of the police and fire departments. Two bands furnished music for the uniformed men, marching under the leadership of Chief of Police Malcolm Woodruff and Chief Engineer William Black, and fifteen steamers, several trucks and a big array of hose wagons and other fire-fighting machinery evoked applause all along the route. Mayor Franklin P. Stoy and members of City Council headed the procession in carriages, with the City Troop, Lieutenant John C. McManemin commanding, as escort.

Alexander Gordon, of 18 Watson street, Paterson, appeared Wednesday night with his head in a bandage before Justice of the Peace Henry Ettelson and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Isidor Lipschitz, of 85 Trenton avenue, whom Gordon said had struck him with the chain of a hoisting derrick. The two men quarreled yesterday over a story Gordon says was circulated by Lipschitz reflecting on Gordon's honesty in connection with the sale of a milk delivery business. Gordon took Lipschitz to task, and the latter, seizing the chain, laid Gordon's head open. The gash was so deep and bled so much that the injured man had to be attended by a physician.

Deny Poisoning Fowls.

Trenton, Oct. 22.—William Lendenbacher, John Bickel and George McCullick were arrested Tuesday on the charge of poisoning chickens in the vicinty of Hutchinson's Mills. The women of the neighborhood have been in dread of some one poisoning their wells, a rumor that this was to be done next having reached them. This charge is being investigated by the county authorities. Chickens by the wholesale have been killed with paris green. The men deny the charge.

Miss A. B. Lutes, of East Front street, has taken up work in the Newark Mission and she arranges to visit the mission frequently.

It is expected that the heating apparatus at the First Baptist church will be repaired in time to hold regulars services on Sunday.

Every requirement of the individual, financial or fiduciary, can be expeditiously cared for by this company.

NEWARK WINS FROM LOCAL BOWLERS

It was a fine struggle between Newark and Plainfield on Campbell's alleys last night. Newark won the first game by 82 pins, the second went to Plainfield by 63 and the final was captured by Newark by the narrow margin of 37 pins. Weingarth, of Newark, was high man with 237, which he rolled in the first game, and Blatz had the best score of the local pin knights, 209 in the second game.

OLD MAN LIKE MANY OTHERS

If We But Knew, There Are Numbers Who Could Do with Services of Green Parrot.

We are all striving for two things—success and happiness. To get these many of us are struggling for a third—fortune. In striving to attain our desires many of us need a green parrot. Out in a little town in Iowa, in the midst of a great stretch of timber and meadow, a man built a castle. Something over $25,000 he spent in building a home. It was finished within with the finest polished woods. The foundation was of brown stone, the windows of French plate, and every detail was carried out in the best manner. He had grown to be an old man. He had always lived in a modest cottage of six rooms. This mansion had fifteen. On one side there was a magnificent stone arch over the paved drive that led up to the house. He had just completed showing a friend over the place and reached this point, when the visitor exclaimed:

"Well, John, you ought to be happy. This is a magnificent home. Here is everything one could wish for."

"Waal," replied the old man, who was a cattle buyer, "a fellow always wants something else."

"What on earth could you want?" was the query.

"A green parrot to hang up thar in the drive."

"Why a green parrot?"

"So every morning afore I drive out he would say: 'John, you're a darn fool.'"—Cleveland Press.

Judging from Boy's Comment Father Who Believes in Early Rising Must Stick to Shingle.

Is there a boy in the world who doesn't hate to get up in the morning? A Jersey man who has three possible future presidents does not think so. With his he has tried everything from a bucket of cold water and a shingle to proverbs. The shingle seems the best argument. The proverb was in this nature:

"You know Jones?" the father remarked at the dinner table, addressing his wife. "Well, he is a very early riser—takes a long walk before breakfast every morning. Besides the good it does his health, he says that he finds any number of things on the street—he got up at 5 o'clock the other morning and found a pocketbook containing $20 before he had walked a block."

The oldest boy looked at his brothers, and grinned.

"Wonder what time the man who lost that pocketbook got up?" he remarked.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Not Worth Shingling.

The late Thomas Bone, "the sailor's missionary," was the soul of kindliness; but he was seldom worsted in repartee. One of the many instances of this given in his just-published life is the following:

"His work was not without its humorous side. Among the new men there were always some who sought a little amusement at his expense, but they reckoned without their host. His kindly manner never changed. The smile never left his face. There was no venom in the retort, but it seldom failed to silence the interrupter. The laugh raised at his expense made it quite certain that no second attempt would be made.

"Seeing him approaching one day, one of a group of sailors announced his intention of having some fun. He stepped forward and removed his hat, revealing a perfectly smooth crown, and asked:

"'Can you tell me why my head is so bald, while all my companions have plenty of hair?'

"'I don't know,' was the smiling reply, 'unless the reason given me the other day by a farmer would apply, that an empty barn is not worth shingling.'"—Judge.

Luck on the Stage.

Stock exchange men and racing men regard luck as a side issue. They follow it secretly and make excuses for it if it goes astray, as if it were a personal friend; but the actor has a deep reverence for it, and superstitious customs that sprang into observace during the restoration period are still maintained in the age of socialism and problem plays. It is almost pathetic to see the joy that beams in the faces of a theatrical company at rehearsals if a harmless, necessary cat strolls on the stage; but if the cat sits down and appears to watch the proceedings with approval the joy becomes ecstatic.

Nurse for a Hotel.

At one of the hotels in New York a nurse has been installed whose duty it is to take care of the children of guests who come without nurses. The proprietor says that very often a woman is obliged to come without a nurse and in consequence is tied down by the baby and, moreover, obliged to consult a strange physician if it is ailing. The nurse takes care of all that and her services are not charged for.

Effort Appreciated.

"So you were deeply touched by the poem young Mr. Guffson wrote to you," said Maude.

"Yes," said Maymie.

"But it was not a good poem."

"I don't care. It was just as much trouble for him to write it as if he had been Shakespeare."

UNMAKING A MISER

How Mrs. Toomey Reformed Her Stingy Husband

"How hot it has been today?" said Mrs. Toomey.

"Do you think so?" asked Mr. Toomey.

And as he hangs his hat on the peg (the cool, unresponsive man) let us look well at Mr. Toomey and contemplate a miser in the making.

He was then, one of those gentlemen who never spend an unnecessary penny until they have scrutinized the Indian with such an intensity that the Indian trembles and turns his face away. He didn't hail the empty taxicabs on hot nights because trolley rides come cheaper, and he sidestepped the trolleys because when he took Mrs. Toomey it cost 20 cents to go there and back, and 20 cents is more than a day's interest on a thousand dollars, and who was Mr. Toomey that he should waste the interest on a thousand dollars? Echo answers, "Who, indeed?" And as Echo answers we will turn our gaze back to Old Economy and give a few specifications as well.

Brows: bushy.

Eyes: fierce from scrutinizing the Indians.

Mouth: set.

Chin: very firm.

And as for Mrs. Toomey, it will suffice to say that she was a frail, little woman.

Yes, such were Mr. and Mrs. Toomey on that hot evening when Mr. Toomey came home fresh from his fan in the office and his evening ride on the "L" and found Mrs. Toomey sweltering in the kitchen, where the temperature was at the fever point and the humidity was somewhere between apoplexy and that degree of vapor that is necessary to steam the most abdurate of clams.

"Of course," said Mr. Toomey in a judicial manner, "the summer is always hot. Else," he added, "of course it wouldn't be summer."

He drew his chair to the open window and settled himself to pass a pleasant five minutes in thinking of his balance in the bank. A crash from the kitchen brought him back to earth with another crash.

"What's the matter?" he called.

Silence answered him.

"Drop something?" he asked, hurrying to the kitchen as this phase of the situation presented itself with a financial clarity that was vivid nearly to the point of blindness. "Break anything?"

Mrs. Toomey was sitting in a chair as limp as one of those steamed clams above mentioned, and only a trifle more vocal.

"O, dear," she murmured, "I think I nearly fainted."

"Fainted?" he said. "Fainted?"

"It's the heat. O, dear! I was taking the rice pudding out of the oven and all at once—"

She made a feeble little motion.

"—it fell and broke—"

Mr. Toomey's anguished eye took in the wreck.

"—all over the hash—"

Mr. Toomey swallowed hard.

"—and spoiled your dinner."

And a few minutes later when she was carrying the teapot in one hand and the creamed potatoes in the other she dropped them both as well, and Mr. Toomey caught her only just in time.

"Jabez," she said, "I—I think you had better go for a doctor—"

"Nonsense!" cried Jabez with a terrible cry. "Why, those doctors are awful people! Why, they run on terrible bills! They only guess at it, too! You're all right, Emmeline," he eloquently assured her. "It's the heat, that's all. We'll go and have a look in the store windows and that'll fix you up. You'll be all right then."

"I hope so," said Mrs. Toomey. "There was poor Mrs. Tibbets. She began dropping things—nervous and all run down—and she had to have a trained nurse night and day for more than six months."

"O, but you've got nothing like that!" urged Mr. Toomey, horror-struck.

"I don't know," sighed Mrs. Toomey; "those people upstairs made me so nervous this afternoon with their noise! They're packing to go on their vacations—up in the mountains. And the Perkinses, across the hall, they're packing, too—going to the seashore—and what with the noise and one thing and another! Though goodness knows," she sighed once more, "it'll be quiet enough when they're gone."

And as Mr. Toomey looks at her thoughtfully, so, too, will we.

She had eyes of trust and the glance of innocence. She had earrings in her ears and finger rings on her fingers and bracelets on her arms. Her dress, too, was a thing ridiculous. Her waist line was just beneath her arms and she wore so many buttons that it betokened a monomania. And yet—and yet—she looked at Mr. Toomey and she smiled, and in that moment a miser was unmade.

"How would you like to go, too?" he asked.

And in a firm little voice (vastly more vocal than the clam) she cried:

"Mrs. Perkins gave me her summer resort pamphlets to-day. I was reading them all afternoon, and I put them in the cake dish. Wait! I'll get them!"

In a curious voice he said:

"Be careful you don't drop it now!"

In an even more curious voice she answered:

"Oh, I won't drop it now!"

Not "Easy" Because Amiable.

Don't take a man's self control for leniency.

September 15, 1909.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk:

Dear Sir—I am instructed by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Roselle, N. J., to call the attention of your honorable body to the dangerous crossing of the N. Y. B. and O. R. R. over St. George avenue, with a request that some action be taken.

Respectfully,
J. F. OSTRANDER,
Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and referred to the County Road Committee and County Attorney.

From Springfield Township Committee.

September 27, 1909.

Union County Board of Freeholders:

Gentlemen—In accordance with franchise given the Morris County Traction Company by the township of Springfield, the said company is to clean the guters, paint the poles and sprinkle the streets. As the gutters are in a deprorable condition, the poles have never received a particle of paint and the streets have been oiled once during the entire season, the committee is of the opinion that the time has arrived for the company to fulfill its agreement. Numerous complaints have been made to the committee by the citizens of the township regarding the failure of the Morris County Traction Company to carry out its franchise with the Board of Freeholders and the Township Committee, and I am requested to ask if the board and committee can act in conpunction in enforcing the traction company to meet its agreement.

The committee hopes to receive advice from you in regard to the above matter in the near future.

Very truly yours,
OLIN D. SICKLEY,
Township Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and referred to the County Road Committee and County Attorney.

Elizabeth, Oct. 1, 1909.

To the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—The undersigned El Mora Association, a body of property-owners in the El Mora district of the city of Elizabeth, does hereby petition your honorable body and ask that the north side of Westfield avenue, from Bayway to the line of Roselle Park, which line is situated in the centre of the street known as Galloping Hill road, be paved with macadam. This side of Westfield avenue is now in such condition that travel over the same is disagreeable and the appearance of the same is also bad, especially as compared with the south side of the avenue, and a great amount of dust arises from the north side of the avenue and is blown into the houses of the petitioners. This association has therefore instructed its officers to make this petition, and we would be glad if an early hearing on this matter could be granted to us, if possible, on or before the next regular meeting of your body which we understand is to take place on October 7. Notice of a hearing or any other communication on this matter may be sent to the undersigned, president of the association.

EL MORA ASSOCIATION,
JOHN P. CLARK, JR.,
President.

Attest:
(Seal)
WALTER H. BALDWIN,
Secretary.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and referred to the County Road Committee.

From Louis V. Ebert, mayor, as follows:

October 5, 1909.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county:

Gentlemen—The county collector, Mr. Leavitt, has urgently demanded payment of the borough of Roselle Park in the sum of $8,680, being the alleged indebtedness of the borough for county road construction in Union township.

You will recollect that Morris avenue and Westfield avenue were constructed some time in 1890 under the authority of the road act of 1889. Under this act one-third of the cost of the county roads constructed was to be paid by the municipalities and two-thirds thereof by the county. When these two county road were constructed, Roselle Park had not been incorporated, but was part of Union township. I am informed that the sum of between $24,000 and $36,000 was apportioned for Union township by the county authorities shortly after the construction of these roads. This amount presumably represents the one-third cost of the construction of these roads assessable under the road act of 1889 against Union township. Long after the construction of these roads and some time in the year 1901 the borough of Roselle Park was incorporated by act of the Legislature. The act of incorporation was approved by the Gover n oronaM by the Governor on March 22, 1901.

On or about May 18, 1901, certain members of the Township Committee of the township of Union, and certain members of the council of the borough of Roselle Park met upon due notice at the office of N. C. J. English in the city of Elizabeth, for the purpose of appraising, making, counting, allotting and dividing between said township and said borough all the moneys on hand, property, assets and liens of every kind, and all the indebtedness of said township and borough in the proportion that the taxable property within said borough shall bear to the taxable property in said township prior to the time when said borough was created.

As a result of such joint conference a certificate was executed on or about September 17, 1901; in this certificate the following clause appears:

"It was also resolved that whatever legal claim the county of Union has against the township of Union for the money expended for the construction of county roads in said township should be paid by said borough and township in proportion to the length of county roads in said borough and in said township outside borough."

Please notice that this isa specific statement, and that the county road indebtedness was not to be divded between the borough and township according to area but according to the length of the county road.

On September 17, 1901, an agreement was executed and delivered between the authorities of the borough of Roselle Park and authorities of Union township, by which agreement the various assets and liabilities were divided. In this agreement the following clause was contained:

"And it is hereby further agreed that whatever legal claim the county of Union has against the township of Union for money expended for the construction of county roads in said township shall be paid by the parties to this agreement in proportion to length of county roads in said borough and in said township outside of said borough."

Subsequent to the formation of the borough of Roselle Park, the county authorities, apparently, divided the county road indebtedness against Union township between Union township and Roselle Park by apportioning $8,680 htreof to Roselle Park and the balance to Union township.

The area of Roselle Park is about one-fourth of that of the old Union township. It is apparent, it seems to me, that the county authorities divided the total indebtedness between Union township and Roselle Park according to area and not according to the length of county roads in said township and borough.

The borough of Roselle Park feels that it is not legally liable for anything more than it is has agreed to pay under the agreement with Union township.

Through the proper authorities the borough's contention has been placed before the county collector, who has suggested that your board be notified to the end that the county engineer, Mr. Bauer, be authorized to measure the length of Westfield avenue within the borough limits. Having obtained this length and your board knowing the cost of construction of Westfield avenue, it can easily be ascertained what the liability of the borough of Roselle Park actually is.

The above explains why the borough of Roselle Park has not paid to the county collector the alleged indebtedness of $8,680, and I would thank your board to take this matter up as soon as possible so that the liability of the borough of Roselle Park can be fixed and the payment of the same arranged for.

At an adjourned meeting of the council, held last evening, a resolution was offered and passed authorizing me to send this letter to y.u.

Respectfully yours,
LOUIS V. EBERT,
Dictated by Mr. Ebert.

On motion of Freeholder Cladek, received and referred to the county attorney, county collector and County Engineer Bauer.

On motion of Freeholder Swain received and placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, of the County of Union:

Respectfully submitted,
JOSEPH PERRY,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
JOHN H. STEPHAN,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and placed on file.

By Committee on Bridge in Summit.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Gentlemen—Your Committee on the Bridge over the Passaic River, Morris Turnpike, Summit, would report that the contractor has excavated for the foundations of the bridge as provided in the contract; and at the depth called for we find that the soil is a very fine water bearing sand, closely approximating quicksand, and of so unstable a nature and of such depth, that it is in the opinion of your committee, as well as of the Morris County Road Board, unsafe to construct the bridge without first ensuring a foundation that will carry the bridge without question.

After thoroughly canvassing the situation we believe that to pile the foundations thoroughly would be the cheapest and best method of handling the situation and we have obtained a bid from the contractor for this work which we consider reasonable.

We therefore recommend that the foundations of this bridge be piled at a cost to this country not to exceed $650 above the original appropriation.

J. N. CADY,
PETER H. MEISEL,
Committee.

Freeholder Doane moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Committee on Hillside Avenue Bridge, Lyons Farms.

Gentlemen—Your committee appointed to look into the proposed bridge work on Hillside avenue, Lyons Farms, would report that they have examined the site of the bridge. The stream now runs along the gutter line of the street for about two hundred feet and then turns off across Munn avenue.

The company which owns the land there is laying concrete sidewalks, grading the streets and making other improvements.

The company propose to bridge the stream, between the present bridge on Hillside avenue and Munn avenue, also bridge it across Munn avenue, with concrete and steel structures. The total cost of the work is estimated at probably $1,200 for the Hillside avenue bridge, and about $1,000 for the Munn avenue bridge. There is a long wall and iron fence in Hillside avenue at present which would be done away with entirely.

Hillside avenue is a public street and the county has some obligations as to the stream there. Munn avenue has not yet been accepted by the township, but no doubt will be accepted shortly, as the improvements that are being made will warrant such acceptance.

The proposition of the land company is to do all of the above described work at a total estimated cost of about $2,200, building the bridges as per the enclosed diagram, if the county will contribute to the cost of the work the sum of $600.

Your comittee would respectfully recommend that the company be authorized to proceed with the work, and that the county shall agree to pay the sum of $600 upon the completion of the work, the work to be done under the supervision of and to the satisfaction of the committee and the County Engineer.

Respectfully submitted,
AARON D. CRANE,
CHARLES A. SMITH,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and recommendations adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Committee on Culverts in Roselle Park.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Gentlemen—The original plans for the three culverts, upon which the contract was let, called for two culverts to be covered with concrete slabs. Owing to proposed alterations in the street grades at the places where the culverts are to be placed, the committee is now of the opinion that all three culverts should be covered with iron culvert covers.

The contractor for the work has agreed to do the work in this manner, using culvert covers instead of concrete clabs, but in the rearrangement of the work the contractor now finds that there are five lengths of twelve inch cast iron pipe on the ground for which there will be no use. The committee is of the opinion that these five lengths of pipe should be bought by the county for future use, in culverts in the township of Linden or elsewhere.

Your committee would therefore recommend that these five lengths of pipe be bought from J. P. Glasby, the contractor, at the price of $90 for the whole.

And resolved, That the bill of J. P. Glasby, for this work, amount $90, be paid when the pipe has been delivered and the bill properly audited by the committee.

Respectfully,
AARON D. CRANE,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Smith report was received and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

New Business.

By Freeholder Adams:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to investigate the drainage of the gutters of Lincoln avenue into the bridge over the Rahway River, Cranford, N. J., the committee to report at the next meeting of this board as to the advisability of placing pipe to drain the gutters, together with the probable cost of the work.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent, and the director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Adams, Wilbur and Martin.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That when this board adjourn it stands adjourned to meet on Thursday, October 21, 1909, for the purpose of paying election bills for the special election of September 14, 1909.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Whereas, The bills for the supply of water for the courthouse building and other county buildings, aggregate about $1,400 per year; and

Whereas, It is believed that a large portion of this expense can be avoided by the providing of proper wells of sufficient depth, with the necessary piping, pumps and motor power; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Public Grounds and Building Committee be and is hereby authorizbed and empowered to take the matter under consideration, and, if in its judgment it is deemed advisable, to proceed in such manner as they shall be advised to install a water supply plant upon the premises owned by the county, at a cost not exceeding the sum of $2,500.

Freeholder Cady moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Cady:

Whereas, Heretofore, to wit, on May 6, 1909, a resolution was passed by this board authorizing and directing bonds of the county to the amount of $100,000 to be issued to cover the two-thirds estimated cost of the work propsed to be done during the year 1909 under the provisions of an act entitled "An act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State" (Revision, 1905), chapter 58, session laws 1905, and the supplements and amendments thereto; and

Whereas, It has since been ascertained that the two-thirds estimated cost of building roads during the year 1909 and by virtue of the provision of the act above referred to, will amount to the sum of about $70,000; therefore be it

Resolved, That the resolution hereinabove referred to and heretofore adopted be and the same is hereby rescinded and revoked.

On motion of Freeholder Cady the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Cady:

Whereas, The Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union has contracted to construct and is about to construct within the county of Union several roads or sections thereof by macadamizing the same in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act to provide for the permanent improvement of public roads in this State, (revision of 1905) chapter 58, session laws of 1905, and the supplements and amendments thereto; and

Whereas, The names of the roads so to be improved and the amount of the contract price for improving the same are as follows, namely:

Jefferson avenue, $2,471; Terrill road, $26,044.28; Walnut and Central avenues, $15,483; Edgar road, Lemington street and Milton avenue, $43,309.64; Washington avenue and Edgar road, $18,949.50, making the amount of the contract price for the said several roads $106,257.42; and

Whereas, The estimated two-thirds cost of the work proposed to be done under and by virtue of the provisions of said act will exceed the sum of $70,000; and

Whereas, This board deems its advisable, in accordance with the provisions of said act, to issue bonds of the county for the sum of $70,000, being about two-thirds of the estimated cost of said work, instead of certifying to the County Board of Assessors said estimated cost and have said assessors include the same in their assessment of county taxes, in accordance with the provision of the eighth section of the cat above referred to; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union do hereby authorize and direct bonds of the county to the extent and amount of $70,000, being about two-thirds of the estimated and contracted cost of the work of macadamizing the several roads or streets above enumerated, about to be improved under and by virtue of chapter 5 8of the laws of 1905 and the supplements and amendments thereto, to be issued; said bonds to be designated as "road improvement bonds;" that said bonds shall be for the sum of $70,000, and in amounts of $1,000 each, payable in thirty years from the date thereof with interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, principal and interest payable at the National Bank of Elizabeth, New Jersey; that said bonds shall be signed by the director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union and the county collector of said county, and sealed with the seal of the board, properly numbered, and a registry thereof kept by the board; and that said bonds be coupon bonds, said coupons to be signed by the director of the board, and to be numbered to correspond with the several bonds to which they shall be severally attached; provided, however, that the fac simile signature of said director may be engraved or lithographed on said coupons in lieu of actual signing; and be it further

Resolved, That the director of this board and the county collector be and are hereby authorized to cause said bonds to be prepared, printed and executed; and be it further

Resolved, That said bonds be awarded to the firm of John D. Everitt & Co., of New York city, at their offer of $70,703.50, and that the collector be and he hereby is authorized to deliver said bonds to said firm on the receipt of the purchase price thereof.

Freeholder Stephan moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, and on roll call they were unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Smith brought up the matter of the payment of local election officers, municipal clerks, rent, etc., for special election of September 14, and about which there seemed to be some misunderstanding. After some discussion it was ordered that a committee of five be appointed to consider the said matter, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Garrison, Wilbur, Smith, Cady and Cladek.

On motion it was ordered that this board meet at the courthouse on Thursday, October 14, 1909, at 9:30 a. m., to go over and inspect the Terrill road near Plainfield.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read and on roll call ordered paid, viz.:

A Little Matter of Punctuation.

Massachusetts has a law, known as the "semicolon law," under which a misplaced semicolon regulates the liquor traffic in the city of Boston. But this is not a circumstance to an omitted comma as instanced in the following act of a late Legislature of Massachusetts: "Whoever operates an automobile or a motorcycle on any public way or private way laid out under the authority of law recklessly or while under the influence of liquor, or so as to endanger the lives or safety of the public," etc. It is now asserted that the reckless motorist can go as he pleases on highways which have not been "laid out under the influence of liquor."—West Publishing Co.'s Docket.

Presence of Mind.

Mr. Phan (roaring from the top of the stairs)—Mildred! What is that young man doing down there so late?

Mildred (sweetly)—He's just doping out how the teams will finish for the pennant.

Mr. Phan (mollified)—All right. Tell him to take his time, not overlooking past performances and the possibility of a slump, and when he gets down he can compare with my list behind the clock on the bookcase.—Puck.

A Scheme.

"I see you gave the third act of the musical comedy first."

"Yes," explained the stage manager, "we do it that way on alternate nights. The third act is already set, you see, from the evening before, and nobody knows the diff."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

When You See

a person limping, you, as most people do, conclude that the trouble is the RESULT OF WEARING a tight, ill-fitting shoe. That is NOT TRUE as to the present trouble. It is true that the tenderness of the feet WAS CAUSED by some careless shoeman selling THAT PERSON the wrong shoe.

You DON'T EVER see our customers limping. That's enough to say.

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

Most Effective Method of Canning Vegetables to Insure a Satisfactory Result—For Yellow Beans and Tomatoes.

When canning vegetables be sure that the mouths of the jars are perfect, also that the rubbers are firm and clean. Place the jars, covers and rubbers, in cold water and bring to a boil. Many a jar of vegetables has spoiled because the cover and rubber were not sterilized. The following recipes will be found very reliable for canning green peas, string beans, corn, asparagus, etc., for winter use:

Green Peas.—Gather the peas when full, but tender; shell them, then wash and scald them in hot water. When well drained, throw into boiling water with a little salt, a sprig of green mint, and a pinch of carbonate of soda, and boil till tender, or from 10 to 15 minutes. Lift them from the pot with a perforated spoon, and place in jars placed upon straw in a pan of boiling water. Boil up the liquor in the kettle and fill the jars to overflowing with this, sealing immediately.

Canned Asparagus.—Into an asparagus boiler put salt water, and when this boils lay in it the asparagus, from which the bottoms of the scraped stalks have been cut. Boil gently until tender, but not broken. Remove carefully from the liquor, stand the stalks on end in fruit jars, boil the water hard, and fill the jars to overflowing, then seal immediately. Keep in a cool, dark place.

Canned Yellow Beans.—Remove the strings from the beans and cut into inch lengths. Cover with water and boil until tender, but not soft, then season with salt and pepper. Take the beans from the pot with a perforated spoon and put them in jars, standing in a pan of boiling water. Boil up the liquor in the kettle, and fill the jars to overflowing with this, sealing immediately.

Canned Tomatoes.—Scald the tomatoes and remove the skins, laying the vegetables in the colander to drain. Put into a porcelain-lined kettle and bring to a boil. Cook for 15 minutes, dipping off the superfluous liquor; season with salt and pour, boiling hot, into heated glass jars. Seal immediately.

Crab Rarebit.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and cook thoroughly. Add two cups of cream in which has been dissolved a pinch of soda and cook until thick, seasoning with salt, red pepper and minced parsley. Then add one cup or more of chopped cooked crab meat. When the mixture is heated add two tablespoonfuls of Parmesian cheese and the same quantity of sherry. Arrange squares of buttered toast on a hot platter. Pour the crab mixture over them, sprinkle with grated cheese and serve piping hot.

Mayonnaise Without Egg.

Very few people know one can make a perfect tasty mayonnaise without any eggs. Place a teaspoonful of plain mustard, mixed with a few drops of cold water, in a small bowl. Add oil, not necessarily drop by drop, but still rather slowly. Stir vigorously all the while. As it thickens too much to handle comfortably, thin with lemon juice or vinegar. A little tarragon vinegar is always a great addition to any salad. After the mayonnaise is finished, season according to taste and discretion.

Delicious Breakfast Dish.

Take two or three lamb or veal kidneys, cut in small pieces, place in salt water for half an hour. Wash and put in clean water to boil. As soon as it boils pour off water, then chop or grind a large onion fine and brown in butter, add a cup of boiling water, put the kidneys in this and boil gently for half an hour. Salt and pepper to taste. Ten minutes before serving add a spoonful of tomtao catsup and a little thickening. Do not boil kidneys hard and fast, as they will become tough instead of tender.

Small Cakes.

One pound of sugar, one-half pound of butter, four eggs, one-quarter pound flour. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and beat until light, then add the well-beaten yolks, then the whites beaten stiff, and last the flour. Roll very thin. It will be much easier rolled if thoroughly chilled before rolling on a well-floured board. This is a sand-tart recipe and should be divided unless a large number of the dainties are desired.

Soft Gingerbread.

Half a cupful sugar, half a cupful sirup, half a teaspoonful cinnamon, one teaspoonful ginger, one egg, half a cupful melted butter and lard, mixed, one cupful of sour milk, half a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little hot water and then put with the sour milk; add flour enough to make a stiff batter, pour on greased pan and bake half an hour in moderate oven.

Sweet Onions.

Peel two large onions and slice. Put in cold water; add one teaspoonful of salt in the water and let stand for half an hour. Then drain off. Pour over this one cupful of vinegar and a tablespoonful of sugar, mixed. Now ready to serve. This is delicious.

WAS NOT OLD LADY'S SON

Little Romance Built Up by Proximity Found to Be Not Founded on Fact.

The little old woman who sat nearly opposite the girl at the long marble table was palsied. She almost spilled her coffee when she put it to her mouth. Her trembling fingers hardly could break her bread. It came near spoiling the little lunch the girl had ordered for herself to see the pitiful trembling of the little faded fingers, the constant shaking of the head under the old lace veil that half shaded the old withered face. The only reason it didn't was because of the strong young man who sat beside the little palsied woman, quite close, so close that the little woman once or twice leaned against him shakily.

"It's her son, thank heaven!" thought the girl. "Thank heaven, she's got a son! Oh! Suppose I should go about all alone some day shaking like that!"

The little shaking woman finished her lunch before the girl did, perhaps because they had bought it quicker, sorry for her, seeing her shake so. She got up. The young man got up and stood by her.

"Yes," the girl thought, congratulating herself. "It's her son. They look alike. I'm awfully glad she isn't alone, that poor little palsied woman. Something might happen to her."

Then the little palsied woman walked tremblingly to the desk and paid her check, and the strong young man went and paid his, and when they got out the door one went one way and the other went the other, and he wasn't her son at all.

MONARCH WILLING TO OBLIGE

Episode That Proved Ruler Was Endowed with a Good Share of Common Sense.

Having purchased two pictures of a Parisian artist, King A—— of X—— honored the painter by a visit at a studio situated, among many others, on the fourth floor of an old house in the Latin quarter.

"Fourth floor back, young man," directed the hall-porter, ignorant of the identity of the royal visitor.

The king prepared to ascend, when the man again popped his head out of his little office.

"Look here, young man! Do me a favor. Just carry up this washing to your friend!"

Much amused, the young king carried the artist his bag of clean linen.

The artist was greatly embarrassed.

"Oh, your majesty!" he stammered; "what a terrible mistake! Why did you not reprove the porter? Why did you bring the bag up?"

"Because he asked me to,' said the king with a laugh.

"But—"

"Oh, nonsense!" interrupted the king. "Don't say any more about it. Every one ought to be obliging; and, whoever one may happen to be, it would be very disobliging to refuse a favor to a fellow-creature, when one could so easily save him a journey up four flights of stairs!"

Interesting Relic.

Just before Charles Edward, the young pretender, came to England to attempt the recovery of the throne of his ancestors, he gave a ball in Paris to which his friends and partisans were invited. Among the many beautiful women present, Lady Mary Touchet, a young English lady, greatly attracted the prince's notice, and before the evening was over he cut out the "star" which decorated his breast and presented it to her. Lady Mary cherished a romantic regard for "Prince Charlie," and was one of his most devoted adherents. She died very suddenly in the pride of her youth and beauty. The "star" after her death became the property of her sister, who married Philip Thicknesse. This gentleman, who was a whig, did not care for the Jacobite relic, and gave the "star" and a picture of the prince to his nieces. Doubtless the pretender's "star" is now in the possession of some family who regard it as a valuable curiosity, and preserve it as such.

Protection for the Lion.

A strange petition has been received at the French colonial office from the colonists of French Uganda. It prays for the protection of the lion from the gun of the hunter, on the ground that the king of beasts is alone able to rid them of their enemies, the herbivorous animals, the deer, the elephant and the rhinoceros. It seems that hunters were rigorously restricted as to the number of these beasts which they could kill, although the license cost from £50 to £60. Consequently they have increased and multiplied to such an extent that the colonists are now calling upon the home authorities to protect the exterminating lion. Only La Fontaine could do justice to this situation.

Cause for Heavy Tread.

"Have you noticed," asked an observant woman, "how much more heavily women walk this year than ever before? I have learned the cause of it. The high heels are responsible for this extra noise. You see, the balance of the body is completely changed, especially for those people who have been wearing a comparatively low heel, and the result is that the entire weight, apparently, comes down "plunk" on those high heels. It will certainly be a blessing when the low heel is once more in favor, for then our nerves will not be racked by the awful thumping as people wander on their way."

LECTURED ON HOLLAND

Rev. Mr. Pfanstiehl Captivates an Audience With His Illustrated Talk.

HIS DESCRIPTIONS ARE FINE.

Pictures the People, Their Habits and Customs at Dutch Arms' Meeting.

A good sized audience listened with pleasure and much profit to an illustrated lecture on Holland, given under the auspices of the Dutch Arms in the Sunday-school room of Trinity Reformed church last evening. Rev. A. A. Phanstiehl, pastor of the Second Reformed church, of Somerville, was the lecturer. Owing to the fact that the slides used by Mr. Phanstiehl were too large for the lantern provided first, some delay was caused while another machine was being procured. Hence the lecture did not begin until a few minutes before 9 o'clock.

Interest was not lost because of this, however, and after a short devotion exercise everyone was eager for the lecture. The photographs from which the slides were made were taken by Mr. Phanstiehl's son and were among the finest ever produced here.

Rev. Mr. Phanstiehl began his lecture with an account of the early struggles of the Dutch to relieve themselves from the oppression of the invading Spaniards, and drew from this a lesson of the power of small bodies to accomplish great deeds. The influence of the Dutch has been felt in every civilized portion of the globe. Their sturdy indomitable perseverance has made them a nation respected the world around. With their five millions of home population they are governing thirty-three millions of foreign possessions.

The pictures thrown on the screen were familiar to many who have learned that the windmills, canals and costumes of the Netherlands are characteristics of the country, but added interest came from the photographs of the interior of farm houses and their attached stables, all of which bore another attribute, that of absolute cleanliness. Mr. Phanstiehl told of the habits of the Hollanders of washing and scrubbing every Friday, making special reference to the sidewalks. On one occasion he saw a young woman scrubbing the walk in front of her house while it was raining hard. She held an umbrella over her head in her left hand while she scrubbed hard with the right.

The former slave-like life of the dogs was illustrated by several slides showing the sturdy little animals harnessed to various sorts of vehicles. This practice has been stopped by the government. Canal boats pushed by their owners, fishing villages and markets, churches, in fact everything of a unique nature was brought to the attention of the audience, not forgetting the publishing of the banns of those contemplating marriage.

A costume in which the women of one family had been married for upward of a thousand years was an object of curiosity to Mr. Phanstiehl's party of tourists. He said the home was the Dutch woman's hope. The Dutch mother finds time to correctly rear her children, which accounts in a great measure for the sturdiness of the race.

The bride does not consider herself properly attired for her wedding unless she has on sixteen underskirts and frequently she wears thirty-two. There have been no changes in the costumes of the men and women of the peasantry for many centuries and they are as quaint and interesting as anything to be observed in that beautiful country.

Everyone present at the lecture expressed themselves as highly pleased with the trip to the country of the Hollander and will long remember the many splendid descriptions given by the lecturer, who proved that he is an observer and is endowed with a faculty of description not possessed by every man. The lecture was delightful.

1ST M. E. BROTHERHOOD HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Brotherhood of the First M. E. church was held in Vincent chapel, last night, when a re-organization was effected in accordance with the Methodist discipline. Hereafter the society will be known as "The Methodist Brotherhood." Although it was the time for the annual election, only one was chosen, Nelson A. Miller being selected as president. A nominating committee was appointed and at an adjourned meeting to be held Friday night, October 29, the remaining officers will be chosen.

It was also decided to hold a banquet, the date to be announced later. A committee comprising William Martin, James R. Joy and Dr. F. W. French was appointed and all details for the affair will be perfected at the adjourned meeting to be held next week. In this way the Brotherhood expects to arouse the interest and enthusiasm of every man in the church for greater effort.

CLEVELAND STATUE SITE IS DISCUSSED

Another meeting of the committee on site and design of the Cleveland Monument Association will be held before the committee will be ready to make public is decision as to the location of the proposed memorial. A meeting of the committee was held yesterday in the home of Moses Taylor Pyne, at Princeton, at which several sites were discussed, but none decided upon.

Those who attended were Dr. Woodrow Wilson, chairman of the committee; former United States Senator John F. Dryden, who as president of the association is a member of the committee ex-officio, and Commodore William Benedict, one of the closest friends of Cleveland.

Severa sites were discussed by the committee. All of them are in Trenton, the last home of Mr. Cleveland. The committee would not make public what locations had been taken up and will not do so until the report for the trustees is ready.

There is only one meeting of the main body annually. The necessity for action, however, has decided the officers to call a special meeting to consider the report. Ordinarily the members would not get together until next February, but should the decision of the committee be reached within the next two weeks, as it is expected, the meeting of the association will take place as soon as the call can be issued.

A more active campaign for funds than has been conducted will be begun soon. A committee consisting of the most prominent men of this city will be appointed to assist in the work of collection and similar bodies will be formed in other cities as far west as the Mississippi.

As this is a national and not a State project an effort will be made to enlist the aid of all the States in the Union, at least, all of the Eastern States. It is planned to have a committee established at Washington this winter.

The association plans to have the amount necessary for the monument, $100,000, in hand by March 18 of next year, the anniversary of Mr. Cleveland's birth.

HEAR HOLTON WILL CASE

Reuben Knox Changes His Testimony and Matter is Re-opened.

IN SOMERSET COUNTY COURT.

Two of the Three Witnesses for the Estate Have Changed Their Own Testimony Now.

The hearing in the Miss Mary E. Holton will case was resumed before Judge Schenck in the Somerset County Court, this morning. It was the intention of the court to hear argument, but an unexpected action on the part of Reuben Knox, one of the witnesses, resulted in an adjournment of the case to Saturday, November 6.

Mr. Knox made a request to the court that he be allowed to change his former testimony in one particular and that was that he did not read the attestation clause to Miss Holton in the present tense, that he changed the tense of the pronouns and verbs. This changed the aspect of the case considerable, for it was the contention of Winfield S. Angleman, one of the lawyers for the contestants, that Miss Holton did not acknowledge the will according to the attestation.

When Mr. Knox requested the court to allow him to change his testimony, it did not suit Alva A. Clark, of counsel for the estate, and at his request the case was reopened to allow Mr. Knox to make the changes.

The fact that Mrs. Nellie Barnes, the nurse, and Mr. Knox, both witnesses for the estate, have made changes in their original testimony has caused considerable stir among those interested in the case.

LOCAL POLISH SOCIETY TO BUILD A CHURCH

Title was passed last night to the John III Sobieski, a Polish society of this city, to a plot of ground on East Second street near Johnson avenue, on which they will build a church similar in every respect to the edifice recently completed by the Netherwood Reformed church. The lot has been paid for in cash and enough money is on hand to pay for the church building.

Joseph Manhattan, John Hansel and Peter Shubert are the men to whom is due the credit for all the success of the movement to provide a church for the Poles in this city. There is an assured congregation of 150 members now, with bright prospects for the future.

The cast, which was costumed in all kinds of flowers, worked in perfect unity, the work of the pickaninny sunflowers and the Greek garland girls being exceptionally good. Master Walter Miller, aged two and a half years, who was assigned the part of cupid, was ill yesterday and he was unable to appear last night. It was a disappointment to the audience. It is expected that he will appear tonight.

The tableaux were very attractive throughout. The scenes shown were Queen of Roses, Miss Edna Snedecker as queen; Fall of Babylon, Death of Virginia and Hope and Memory. Miss Bertie K. Shipley, under whose direction the entertainment was given, received well merited applause in her interpretation of the American Mountaineer and in her rendition of songs and stories peculiar to the mountaineers. ST. MARY COMMENCEMENT

Father O'Keefe, of New York, to Deliver Baccalaureate Tomorrow Night.

SPECIAL AUGMENTED CHOIR.

Father Bogan Will Present the Honors to the Graduates—Twelve in the Class.

The graduates of the Class '09, St. Mary's Parochial School, will participate in special exercises to be held at St. Mary's church, tomorrow night when the members of the class will receive diplomas from the commercial department. These exercises were planned last spring, but the fact that Father B. M. Bogan went to Europe caused a postponement to this time.

In addition to the presentation of diplomas, the sermon to the graduates will be preached by Rev. Thomas M. O'Keefe, rector of the Church of St. Benedict the Moor, New York city. There will also be the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

The graduates of the class are Miss Katharine A. Birmingham, Miss Mary F. McMahon, Miss Regina C. Brady, Miss Mary M. Hepner, Miss Madeline A. Seaman, Miss Elizabeth J. Connolly, Miss Ruth M. McCarthy, Miss Helen C. Galbraith, Miss Nora A. Callahan, Master Cornelius F. Regan, Master John E. Connolly, of the commercial department, and Master Garret A. Keating, of the grammar school.

There will be special music with an augmented choir under the direction of Miss Mary Agnes Smith, organist. These numbers will be rendered: "Jubilate Deo," Lochat; "Ever Lead Them in the Way," Macy; "The Gate of Life," Piccilomini; "We Will Bless and Adore Thee," Riga.

The program for the exercises will be as follows: At 8 o'clock the graduates, twelve in number, will enter the church accompanied by little maids of honor and pages, and take their places in the sanctuary. The processional march will be played by the organist, Miss Mary A. Smith. Sittings will be reserved in the main aisle and friends of the graduates.

The honors will be conferred after the Baccalaureate sermon by Father O'Keefe, by Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of the church. There will be the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at the close of the exercises.

It has been the desire of the teachers of the school to give the pupils such an education as will fit them for practical every day business life. The commercial school, since its inception, four years ago, has graduated forty-one pupils from this special department, thirty-two of whom have chosen to follow mercantile life, and are now in banking, brokerage or general office work.

ASSAULTED MERCHANT WHO TRIED TO COLLECT.

Because a merchant of this city stopped him in the street yesterday afternoon and asked him for $2.50 he had owed for a year, James Canary, a former resident of this city, but now employed in Newark, assaulted the merchant and in court this morning he confessed to his indiscretion.

Canary's father told Judge William N. Runyon, that his son was considerably excited over trouble with his wife and asked the Judge to let him go. Mr. Canary, Sr., also assumed responsibility for the debt. Judge Runyon suspended a sentence of $10 and the cause of the trouble was removed by the payment of the $2.50.

Asserts He Told the Truth.

William Richter, the alleged boy theif, was again remanded this morning for a hearing on Monday morning. An attempt was made by the boy's mother to get him to tell the truth about the revolver which is believed to have been stolen from the store of A. M. Griffen. The boy reiterated his story of yesterday morning and cannot be induced to change it. Further inquiries will be made at Long Branch.

Defers Sentence.

The case of John Kerwin, Jr., who last Saturday morning was found guilty of abusing Thomas Boland, of Rock avenue, came up this morning for settlement before Judge Runyon in the city court, sentence having been deferred for a week to allow the judge to make inquiries. Sentence on Kerwin was deferred for an indefinite period.

W. C. T. U. CHIEF ON TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union opened at Omaha, Neb., yesterday amid great enthusiasm by the thousand delegates. Mrs. Lillian M. Stevens, president of the organization, submitted the annual report.

Mrs. Stevens featured her report with a note of congratulation to President Taft for his stand on the temperance question. In reviewing the action of corporations and organizations in different parts of the country which have placed a ban on the employment of persons addicted to the liquor habit, Mrs. Stevens says:

"There have been similar determinations during the year by organizations and prominent individuals, the latest and most notable being that of Mr. Taft, who soon after his election as President of the United States, at a banquet turned his wine glass down and said it would ever remain so, and in harmony with this action and through his request no liquors were served at the inaugural ball at Washington.

"For Mr. Taft to set the example of total abstinence is cause for great rejoicing by those who care for humanity's weal. It is an example safe and beneficent for all to follow. Mr. Taft is entitled to grateful thanks and appreciation of a thrice grateful nation."

In a review of victories won by the temperance cause the work in Tennessee, Alabama, Florida, South Carolina, Indiana, Ohio, Nebraska are particularly mentioned. Particular attention is given also to the death of U. S. Senator E. W. Carmack, of Tennessee.

The foreign visitors were greeted at the institution where, in the evening, a dinner was given in their honor, after which the bishop delivered an address thanking the Brotherhood for their gracious welcome. He concluded by giving them his blessing. The guests from China made a tour of inspection of the hospital.

While at work in the cotton mill of the Millville Manufacturing Company Thursday, Miss May Venderson fainted, and, falling, a finger caught in some machinery and was torn from her hand.

Assemblyman Theodore Gibbs, the veteran of the New Jersey General Assembly, was much weaker, yesterday, at his home at Clementon, and his death is only a question of a short time, according to his physician.

Accused by State Health Inspector Townsend with having sold milk containing added water, Charles Whiley, a Camden milkman, was fined $50 yesterday by District Court Judge Jones. Whiley was not in court to defend the suit.

George McGuire, twenty-seven years old, of 104 Vanderbilt avenue, Brooklyn, while at work Thursday on new Public School No. 3, Jersey City, had his right hand crushed by some mason work falling on it. He was removed to the City Hospital.

Joseph Ratkoski, twenty six years old, of 15 Oakland avenue, Jersey City, employed in the new Erie Railroad cut, by the Millard Construction Company, near Bevan street, had a finger of his left hand cut off Thursday, when a heavy stone fell on it.

Characterizing the wife's story as unbelievable, Vice-Chancellor Leaming, in Camden, Thursday, recommended a decree of divorce of Christian Kohlenberg from Louisa Kohlenberg, on the ground that she had been untrue to her marriage vows.

An appeal for the finding of a mother was received by Chief of Police Woodruff, of Atlantic City, from Robert Hudson, of Western Australia. Hudson writes he last heard of his mother, Mrs. Waddell, in Atlantic City, three years ago, and asks the authorities to inform him of her whereabouts.

Rev. Dr. A. J. Buxton, of Lewistown, Pa., has accepted a call to the rectorate of St. John's P. E. church, Camden, to succeed Rev. Gilbert R. Underhill, who resigned to become an assistant at St. Stephen's church, Philadelphia. Dr. Buxton will take up the work at Camden on November 1.

Samuel Hufty, city comptroller of Camden, is seriously ill from blood poisoning at his home, 532 Cooper street. The attending physicians, however, look for his recovery. Suffering from rheumatism, Mr. Hufty applied a hot water bag to a leg to allay the pain. The water bag, however, was so hot that it caused a blister to form, and it is supposed that the comptroller scratched the swelling when it itched and infected it.

Salem sportsmen are much interested in the case of Thomas McCarson, which is to come up at the December term of court. McCarson was arrested on a charge of trespassing on the Saupawne meadows, where he had gone fishing. The Saupawne Gunning Club, composed mostly of Philadelphians, has prohibited persons using the meadows and McCarson was warned by the agent, Abner Waddington, against trespassing. He continued fishing and his arrest followed. McCarson asserts that the gunning club has no jurisdiction over the place where he was fishing.

At Proctor's.

The vaudeville performance at Proctor's theatre is just the sort to entertain the women and children, as well as the men. LaMonts' animal circus is exceptionally good, and the Musical Buskirks are clever. Miller and Atwood, in a comedy sketch, are funny, and Conroy and Smiley, Irish comedians, are above the average. The films d'art continue to please, being the best obtainable. Proctor & Sanderson are constantly striving to maintain the highest possible standard of excellence.

GOLF.

The anticipated war between the Western Golf Association and the United States Golf Association is gradually fading and it now looks as though all will end in peace. Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago, and a member of the executive board of the national body, is making every effort to correct false impressions.

Strawn declares that no official attempt was made by the parent body to keep any player or team from competing in the Olympic cup tournament. He also urges that while just criticism may have been made in the past over the manner of selecting the officers and executive committee of the United States Golf Association, that cause was entirely removed by the amendments to Article 6 of the constitution, which provide that at the annual meeting of the association a nominating committee shall be chosen which shall select officers and an executive committee for the succeeding year; also that if the nominees of the committee thus selected be not satisfactory to five or more clubs, other tickets may be put in nomination.

Strawn then finishes his remarks with the following appeal for good fellowship and harmonious relations:

"Having demonstrated at the tournament recently held at Wheaton that we have more high class players in the West than there are in the East, appreciating as we must that there should be but one golf association in this country which is national in character, recognizing, as the figures compel, that four-fifths of the membership in the United States Golf Association is made up of clubs east of the Alleghany Mountains, let us cease stirring up a feeling of sectional animosity between the East and the West, let us give more attention to the United States Golf Association by attending its meetings and having a voice in its affairs, and I confidently predict that in the future we shall have no just ground to criticise the East for the manner in which we are treated.

"When we remember that the annual meetings of the United States Golf Association are rarely attended by any delegates from the West, it seems to me we of the West should not be too free to criticise the manner in which the affairs of the association are conducted. During the three years I have been on the committee I have received nothing but the most considerate, courteous and generous treatment from its other members.

"The United States Golf Association has no quarrel with the Western Association. There is plenty of room for both. The United States Golf Association is and should be national in its character. Under its present constitution and bylaws, if it becomes sectional it will be because the West is too apathetic or indifferent. The Western Golf Association is and should continue to be sectional, limiting its splendid activities to the territory it now covers.

"Let those of us in the West who love the game demonstrate to the East that in golf, as in other and more serious affairs, we are broad, liberal and progressive, that we have no time for petty jealousies, and let us join with the good men of the East in playing and in promoting the game and the good fellowship that goes with it."

DR. STULTZ HEADS M. P. CONFERENCE.

Bridgeton, Oct. 23.—The sessions of the New Jersey Methodist Protestant Conference Thursday were of marked interest. Rev. Norris E. Webb nominated Dr. L. D. Stultz, of Bridgeton, for re-election as president, and the secretary was directed to cast the unanimous vote of the conference for him. Dr. Stultz made an address, reviewing the work of the past year, showing a decided increase in the membership of the churches and all of the churches were stronger financially. Several new churches had been established during the year.

Rev. L. C. Struyhers is secretary of the conference, and W. E. Pettit, assistant secretary. Rev. H. R. Blackburn is financial secretary. Rev. C. S. Kidd, of Millville, was chosen conference steward. Several addresses were made during the day by missionary officers and representatives of colleges.

Counsel Refused to Defend Client.

Elizabeth, Oct. 23.—In the Union County Circuit Court, Thursday afternoon, the Rising Sun Brewing Company was awarded a verdict for $852.40 against Andrew Bertram, a former Elizabeth saloon-keeper, who now resides on Staten Island. The company sued to recover the amount of a note which Bertram refused to pay when it fell due, alleging fraud in the transaction. Former Under Sheriff Mason, of Newark, was counsel for the saloon-keeper, and when, after examining the brewing company's books, he found no evidence of fraud, Lawyer Mason refused to go ahead with the defense, as he said he had been misled by his client. Judge Vail then instructed the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff for the full amount, with interests and costs.

CHILDREN PUT ON TRAIN TO SEEK NEWARK SISTER.

Jersey City, Oct. 23.—Two rosy-cheeked children, the eldest of whom said she was Lottie McBride, aged twelve, and her companion her sister, Annie, aged eleven, were turned over to the police here Thursday by a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor, who said he found the children cuddled up in a seat after the cars had left Cranbury. Asked for tickets, Annie said:

"We don't got any. Gran'ma put us on the train and tol' us to get off at Newark. Sister Ada lives there, and we're goin' to see her."

Lottie chimed in that "what Annie said is so," and the conductor kept his eye on the pair on the forty-six-mile run into this city. Then he turned them over to the police, and the latter sent them to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children's Home at 163 Grand street. Mrs. Margaret Read, the matron, was unable to get any family history from the young travelers yesterday, other than the statements that their mother was dead and that gran'ma had shipped them off to Newark to a sister, Ada Sensmund, and that their father was a corn husker for Farmer Bucher.

MERCHANTS' BANQUET PROVED DISAPPOINTMENT.

Dover, Oct. 23.—The first annual banquet of the Merchants' Protective Association in Elite Hall Thursday night was a disappointment to those who had charge of the arrangements. Only about thirty tickets were sold. It is said that the failure to properly advertise the affair was responsible for the scant patronage. Only a small percentage of the people of the town, it is asserted, were aware that it was to be held.

During the summer the association ran an excursion to Coney Island, but the venture proved a losing one, and the banquet Thursday night was to replenish the cashbox. Now the deficit is larger.

COLLECT $22,500 TO AID ELIZABETH HOSPITALS.

Those interested in the collection of funds for the benefit of the Elizabeth hospitals under the "half-day-pay" plan, met Thursday night, and submitted results of their work, which revealed that $22,500 had been gathered by the energetic workers. The sum astonished the officials appointed to dispense the collection among the hospitals.

The Alexian, Elizabeth and General hospitals were the recipients of $7,500 apiece, which will be of great assistance to meet capably the increasing demands made upon the institutions by the public.

THIEVES GET FIRE HORSES.

Lead Four from Engine House, but Are Seen in Time.

Passaic, Oct. 23.—As they were leaving Fire Engine Company No. 3's headquarters at 2:50 a. m., yesterday with four horses, three thieves were detected by Philip Casteline, but as he was alone and it was very dark, the men escaped, leaving the animals behind.

The police, when notified, were greatly surprised, because of the fact that a man slept in the house, which is located almost in the centre of the town.

WON'T HELP OLD CONVICT.

Rahway Reformatory Officials Will Let Texas Handle Davis.

LeRoy Davis, who was sent from Elizabeth to the Rahway Reformatory in 1905, is now in jail in El Paso, Texas, awaiting trial for arson, embezzlement and other offenses. He has communicated with the Reformatory officials, saying that unless they aid him he will be lynched for his alleged offenses.

They do not place much stock in his appeal and are disposed to let the law take its course. He was committed from here for the theft of an automobile and released after serving a year.

$37 FOR TOBACCO, OWE RENT.

Trenton Man Who Smoked On, Is Fined by Court.

Warren Watson, of Trenton, was arraigned yesterday in Mercer Court at Trenton, for having failed to pay a rent account after the court had directed him to do so. A fine of $25 was imposed.

In attempting to excuse himself Watson declared that of the $112 he received in wages last month $37 went for his supply of tobacco. He mentioned several other items, but could not account for all the money or explain why he had not made the required payment on the rent account.

PATERSON MAN ELECTED.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The following officers were elected at the closing session here yesterday of the United Textile Workers of Amrica: President, John Golden, of Fall River, Mass.; first vice president, James Tansey, of Fall River; second vice president, Thomas Morgan, of Paterson, N. J.; secretary-treasurer, Albert Hibbard, of Fall River.

These are re-elections, with the exception of the second vice president, who succeeds James Pringle, of Fall River.

BURGLARS USE CHLOROFORM.

Rob House in Clayton After Drugging Two Girls.

Clayton, Oct. 23.—After forcing an entrance into the home of Joseph Klinger, a baker, early this morning, burglars drugged Klinger's two daughters and took three watches, money and other articles before they were frightened off.

One of the girls, Elizabeth, 18 years old, revived from the effects of the chloroform in time to see one of the intruders working in her room. She screamed and the robbers ran.

Consider Alleged Encroachment.

The councilmanic committee last night considered objections to the proposed new front for George J. Tobin's offices on North avenue, where it is said that contemplated improvements will result in an encroachment on the building line. Corporation Counsel Marsh and Mr. Tobin were present.

Festival of All Saints.

The festival of All Saints will be celebrated on Sunday, October 31, at Grace church, when two windows, All Saints, in the chancel, and a rose window in the west end of the church will be dedicated by Bishop Scarborough. The sermon will be preached by Rev. George W. Douglas, of New York city.

STEAM-HEATED GARDENS.

How Paris Market Gardeners Manufacture Suitable Climate.

The market gardeners around Paris do not dream of waiting for spring before they raise spring vegetables. As one man put it, they move the climate of Monte Carlo to the suburbs of Paris.

This they do at enormous expense in money and in time. The gardens whenever possible are placed on land with a slope to the south and are well protected by walls on the north and east, walls built to reflect light as well as to give protection from the northeast winds.

The ground is practically covered with glass, not as in a greenhouse, but by glass frames in the open, three light frames of uniform size, twelve feet by four and a half; and also by glass bells. These, too, are of a uniform size about the shape of a chapel bell, a little less than seventeen inches in diameter and from fourteen to fifteen inches nigh. The French call them cloches. You may often see over a thousand frames and over ten thousand glass bells in one two-acre plot in the suburbs of Paris.

A more recent innovation, according to Success, is the employment of hot water pipes run under the soil, making of the earth a veritable steam heated hotel, with this essential difference, that the hotelkeeper here is desperately eager not to keep his guests, but to presuade them to leave on the earliest possible day.

MAIZE FROM AFRICA.

Rapid Increase in Grain Exports From the Transvaal.

A striking fact in the history of the grain trade of the world is the recent rapid increase in exports of maize from South Africa. It is not long since the South African farmers began to realize the possibilities of maize-growing and the great value of this grain in the markets of Europe. Experts on this continent pronounced South African maize to be of the finest quality, and agriculturists found that the South African climate and soil were particularly favorable to the growth of the cereal.

This year there has been an unusually large harvest, and owing to the fact that the natives have grown large quantities of amabele, or Kaffr corn, they were not such extensive buyers of maize as in former years. As a result, so the Hon. F. R. Moor, the prime minister of Natal, declared in a recent speech, 240,000 tons of Natal maize will be shipped to Europe between now and December next.

The Transvaal has considerably over a million bags of the cereal available. So great has been the output that the Natal railroad has been unable to cope with the large consignments forwarded to each roadside station for trains to Durban.

NEW THINGS.

What with the glittering stones on the new dress braids and trimmings, the metal laces and the glittering dress robes, one is never sure where this gleam and sparkle and color is going to appear next! And it has turned up in a rather unexpected place—on blouse patterns!

Usually blouse patterns are very demure, feminine-looking affairs, with lace and hand embroidery for their chief adornment, but these newest blouses-to-be are far removed from the usual.

Soft, fine net in a deep cream color is the material, and it is worked in various colored silks in pretty designs and figures. Then gold braids are sometimes interwoven, and last, but not least, glittering "jewels" in a hue that matches the embroidery, are added. Generally these "jewels" are "set" in the middle of a design, but sometimes, too, they are in little patterns by themselves.

Cream, gold, rose embroidery and rubies; ecru net, blue embroidery and emeralds; cream net, rubies, sapphires, emeralds and Oriental embroidery—these are some of the combinations.

For afternoon, theatre or little evening blouses they will be quite an acquisition to milady's wardrobe.

THE DAY OF THE COAT.

The day of the coat is at hand, and a glorious day it will be to the keenly observant and to the sensitive souls who have been pained eyewitnesses to the much-abused Moyen-Aged gown.

Probably no fashion has ever suffered more at the hands of the inexperienced than the long half-fitted princess.

The kindly autumn coat will wrap it round, to the lasting gratification of the oversensitive.

A Qualified Assurance.

"So your husband promised you he would never play cards except for fun?"

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins, doubtfully; "but he afterward explained that he didn't consider it any fun unless there was something in the way of money involved."—Washington Star.

What She Enjoyed.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—I wish to gracious you'd take that bunch of hairpins out of your mouth when you're talking to me. I can't understand a single word you say.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—There you go! You hate to see me have the least bit of pleasure!—Yonkers Stateman.

THE NEW COLORS.

Colors are beautiful! The same thing is generally said at the beginning of every season—but justly so this time. When one looks at the new silks and woolens, it does not seem possible that they are products of the loom, as tones are so soft, rather that they have been applied by the artist's brush.

Yes, wistaria is here and lovelier than ever. Dame Fashion recommends it very highly. Heliotrope and lavender are also both in vogue.

Paris is going crazy again over the various rose shades—and by the way, she has developed several new hues of this color, which are also very popular with American women.

Geranium pink has caused quite a furore. It is charming not only for evening gowns, but for afternoon gowns of broadcloth.

Delft—no, it is not quite as bright as the blue that has been made famous by the china of the same name—it is a dull art shade. We hear that it is to be very popular for gowns and suits for all occasions. It also plays a prominent part in millinery.

Mustard, canary, green and browns also deserve mention.

It is to be a season color—changeable colors, too. The vogue of chameleon silks has brought this about. Fancy nets are also shown in two color effects.

An enthusiastic meeting of Springfield Republicans, at that place last night, was addressed by Assemblyman C. A. Pierce, Lloyd Thompson, Register Frank H. Smith, County Clerk James C. Calvert and former Assemblyman Martin Roll, of East Orange.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

A stirring sensational tale of Western life is "The County Sheriff," which comes to the Plainfield theatre on Tuesday night, under the management of Wee and Price. "The County Sheriff" is a play made of new material, good plot, and very dramatic situations. Glenwood Springs and Golden, Col., the country roundabout and the life led in that locality, form an attractive setting for the action of the story. An elaborate scenic production, strong acting company, including Miss Frankie McCoy, Wm. M. Crookshank and a number of clever specialty artists are a few features.

FOR ATLANTIC CITY $1,000,000 TERMINAL.

Atlantic City, Oct. 23.—Atlantic City wants a terminal station costing not less than $1,000,000. This was announced yesterday by Chairman William Riddle, of the councilmanic finance board, which has been created to request President McCrea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to give the resort some assurance that it will not have to wait more than two years at the most for proper terminal facilities.

"Competent engineers have advised us," Riddle said, "that Atlantic City should refuse to consider anything less than a million-dollar station. From the same source we are advised it will cost at least $1,000,000 additional to elevate the tracks of the main line and the West Jersey and Seashore Electric Railway from the drawbridge over Beach Thoroughfare into the station.

Council's committee is authorized to discuss the question of cost with railroad authorities and make a recommendation to the general body as to the share of the expense to be borne by the city as a consideration for the abolition of many dangerous grade crossings between New York and Missouri avenues.

It is generally believed that the new terminal will occupy the whole of the Atlantic avenue front of the block extending from North Carolina to South Carolina avenues. Pennsylvania agents have also been sounding property from the corner of South Carolina avenue to City Hall, and including the hotel of Commodore Louis Kuehnie and the Chelsea National Bank, together with a large office building, also owned by Kuehnie.

Council is said also to be willing to consider acceptance of a fair price for the site of City Hall, in view of the fact that, even with additions recently provided at a cost of $30,000, that structure will not suffice to serve the needs of the resort for more than ten years.

The councilmanic committee will formulate representations to be submitted to President McCrea some time during November.

CUTS VERDICT $1,400.

Elizabeth, Oct. 23.—Judge Vail yesterday in the Union County Circuit Court, clipped $1,400 from a verdict given by a jury this week. The case was that of John Sharkey, of Elizabeth, who sued the Public Service for $10,000 for the killing of his son Charles, aged fourteen, by a trolley car last May. The jury awarded the plaintiff $1,900. The traction company then obtained a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be granted on the ground that the award was excessive.

Argument on the writ took place yesterday before Judge Vail, who presided at the trial. After hearing former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, who represented the defendant corporation, and Jeremiah A. Kiernan, counsel for the plaintiff, Judge Vail decided $500 damages would be sufficient. If Mr. Kiernan does not accept this sum he has an alternative, the privilege to appeal to the Supreme Court, which he declares he will do.

James Smith, of Elmwood place, who has been quite ill for several months, is improving slowly.

FISH DROPPED FROM CLOUDS

Originally Carried Aloft in Waterspout is Simple Explanation of Occurrence.

On Friday last a number of townspeople taking a walk on the slopes of Knockscalbert hill were surprised to see on the grass near Summerhill a large number of very small fishes, varying in length from 1 1-2 to 2 inches. The fish appeared to be the young of the herring.

In August, 1904, a shower of herring fry was experienced at the head of Longrow, but there was no doubt as to whence the miniature fish had come, for they fell from above on the hats and clothing of several men, and at the time a small black cloud of remarkable density was directly overhead.

The phenomenon of fish falling from the clouds is of more common occurrence than is generally supposed. It is undoubtedly due to some small fry of fishes having been lifted from the water and carried over dry land by what is popularly known as a waterspout.

Many cases are reported from abroad, and they are common in India. Last year Caithness reported a shower of small fishes, which were identified as herring fry, and there was also a similar occurrence in Roshire.

Frogs, insects and other living creatures have also been known to be thus transported through the air.—Campbelltown Courier.

GIRL NOT A NATURE STUDENT

She Meant Well, but Evidently Had a Lot to Learn About Care of Birds.

She was not a nature student, and when she saw a sparrow on the sidewalk, evidently too young to fly and too badly frightened even to hop, she did not know exactly what to do for it. She did not know how it had got there, where its parents were or what relief measures would be advisable. All she could do, in her perplexity, was to keep the group of boys who had gathered around it from harming it and see if any of them could suggest a course of action, for she was well aware that in these days of nature study the veriest infant knows more about birds and their like than many an elder person.

Presently a big boy pushed through the group, looked at the bird kindly, then stopped and took it up. She was much relieved. "Will you take care of it?" she asked him. "Sure!" he responded, with inelegant emphasis. She was anxious that it should have the best of care, so she helpfully sugfully, "Better give it a little milk."

The boy stared. Then he grinned. Then he yelled. "Milk!" he roared. "Milk! ha! milk!" Then he streaked up the street, carrying the bird carefully in his hands and derisively ejaculating, "Milk!"

Her face flushed as she went on her way, and she was heard to murmur to herself, "Now, I wonder why he laughed? Very unmannerly, I'm sure."

Dangerous Rubber Bands.

Elastic bands are taboo in a certain large office in New York city, and employes are requested to dispense with the rubbers altogether or to keep them with great circumspection.

The reason for the precaution is that the bands are known to be hardly less slippery than the dreaded banana peel, with the same propensity for causing severe falls, especially in conjunction with the oiled wood floors of modern buildings.

A valued woman employe of the office in question had a severe fall owing to one of these mischief makers, which resulted in an injury to hips and spine which has incapacitated her for all active work for some time to come, if, indeed, it does not prove permanently crippling.

The Fighting Parson.

When the great-grandfather of the prsent Duke of Norfolk was engaged in any of his electioneering contests he was always attended by his chaplain, an athletic man and one who had made such good use of his hands on several occasions that he acquired the name of "The Fighting Parson." Mr. Dauncey, an eminent counsel, having once to examine him as a witness during a trial, asked "whether he was not the gentleman called "The Fighting Parson." "I believe I am, sir," the divine replied; "but if you require any more positive proof and will do me the favor to step out of court, I will give it to you under my own hand." No further evidence was taken.—Baily's Magazine.

Why England Has No Flies.

The proof is that it has been done. Speaking rashly, there are no flies in England; at least, there are so few that the inhabitants do not think it worth while to screen their dwellings. The reason is the simplest—the tight little island is kept clean. Fifty years ago flies were a nuisance in England; though not the plague they are here, for no other really civilized country was ever quite so dirty as the United States of America. This nuisance is pretty completely abated. In 50 years England has been swept and garnished, and the flies have starved.—McClure's.

DECEIVED BY THE SHADOWS

Discovery That Must Have Come as a Great Relief to the Young Lawyer.

One rainy day recently, a young lawyer, thinking he would like to take a little flyer in stocks, called at the office of his broker, who happened to be his most intimate friend. When he reached the office a new clerk whom he had never seen before told him that the broker was engaged, but would be at liberty in a few minutes. While sitting idly in the waiting room the young lawyer noticed something that made his eyes almost drop out. The gloom of the day necessitated the use of artificial light in the broker's private office. Silhouetted upon the ground glass partition between the two rooms the lawyer saw the shadows of a man and a woman. They were both seated, the broker at his desk and the woman beside and facing him. Every moment or so the lips of the shadows seemed to meet affectionately. Something about the profile of the woman struck the lawyer as strangely familiar. He rose instantly and threw open the door. Sure enough it was his wife, but she was sitting decorously in a chair two or three feet from the broker, but almost in line with him, engaged in an animated discussion.

Both looked up at the intrusion, but without the least embarrassment.

"Why, hello, Tom!" exclaimed the broker. "Your wife here thinks she would like to speculate a little, too, and I've been using all my eloquence to dissuade her from it. What's the matter? Are you ill?"

"No," answered the lawyer, as he dropped into a chair with an air of great relief. "My eyes have been bothering me a good deal to-day. Do you know a good oculist?"

BUILT TO DEFY EARTHQUAKES

Tree Homes of Mexico Made of Twigs and Grass Interwoven With Branches.

In order to protect their homes from earthquakes many of the natives in the territory around Chilpancingo and other towns in the State of Guerrero, Mexico, live in trees. Some of these tree homes are of large size and are ingeniously constructed. Reeds and grasses are interwoven with the twigs and branches of the tree, much in the manner that a bird builds its nest.

The severest wind seldom looses these houses from the tree. Where the trees are large and stand closely together houses of two and three rooms are frequently built in their branches. These houses also afford protection from the "tigers" and other wild animals which are found in that region in large numbers. It is claimed that a "tiger" will not attack its prey unless it is upon the ground. The prime object of elevating these houses into the trees, however, is to keep them from being shaken down by the severe earthquakes which visit the Guerrero territory at frequent intervals.

The rocking of the earth gives the trees a swaying motion that does no damage to the houses. In some localities whole villages of these tree homes are to be seen. None of them suffered damage from the recent earthquakes which wrought such ruin to the buildings on the ground.

She Was Not Engaged.

A book agent rapped at the door of a cottage occupied by an Irish widow, and, as she half opened the door, he inquired:

"Are you the lady of the house?"

"Oi am, sor," she replied.

"If you are not engaged I would like to see you a few minutes," remarked the agent as he started to worm his way through the opening.

"Indade, Oi'm not engaged, an' it's nawt the loikes o' ye, an entoir stranger, thawt kin be makin' love to a poor lone widdy six wakes afther she's buried her fursht husband," was the emphatic response, as she slammed the door in his face.

Gasping for breath, the agent made for the street, reflecting upon the uncertain meaning of the English language.—Judge.

Texas in Unique Position.

Except the original 13 states, whose independence was separately acknowledged by Great Britain, Texas is the only state which had separate existence as a nation before it became a state of the union. It is the only one of the admitted states, with the possible exception of Vermont and Maine, which by the conditions of its admission reserved state ownership for all the public lands within its limits. It is the only state which before entering the union had obtained the consent of congress to subdivide itself into a number of new states.

Value of Tears.

Certain bacteriologists have been enlightening the public as to the value of tears. A good cry, they say, that washes the face with tears is an excellent antiseptic bath. Owing to the large percentage of sodium, chloride, or common salt, which they contain they sterilize the delicate mechanism of the eye and render harmless the bacili which may have found lodgment on the cheeks.

At Five O'clock Tea.

"And did you really go to Rome?" asked a guest.

"I really don't know, my dear," replied the hostess, just returned from her first trip abroad. "You see, my husband always bought the tickets."—London Opinion.

THEY MET BY CHANCE

By GEORGE EDGAR

They met at the seaside on a summer's day.

He wore a motoring cap and riding trousers. She—well, she was a composition made up of a big hat, a blouse, brown boots and a fringe.

As they met, they stared fixedly, each on the other. Without moving a muscle in any other part of his face, he winked, opulently.

And they passed, like ships in the night, card players, postmen and other things that pass.

He raised his cap—the motor cap—most politely; he bowed, still politely but not with grace; he sidled along by her side deferentially; and he said "Ahem!" as if he had a whole shrimp in his thoat—a live one.

She—she went very red. Also, she pushed her nose higher in the air and slightly forward, accidentally acquiring the Boston dip, which made her still more fascinating.

Some dreadful minutes passed, in which he grew red and felt all feet. The silence was intense. Even the incoming tide forgot to sing. But he kept on—in the male instinct of the chase is strongly developed.

There was something electric in the atmosphere. She knew how full of feet he felt, and she smiled.

That gave him courage and he swallowed the shrimp.

"Didn't I see you at Lady Golightly's dance?" he asked earnestly.

She said, "Go way, man."

"I knew you belonged to a county family as soon as I saw you," he ventured.

Her nose went further forward, but she answered never a word.

"Must have met you out with the Loamshires—hunting," he volunteered with a grin.

"You've got a face like a plate," she answered suddenly apropos of nothing.

"Anyway, I've got a tongue in it," he urged, gently.

She sighed. "That's what I dislike about you—your tongue. You've got a tongue and can talk—that's where you have the advantage of the monkey."

He flicked his brown leggins with his cane.

She looked at him, critically, coldly, with a suggestion of contempt. "If you hadn't had a tongue I should have wondered where you came from. And I should have guessed—the Zoo."

They walked 50 yards in silence.

He was nearly frozen off, but he held on—if only to give her just a piece of his mind of which he really had not too much to spare.

He thought aloud. "No," he murmured; "it wasn't at Lady Golightly's dance I met you; nor the hunting." He seemed to be searching his mind. "I think I know—you came from the pickle factory, where they make the sauce."

She looked at him firmly, and was direct in her frank opinion.

"Herbert," she said, "you are the limit."

"I have no limit, not being a bookmaker, and my name ain't Herbert."

There was a tired note in her voice. "Somehow, men with faces like yours always look as if they were Herberts. You've got to be, see, and you are the limit. When it comes to talking of comes from, I'll just take leave to tell you I'm a lady, and I come from no pickle factory. I'm a laundress, if you must know. And if it comes to a guessing 'comes from,' I can tell from your face how you happened. You've not got what one could call a starting place. You've just simply occurred—sort of nightmare."

"Look here, Polly," he began again.

"Not Polly," she answered curtly.

"Ann, then?"

"No, nor Ann, nor Matilda, nor Lizzie."

"I know," he said, triumphantly—"Rose."

"Nor Rose," she replied relenting. "Plain Margaret, that's my name."

"Not plain," he suggested—"not plain. Say—sweet Margaret, lovely Margaret, or—er, dear Margaret."

"You're a rare kidder," she answered.

He smiled and tried to walk like a soldier.

"Look here—I take all that back about the pickle factory," he began.

No answer.

"Excepting the sauce," he added.

She tossed her head.

He thought awhile.

"You know I knew you came from a laundry all the time. I knew by reason—you've got such pretty white hands."

"Do you think they are pretty?" she said, holding one up without reserve.

"Prettiest hand I've ever seen," he said, and held it for half a minute, looking pleased.

"When you've done," she urged plaintively.

"Want to hold it all the evening. I do," he said—greatly daring.

"Silly boy," she answered softly.

"But it's such a nice hand,"—this, softer still.

"I take back what I said about the face," she answered. "Seems to me, you've got rather a nice face, really."

"Not half so nice as yours," he returned gallantly.

"You are a dear, silly, little man," she gurgled.

"If loving you is silly, I'm—" he began.

"Well, dear little man, then," she admitted, almost readily.

"Of all the dear girls, you are—"

From this point, for two hours, the conversation was simply idiotic drivel.

The Countess Rona's Choice

By JULIA M. NAIR WRIGHT

(Copyright, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

This is a fragment out of the chronicles of the middle ages, when nothing was commonplace, when life sung itself along in romance, like the lays of the troubadours and the proceedings of the Courts of Love. Then the Germanic master of the holy Roman empire was over-lord of Italy, which was broken into many feudatories of varied power and extent. The nobles were pretty generally left to their own devices; if complications arose which threatened the security of the royal German, he came upon the peninsula and made investigations in a certain high-handed fashion.

Among these potent Italian vassals was, once upon a time, a count, whose castle of renown commanded one of the chief highways of the empire between the capital and Rome, a way much traveled then by the emperor, a high-mightiness, most magnificent to contemplate, and hand in glove with his holiness the pope, with whom he claimed cousin.

The noble count in question, having for years terrorized his household, vassals, and neighbors, even at times occasioned his soverign-lord some tremors, had the misfortune to die quietly in his bed, like a woman, a priest, or a coward, instead of joyfully in the lofty rage of battle. Another misfortune was that he left for sole heir a lass of 18, the Countess Rona.

Scarcely was the count sepultured, when three neighboring princes simultaneously concluded to marry Mistress Rona, who had lived in her father's keep, secluded as a star shut up in the bottom of a well.

Each lord dispatched to the bereaved maiden a messenger, asking possession of the lordless lands and, incidentally, for the hand of the heiress.

The three messengers met at the drawbridge—which served as front door to all homesteads of the middle ages—were admitted by the hoary seneschal.

To each of the three messengers the young countess gave a "no" as round as a billiard ball.

Her experiences with the masculine element of social life, as represented by her father, had been by no means agreeable, and being now set free of bondage, she proposed to live in holy peace forever after. However, holy peace was not an element obtainable in the middle ages.

The three messengers returned to their respective lords, who proceeded to revenge themselves for the slight put upon them.

No. 1 promptly married a cousin of Rona, her dearest enemy, and the pair proceeded to vilify the little countess, alleging foul slanders, as that Rona had a cloven foot, a squint eye, the odor of a carrion crow, and no taste for a man above a page or clown.

No. 2, having for uncle a cardinal-archbishop, had himself incontinently rushed through holy orders, made into a bishop, and as a first exercise of his sacred functions with bell and book excommunicated the recalcitrant Rona, put her territories under interdict, forbade her fire, water, food and the good offices of the church. As everybody knows, such dealing was worse than a cloud of locusts, a visitation of the black death, a sweep of Saracens or a general combination of all the plagues of Egypt.

Suitor 3, being of a fiery temperament, gathered his vassals, ravaged the lands of Rona and laid siege to her castle.

The emperor, who was wandering about with an army at his back, looking for adventures, as was the usual employment of emperors of the middle ages, heard of this disturbance and hastened to set affairs right, for the castle of Rona commanding a chief highroad it was important that it should be under firm lordship.

The pope was at that time junketing with the emperor, and the united temporal and spiritual powers, arriving upon the scene, made short work of the desired adjudication.

Suitor 1 was divorced and his dame sent to a convent, after both of them, with sheet and candle, had retracted their slanders. The orders of Suitor 2 were annulled, he was replaced in his laic estate, the interdict was removed, and Rona returned "to good and regular standing." No. 3 was ordered home with his retainers. Each suitor was instructed to make ready a marriage feast and set his castle in its highest splendor.

The Countess Rona was then dressed with the utmost gorgeousness. She shone like a whole constellation, in gold-embroidtred brocade, pearl-wrought slippers, chains of diamonds, rubies and emeralds, until the sun might have faded out of sight and the world not have missed him.

Six pages in blue velvet and silver, six maids in green satin and gold, were set as the bride's escort. In one of her dainty hands the emperor placed a marriage ring, in the other the title-deeds to her estates.

Then he set her at a point where three ways parted, each running straight and without a divergence to the castle of one of the suitors.

At her back he put twenty halberdiers with sharp weapons at a quarter of an inch from Rona's shoulders, with strict orders to drive her on without grace of a minute, and at a steady pace, by whichever road she elected to take until she had crossed the drawbridge of the man of her choice!

Which way went the Countess Rona? Why?

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The success of Forbes Robertson in Jerome K. Jerome's symbolic play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" at Maxine Elliott's theatre has been so marked that his original engagement of four weeks has been extended until January 1. The simple dignity of the drama and the dignified simplicity of Mr. Forbes-Robertson's interpretation of the role of the Christ-like "Stranger," have made a combined religious and artistic appeal which is truly unique in the history of New York theatrical achievements. For a piece to receive at once the universal commendation of the dramatic critics and the leading Metropolitan ministers is in itself an extraordinary compliment and guarantee of the excellence of the offering. Matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Sam Bernard has bewitched Broadway and all the rest of New York with his characterization of Herman Scholz, the wizard lapidary, in "The Girl and the Wizard," the latest Shubert musical offering at the Casino. By his magic art, he brings laughter and tears even to the most hardened habitues of "The Great White Way."

Albert Chevalier the world's greatest character actor, heads the program for the ensuing week at Alhambra. He has an unusually large repertoire from which he draws such specimens as his experience has taught him will most appeal, and the various London types which the portrays are depicted with most convincing fidelity. W. C. Fields, the comedy tramp juggler, just back from European triumphs, makes his appearance here in his clever specialty and that most amusing of comedy skits "Motoring" will be presented by Harry Tate's Company of comedians. Jesse Lasky's latest production "The Song Shop," will be given by a competent cast which includes the "dancing waiters," DeHaven and Sidney and the dainty whistling Shaw Twins. Binns, Binns & Binns, the musical comedians, will offer their unique and melodious novelty skit and the balance of the bill includes: Lola Merrill & Frank Otto in their delightful little sketch "After the Shower;" Clifford & Burke, comedians; Alcide Capitaine, the perfect gymnast and others.

FOR BETTER COLLECTION OF SCHOOL STATISTICS.

Trenton, Oct. 23.—Changes in blanks and forms for the public schools of this State, which will lead to important changes in the collection of school statistics, was considered yesterday by the County School Superintendents' Association, which is holding its semi-annual session at the State house.

One change of considerable moment to the schools has already been put in force by the adoption of new school registers, which have been supplied to the schools for the present term.

This does away with the average and percentage of attendance of which in former years much stress was laid. Under the new regulation persistency of school attendance all over the State will be shown. The new form will require regular reports from the clerks of school districts, through the county superintendents to the State Board of Education, showing how many pupils in each district have attended school from ten to twenty days in the term; how many from twenty to thirty days; how many from thirty to forty, and so on, until the exact showing of how many pupils have attended regularly and just how many days each has been at school, is fully reported.

Under the old plan of averages there was no way of determining from the State records just how many days a certain pupil had spent at school. Many of the blanks and forms for the collection of school records have become obsolete owing to the passage of many new school laws. These were gone over and revised, so that they will be up to date and meet new school methods. They were systematized also by cutting out many items as to unimportant questions and placing more emphasis on the essential facts.

The preliminary work of the revision was in the hands of a committee composed of superintendents A. B. Meredith, of Essex county; M. H. Kinsley, of Hudson county; Herman A. Stees, of Burlington county; Charles A. Albertson, of Camden county, and E. W. Garrison, of Passaic county.

Superintendent John Enright, of Monmouth county, is president of the association and presided yesterday. The secretary is J. Brogaard Betts, assistant State superintendent of public instruction; Charles J. Baxter, of this city, took part in the proceedings. All the county superintendents were present.

Miss Estelle Jones, who has been visiting here, has returned to her home in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Walter VanCamp, of this city, has been spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Houston Brown, of Somerville.

The Prudential

The modern trust company is organized, primarily, for the purpose of administering estates. It is empowered by law to act in all respects as might an individual, but possesses every quality of desirability that the individual lacks. The fees are never more than are allowed to an individual. Furthermore, owing to its excellent facilities for handling the business, and for making prompt and proper investments of surplus funds, it can often reduce the expense of administration and thereby increase the value of the estate.

Five Styles of Body
115 inch Wheel Base

The 1910 Models ARE HERE

You have seen the announcements now please see the cars. You will be as amazed as were we. You will say that not half has been told.

The Chalmers Detroit "30" has a 115 inch wheel base this season and 34 inch wheels. It has H. B. imported annular ball bearings throughout and full floating rear axle, which costs three times as much as the ordinary bearings and axles. It has size and room, and all the appearance of the costliest cars, yet the price remains $1,500.

A Limited Supply

Last year the demand for these cars exceeded the output by $1,200,000. This year, with all these improvements, and thousands of cars in actual use, there is sure to be a much greater shortage.

For these cars have no real competition. You can easily see that no other cars begin to give so much for the money. And no cars have shown such records.

The whole 1910 output was sold to dealers before the first car was delivered.

We have already sold one-third our season's allotment and the cars which we now have under contract are all the cars we can get. The makers have turned down an order from us for 25 additional cars, as well as hundreds of orders from other dealers.

We don't mention these facts to urge a hasty choice. But we do advise that you see these cars at the earliest opportunity. Judge if you want one, after making all your comparisons. If you do, let us fix a date of delivery so you won't be disappointed.

We will send a car to you if you can't come here. Telephone us where and when.

ELIZABETH'S POLICE FAVOR COMMISSION.

A very important question to the taxpayers and citizens of Elizabeth generally will be voted on at the coming election. It is the question of a police commission, which is up this time for a referendum vote. If it carries, which seems more than likely, the Mayor will appoint the commissioners who are to manage the police department.

Elizabeth had experience with a police commission a few years ago. The commissioners sat a few times, when their power was questioned and the law providing for their appointment was declared unconstitutional. Its members were James H. Alexander, Joseph H. Blanchard and Robert B. Cissell. N. R. Leavitt was secretary.

The section of the law creating the commission which was attacked by the Democrats and which resulted in the overthrow of the body was that it was illegal for the commissioners to expend money for the police department, which had been appropriated by an elective body—the Elizabeth Council.

There is little likelihood that there will be any trouble of this nature if the commission is voted for this time. Although the measure was supported solely by Republicans in the Legislature, Democrats now seem to favor it, and declare that it will result in a businesslike administration of the police department.

Frederick J. Richters, the Republican member of the committee of the Elizabeth Council now in charge of the police department, will be out of the Council on January 1, and, if the commission is created, may receive an appointment in the body, should he desire it. He is a former police official.

The patrolmen declare that they favor the commission, and point out that when the Newark commission was appointed the salaries of the men were raised. As the salaries paid there now are very meagre, the men are hopeful that the prospective commissioners may take like action, and they are working for a favorable vote.

PLANNING FOR RUTGERS' $50,000 CHEMISTRY HOME.

Plans are being prepared for the $50,000 chemistry building to be erected by Rutgers College at New Brunswick, and ground will be broken within a month. It is to be located on the new campus, between the old campus and the buildings of the theological seminary.

It is the hope of the college trustees that in time this large piece of ground will be filled with college buildings. The Ballantine gymnasium, the experimental station, the new engineering building and some fraternity houses are already on this land, the owner, James Neilson, having given a liberal slice to the college. The new part is known as Neilson campus, and before long it will also contain a handsome new dormitory. The new life which Rutgers has taken on leads its friends to believe that it will grow rapidly, and before many years will leave the ranks of the small colleges.

The new chemistry building is to be of colonial design, to conform with the style of architecture of Old Queens building and the new engineering building. It will contain three stories, with a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of thirty-four for the main building and will have a two-story addition. The basement under the main portion of the building will contain a senior laboratory, a balance room, storeroom, machine shop, boiler room, two dark rooms, combustion room, boom room and lavatory. The basement under the addition will be used as a laboratory for the freshman class and will contain seventy double compartment desks, so that it will accommodate a whole class in two sections.

HARVARD BARS VASSAR GIRL.

University Won't Admit Miss Milholland to Law School.

Officials in the Harvard Law School yesterday admitted that Miss Inez Milholland, the Vassar girl graduate and woman suffrage leader, had applied for admittance to the law school and had been refused. She was denied admittance solely on the ground that she is a woman and the belief by the Harvard officials that men and women should not study together.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffragette, who arrived in Boston yesterday, declared that Miss Milholland's treatment at Harvard shows the need of political equality for women.

NEED NOT CHANGE NAME WHEN SHE IS MARRIED.

Attorney General O'Malley rendered an opinion at Albany, N. Y., yesterday in reference to the right of a woman, married during the term of her office as notary public, to use her maiden name for the remainder of the term, in her official capacity. A woman, who was appointed notary public last March for a term of two years, married in July and the question at once arose as to how she would sign her name when taking oaths or acknowledgments.

If she signed her married name the county clerks, where her certificate was on file would refuse to certify that she was a legally appointed notary public, because their records would not show any such name. If she took out a new appointment, it would be necessary for her to pay over again the fees prescribed by the statute before her certificate could be filed anew, since the law prohibits county clerks of New York and King's counties, where she wished to file her certificate, from doing so without first receiving the payment of $7.50 as a fee.

The opinion of the attorney general points out that a common law and by statute, a man has a right to change his name, and that, although it is customary for a wife to adopt her husband's name, it is not compulsory. The husband has the right to decide what the family name shall be and if he desires, he may adopt his wife's name.

The name is regarded in law merely as the means of identification and since, upon marriage, a woman does not change her personality or lose her rights, there is no legal objection to her continuing to use her maiden name after marriage so long as necessary to preserve any of these rights.

RECEPTION TO DEMOCRATS.

County and City Candidates Entertained in Rahway.

Rahway, Oct. 23.—The Democratic Club of Rahway, at their club rooms, 142 Irving street, tendered a reception to the Democratic county and city candidates last night. Among those present were John F. Kenah, candidate for County Clerk; George H. Schlotterer, candidate for Register of Deeds; Frank H. Waracke, for Coroner; Assembly candidates, Franklin H. Halliday, Joseph T. Hague and Abraham P. Morris. The city candidates present were: For Mayor, Reuben Tharp; Water Commissioner, Frank M. Stillman; School Commissioner-at-large, George R. Van Sant; Councilman-at-large, Ray E. Mayham, and Councilmen, James A. Woods, A. Gibby Spencer, Frank B. Ellis, David H. Voorhees and George N. Lukens.

AT 100 DELIGHTS IN SEWING.

Mrs. Sheppard, Oldest Women in South Jersey, Has Birthday Party.

Mrs. Lydia Sheppard, the oldest woman in South Jersey, with relatives and friends yesterday celebrated the hundredth anniversary of her birth at Millville. Mrs. Sheppard is active and aids in the light housework at her home. She frequently takes comparatively long journeys, and about ten days ago she rode twenty-two miles to visit her sister. She take delight in sewing.

Some of Mrs. Sheppard's relatives came from New York, while others made the journey from Delaware and Pennsylvania. The aged woman told her guests that she had planned a big celebration for her next anniversary.

MRS. VAN NESS GIVEN DIVORCE.

Vice Chancellor Emery yesterday at Newark filed an opinion recommending a decree of divorce in favor of Mrs. Mamie T. Van Ness and against her husband, Willard R. Van Ness, of 437 Orange street, Newark. At the same time the court dismissed the cross petition filed by Van Ness against his wife, stating that Van Ness' evidence to fix a crime upon his wife "is too vague and indefinite to overcome the positive denials made."

Mrs. Van Ness, in her petition filed by Prout & Prout, named Carrie Conradi as co-respondent. The vice chanlellor, in his opinion, states that "the identification of the co-respondent in the defendant's house is positive," and that "the defendant and co-respondent gave improbable explanations to account for their being together."

Because Tyrant Fashion says "fur," fur we must wear not only on our coats around our necks, but on our frocks, our hats and now our shoes. But Milady will not object to fashionable dictates when they are comfortable and becoming.

A smart last, black patent leather vamps, dull kid uppers and a border of black fur about the too—that's a brief description of these newest of shoes. In addition they are quite high, have buttons for fastening and a little tassel to finish them off.

CRUEL TO HIS HORSES

Abe Reager, of Brooklyn, Fined for Abusing His Team Here.

WAS HIS SECOND OFFENSE.

Brother Left Team Standing on Seventh Street Uncared for for Twenty-four Hours.

Abe Reager, of 201 Pine street, Brooklyn, and his brother, Sam, were arraigned in the city court this morning before Judge William Runyon on a charge of cruelty to animals. Judge William A. Coddington prosecuted the case for the Humane Society and asked Judge Runyon to impose a heavy fine. The court did so, imposing a fine of $30, which Abe Reager paid.

Complaint was made to Chief Kiely that a team of horses attached to a heavily laden furniture van had been left standing all Friday night in front of 717 East Seventh street, and that they seemed too exhausted to move. Patrolman Saunders was sent to investigate and found the animals in such a condition that Dr. A. F. Carpenter, a veterinary surgeon was sent to attend them. Dr. Carpenter testified that one of the horses was in such an exhausted condition that it could not be induced to move, and was also suffering from numerous cuts and bruises from the treatment it had received on the trip from Brooklyn to New Market and from the latter place to this city.

Detective Sergeant Flynn also testified to the condition of the two animals corroborating Patrolman Saunders, and also stated that he used a stable belonging to Mr. Martin, the truckman in which to house the horses. Reager confessed to the fact that he had been recently fined $50 in Brooklyn for a similar offense. Samuel Reaber, a brother of Abe, tried to paliate his offense by stating that he did not think it would harm the horses to leave them unattended for a few hours. The animals were left out in the cold for twenty-four hours.

It was thought that on the trip here from Brooklyn that in order to avoid trouble from the Newark police the team was brought to New Market by way of Staten Island. The furniture and van together weighed about 6,000 pounds, according to Mr. Martin's testimony, and was altogether too big a load for any small team of horses in good condition to haul. After settling with the court Reager had to pay several smaller claims for services rendered to the animals and for feed.

P. H. S. JUNIOR CLASS MASQUERADE DANCE.

The junior class of the Plainfield High School held a masquerade dance in the auditorium Saturday night. On account of the rain, the number was very small, but those who were there had a fine time. The girls wore striking costumes representing Colonial, Dutch, Japanese and Quaker characters. The boys were dressed as soldiers, sailors, cowboys, etc.

Two of the most striking costumes worn were by Miss Johnston, as the ten of hearts, and Miss Hutchinson as an Italian organ grinder with her monkey. The orchestra furnished exceedingly pretty music and the boys and girls danced until eleven o'clock.

BOROUGH MARSHAL PUTS CITY COW UNDER ARREST

Barrett Buttinsky, of Plainfield avenue, is the owner of a cow who has a liking for mountain air. On Saturday the cow headed for a stroll toward the autumn tinted slopes of the Watchung range via West End avenue. Whatever happy anticipation the cow entertained were jolted by Marshal Frank Culver near Rockview avenue, when animal and borough official clashed.

At that part of the journey, Culver placed the cow under arrest and escorted it to the borough pound. Buttinsky, the owner, was haled before Recorder Dolliver, who inflicted a $5 fine on Buttinsky. Sentence was suspended, however, on Buttinsky's agreement to pay $1.50, the official rate for lodging and breakfast for the cow. Buttinsky also promised the authorities to keep his cows off the street in the future.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. CASSIE D. STILLMAN

The funeral services of Mrs. Cassie D. Stillman, wife of George E. Stillman, took place yesterday afternoon at her late home, 327 West Sixth street at 3 o'clock. The house was crowded with friends of the family and it was with difficulty that all could be accommodated inside. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was assisted by Rev. H. N. Jordan, of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, who offered prayer.

A quartet composed of Miss Etta Raybert, Miss Grace Carroll, B. F. Tallamy and William Holmes sang with much feeling two hymns, "Abide With Me," and "Rock of Ages." Rev. Mr. Shaw spoke of the splendid life of Mrs. Stillman, reviewing it from her infancy to her death. He spoke tenderly of her bright sunny life and her strong desire to live, but said she recognized God's will and was resigned. He told of Mrs. Stillman's heroic efforts to regain her health and her interests in all things pertaining to the good life, her work for the church and her final submission.

Many beautiful floral tributes accompanied the remains to their last resting place in Hillside cemetery. One, a wreath given by the Thimble club, of which Mrs. Stillman was a member was especially fine. After the services an opportunity was given for a view of the remains and many a silent tear was dropped as a last look was taken of the beautiful, calm face of the dead woman. The pall bearers were George M. Griffin, Ira N. West, W. C. Hubbard, W. H. Rogers, D. E. Titsworth and R. A. Meeker.

The horse, named "Kismet," is capable of carrying up to 190 pounds, and is 16.1 hands. He is an unusually fine jumper and should make good.

Rufus C. Finch has also purchased a fine racing mare from Mr. Keith, both horses being exceptionally well bred. Wright Barclay, also of the hunt club has purchased a hunter from Mr. Keith and it is at the club stables. All will be hunted this fall.

FOO CHOW MISSIONARY GIVES ILLUSTRATED TALK

Rev. Lewis Fodous, Congregational Missionary at FooChow, China, gave an interesting talk on China and the Chinese in the Congregational church last night before a large audience. A majority of the slides used were painted by a Chinese artist whose lack of the sense of perspective made many of the pictures appear ludicrious; in fact, they caused considerable amusement and at times laughter.

One of the series in which the artist tried to illustrate the parable of the Prodigal Son, from the Christianized Chinese viewpoint, was properly conceived as to the motive and lesson but the figures were grotesquely funny. Illustrations of the methods of the rice farmer who as yet has not been touched by western civilization, with his crude implements, antiquated plows and systems of irrigation were all shown.

Interest was centered in the description of the college at FooChow, which has two departments situated about two miles apart. The girls' college being in the village of Ponasang. In the main college for boys there are accommodations for 200 boys, while the other can only care for 125 girls. Some of the graduates of these colleges are taking post graduate courses in the United States and Mr. Fodous said are making splendid progress.

Some attention was given to describing the hospitals established in the last few years and which the Chinese are learning to regard with favor, and where future doctors are learning the rudiments of the profession. The former antipathy for female children is passing away under the influence of the Christian workers among all classes. Mr. Fodous has been at FooChow for seven years and is taking a vacation of a year after which he will return to the field equipped for another long term of service. Special missionary collections were taken up at the church yesterday which netted a goodly sum.

THE McINTYRE TRIO MUSICALE AT MONTCLAIR.

A delightful musicale was given Saturday night by Joseph McIntyre, of Watchung avenue, at the home of W. B. Dickson, of Montclair. Mr. Dickson is first vice president of the United States Steel Company, and is acknowledged to be the most prominent patron of music and art in Montclair, the music room in his home being one of exceptional beauty.

The McIntyre troup, Joseph McIntyre, piano; Hans Letz, violinist; Vladimir Dubinsky, 'cellist, and Sydney Biden baritone, gave exactly the same program to be presented at Mr. McIntyre's first concert at the Plainfield High School, tonight. The Dickson home was thronged with music-lovers who were enthusiastic over the program.

CHALLENGE FOR ALDRICH

Representative Fowler Asks for a Joint Debate on Central Bank.

IN LETTER STATES HIS VIEWS.

Congressman Says He Is Opposed to the Scheme Under Existing Conditions.

Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, Representative from the Fifth New Jersey District and former chairman of the Public Committee on Banking and Currency, yesterday addressed an open letter to Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, challenging him to a joint debate in one or more cities on the subject of a central bank.

In the letter Mr. Fowler says he is opposed to the establishment of a central bank under existing conditions, because he believes with it would come a most discouraging and disheartening favoritism and the ultimate destruction of our purely individual and independent form of banking.

Inasmuch as I am convinced that the one thing above all others that this country does not want is a central bank, because it will not effect nor accomplish the necessary reforms, but in the end will make a bad condition immeasurably worse, therefore, in order that the American people (who I know will decide this most important question now pending before them for consideration and determination right, as they did that of the gold standard, if only they be given an opportunity of having both sides of it fully presented and thoroughly discussed) may be informed as early as possible, I now challenge you to a joint debate.

FORT MAY NAME FISK AS PARK COMMISSIONER

Governor Fort will announce this week the appointment of a commission to consider the proposition for a Washington national park at Trenton to commemorate the battles of Princeton and Trenton. The Governor has had the matter under consideration for some time.

Several prominent men are mentioned for places on the Governor's National Park Commission. It is probable that United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, of Trenton, will be president of it, and that Civil Service Commissioner James Kerney, publisher of the Trenton Times, will be asked to serve it. Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, is another man whose name will probably be on the list of appointees.

WEED FIGURES AGAIN IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP.

Frank Weed, of West Front street, met with another automobile mishap yesterday afternoon, when the axle of his machine broke just as he and his wife were passing the Dunellen station of the New Jersey Central, going west. The disabled auto blocked traffic on the trolley for a half-hour until it could be removed with jacks. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Weed was injured.

Miss Maguire's Funeral.

The funeral services of Miss Nora M. Maguire conducted this morning at the church of the Sacred Heart, at South Plainfield, was largely attended. A requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Baldwin. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, this city, the bearers being James and Michael Geary, Michael Savord, Joseph Miller, Sidney Horan, and Patrick McDonough.

Held for Grand Jury.

William Richter, the boy who confessed to stealing a revolver at Long Branch last June, was remanded to the county jail this morning by city Judge Runyon under a bond for $100 to await the action of the grand jury. Richter still adheres to his story that he did not steal the gun from the store of A. M. Griffin, of this city.

Little Boy's Death.

Joseph Liss, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Liss, of the borough, died yesterday afternoon after a short illness. Interment took place this afternoon at St. Mary's cemetery.

Home Department Social.

The Home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school will hold a social in the lecture room of the church Thursday night. There will be an informal program.

W. DeLa R. Anderson also gave a dinner party at the club after the races to a party of ten, including his personal friends. There were a number of other social functions at the club, a feature being an informal program of plantation music by a colored quartet.

CLINICAL SOCIETY NOT TO OPPOSE C. B. PIERCE

It was stated here today on the authority of several local physicians, that the Plainfield Clinical Society had not joined with the Union County Medical Society in an alleged effort to defeat Carlton B. Pierce for the Assembly, on the ground that he had apparently worked against the interests of the physicians and in favor of the osteopaths of the county and State.

According to a story published in an Elizabeth paper on Saturday, the county medical society, as well as the Plainfield Clinical Society, had decided to work for the defeat of Mr. Pierce and for the election of Joseph T. Hague, the Democratic candidate. It was said here today that no action had been taken by the clinical society and would not be, as reported.

FELL FROM A TRAIN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Henry Gloriel, aged nineteen years, of Carlisle, Pa., was admitted to Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday afternoon, suffering from a deep cut in his right heel and also from shock, the result of falling off a train at South Plainfield, Saturday afternoon. He was stealing a ride to his home, when the accident occurred.

The young man was assisted to a nearby place, where he remained over Saturday night. Yesterday morning he seemed to be suffering to such an extent from shock, as well as the injury to the foot, that it was thought best to bring him to the hospital, where he is now under treatment. His injuries are not considered serious.

Borough Democrats will have an opportunity to meet Assembly Candidate Charles Moran, of Bernardsville, this afternoon and evening. The show will be held at Madison Square Garden November 8-13, and Plainfield will be well represented there.

RAIDED CRAP GAME AND CAUGHT THIRTEEN

Nine colored men and four whites were taken in a raid on a crap game Saturday in a house on Watchung avenue purporting to be run as a gambling resort by Henry Jackson. The raid was made by Detective Sergeant Flynn and Patrolmen Nolan, Vanderweg and McDonald. William McNeill, Joseph Pritchard and Frank Somerset, old offenders at the game were fined ten dollars each, and Jackson, who pleaded guilty to the charge of gambling was put under bonds for $100 to appear tomorrow morning for further consideration of his case.

William Conover, Henry Walker, Lewis Davis, Edward Neal and Lawrence Tucker, all colored, were allowed to go under a suspended sentence as were Charles Kolb, William Knothe, James Filmore and Robert Moore, white men. Judge William Runyon lectured the men on the evils of gambling and told them what they may expect if again caught at it. Chief Kiely is determined to break up crap shooting in this city and his men are continually on the lookout for this class of gamblers.

ON RELIGIOUS TRAINING

Religious System of Education Only True American One, Says Priest.

AT ST. MARY'S COMMENCEMENT.

Father Bogan Presents Diplomas to Twelve Graduates at the Special Service.

It takes more than rainy weather to dampen the school spirit that exists among the alumni and pupils of St. Mary's Parochial School. That was evident last night when the edifice was filled to its capacity at the postponed commencement exercises of the class of '09. At 8 o'clock every available seat was taken and the ushers were obliged to provide accommodations in the aisles for the overflow.

Rev. Thomas M. O'Keefe, rector of the church of St. Benedict, the Moor, New York, in his bacculaureate srmon, dwelt upon the necessity of religion as an essential part of the general education of the young. He enunciated the Catholic view and deplored the fact that so little attention is paid, save by the Catholic church, to instructing the children at school in religious training. He declared that "a religious system of education is the only true American one," and "that it corresponds to the spirit of the people of the land."

One of the marked features of the exercises were the musical numbers which were supervised by Miss Mary Agnes Smith, church organist. A few minutes after 8 o'clock the twelve graduates, escorted by maids of honor and pages, marched to the sanctuary where they remained during the exercises.

In the group, all whom received diplomas, were the Misses Katharine A. Birmingham, Mary F. McMahon, Regina C. Brady, Mary M. Hepner, Madaline A. Seaman, Elizabeth J. Connolly, Ruth M. McCarthy, Helen C. Galbraith, Nora A. Callahan and Masters Cornelius F. Regan and John E. Connolly, commercial graduates, and Master Garrett A. Keating, graduate of the grammar school.

The presentation of diplomas was made by the Rev. Bernard M. Bogan. In distributing the parchments Father Bogan congratulated the graduates on the success gained in school life and offered words of advise as to the responsibilites of greater sphere of life in which they have entered.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas M. O'Keefe, rector of the church of St. Benedict the Moor, of New York. Father O'Keefe's remarks were timely and keep in line with the occasion. In his determination to participate in last night's exercises he encountered considerable difficulty. He officiated at a cornerstone laying in the inclement weather in New York, which delayed his arrival in this city until 7 o'clock.

He spoke as follows:

We are going to treat the subject of education, not so much from the standpoint of a Catholic, but from that of a man who believes in God and loves his native land. Thus we shall be admitted that vast body of Catholics and Protestants and Hebrews may meet, and where also shall be admitted that vast bady of our fello-countrymen, who cannot properly be called Christians, but who believe in God and have an abiding sense of their duty and obligations to Him as their Creator.

With this idea to guide us we wish to state the following propositions: First, this is a God-fearing country. Second, the greatest thing in life is to know God's will and to do it. Third, the best time and in fact the only time, for assimilating the knowledge of God and developing the faculties of the mind and forming moral character, is youth. Fourth, there are three great influences exercised in education—the home, the school and the church. Fifth, there are two systems of education at present engaging the attention of the public, the religious, as exemplified by our parochial schools, and the non-sectarian, represented by the public schools.

With these propositions no one can find fault except he be an infidel or an agnostic. Our religious convictions as Catholics, facing our future of correct usefulness to the State, and fearless facing of our eternal destiny, leaves us no logical choice of educational system but that in which religion forms an essential part.

Let me present a few reasons for this, our Catholic conviction. First, the religious system gives to God the prominence He should receive in a religious community. It secures to the parent that honor and respect which revelation shows us is the will of God and it promises the child that the eternal interests of the soul

"LET US TURN IN AND ELECT THE REPUBLICAN TICKET"

(By Charles S. Smineк.)

In saying there are no national issues this year does not mean that local affairs should be neglected at election time. State, county and municipal matters ought to be closely considered and acted on by every citizen and voter.

Each member of the Republican party should be proud of the splendid ticket nominated by the voters of the Republican party at the direct primary held in September. It is a people's ticket, because it came direct from the voters.

The candidates are well and honorably known and they should receive the hearty support of all Republicans. Because of their ability, honesty and faithfulness to the business interests of the people they should receive the rousing endorsement of a big majority.

Government is a business proposition and should be strictly run on that basis. When you get men who can and have conducted that business in a just and economical way, is it not a wise plan to elect them?

The Republican candidates are all of that character—they are men of the highest type and are of that stamp which stands for the progress of the people. Let us throw all our energy into the closing days of the campaign and thus contribute to the additional future success of the people.

Free institutions can be maintained only through the interest, wisdom and patriotism of its citizenship. Constant wakefulness should be the watchwords. Apathy is a feeling that ought to be unknown in American politics. Each election is important and pertinent. The expression "off-year" is really a reflection on our appreciation of the work of those who fought for and who afterward built and preserved our ideal system of government. To go to the polls and vote is an honor and privilege. It represents the dignity and glory of American citizenship.

It is a solemn duty to vote. What excuse can be offered for its neglect? A free ballot is a fact which epitomizes the struggles of centuries. Why be indifferent? Why remain away from the polls on election day? Does it cost you more to be alert and true to your civic duties than it did the "minute-men" during the Revolutionary era? Do you say there is no comparison? Then why not vote on election day, for it requires but little effort on your part?

Let us all turn in and elect the Republican ticket for it stands for economy, thoughtfulness, patriotism, experience, ability and capacity to successfully meet the issues of the hour; to adequately protect and preserve with justice the true interests of all the people.

Acknowledged Underwear Headquarters

of Plainfield.

Superior Stocks of the New Underwear

A complete line for Men, Women, Misses and Children can be selected from here.

We offer larger assortments than ever—all varities—the leading makes—and all good grades.

We emphasize the GOOD, because you are entitled to quality and on this important article of wear, regardless of the price you pay, and we sell GOOD knit underwear at all prices.

If the average store was as particular as we are to get sizes, textures, finish and shape of its underwear just right there would be no special reason for coming to us. But, we have a host of friends who know there is more comfort, better fit and more service in our underwear than in the ordinary kinds.

That's briefly our underwear story—but it's deserving of a more lengthy mention than that.

FIRST—You will find assembled here all the standard high grade brands of these knit goods you have been calling for year after year.

SECONDLY—We have larger stocks, which we obtained at lower prices than in any previous year.

THERE ARE MANY GOOD REASONS

why you should purchase your Corsets from this store.

FIRST—You have your choice of the standard makes like W. B., R. & G., Thompson's Glove Fitting, La Riene, Warner's Rustproof, Nemo, American Lady, C. B., Ferris Waists, De Revoise Brassieres, the mention of whose names are a guarantee of their goodness.

SECOND—We carry all the newest models, the shapes well dressed women are demanding.

THIRD—Special care is given to fit. An ill-fitting corset, no matter how expensive, will absolutely fall short of all that a corset is purchased for.

To these very good reasons as to why your corsets should be bought here we have added one which will appeal irresistably to those who have a sense of the artistic.

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 26, with every Corset costing $1.00 or more, we will give a pretty little Souvenir, which will enchant you with its beauty—a bon bon dish, tray or vase, as you wish.

Come and see these dainty favors, view the new models in corsets, and see how well equipped we are to meet your needs.

REGISTER TOMORROW OR YOU CAN'T VOTE

Tomorrow will be the last opportunity for tardy voters to register. Citizens whose names are missing from the polling lists now, and are not posted, by nine o'clock tomorrow night will lose their chance to vote on Tuesday, November 2. Up to date the enrolling is much lighter than usual. For this reason the Republican leaders are straining their efforts in trying to induce all unregistered voters to get out and enroll their names tomorrow.

In recent years many voters have paid little attention to the list, but left the matter entirely to the canvassers. Owing to numerous removals during the past year there are more changes than usual. Voters in order to make sure of being registered should lose no time in scrutinizing the polling lists in their districts.

The various boards will be in session from 1 to 9 o'clock tomorrow for the purpose of adding to and revising the lists. The boards will meet at the following places:

First Ward.

First District: No. 125 North avenue.

Second District: No. 545 East Third street.

Second Ward.

First District: No. 319 Watchung avenue.

Second District: No. 443 East Fifth street.

Third District: No. 1103 South avenue.

Third Ward.

First District: Fisk's barn on Arlington avenue.

Second District: Neuman's barn, corner Spooner avenue and Essex street.

Fourth Ward.

First District: No. 204 West Second street.

Second District: No. 672 South Second street.

Third District: No. 921 West Third street.

Following are the polling places in the borough:

First District: 63 Somerset street.

Second District: 90 Somerset street.

Third District: 185 Somerset street.

shall not be sacrificed to the things which pertain to this world. Secondly, it develops the whole child, body, mind and soul. Of the three the last named is infinitely the most precious, and only in a system of education which is inspired by religion does this get its proper care. Better a thousand times over that both body and mind be neglected than that the soul suffer loss. Thirdly, a religious system of education is the only true American one. It corresponds with the spirit of the people of the land. It is in keeping with the very foundation of our public school system which comes from the colonial days of Massachusetts where it was written, "let the children be taught to read and write in order that they may be able to read the Bible, the Book of Common Prayer and the Constitution of the State."

A man that loves his native land will be patriotic, but the man that has been taught in his school-days that the State has authority from God will have a higher element in his patriotism than that which springs simply from love of country, and will be ready not only to die for his flag in times of war, but to be a good citizen in times of peace. Lastly, we are in favor of the religious system because we hold that the non-sectarian system is an impossibility. This was the opinion of Daniel Webster expressed in his great speech in the famous Girard case in Philadelphia. "It is a mockery and an insult to common sense to say that a system of education from which Christian instruction by Christian teachers has been sedulously and religiously excluded, is anything else but deistic and infidel both in its influence and intention." This is our position today and we say that the principles of indifferentism are being taught in our public schools not by written page nor by word of mouth, but by the very spirit of the system. Five days are given to secular knowledge, and the child is left to pick up his religion on the Sunday during the short hour of an afternoon session. What inference will the child draw? That namely the knowledge of the secular branches is the great thing to which he must apply his best attention and most of his time, and that religion is only of secondary importance.

Thus we conclude that from a religious standpoint, as well as from that of patriotism, there is only one system of education which should be acceptable to the American people and that system, my dear graduates of St. Mary's School, is the system under which you have been trained. We send you out from our care tonight, knowing for a certainty that you have been prepared for the battle of life; that you will contribute a proper appreciation of public integrity to that great body of the American people, which for intelligence, exalted patriotism and the love of the highest morality stands without a peer in the world today. We know moreover that in the production of this happy result the greatest credit is due to the influence of religion, which from the first day in which you set foot in St. Mary's School to the last hour of your stay has never for one moment been disconnected from our ssytem of education.

FIVE HUNDRED GIRLS STRIKE; TWO ARRESTED.

Five hundred girls, cigarmakers at the plant of Hirschhorn, Mack & Company, New Brunswick, went on strike Saturday morning for higher wages. The trouble started Friday when Mary Pali, Lizzie Senko, Lizzie Fedor and Lizzie Bodner created what was regarded as a commotion in the plant in an effort to get the girls to strike. Superintendent William Kreiger quieted the workers and the four girls left. Saturday, it was declared, the four girls stopped other girls on the way to work and it is further alleged created a disturbance at the plant with the result that two of them, Mary Pali and Lizzie Senko, were arrested and taken to police headquarters followed by a crowd of 300 of the strikers.

Recorder Houghten held them in $100 bail for a hearing tonight on charges of disorderly conduct and inciting a riot. An effort will be made to get the other two girls.

The girls now receive twenty-five and thirty cents for making 100 cigars and want thirty-five and forty, the difference in price being due to the size of cigars made. They claim they are docked for poor cigars and that they cannot make as many as heretofore because of inferior stock. The girls make from 500 to 800 cigars daily. There are about 500 girls employed in the department where cigars are made by machine. They are still at work, although the entire plant is likely to shut down as a result of the strike. The company has a big plant in Perth Amboy.

A Good Opportunity.

"Your pa's coming down on Saturday. I wonder if that would be a good time to speak to him?"

"Yes. When ma tells him what she's spent down here he'll be glad to get rid of the lot of us!"—Comic Cuts.

The Modern Son.

"Modern literature has nothing similar to Polonius' advice to his son."

"No chance for it. No modern Polonius would attempt to tell his son anything."—Pittsburg Post.

WHY DO MEN WAIT ON THE WOMEN?

Irreverent persons suggest that man's only object in life is to please woman and to serve her. Slightly exaggerated this statement, perhaps, but there must be some truth at the bottom of it. Otherwise, why should man wait on woman at all? Why take pleasure in being agreeable to her? Why go out of his way to assist her. In other words, why should he be chivalrous?

Chivalry is the expression of man's real, instinctive deference for woman. Although, like other instinctive feelings, it is being modified or rooted up by education and civilization, the chivalrous instinct nevertheless still makes itself felt in modern man. It impels him, when confronted with woman, to pass through three different stages. In the first he strives to attract woman's attention; in the second to please her; finally, to serve here.

The unconcerned are highly diverted by the first. There is no end to the things a man will do to attract woman's attention. Nothing is too absurd. One man found it necessary to spoil his patent leather shoes. He was being rowed across a lake when a girl passed by in her canoe. Without a moment's hesitation he plunged both feet into the rippling water, letting them dangle there, stupidly.

Other men use other methods: some grow spry and climb fences, stumble over their own feet; some imagine themselves the proud possessors of a voice and exercise it; others whistle out of tune or twirl their mustaches. Still others grow disconcerted and forget where they are going or lose the thread of their conversation.

So much for the desire of being noticed. When it comes to pleasing women men are more particular. They then strive for personal perfection. The intellectual ones go about with poetry in their breast pockets and learn it by heart, ready to repeat it at the first occasion. Or they dabble into art or literature or some "ism" in order to acquire the correct pose. The more matter-of-fact puzzle over material things; whether their hair is parted in the right place; whether the red or blue tie will make the better impression. For men are vain and dress to please.—Harper's Weekly.

CHANGES IN RAINCOATS.

Raincoats have undergone a slight metamorphosis during the last year, and now, at the opening of the present season, they have blossomed forth in two new styles. One of these coats is straight in line, quite mannish and unadorned, but belted in at the hips by a plain leather belt, which is run through slits in the material. These follow the general outline of the medieval, without, however, straying far from the requisite masculine cut, and they are worth mention. But the raincoats are a matter entirely different. These are without sleeves and are merely provided at each side with slits through which the wearer may thrust her arms. The cape itself, though sometimes gored, is circular and finished at the neck with a military collar of some rubberized silk. The smartest capes of this type are of rubber-lined silk in white or colors.

None of the really stylish raincoats of the year covers the bottom of the skirt, nor do they protect it as they should. They are in this way different from the coats to which we have become accustomed, but this is the result of the popularity of the shorter masculine coat.

CREOLE CORN.

Peel and cut in quarters four good-sized tomatoes, put these in a saucepan with a dozen okra washed and cut in thin slices; cover and stew slowly for twenty minutes; add the pulp of a dozen ears of corn, a level teaspoonful of salt, one sweet pepper chopped fine, a dash of white pepper; cook over hot water for fifteen minutes; add either four tablespoonfuls of cream or two tablespoonfuls of butter, and send at once to the table. (This is one of the most delicious of summer vegetable dishes. Mrs. Rorer).

Educating Himself.

"Have you any of this?" asked the man, entering the drug store and handing the proprietor a piece of paper bearing some writing.

"Yes, we have lots of it," answered the druggist, reading the word on the paper. "How much podophyllin do you want?"

"None at all, thank you. I simply wanted to decide a bet on how the word should be pronounced."—Chicago Post.

You can buy underwear for 50c and $1 at any store. But the question is, where can I get the best garment for the money. If you've bought underwear at the W. & M. store, we don't have to tell you. It's the other fellow we want to talk to. We buy our underwear direct from the largest and best mills in the country in very large quantities, and can and do offer you garments with a reputation. We don't claim to sell you a 50c garment for 39c, or a 1.00 garment for 59c, but we do offer you a better garment for the money than you can get anywhere else in town, and when we tell you that a garment is half wool, 3-quarter wool or all wool, you can rest assured that it is just what we claim it to be; that's worth something, isn't it? We cordially invite you to critically examine our lines. Compare them with the other fellows. You won't buy underwear anywhere else.

Notwithstanding the stormy weather the farce "Meadows All Forlorn," given by the choir Guild of All Saints' Episcopal church, in the Fanwood fire house Saturday night, was well attended and all those who braved the storm had a most enjoyable evening, the cast being an exceptionably good one. Home made candy was sold during the evening, the proceeds from the sale helping naturally in swelling the receipts.

Franz Arens, conductor of the Peoples' Symphony Orchestra, of New ork city, in writing of the work, says:

"Miss Palmer writes for teachers and music lovers who have had scant opportunities for music study, but wish to know more about it. She presents the principles of harmony in a series of object lessons and treats the subjects of Sonata Form, Music Drama, Analysis, etc., in a masterly, yet charming manner. From the pedagogic standpoint the work undoubtedly places Miss Palmer among the foremost teachers of our day."

REV. DR. CHARLES A. EATON'S ADIVCE TO MEN ON VOTING.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, who is to speak at the meeting of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church tonight, told his congregation in the Madison Avenue Baptist church in New York yesterday that "City Government is simply housekeeping on a large scale and that we should see to it that our housekeepers are competent to fill the position from a moral as well as an educational viewpoint. "He said it was not the function of the pulpit to tell men for whom they should vote, but it is the duty of a public teacher of morals to give men right principles of civic conduct and obligation.

"Fitness for the place he seeks," the doctor said, " is the only qualification that ought to be required of a candidate for city office. If in your best judgment the man is fitted for his proposed task, by character, experience and ability, vote for him."

PALESTINE BLUE BEADS AND OTHER SUPERSTITION

Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring last night at the First Presbyterian church preached a sermon on "The Blue Beads of Palestine. In part he said:

I do not know whether the Blue Bells of Scotland have any talismanic virtue, but the blue beads of Palestine—the Arab believes—are most effective in warding off unseen influences. Men, women and children wear them somewhere on their person. In the necklace of the Bedouin bride, which consists of various colored glass beads, coins and cloves the predominating color is blue. There are also in this necklace several beads shaped like an eye encircled by a blue stone. Horses, cameis and donkeys all wear blue beads about their necks or twisted in their tails to preserve them from the dangerous consequences of the evil eye.

The evil eye, according to the Arab idea, is some strange and evil power which you may have over him or his possessions. For example, if you should praise his horse, the next day that horse might slip on the rocky road to Jericho and break his leg, but if you should say, "By the grace of God, that is a fine horse," the evil may be averted.

It may be that some of the drivers in Palestine are reckless because they believe in the value of the blue beads to protect them from all calamity.

You find the same dread of the evil eye in Italy, to avert which the people wear coral beads or charms.

Why blue beads and coral are thought of as possessing such wonderful power over unseen spiritual forces, we do not know any more than we know why some people believe that a horse chestnut carried in the pocket will prevent or cure rheumatism.

The church in the Middle Ages believed much in the power of charms. It was thought that a consecrated piece of paper upon which was written holy words protect a person and his property from the visits of Satan; if swallowed, it would protect from disease; if laid in the cradle, it would guard the child from witchcraft; if buried in the corner of a field, it would protect it from bad weather and insects.

In this scientific age, we laugh at such superstitions, but I fear we are not whoolly rid of them. Some very good and intelligent Christian people will begin nothing on Friday. These same people believe that Wednesday is the most auspicious day for a wedding. How many people there are who will not sit down with 13 at the table. This superstition probably arose from the fact that the Lord's table there were 13, and Christ died.

I wonder, tonight, how many of you have the blue beads of superstition somewhere about your religious life. Why not trust God's care, who has promised because of your implicit trust in Him that "no evil shall befall thee, neither shayy any plague come nigh thy dwelling."

FEATHER HAT IGNITES ON A WOMAN'S HEAD.

While Mrs. Browning, of Rochester, N. Y., was addressing post cards Friday afternoon in a cigar store at Atlantic and Tennessee avenues, Atlantic City, she leaned on the show case and her feathered hat and veil caught fire from a swinging cigar lighter.

As she fled into the street, trying to wrest the flaming hat from her head, she scorched her hand terribly, while the fire burned nearly all the hair from her head, destroyed her eyebrows and eyelashes and inflicted burns on the face and neck which, it is feared, may disfigure her for life.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Suffering since last Saturday from hiccoughs, Charles K. Darr, oldest in service of the letter-carriers at Bridgeton, is critically ill.

Earl Armstrong, of Mullica Hill, sustained a broken nose while practising with the Glassboro High School football team Saturday.

Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts, former moderator of the General Assembly, preached at the First Presbyterian church at Millville yesterday.

Judge Robert Carey, of the Hudson County Court, has sent a communication to the Board of Freeholders urging the erection of a home for juvenile offenders.

Thrown from a wagon in a runaway accident, William Harrison, seventy-five years old, of Bridgeton, sustained fractures of two ribs Saturday and was taken to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

During a severe electrical storm early Saturday morning the large farmhouse of Dr. S. A. Orwig, on the Somers Point road, was struck by lightning and destroyed with all the contents.

By resolution of the Gloucester County Board of Freeholders Saturday it was decided to check the prosecutor in spending so much money in the employment of detectives and constables in looking up alleged lawbreakers.

Before Justice of the Peace Arthur C. Mulford at Bridgeton Saturday, Richard Newkirk, Anthony Pierce, Moses Jones and Henry Cuff, all of Greenwich Township, were fined $5 each for not sending their children to school.

Recently convicted of having performed a criminal operation on Mamie Morrison, colored, Dr. James W. Blackwood, of Haddonfield, was granted a new trial by Judge Joline in Camden Saturday and was released on $1,000 bail.

After Charles Kirth had promised to support his three children he was released from the Camden county jail Saturday by Judge Joline. At first he was sentenced to two months in jail, but when he saw the prison bars he changed his mind.

Judge Gnichtel, in Mercer court, Saturday, dealt severely with wife beaters. He sentenced Michael Poski to one year and William Mulhall to six months in prison. Charles Darrow, who pleaded guilty to a similar charge, will be sentenced later.

Henry D. Lanning Saturday filed in the Court of Chancery for John E. Lettelier, of Trenton, a petition for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Emma E. Lettelier, on statutory grounds. The couple were married in Trenton April 17, 1908, and have one child, Earle Lettelier.

Attacked by a dog in front of his home Saturday night, David Greenburg, five-year-old son of Morris Greenburg, of 1716 Broadway, Camden, was frightfully injured. The boy's cheeks were torn and his lower jaw was perforated by the dog's teeth. He was cared for at Cooper Hospital. The dog was shot by Policeman Greenan.

Lacking ten years of the century mark, Alexander Gusson, a veteran of the Civil War, died Saturday at his home, 44 North Twenty-fourth street, East Camden. He served as a private in Company H, Twenty-third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers. Pedestrianism was the old man's fad and even as late as a week ago he walked from his home to Gloucester and return.

Amos L. Bougher, a Burlington county boy, who formerly lived at Centreton, has one of the loneliest of jobs. He is in charge of a Canadian Pacific Railroad tower at Upsala, Assiniboia, thirteen miles from the nearest white person's home and surrounded by Indians, who live in bark wigwams. In spite of loneliness he writes that he enjoys his position, as big game is abundant.

As a result of the first season's experience of the South Jersey Farmers' Exchange at Woodbury over 1,000 carloads of white potatoes, 4,000 barrels of "sweets" and other produce were sold. Fifty carloads of seed potatoes have been bought and orders placed for 100 carloads of fertilizer. In all $400,000 worth of business was done in about three months' time, and the stockholders are more than pleased.

A notable victory in their fight for a municipal water plant was won by the citizens of Collingswood Friday night, when the Borough Council unanimously accepted an extensively signed petition for the construction of such a means of providing that suburb of Camden with an ample supply of pure water. The next step will be the calling of a special election to authorize the bonding of the borough for the necessary amount.

Residents of Mt. Holly are up in arms over the proposed establishment of a tuberculosis sanitarium at Birmingham along the branch of the Rancocas Creek which serves as the source of Mt. Holly's water supply. A company has been formed, a site leased and arrangements made to spend a considerable sum on improvements and alterations. While it is not known just how much danger would arise from a sanitarium so situated, Mt. Holly people are far from pleased at the idea, and if anything can be done to discourage the project, it is certain it will be done in Mt. Holly.

Don't Wrestle With Furnace Clinkers

Clinkers just naturally pass right through the grate of the Boynton.

If they hesitate, the cutting bar smashes them. There is no chance of clogging. The intense and uniform heat of the reduces nearly everything to the finest ash. That's because a square pot develops more heat per unit of fuel than any other kind. That's economy.

The Boynton has some other exceptional features too—the fresh air supply—the dust flue—the square ash pit. Any BOYNTON dealer will be glad to explain how these points reduce the care and cost of up-keep.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

ASYLUM WARDEN CHASES ESCAPED MAN IN AUTO.

In pursuit of an escaped insane man, Samuel T. Aachley, warden of the State Hospital for the Insane at Trenton, utilized an automobile Friday afternoon. The fugitive was Thomas Motlin, of Freehold, a negro. The warden overtook him in a wood, and the negro attacked him with a club, finally striking him across the brow, before he was overpowered.

Motlin promised to accompany the warden back to the asylum, and went along submissively until they reached the road. Then the negro broke away and ran across the farm of Charles Scudder, where he walked out into the centre of an artificial lake, and remained there nearly an hour with the water up to his chin. The warden sat on the bank and kept up a conversation to coax the negro to shore. Finally Motlin's hallucinations temporarily departed, and he waded ashore and walked quietly with the warden to the hospital, where he was given medical treatment. He fled from the institution when he was sent across the asylum yard to get some towels. This is the first time he ever caused trouble.

FOUR-LEGGED ROOSTER TO BE SEEN IN DOVER.

A four-legged rooster will be one of the attractions at the fifth annual exhibit of the Dover Poultry Association, which will be held during Thanksgiving week at Dover. This quadruped fowl is a full grown, vigorous bird, with a crow as loud and a combativeness as pronounced as the average biped bird.

All four legs are fully developed, each foot containing the usual four toes and spur. While much secrecy is being maintained as to the ownership of the rooster, it is learned that it was raised in Morris county, only a short distance from Dover. The owner guards it carefully and to prevent its being stolen has had a coop made for it in the kitchen, taking it into the house at night and permitting it to roam only over a restricted area during the day. It is said that the owner has refused a tempting figure offered for the rooster.

Silk and Wool.

A good future seems assured to silk and wool mixtures, and lovely things are offered to us, varying in weight from veiling sheerness to heavy diagonal cloth. These mixtures are among the novelties of the season and command themselves to the well-dressed woman by their lightness of weight and their suppleness, which the introduction of silk usually gives to woolen materials. They are woven with a narrow diagonal stripe alternating with a hairline of darker color.

Black Fishnet.

Black fishnet in coarse, heavy silk mesh is used for the all-black blouse and trimmed with black grosgrain ribbon in several widths, advancing from a quarter to an inch. The dulness of the ribbon and the extreme plainness of these little models proclaim them correct mourning for the younger women.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Sometimes people become so lonesome that they want to howl like a dog.

There probably never was a red-headed boy who wasn't called "Red" by his companions.

If there were anything in hypnotism women would have used it long ago in controlling their hired girls.

No matter what you happen to believe, your deeds are going to attract a good deal more attention than your creeds.

Don't argue. You can't convince anyone, you will only make yourself angry and the man you argue with will hate you.

If a woman has real good hard sense she marries her daughters off with as good judgment as if she were selling a cow.

Probably the proudest moment in a boy's life is when he is allowed to pick out a suit of clothes without his mother going along.

Even the honest farmer is apt to collect the largest head of wheat when he is preparing a sample of his field. It is human nature and human nature isn't always so bad. When you are making a showing show the best you have; it prompts an effort to bring the whole crop up to the standard.—Atchison Globe.

PHILOSOPHER'S NOTEBOOK.

A green Christmas maketh a slim coalyard.

A frog in the pond is worth two in your throat.

A breach-of-promise suit is a poor substitute for a wedding coat.

The man who said: "Talk is cheap," never had to pay his wife's telephone charges.

There is nothing that will burn a hole in your pocket so quickly as a cool million.

If, as some poets have said, all life is music, the tramp must have been set to rag-time.

What a comfort it would be if the wolf at the door could be trained to chew up a few duns as they arrive!

There was a time when a hundred thousand dollars seemed like a good deal of money, and, come to think of it, it seems so yet.

It is not so much the love of money, but the inordinate desire of its possessors to get rid of it, that is at the root of many latter-day evils.—Harper's Weekly.

NEW TONGUE TWISTERS.

A London paper recently offered a series of prizes for the best "tongue-twisting sentences." The prize winwinning contributions are:

The bleak breeze blighted the bright broom blossoms.

Two toads totally tried to trot to Tedbury.

Strict, strong Stephen Stringer snared slickly six sickly silky snakes.

Susan shineth shoes and socks; socks and shoes shines Susan. She ceaseth shining shoes and socks, for shoes and socks shock Susan.

A haddock, a black-spotted haddock; a black spot on the black back of a black-spotted haddock.

Oliver Oglethorp ogled an owl and an oyster. Did Oliver Oglethrop ogle an owl and an oyster? If Oliver Oglethrop ogled an owl and an oyster, where are the owl and the oyster Oliver Oglethorp ogled?

WITH THE SAGES.

It takes a wise man to discover a wise man.—Diogenes.

Who breaks his faith, no faith is held with him.—Du Bartas.

Nothing wins a man sooner than a good turn.—Robert Burton.

It belongs to human nature to hate those you have injured.—Tacitus.

The counsel you would have another keep keep first thyself.—Proverb.

Truthfulness is at the foundation of all personal excellence.—Smiles.

Our occupation is that which we select, our interruption is that which is sent us.

You may reform a hardened old reprobate, but a fool or a saint is a hopeless proposition.

WHO EVER BOUGHT BOOKS

Like These at Such Diminutive Prices?

$100,000 Worth of Fine DeLuxe Editions Are to Be Sold for One-Fourth Their Value.

This isn't one of those fly-by-night auction sales in which you buy books that have been misprinted or so bound to cover up defects, but elegant volumes printed on the finest paper from clear and perfect type-plates, bound in luxurious fashion, satisfying the most critical library builder—books such as usually find their way into the homes only of the wealthy, because of the extravagant subscription price asked for them

Folks in the ordinary walks of life are barred from enjoying such sumptuous volumes—they cannot afford them. But now that the late panic has brought the publishers off their high horses, and we have been able to buy an enormous lot of fine De Luxe sets at an absurdly low price, everybody may have a magnificent library for very little money.

These superb editions will be offered only by this house in Newark. The sale embraces De Luxe publications of many publishers, including Bigelow Smith & Co., the Davos Press, Gebbie & Co., the Notthingham Society, the Chesterfield Society, the latter two re-issuing De Luxe Sets of standard authors from the same plates used by John D. Morris Co., Philadelphia. These editions are those that have been widely advertised in magazines and sold by agents at high prices. You can now get three or four sets at the price paid the subscription agents for one, and it is an unequaled opportunity to secure fine books for your own library or for gifts, and it will help solve the Christmas gift problem for many.

You May Buy These Books On the Easy Payment Club Plan.

THE CHINESE TEAPOT

Philip Harding glanced at his watch after having said good-by all around to the home folks. He saw he had still three hours to train time. His trunk was already at the depot and his affairs were in shipshape order, save one, and this one was causing him more anxiety than all the others, for on it depended his present happiness and future plans.

As he swung along in the direction of Helene Thornton's home he debated within himself as to his chances. As he reviewed the two years in which he had known her he could not remember of any time when by word or sign she seemed aware of the deep admiration and love he had for her. He laughed a little nervously as he remembered a certain day when they had wandered into a Chinese curio shop. An odd Chinese teapot had pleased her and he bought it and told her to keep it as a souvenir. She laughingly turned about and bought him a tiny vase in return. He remembered how he treasured it. The choicest spot on the mantel was its seat of honor, but he never saw the teapot, and one day, being curious, he said:

"Helene, do you remember the day we bought the Chinese souvenirs?"

It seemed to him that it took her an unnecessarily long time to remember, but finally she did, and then he said:

"I have treasured that vase ever since."

He remembered he had waited for her to say something, and at last she said, rather indifferently:

Oh, the teapot; I broke it a short time afterward."

It was like a dash of cold water, and now as he strode along it gave him a chilly feeling of doubt. However, the question must be settled today, for he was to be gone four months and he could not leave it unsettled. He had tried for a week to see her alone, and last night he told her that he was going to say good-by to-day, and so it was with a feeling of determination that he rang the bell.

Her 12-year-old brother opened the door.

"Come right in, Mr. Harding. I'm awfully glad to see you." He closed the door and led the way to the sitting room.

"I'm all alone. My cold is much better and I'm busy working for Aunt Jane." He showed Phil a collection of broken china that he was gluing together.

Phil stammered: "Isn't your sister in?"

"Helene? No, she went out, but said that she would be back at half past five."

"Half past five," echoed Phil. At that time he would be on his way to the train. He knew that she had gone out to avoid him and for the instant he was angry, then he resolved desperately to wait, even if he missed the train, and settle it at once.

Henry chatted away as he worked and finally surveyed his finished task with pride.

"Helene has an old dish upstairs that she thinks a lot of. It's broken and she'll be delighted to have it fixed."

He ran upstairs and came back with the "old dish," and Phil's heart gave a leap, for he was holding the Chinese teapot.

"Did you say that your sister valued it?" he said quietly.

"Well, I don't say she valued it. It doesn't look worth much, but she thought a lot of it. Perhaps some one that's dead gave it to her."

The bright thought settled everything to him.

"It's full of truck," he said as he proceeded to dump a miscellaneous collection of things on the table. Such things as tumbled out! A dance order, a knot of ribbon, a snap shot which Phil recognized immediately, a faded rosebud, a tiny watch charm, etc.

Phil felt a little guilty as he glanced at the pile. It seemed as though he was intruding on sacred ground. Still he had not been to blame; it was the brother who had unconsciously laid bare her secrets. He resolved to wait; if a fortune depended upon his getting that train he would rather lose it than miss seeing her.

He persuaded Henry not to light up and they sat in the twilight. Every nerve was strained for the sound of a well known step. At last her cheery voice sounded in the hall.

"Sitting in the dark, brother?" She turned on the light in the sitting room as she passed it. Then she caught sight of Phil.

"Why, Mr. Harding"—she started forward with outstretched hand, but followed his glance to the table. She gave a cry of dismay. For once she was off her guard. She turned pale and grasped the table to steady herself, then her face flushed red; she was beginning to get angry.

Phil turned to Henry. "Say, Henry, there's a book in the library called 'The Cruise of the Firefly.' Find it, and here's a dollar for your trouble."

After a search of 15 minutes Henry returned to the sitting room. He had heard the hall door close, and saw Phil hurrying down the street.

"I'm sorry I couldn't find it for him," he said.

"Are you pleased with the way I mended the dish?"

"Very much, you dear bungler," she said with a happy laugh.

"Funny girls think so much of old truck," he thought as he watched her carefully putting away her treasures in the Chinese teapot.

The modern trust company is organized, primarily, for the purpose of administering estates. It is empowered by law to act in all respects as might an individual, but possesses every quality of desirability that the individual lacks. The fees are never more than are allowed to an individual. Furthermore, owing to its excellent facilities for handling the business, and for making prompt and proper investments of surplus funds, it can often reduce the expense of administration and thereby increase the value of the estate.

BOROUGH SCHOOL TEAM IS STRONGER THAN EVER

When the football elevens of the city and borough clash in their annual gridiron battle on Saturday, November 20, a red hot struggle is anticipated by adherents of both teams. Holy Cross' 12 to 0 triumph over P. H. S. last Saturday has boosted the borough school stock several pegs, as the North Plainfield eleven played Holy Cross to 0 to 0 score early in the season. North Plainfield's 18 to 0 victory over Batten High, of Elizabeth, is also taken as a sign that the borough school has the strongest gridiron aggregation in its athletic history.

When everything is taken into consideration the borough athletes have made a great showing so far. This season's team is made up largely of new material, but all have been performing like vetrans. Becker, who was injured in the Holy Cross game, and Harry Smith, who sprained an ankle against Batten, are returning to fighting trim and are sure to be in the game against Plainfield High.

ONLY THREE RETURN SCORES AT PARK GOLF CLUB.

The Park Golf club course was well occupied with players on Saturday. A number were entered in the weekly competitions, but only three returned scores, a sufficient number to count points for the cups. The races at the Watchung Hunt club doubtless attracted many of the regulars, and besides the course was slow and the scores on the average were rather high.

The point-winners for the President's, golf club and Oakmont trophies were as follows.

S. St. John McCutchen, 94, 10-84; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 94, 7-87; W. V. Byard, 101, 14-87.

CHIEF KIELY OUSTED (IN BOWLING CONTEST)

Chief Kiely met his first defeat in the individual tourney at Campbell's alleys on Saturday night, when he met Blatz and Campbell in a postponed series.

Kiely succeeded in taking two games from Blatz in the first series, but was not so fortunate against Campbell, losing the first game by four and the second by ten pins.

Dame fortune was against Blatz when he rolled Campbell, losing by four and seven pins. The scores:

Kiely	179	211
Blatz	171	176
Campbell	195	214
Kiely	191	204
Campbell	196	177
Blatz	192	170

After leading Campbell's individual tourney from the start Chief Kiely has been ousted from the premier position and Johnny Campbell has taken his place.

Kiely is now in second place, within striking distance of Campbell, and ready to assume his lost honors should the present leader meet with a setback.

Because of his two defeats on Saturday night Blatz is now tied with Skelly for third, with the other competitors trailing along.

In the race for average prizes Campbell is still on top and Kiely retains second place.

Matthews passed Blatz and is now in third place.

Schaub's 244 is high score for the tourney.

P. H. S. ELEVEN CRUSHED

High School's Winning Team no Match for Holy Cross Aggregation.

BIG SURPRISE FOR ROOTERS.

The Unexpected Happens When Church Boys Meet School Boys on the Gridiron.

The Holy Cross football team met Plainfield High School on the Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, and the school boys went down to defeat by a score of 10 to 0, much to the surprise of their many enthusiastic supporters. It was a day of surprises for P. H. S. felt, perhaps, over-confident of a victory. They were not prepared for a shut out entirely, and the players are still dazed over the result. It was the first time this season that P. H. S. had been defeated and in consequence there is gloom in the school camp.

Holy Cross beat P. H. S. at its own game and had the school boys completely at their mercy. Not once during the entire game did P. H. S. get the ball beyond the middle of the field, and Holy Cross practically had things its own way. To over-confidence on its team's part is attributed the result by P. H. S. followers.

Russell Vail was the star player for Holy Cross, negotiating at least four forward passes. In the first half Miller made a clean pass of thirty yards. Vail caught the ball and ran to within five yards of the goal line. At another time Holy Cross lost the ball on a fumble, allowing P. H. S. to make a safety.

Holy Cross worked a clever trick on its opponents, fooling them on a delayed pass. The end came around and carried the ball over for a touchdown. George Webster, who made one of the touchdowns, also played fine football, as did also Miller and Tillotson.

The Holy Cross team held its line steady throughout and the victory was one of great triumph for the church eleven. Credit is due "Pete" Emmons for his efficient coaching of Holy Cross. The team played straight football, while P. H. S. played an open game. On Thanksgiving Day Holy Cross will meet N. P. H. S.

The game on Saturday began with Holy Cross kicking off to Plainfield. Nash caught the ball and rushed it to the 25 yard line. The ball went to Holy Cross on a fumble and they tried line hitting. They made a few yards in this way and then tried end runs. Then they tried a run around the right end and gained about fifteen yards.

The school boys then got busy and held their opponents for downs. Plainfield next worked the ball down in the middle of the field by constantly hitting the line, but lost on a fumble. Holy Cross again started end runs, and Vail made 20 yards with a pretty run around the right. They then tried a forward pass and were downed about 10 yards from the goal.

Both teams were working like beavers, when Holy Cross rushed the ball through the line about three times and Knight made a touchdown just as the time was called.

In the second half, P. H. S. kicked off to Holy Cross. The ball was caught and rushed to the 30 yard line. They then worked it down the field and lost it on a fumble. Riffert then made a successful forward pass to Doane, but he only ran a couple of yards before Tillotson nailed him with a pretty tackle. Smith punted and Holy Cross got the ball. They worked it down to within five yards of the goal, where the P. H. S. got the ball for downs. They tried a series of trick plays and made about 15 yards. When they kicked Holy Cross got the ball again. They tried a trick play and Tillotson ran with the ball to within five yards of the goal. In another down they made the goal. They failed on the kick. Time was then called on account of darkness. Knight and Webster made the touchdowns and no goals were kicked. The lineup:

WATCHUNG HUNT RACES

Amateur Horsemen in Their Pink Coats Show Some Classy Riding.

TWO FALLS IN STEEPLECHASE.

Close Finishes Mark Fat Races—Essex B Lowers Colors of Harry Baylor in the Jumps.

Threatening weather kept the crowd down to 1,500 people at the fall meeting of the Watchung Hunt Club Saturday afternoon, but the amateur racing enthusiasts enjoyed some spirited racing and witnessed some stirring finishes. The crowd was made up of fashionable folk, but handsome gowns were not much in evidence owing to the plentiful array of rain coats. Jupiter Pluvius threatened every moment to serve a downpour, but kindly held off until the last race on the card had been decided.

There were five races on the card and each one was hotly contested except the second event when only two horses faced the starter. In this race about three miles across country, two old rivals, Harry Baylor, ridden by Mr. Gormley and Essex B., ridden by Mr. Clapp, were the only contestants. For the first time around the course the two jumpers kept pretty well together, but after that Essex B. had the race all to himself, coming home a furlong in advance of Baylor. When Mr. Baylor dismounted he was overheard to say that Baylor quit cold under him after going one-third of the distance.

The first race provided some excitement, the three horses running heads apart until within a sixteenth of the wire when Whirlwind under Mr. Alpers' splendid riding came away to win by half a length with Ranger and Fancy lapped heads apart behind him.

The third race, about six furlongs on the flat, brought ten horses to the post which were sent away to a poor start after several false breaks. This was won easily by Ardenia, the favorite, Malaga taking the place four lengths behind, closely followed by Genesee.

The hunters' steeplechase, fourth on the card and the big event of the day, brought out C. E. S. Bellows' Modest, R. W. Anderson's Rollo; C. E. Sherin's Borderland, S. Van Schaick's Adjutor and L. Batjer's Rosebank. After the first jump in which the pink coats made a truly handsome picture on the course, the horses began to string out and at the brush Modest took a commanding lead and was never headed. Two mishaps occurred before the race was finished, Mr. Van Schaick taking a pair of tumbles and Mr. Casey, who rode Rosebank, fell at the third jump. Mr. Van Schaick narrowly missed severe injury in his second tumble. While nearing the finish line Adjutor ran into Modest, who was being unsaddled in front of the judges' stand, and the impact was heard for some distance. Mr. Van SHchaick fell off owing to the horse's quick swerve toward the fence on the opposite side of the track. At first it was thought that Adjutor was badly injured, but closer examination showed only a strain from which he will recover. The story of the other races will be found in the summary. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hooley and the Misses Hooley, Charles J. Fisk, Harvey E. Fisk, Charles W. Fisk and Miss Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Waring, Mr. and Mrs. H. Reeves Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Runkle, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. King, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holland and Miss Holland, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Dumont, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Otterson and Miss Otterson, Mr. and Mrs. Boardman Tyler, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Rowland, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Mellick, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davies, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Timpson, Miss Maud Van Buskirk, H. L. Finch, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Nichols, Misses Clark, Miss Pierson, Udo Fleishman, Fred Lydig, F. S. Jackson, O. T. Waring, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Farlee, Harry Page, Raymond Belmont, Rufus Finch, J. S. Farlee and many others.

The summaries:

First Race—Galloways; 15 hands and under; to carry 150 pounds; about three furlongs—Whirlwind, I. Osgood Nichols (Alpers), won; Ranger, Raymond Belmont (Belmont), second; Fancy, Peter Hauck, Jr., (King), third.

Second Race—Steeplechase for bonafide hunters to carry 175 pounds; about three miles—Essex B., Peter Hauck, Jr. (Clapp), won; Harry Baylor, Hugh Gormley (Gormley), second.

Third Race—About six furlongs—Ardenia, Whitegate Stables (King), won; Malaga, J. E. Davis (Alpers), second; Genesee, A. D. Schley (Tyler), third.

Fourth Race—Hunters' steeplechase; to carry 175 pounds; about three miles—Modest, C. E. S. Bellows (Gormley), won; Rollo, R. W. Anderson (Clapp), second; Borderland, C. E. Sherin (Casey), third.

Fifth Race—Hacks and hunters; to carry 165 pounds; about one-half mile—Al H. Woods, J. E. Davis, (Davis), won; Hogan, George Gilder (Gilder), second; Aurumaster, F. Wolton Winmill (Casey), third.

ARE DOCTORS UNFAIR?

Carlton B. Pierce Makes Statement as to Controversy With Physicians.

SAYS THEY ARE MISLED.

Whole Trouble, Assemblyman Declares, Was Due to Their Legislative Agent's Actions.

The fact that physicians of Union county, led by their legislative agent, Dr. Norton L. Wilson, of Elizabeth, are making every effort to prevent Carlton B. Pierce from being returned to the Assembly, because of the stand that the legislator took in regard to the bill framed by the doctors providing for the appointment of an osteopathic physician to the State Board of Medican Examiners, has aroused much interest in county political circles and in some quarters plans are being laid for the carrying out of a campaign that will counteract the efforts of the physicians in their fight to knife Mr. Pierce.

The storm centres around what is known as "the Osteopaths' bill." The course of legislation covered three proposed bills. The first two were presented by the osteopaths early in the session. The first was framed after the New York act, passed in 1907, providing representation for the osteopaths on the general State Examining Board. The other was along the same lines as an act adopted by the Pennsylvania Legislature, while the subject was under discussion in Trenton, providing for a separate examining board for the osteopaths.

At the public hearing held in Trenton on February 15, the doctors appeared in force to voice their objection to both bills and to any recognition of osteopathy by the State. Over their objection the Assembly placed the bill following the Pennsylvania act, or the one providing for a separate examining board on the calendar for consideration.

Thus defeated in point of recognition, the physicians framed their own bill. It was passed in the Senate but overwhelmingly defeated in the House as "not a fair bill." The special objection to the bill, as pointed out by the osteopaths, was that it would legislate out of practice about one-half of the legitimate osteopaths.

Assemblyman Pierce voted to put the bill similar to the Pennsylvania act on the calendar and later voted against the Senate bill as not a fair bill.

Further evidence which the supporters of Mr. Pierce interpret as showing the unfairness of the medical profession, is being dicsussed in political circles. It is learned that after being invited to appear before the committee of doctors appointed by the Plainfield Clinical Society to investigate the matter, the committee was turned down by the other members of the society who said that the matter having gone so far, it would have to go further unless Mr. Pierce would pledge himself to vote for the proposed bill drawn by the doctors.

This proposition met with the refusal of Mr. Pierce, who made two requests. The first was that, having submitted himself to the committee, he should receive a copy of the charges made against him (referring to the letter of Dr. Norton L. Wilson, of Elizabeth, upon which the society acted), and the other that he be given a verdict by the committee.

It is understood that both of these requests were refused, the first because Dr. Wilson had refused to allow his letter to be made public, and the second, because although one member of the committee expressed his willingness that Mr. Pierce be informed of the finding of the body, the other members were not.

The supporters of Mr. Pierce declare that it is becoming plainer and plainer that the consensus of opinion, wherever the facts are known, is that the physicians of the county and not Mr. Pierce, should stand trial.

Mr. Pierce said yesterday in speaking on the matter: "The first mistake in the whole matter was that the County Medical Society relied upon its legislative agent, and committed itself to an attack without investigation. Had the truth been known, there was a personal difference. Had not Dr. Wilson termed my refusal to give reasons as simply a refusal by myself to deal with Dr. Wilson, the trouble would not have arisen.

"It was the withholding of this essential fact by Dr. Wilson in his report to the society that mislead the organization and resulted in its being placed in a false position. It seems to me to be up to the society to extricate itself and retrieve its reputation for fairness."

HIGH CHIEF RANGER TO ATTEND THEIR MEETING

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, at its meeting Friday night will initiate several candidates. The first stag and smoker, which is a feature of the Court during the fall and winter months, will be given. A fine program of vocal and instrumental music will be rendered and High Chief Ranger A. It is desired to end the year with a large increase in membership and special efforts are being made the members which will be explained at the meeting Friday night. Plans will also be considered for the annual entertainment, reception and dance. A collation will be served and a smoker enjoyed in the banquet room under the direction of Fred Breem, E. J. McCue and John H. Cline, the committee in charge of the affair.

W.C.T.U.'S BIG GAINS IN ITS MEMBERSHIP

The members of the Plainfield W. C. T. U. are rejoicing over the encouraging reports from the recent State convention held at Bridgeton. Although there were many deaths and removals from the State, a net gain of seven hundred and fifty is reported. Increasing activity and devotion is noted in all departments of work especially in the Loyal Temperance Legion.

The Plainfield Loyal Temperance Legion has started the year's work well under its new superintendent, Mrs. Henry Thomas. At the last meeting these officers were elected:

Secretary, Miss Grace Vail; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Griffin; chairman lookout committee, Robert Dore; doorkeeper, William Dore; librarian, Miss Bessie Grimm; collector, Miss Theodosia Vail. The president and vice-president will be elected later.

Rally day exercises will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clockk, to which the parents and members are invited. Refreshments will be served and a good time is expected.

"The County Sheriff."

"The County Sheriff," which comes to the Plainfield theatre tonight, is a thoroughly interesting play, packed with exciting adventure, sentimental incidents and humorous situations. A strong acting company, together with a heavy scenic production make this one of the most pleasing comedy dramas of the season. Five high class specialties are carried.

Will Consider Building Code.

The Councilmanic fire committee will meet tonight to further consider the proposed new building code now being drafted under the supervision of an expert. It is hardly thought possible to have it ready for action at the November meeting of the Common Council.

Welcome to Our City.

GOVERNMENT'S SHAREHOLDERS SHOULD REGISTER TODAY

(Contributed by State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, by request of The Daily Press.)

There are about 500,000 voters in the State of New Jersey entitled to vote in their respective districts at the coming election, provided they have exercised the important precaution to see that their names are on the registry lists.

For the good or ill of every individual within the State the power of the voter can be exercised. The resultant action of voting or not voting can, and it may, affect a voter in his life, his happiness, his health, his possessions, subject only to the terms impoed upon those elected by constitutional limitations.

"Those entitled to vote at the coming election may be likened to qualified stockholders of a business enterprise considering to whom they shall delegate their authority to manage for a longer or shorter period their interest in the corporate stock of the body politic. On many occasions in the past I have pointed out that it was as shareholders in an immense and valuable enterprise that the voters were participating when they go to the polls to cast their votes, and Mr. Bannard over in New York is saying precisely what I have stated, and which I repeat at the risk of repetition. But somehow in this active state of ours the people must have forgotten their priceless heritage. I refer to the recent election, when changes in the State Constitution, the organic law and charter of our liberties, were proposed. Only about twenty-five per cent. of those entitled to vote exercised that privilege. Just think of it!

"Would it not be the part of wisdom, before engaginig in that football game, that game of golf, that motor ride, that hunting expedition, or even the harvesting of crops, to go to the polls, if you are qualified to vote, and exercise that inestimable birthright which appears sometimes to be sadly unappreciated.

"The Republican voters have nominated an excellent ticket from top to bottom. Some of those on that ticket have labored until the small hours of the morning to guard the public welfare, their only hope of reward resting in a clear conscience and the knowledge that they believed the true interests of the people were being protected.

"I am confident that the voter of Union county will appreciate the importance of the issues and give the Republican ticket a good majority."

MUSIC LOVERS FEASTED

Mc Intyre Trio's Rich Program Enjoyed by a Representative Audience.

SMETANA'S WORK PRODUCED.

Bohemian's Trio in G. Minor Charmingly Rendered Under Joseph McIntyre's Direction.

The initial concert of the McIntyre Chamber Music series last night at the high school auditorium, brought out Plainfield's music lovers in great numbers to hear a program of great beauty and charm, given by the McIntyre Trio with Mr. Sydney Biden, baritone, as the assisting artist. The auditorium was filled almost to its capacity, and demonstrated its fine acoustic properties and excellent seating accommodations. The artists expressed the highest approval of the excellent opportunities given by the hall to bring out the various musical effects, from the greatest power of sound to the most delicate nuance.

The work of the McIntyre Trio is always at these concerts the centre of interest. The members comprising it standing in the front rank of New York's artist world by their merits and reputations as soloists, this alone guaranteeing a performance of indubitable excellence. The trio with its five years of constant work has acquired that fine merit which pertains only to well seasoned ensemble organizations, and makes their interpretation authoritative and satisfying.

Last night's offering was the Trio in G minor by Smetana, the great Bohemian composer, the first time in Plainfield. Its contrasting moods so characteristic of the music of Bohemians were most efficiently portrayed.

This composition seems to embody all emotions from the most manic to the lightest mood of comedy, with glimpses as of a life, natural and varied but to us strange, though picturesque. The trio seems at each performance to add to its command and surety of execution. Mr. McIntyre has good reason to be proud of his men and their accomplishment.

The instrumental soloist of the evening, Hans Letz, in his group of violin pieces more firmly established himself in the good graces of the audience as a great artist. His technique is of the very best and his tone and attack in expression faultless. He was compelled to respond after his numbers to an encore, giving Dvorak's humoresque.

Sydney Biden, the vocal artist, assisting at this concert was a new voice for Plainfield, and won his way at the first group of songs to the greatest approval.

Schubert's songs, his first group, gave him a fine chance to show his perfect voice control and artistic interpretation. His rendition gave great pleasure and commanded enthusiastic and instantaneous applause.

His second group, with English worded songs, were charmingly given and evoked a rousing encore. He may rely upon a welcome upon return to Plainfield.

The concert closed with a dream fairy tale in waltz form by the trio, by Edward Schutt, the Viennese composer, a dainty and fascinating trifle, most delightfully performed.

The concert from first to last was a great success, and we can only repeat what we have so often before said, that these concerts are the most delightful that Plainfield enjoys. The next one on November 15 will be a song recital by Campanari, the great baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

BOROUGHITE WINS IN TANGLED HORSE SUIT.

An old fashioned horse dispute in replevin and full of complications, was tried and settled before Judge Isaac P. Runyon and a jury in the Somerset county district court at Somerville yesterday.

The suit was brought by Anthony Gebhardt, of New Brunswick, against Stonewall Jackson, of this borough. Both sides had large squads of witnesses on hand who testified. Despite the big volume of testimony the jury decided in favor of Jackson. The latter was represented by Walter L. Hetfield and Gebhardt by Howard A. Reynolds, of New Brunswick.

Smashed Window—40 Days.

Joseph McCluskey, a hole, was sentenced to forty days in the county jail by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning for throwing a stone through the window of Samuel Millinkoff's shop on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon. McCluskey when asked why he did it said he did it just to make trouble for Millinkoff, and to have some fun. He will have to enjoy himself in another way for the next few weeks.

BIDS ARE OPENED FOR SCHOOL BUILDING WORK

At an adjourned meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education, held last night in the board rooms, bids were opened for the new school building on Dunellen avenue. Separate bids were called for for heating and lighting, electric wiring, plumbing and painting. In the last mentioned item only one bid was received, that of C. W. Mundy. The only other local bidder for any part of the work was the A. B. Laing Co., which was for the electric wiring, etc.

For the building itself, which included the carpenter work, the highest was the Wells-Marvin Co., $59,714, and the lowest the Ross-Busch Co., $39,890. The other bids ranged between $44,000 and $56,000, none of which was from a local concern.

Heating and lighting bids were as follows: D. J. Galbraith, $5,672; P. H. Zimmerman Co., $5,447; Stehlin-Miller Co., $5,200, and John H. Cooney, $4,728, Cooney being the lowest.

Electric wiring, etc., Stehlin-Miller Co., $1,150; Whitall Electric Co., $540, and A. B. Laing Co., $634.68. There was a wide difference between the highest and lowest on the bids for plumbing. George Dillon, Inc., submitting the top figure of $3,414, and the P. H. Zimmerman Co., $1,960. The only other bidder for this work was D. J. Galbraith, whose figure was $2,035. Mr. Mundy's bid for painting the building was $850.

None of the contracts was awarded all being referred to the building committee.

CANDIDATES GREETED BY CROWD OF VOTERS

Another enthusiastic meeting was held by the Union county Republicans last night when Kenilworth heard the issues of the campaign discussed. Following a torch light procession through the borough's streets, the band led the way to the town hall, which was crowded when the meeting was called to order.

Among the speakers were Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford; Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield; Frank H. Smith, of this city, and James C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, all candidates for county offices. Assistant Prosecutor W. L. Hetfield, Jr., of this city, and A. M. Gray, of Texas, also spoke.

Tonight there will be a mass-meeting at Berkeley Heights, under the auspices of the county committee. The speakers will include Ernest R. Ackerman and Frank S. Smith, of this city; James C. Calvert and Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth, and Mr. Thompson, of Westfield.

MRS. SUSAN M. SMALLEY DIED EARLY THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Susan M. Smalley, wife of the late George C. Smalley, died this morning at Truell Court in her eighty-sixth year. Mrs. Smalley had lived in this city for upward of fifty years, occupying for forty years the old Smalley homestead on Somerset place. After her husband's death Mrs. Smalley traveled a good deal finally returning to Plainfield, where she has remained ever since.

Mrs. Smalley leaves two grandchildren, Bradford H. Smalley and Miss Edith H. Smalley, of this city. She was for a long time active in the affairs of Grace P. E. church, but of late years has been somewhat of an invalid. Her maiden name was Miss Susan Bartlett and she was born in Brooklyn. The funeral will be private.

Will Report on Sewage Matter.

The November meeting of the Common Council will be held Monday night. At that time there will be a report from the committee on public affairs regarding the sanitary sewage proposition, in which it will be recommended that the city shall take care of its own sewage and not enter into an agreement with adjoining municipalities, as proposed. There may also be a report on the proposed police pension matter. The plan now is to secure legislation that will result in a law that will meet local needs.

Guiseppe Valicenti.

Guiseppe Valicenti, aged sixty-four, died at his home near South Plainfield yesterday afternoon. The funeral service will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in the church of the Sacred Heart at that place. Interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

Plainfield vs. Kearney.

CHRISTIAN MANHOOD THE HOPE OF THE COUNTRY SAY MEN WHO HAVE SUCCEEDED IN LIFE'S WORK

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, Louis V. F. Randolph, Alexander Gilbert and Charles W. Mc Cutchen Voice Great Sentiments at a Men's Club Banquet.

Christian manhood as the solution to the great political problems of the present day and a safeguard for the future, was the general topic of discussion at the annual banquet of the Men's club of the First Baptist church held in the banquet hall of the Park club last night. Speeches by prominent men in church, social, financial and commercial life made clear the obligations of the young man of today—the country's hope as they were termed by the speakers. No better array of forensic talent has ever graced the functions of the club and were the precepts and teachings followed out to the letter the United States of America would, in a decade, have a class of citizens to be proud of.

Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, of New York city was the principal speaker. His topic: "Manhood as a National Asset," brought the members and their guests to their feet in long continued applause. In part it was as follows:

"I like anything which has to do with manhood. I must say that I don't understand woman, perhaps never shall, but I do understand men. The strength of a nation lies in the quality of its manhood. I believe it is better to be an American man, than to belong to any other nation. Could we blend all the good from the nationalities which throng to our shores and eliminate all the poor qualities, in the course of one hundred years the manhood of this country would be far in advance of that of any country in the world.

"Roosevelt referred to the farmer as the 'boss' of this country, but that day is past, or is passing away very rapidly. There is a fundamental change taking place in this country of ours. The character of our country districts is changing and, although France, England and Germany have cities purely national we have no distinctively American city. Politics are so shaping themselves that this nation, within a hundred years will be the greatest nation of the earth.

"The great danger for our country lies in the transposition of the centres of influence from the country districts to the great cities. As I have said, we have no distinctly American city. They are composed of the people of all races and in their cosmopolitan character they may change the destiny of the nation and the man. We have not produced the ideal Omerican and as conditions are shaping themselves, it seems, that we never will. But while much is said against the life in the great cities, there is much to be said in favor of their peoples. There are thousands, yes, hundreds of thousands of great good men in New York; men who infuse religion into their daily business, social and political life.

"Character is determined by our spiritual relationship with God, and a narrow, preverted, frivolous man amounts to nothing in the world's progress. The man of character, the man of religious convictions, the man whose soul can feel for his brother and lift him up, is the man who will make the nation rejoice that he is a part of it. If his highest relationship reaches out to the heights of the Eternal he is the man in every fibre of his being.

"To the young men I would say, begin early in your youth to get a proper conception of religion, of a religion which will stand by you in every aspect and period of your lives. The question of church has been settled for all time. It is not the denomination you adopt, but the goal you are to reach which should animate every motive. It is the power of business anxiety ever thrust on the consciences of men that pushes them away from the church. Every man however prosperous has his own secret sorrow and sin. But he has found the central Power and spiritual force which has changed the attitude of man and he who does the right thing accepts it without question as the solution to all the difficulties of life.

"The church is the conscience of the world. Put spiritual things first. Then your country will have an assett of the first magnitude and value Give your soul a chance."

Charles W. McCutchen was the toastmaster of the evening and he introduced the several speakers of the evening with clever witticism which is proverbial of his speech on such occasions. His introductory remarks were exceedingly pertinent and caused frequent bursts of laughter on the part of the assembled guests. Beside Dr. Eaton, the chief speaker, others who addressed the gathering were Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church; L. V. F. Randolph, Alexander Gilbert, S. St. John McCutchen, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Benjamin J. Phelps.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss was the second speaker and was presented as "Lieut. John A. Chambliss, commander of the army." He said that he never felt less like talking, it seemed almost like a sacrilege to break in on the flood of emotion which he felt sure pervaded the hearts of all from the remarks of Dr. Eaton.

The chief thought of Dr Chambliss' remarks was the total indifference of people to their duty, people who are influenced by surrounding circumstances and cannot be depended upon. There is nothing certain about them. They are first hot, then cold. The speaker said that the great trouble to be overcome by the church and the community is for the people to get away from the fact of being governed by their feelings. When strong hands are wanted, one looks for men of strength of character. We should all put away feeling as the compelling force and do the thing that we know we ought to do and be governed by principles.

In introducing the next speaker, L. V. F. Randolph, the toastmaster, remarked that he had been informed that Mr. and Mrs. Randolph are the only persons now living who attended their wedding. He was glad that Mr. Randolph had given to all his splendid book of poems, "Survivals," before leaving.

Mr. Randolph's subject was "Our Religion as a Vital Force; Its Minimum and Its Maximum." He spoke as follows:

"Don Quixote's spear might have rusted into ruin, and Rosinante might have lost the use of her powerful and graceful limbs, if it had been impossible to supply a windmill against which a title could be taken. So, some of our bellicose brethren might sink into "Innocuous desuetude" if they were not occasionally furnished with a defiant manifesto from President Eliot, or some other enterprising inconoclast. It is such a satisfaction to ride breezily into the arena, with spear gallantly poised, ready to unhorse one's opponent. For my own part I am a bit grateful to Dr. Eliot for leaving so large a portion of our dear old religion unmangled. I may not fully understand, and for that reason may not wish to antagonize Dr. Eliot's rather elaborate prediction that the coming religion "builds on the actual experience of men and women and of human society as a whole," and that it will be "in harmony with the great secular movements—democracy, individualism, social idealism, and zeal for education, the spirit of research, the modern tendency to welcome the new, the fresh powers of preventive medicine, and the recent advances in business and industrial ethics." Whatever of patent or of occult significance there may be in all this, it does not terrify me, and I am not conscious of a fierce desire to oppose it. And it seems most considerate and gracious of the learned College President to concede and to prophesy that his "new religion" will be "in essential agreement with the direct personal teachings of Jesus as they are reported in the Gospels." With this much of comfort we can contemplate the future without despair. It was, of course, an Irishman who became so pessimistic over his country's condition as to exclaim: "Her cup of misery has been overflowing, and is not yet full!" You and I have perhaps been disconcerted in being told by some bold person (who held as part of his faith that there was no devil) that the Christian church and its faith were going to the devil as fast as possible. Many small grains of manna once made a passable breakfast for the desert-famished Israelites; and so, many crumbs of comfort nourish us when the attempt is made to rob us of all religious faith and satisfaction. Such an attempt indeed must always fail. Men may cobble the creeds if they must; but they cannot destroy the vital force of the tie which holds the trusting soul to its Heavenly Father.

The fact is (and this is a part of my brief message tonight) that, in a true sense—whether the Nation so wills it or not, ours is now a

CURES REMOVE DOUBT ABOUT ECZEMA CURE.

Read What Your Druggist Says About Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

Druggist L. W. Randolph submits the following to the readers of The Daily Press:

For several years we have announced, with our recommendation, that we had found a positive cure for eczema; a simple skin wash, oil of wintergreen compounded with other healing ingredients.

Yet we know there are people right in this town who have eczema, and still have never tried this remedy.

We have, therefore, arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer of a trial bottle at 25 cents instead of the $1.00 bottle as regularly sold.

We offer this trial bottle with our recommendation and assurance that just as soon as the patient washes his itching skin, this mild liquid will take the itch away instantly.

Millville, Oct 26.—Mrs. George Thompson, brooding over religion, became suddenly insane at her home here yesterday and attacked her husband with a carving knife, severely wounding him. He managed to secure the weapon and the woman was arrested.

A year ago the woman was sent to the insane asylum but was immediately discharged, the doctors saying there was nothing the matter with her. She has been brooding over religion.

May Indict Policemen.

Atlantic City, Oct. 26.—The indictment of Charles Appel and John Carroll, plain clothes policemen, it is said, will probably be the outcome of the grand jury's inquiry into the nearly fatal riot on South Carolina avenue on the night of September 14 last, if Attorney-General Wilson, who is to conduct the probe because the authorities of the State was under attack, succeeds in establishing the charge that the policemen led a mob which attacked County Detective Ferdinand David and a squad of State detectives. The case hinges upon the charge that Appel led the mob for a dozen blocks before the attack occurred, and that Carroll, who was in civilian attire, fired the first shot.

On the basketball schedule adopted by the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. five last week the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. is marked up for a game on Friday night, December 17.

The Dunellen A. C. will line up against the strong Acorn A. C., of Brooklyn, N. Y., on Saturday. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock on the Dunellen grounds.

Superior Stocks of the New Underwear

A complete line for Men, Women, Misses and Children can be selected from here.

We offer larger assortments than ever—all varities—the leading makes—and all good grades.

We emphasize the GOOD, because you are entitled to quality and on this important article of wear, regardless of the price you pay, and we sell GOOD knit underwear at all prices.

If the average store was as particular as we are to get sizes, textures, finish and shape of its underwear just right there would be no special reason for coming to us. But, we have a host of friends who know there is more comfort, better fit and more service in our underwear than in the ordinary kinds.

That's briefly our underwear story—but it's deserving of a more lengthy mention than that.

FIRST—You will find assembled here all the standard high grade brands of these knit goods you have been calling for year after year.

SECONDLY—We have larger stocks, which we obtained at lower prices than in any previous year.

THERE ARE MANY GOOD REASONS

why you should purchase your Corsets from this store.

FIRST—You have your choice of the standard makes like W. B., R. & G., Thompson's Glove Fitting, La Riene, Warner's Rustproof, Nemo, American Lady, C. B., Ferris Waists, De Bevoise Brassieres, the mention of whose names are a guarantee of their goodness.

SECOND—We carry all the newest models, the shapes well dressed women are demanding.

THIRD—Special care is given to fit. An ill-fitting corset, no matter how expensive, will absolutely fall short of all that a corset is purchased for.

To these very good reasons as to why your corsets should be bought here we have added one which will appeal irresistably to those who have a sense of the artistic.

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 26, with every Corset costing $1.00 or more, we will give a pretty little Souvenir, which will enchant you with its beauty---a bon bon dish, tray or vase, as you wish.

Come and see these dainty favors, view the new models in corsets, and see how well equipped we are to meet your needs.

GOLF.

The Baltusrol Golf Club has arranged to hold a one-day invitation tournament for women on Monday, November 1, when Miss Dorothy Campbell, the British and American champion, and the other members of her party will be present. When Miss Rhena Adair came over here several years ago she visited Baltusrol and succeeded in establishing a new women's record of 88. Many changes have taken place since then, more than one hundreds traps having been added and the course made considerably harder in consequence.

With Miss Campbell on hand and her far driving club mate, Miss Frances Teacher, to say nothing of Mrs. C. T. Stout, of Richmond County; Miss Julia R. Mix, of Englewood, the metropolitan title holder, and a score of others scarcely less prominent, the chances are that something out of the ordinary will be accomplished. On Friday of this week many of the same women will compete at Garden City, and a comparison of their scores over these two courses, admittedly the best in this part of the country, will be of more than passing interest.

According to foreign advices, the new interpretation of the "out of bounds" rule not only leads to a great deal of confusion, but also has the effect of occasionally giving rise to litigation. Recently the club at Dysart, in Fife, was sued by a dairyman in Kirkcaldy for £18 as damages done to his potato crop by players entering his fields in search of balls. In respect to this claim the club denies liability and pleads that the statements given in support of it are quite insufficient to bear out the damages.

To offset this claim on the part of the dairyman the golf club sues him for £20, as the half year's rent for the grazing on the course. The dairyman's reply to this is to prefer a claim for a similar amount owing to the golf club having cut the grass on the course so short as to make it practically useless as pasture for cows, the consequence being that he had to buy a large quantity of feeding stuff. On this head the club denied liability and asserted that the dairyman's claim was irrelevant. No decision has as yet been given.

TWO HURT ON RAILROAD.

Superintendent Jumps from Train, Breaking Leg.

Whitehouse, Oct. 26.—Peter Latourette, superintendent of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad, was severely injured near Pottsville Sunday, making the second accident in this vicinity within two days. While shifting cars the brakes on the one Mr. Latourette was on refused to work, and the car started down a grade at a great rate of speed. Fearing that it would come in contact with some cars that were at the bottom of the hill and that he would be thrown off in the collision he jumped when the car was going down grade.

Beside being severely cut and bruised, his collar-bone was broken and one of his legs badly injured.

William Dilley, of this place, conductor on the New Jersey and Pennsylvania Railroad, injured one of his feet Sunday night in an accident near Watnong. A car jumped the track, and as the trainmen were unable to get it on again the evening train from Morristown did not make its usual trip.

BETS $500 TO $50.

Jersey City Man Gives Big Odds on Wittpenn.

Jersey City, Oct. 26.—Samuel C. Smith, a well-known Newark avenue merchant, was in John Corcoran's cafe, Montgomery and Grove streets, yesterday when a political discussion arose.

"I think Wittpenn will be elected Mayor," said Smith.

"I think Fagan will win," said Peter Mulry, a young contractor.

As the discussion as to the merits of the two men progressed, Smith grew enthusiastic.

"I am so certain of Wittpenn's re-election," he declared, "that I will wager $500 to $50."

Mulry accepted the offer and the money is now in Corcoran's safe.

Adherents of Wittpenn who are looking for what they consider easy money are complaining about Smith's foolishness in offering so great odds. A few wagers of 3 to 1 and 4 to 1 have been made on the present Mayor.

DEVLIN MAKES SPEECH.

Urges Democrats to Work for Good of Party.

Martin Devlin, of Trenton, addressed the Sixth Ward Democratic Club at Elizabeth, last night, on State issues. He spoke on taxation and the tendency in the Republican party to centralize government and referred to what he called government by "guardianship." He urged the ward workers to nominate strong, clean candidates and work indefatigably for them. He was given a rousing welcome.

General D. F. Collins made an enthusiastic address, telling voters to vote early and urging them to be loyal to the cause of Democracy.

ELIZABETH TO PROTECT ITS PAVED STREETS.

Will Adopt Ordinance to Prevent Heavy Traffic on Asphalted Thoroughfares.

Elizabeth is without any traffic ordinance that would serve to regulate traffic on certain streets where there is asphalt paving or where schools are situated. This matter will soon be remedied. City Attorney James C. Connolly will draft an ordinance which will be worded so as to permit Council to close such thoroughfares to heavy traffic as it may deem necessary.

Residents in Park place and Court street, between Second and Third avenues, are particularly desirous of having these streets shut off to heavy trucking because of the damage done the pavements and the danger to children who attend St. Patrick's School, in Court street. The street committee has taken up the matter and will recommend to Council such steps as will result in lighter traffic along these roads.

Park street is not a through thoroughfare, connecting Court street with Broadway. It is not quite 500 feet in length, and use for heavy farting is not looked upon with favor by residents, who have already voiced their objections to the members of the street committee, Patrick J. McCurn, Augustus W. Schwartz and Edward M. Neafsey.

P. S. C. GETS CONTRACT.

Will Give Jersey City Gas Light for Another Year.

Jersey City, Oct. 26.—The Street and Water Board yesterday afternoon awarded contracts for gas and oil lighting of the streets. These have nothing to do with the electrical lighting. There was but one bidder for each of the gas and oil lighting contracts. The Public Service Gas Company was awarded the bid for gas lighting. The Carbon Light and Oil Company got the contract for lighting with oil.

The lighting of the street gas lamps will cost the city $26.50 per lamp per year. The company is to do its own reglazing and keep the lamps in repair. Thirty dollars per lamp is the price the city will pay the Carbon Light and Oil Company per lamp per year. The company is to do its own reglazing and keep the lamps in repair. There are 498 street gas lamps and 380 street oil lamps. The total cost for the gas and oil street lighting will be $24,597.

Miss Jennie Moore, of Trenton, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., October 26, 1909.

MR. PIERCE'S COURSE.

Solely because Carlton B. Pierce, a Republican nominee for re-election to the Assembly, has had an honest difference of opinion, an unpleasant and unfortunate disagreement with a legislative agent of a high-minded and valuable body of men, associated together as the Union County Medical Society, few in number but strong in influence, physicians about the county, as an organization, it is claimed, are about to use their efforts and votes to deprive the State of one of its most conscientious, fearless and able legislators in the person of Mr. Pierce himself.

There is absolutely no suspicion as to Mr. Pierce's integrity nor as to his ability to well and truly perform the duties of the office for which he is nominated. His whole public record during the two terms he has served the people of Union county so splendidly at Trenton has been scrutinized by the most exacting constituent. Not one word of protest as to his course has been uttered against him by those who have the best interests of their State at heart. The Democrats, who are their Republican brethren, so far as their Republican brthren, so far as we have noticed, have made no attempt to attack Mr. Pierce's record, however much they honestly desire to send to Trenton one of their own number in his stead.

What is the sum and substance of Mr. Pierce's offending, then? Summed up, the indictments are merely these:

1. He failed to get along with the legislative agent of the physicians, who may or may not have been a skilled diplomat.

2. He voted with an overwhelming majority against the bill which the physicians attempted to force upon the osteopaths.

3. He tried to get out of the tangle some kind of a measure upon which all could agree.

As The Elizabeth Journal well says:

"The fact that there was a misunderstanding between the legislative agent and the legislator is a matter of no great consequence to the physicians in general or to the Republican party in this county. Such differences are continually appearing at Trenton. That Mr Pierce voted with so many others against a measure put forward not by those seeking the legislation originally—the practitioners in osteopathy—but by their enemies, and that he attempted to get all interested into an intelligent and satisfactory agreement, certainly ought not to offend a single intelligent voter anywhere. Such an effort was both just and practical. It is not believed that even a single doctor in Union county will oppose Mr. Pierce on that ground. To attempt to drag in their Republican friends on so slight a pretext would certainly be a pity."

"That Mr. Pierce has now refused to stiffe the reported opposition to his re-election by selling himself out with a promise to do as he is told is to his credit. Republicans in Union county do not want a representative who would do that. In fact, his insistence that he is open-minded on the questions at issue between the osteopaths and the doctors, and that he seeks fair play for all, ought to be sufficient for all concerned. Such a statement shows that Mr. Pierce has a proper conception of his duties as a member of the Legislature from this county."

We believe, we know, that the physicians of Union county, and there is no better type of citizenship in the State, will not allow this single, unfortunate incident to be the means of depriving Union county and the State of New Jersey of such a worthy servant. In another column we publish today an interview with State Senator Ackerman as to the sterling qualities of Mr. Pierce. The physicians of Plainfield in common with their brethren throughout the county, we feel sure, will attach much importance to the words of our Senator, and when they cast their votes next Tuesday the name of Carlton B. Pierce will not be "scratched" from their ticket.

HERE AND THERE.

No automobile nor other conveyance, whether propelled by the ill-smelling gas, or drawn by the finest of the equine race, can compare with the beautiful new wagon recently purchased by Robert Newton Crane, a local lawyer. It is a dainty affair with accommodations for two only and is so partitioned that the occupants cannot engage in fistic arguments, nor pull each other's hair. To be truthful the vehicle is a perambulator for twins and soon will be seen giving the counsellor's young hopefuls airings in the immediate neighborhood of their home.

ACKERMAN PRAISES CARLTON B. PIERCE

Discussing the candidacy of Carlton B. Pierce for re-election to the Assembly, State Senator Ackerman today expressed himself as a warm admirer of the Crandford man.

"The renomination of the Hon. Carlton B. Pierce by the Republican voters of Union county for the important position of Assemblyman," said Mr. Ackerman, "should be ratified by a large majority of the people at the polls next Tuesday. Mr. Pierce has won distinction as a legislator, which reflects great credit on the people of Union county. He is an honest and fearless man, who will stand for the right against great opposition and under any and all circumstances. Mr. Pierce is a loyal, generous and typical American.

"Mr. Pierce values and appreciates our American institutions and stands second to none in a desire to adequately protect them for the benefit of future generations," continued the senator. "Mr. Pierce's work in the Legislature has been careful, based on the constant thought of building, so that the prosperity of the State may be continued for the good of its citizens. The destinies of the people are always safe when we can get men of his calibre, ability, honesty and patriotism to serve the people in the Legislature.

The vaudeville show at Proctor's theatre today is just filled with bright, fresh comedy, plenty of good singing and dancing, monologue work while the famous Fords in handcuff work is the mystery of all mysteries. It is the aim of Proctor & Sanderson to give the biggest value for the minimum price of admission and they are succeeding.

CHRISTIAN MANHOOD TALKS

Christian Nation, living the Christian life "in agreement with the direct personal teachings of Jesus," (to quote from Dr. Eliot as to what is to be), and there is a further fact, and a larger one, that this current, and actual, and pervasive, life is scarcely a shadow of what it should be; and if I might now dwell on any thought, it would be desirable to dwell upon the magnificent possibility rather than upon the meagre situation as it exists. But let us be thankful even for the existing situation. An ordinarily well-behaved skeptic said to me once: "I have done with Christianity." I replied: "You can't be. You can no more escape from Christianity than you can from your own skin. Every breath you have ever drawn has been in a Christian atmosphere. Every thought that enters your mind is at least qualified with the inspiration of the mind of Christ."

We hear much in these days of a degrading commercialism, and of a wide-spread lack of honesty and principle; and surely our ethical and spiritual standards, at the best, are not too high; and there are, everywhere and constantly, many infractions of the commandments against theft and covetousness. But the adherence to honest habits and behavior is more universal and more marvelous than are the wicked departures. For more than half a century I have been associated with hosts of men holding places of trust—many of them in large corporations, and some of them very largely trusted; others less. The number of the unfaithful among them could well-nigh be counted on my fingers. The faithful were a multitude. They went regularly to their occupations, were sober, careful, conscientious, efficient. They had the holy habit of uprightness. What influence above all others kept them worthy and enabled them to conform so considerably to the principles we admire and commend? It was the living influence of Christ's religion which held and controlled them by many a precept and moral safeguard in their childhood and manhood, in their homes and their Sabbath hours, in their education and opportunities and social environment. It is this living influence of the example and words and exalted ideals of the Savior of mankind that has, whether we realize it or not, helped to keep our national life as respectable and worthy as it is.

But when we have said this, we know that much is left to be desired. This living, Christly influence is susceptible of an immeasurable development and increase. For its extension, religious societies of many sorts are wisely formed, so that its scope may be thought out and enlarged, and so that all godliness may grow. But the power of godliness is chiefly personal. It diffused chiefly from a Personal Christ; and in our day it must be diffused from each of His followers. The world is taking very largely its tone of character and behavior from living Christians. If they live unworthily, then woe to the nation and to mankind! St. John appealed to young men as having capacities of strength (John's first epistle 2:14). If Christian men are not living up to their power and privilege, how shall this power of godliness flourish and make progress? Sometimes Christian men must fight—doing batfle for what is pure and useful and true, and of good report. Sometimes they must simply illustrate the character of a Christian gentleman—one who abates something of himself and his rights, and who, whilst ordering his life in dignity and good cheer, is habitually of gentle and considerate demeanor towards others. Sometimes Christian men must work—work to the point of weariness—without hope or desire of compensation; and sometimes they must give—give until it hurts. And all the time they must illustrate and represent the Master till He comes, or until they are called hence.

Some one has lately intimated, rather than said, in a religious editorial that in the Christianity of our time there is too much of the habit of the minimum. We are greatly given to be content with a minimum of truth, and of experience, and of service. The idea does seem to gain acceptance that we should have "a working supply" of the Christian religion, but need not be too stressful about a large supply. This notion is unworthy of our faith and high calling. Our calling is to the fullest and greatest, as it is to the noblest and purest. It is said that a New York Theatre is seeking, in a current play, to produce an example of the regenerative power of a personified saintliness. I have not seen the play, but I have seen a Christian saint—and more than one—moving betimes in a small sphere, or in a larger one; and I know that such a lofty life and lovely character, moving among either the lowly or the favored of earth, is not only the strongest and most effective argument for the verity and value of the Christian Religion, but it is also the efficient power of that religion itself, stirring the hearts of men to spiritual ideals and splendid endeavor. This saintly character may be portrayed and lived by each of us. Beyond this there is no privilege or gift to be coveted or prayed for.

And so we come back to our plain postulates of the force and value of a spiritual religion. The faith-cobblers may not destroy it. It blesses the nation even when the nation is not aware of its benediction or its benefits. It fills the soul of him who welcomes it with a celestial effulgence, and with an angelic sweetness and satisfaction; and it doth not appear what, in the final event, it can and shall do, for it is the veritable Divine Immanence, the life of God communicated to man and forever abiding with them.

That you cannot get something for nothing was the gist of Alexander Gilbert's brief talk. After explaining that the committee had limited him to a five minute speech, he caused a laugh by declaring that the Constitution gives all the right of free speech and at that unabridged. "It gives them everything," he continued, "except a living. That men must work for. You cannot get something for nothing. The world is full of men who are trying to get something for nothing, but they are simply marking time, and in the end they find themselves on the road to the poorhouse just the same." In concluding his remarks Mr. Gilbert said that the difference between a Baptist church and Board of Trade banquet is that everything is dry but the humor, and he thought this wise for one would miss many a bad headache and be better able to place the true value on men as an asset.

The toastmaster then presented his brother, S. St. John McCutchen, who, in a humorous vein entertained the gathering with a few remarks, in which he poked fun at the toastmaster in his usual clever way.

As president of the club, Benjamin J. Phelps was introduced at this time. The speaker felt sure that leading business men of today had received their inspiration from old characters, for it was known that Joseph effected a corner on the corn market and Noah floated all kinds of stocks successfully. In closing and urging the club members to do more for the organization and church this year, Mr. Phelps said that there was one thought which he believed to be the basis of religion for the future and that is "The church must put forth greater effort to present the true Jesus to the world."

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan was the last speaker. He made a few pertinent remarks in which he sought to stir the club to greater activity for the coming year, which could only be done by each man putting his shoulder to the wheel. Recalling the words of Mr. Gilbert he said that the club cannot get something for nothing and it must get down to hard work to accomplish much.

While the banquet was in progress, an orchestra, under the leadership of Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, rendered a program of popular selections, which helped to keep everyone in good spirits. The affair was concluded with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

These were present:

Charles W. McCutchen, B. J. Phelps, Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, Captain W. D. Parlin, of Cleveland, O.; Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Alexander Gilbert, L. V. F. Randolph, George A. Chapman, St. St. John McCutchen, Arthur M. Harris, E. Frank Vail, Arthur Vail, Joseph T. Vail, E. L. Bonny, Rev. Dr. J. C. Buchanan, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, B. J. Shreve, William H. Western, Henry W. Herrman, John G. MacLaughlin, John Steiner, David M. Runyon, George White, Allen Vanderhoef, William L. Smalley, Jr., Morris C. Van Arsdale, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Thomas S. Armstrong, Fred. Probasco, Frank E. Benjamin, Judson E. Benjamin, Oliver B. Leonard, F. E. Quipp, Frank E. Bach, Gifford Cooley, John D. Townsend, Fred Coriell and Walter C. Dobbins.

The officers of the club are as follows: President, Benjamin J. Phelps; vice-president, Arthur D. Stout; secretary, J. Henry Crane; treasurer, Robert W. Barnes.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The local mayorality campaign between William A. Sandford, the Republican nominee, and Charles Starker, the Democratic standard bearer, is waxing warmer every day. The present indications point to a lot of slashing on both sides at the polls. Councilman Starker is putting up a hard fight and is far more active than Mr. Sandford. Politicians who are always on the inside on "deals," declare that it will be the closest election for mayor in years It is hinted that Mayor Harry Swackhammer is working quietly in the interests of Sandford. This is probably so as it is the general understanding that he is seeking revenge, owing to his failure of landing a renomination. There is also a hot contest going on for tax collector between the present incumbent, Isaac Stites, and Herbert Wyckoff, son of former Mayor Wyckoff, who is the Democratic candidate. Both candidates have a large following and it is hardly possible that politics will cut a very big figure in the result.

Chief Thornton, of the New Market fire company, announces that the township fire-fighters will hold a dance in Friendship hall on Thanksgiving Eve.

The members of the Defender Fire Company are highly elated over the success which attended the three-day bazar last week. Nearly $150 was realized.

Postmaster H. C. Garretson and several of the local G. O. P. leaders will take part in the Republican rally at Dayton tonight.

Fred Vail is making preparations to start on a two weeks' hunting expedition to Virginia.

MOTHER PLEADS FOR HER WAYWARD SON.

Mrs. Richter, the mother of William Richter, the self-confessed thief, told a story to City Judge Runyon this morning that would lead one to believe that her son was a martyr, and is shielding the real criminal in the revolver stealing case. Mrs. Richater said that her boy had confessed to the theft of the gun in order to protect one of his friends.

But William's confession, twice repeated, is believed to be true and he will have to answer for it in a higher tribunal. He is held to await the action of the grand jury.

Men's Association to Meet.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Men's Association of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held in the parish house on Clinton avenue, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. After the business session the usual social evening will be enjoyed. A cordial invitation is extended to men of the community to become acquainted with the members of the association and its objects and to enjoy its privileges.

Charles A. Westerfield.

The deceased was sixty-one years of age and had been a resident of this city for a long period of years. He was a painter, but of recent years he did not work at his trade owing to failing health. Surviving him are a wife, brother and sister.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Bishop O'Connor Sunday confirmed 125 children at St. Paul of the Cross church, Jersey City.

Miss Sarah Laubach, who died last week at Vineland, left $500 to the Sacred Heart Catholic church there.

Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, former moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, preached Sunday evening in the First Church, Millville.

Falling from a tree Sunday, Winfield W. Scott, ten years old, of 500 Branch street, Camden, severely injured his right leg. He was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

In St. Francis' Hospital, Jersey City, is Lewis Knowo, who, it is thought, has a fractured skull, due to a fall at the American Refining Company's building Sunday. Mr. Knowo's home is at 76 Essex street.

Making a short cut across the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in Trenton, Saturday night, William Seaman, sixty-nine years old, was ground to pieces under a Pittsburg flier. He was a Civil War veteran.

Trenton police are trying to locate James P. Foy, who disappeared from his home in that city more than a week ago. Foy was employed on the Pennsylvania railroad and was the only support of his widowed mother.

A fall from a second-story window Sunday resulted seriously to Mary Krause, of 120 St. Paul's avenue, Jersey City. The accident happened while she was taking clothes from a line. The victim is in Christ Hospital.

Rev. John May, pastor of the Quakertown M. E. church, fell about twenty feet through the ceiling of the auditorium of the church. A pew upon which he landed broke, relieving the fall, and he escaped serious injury.

The Gloucester County Court will begin the trial of criminal cases this week. One of the first will be that of Jared D. Wolfe, of Flemington, accused of misrepresentation in purchasing State Mutual stock from George Urion, of Bridgeport.

In Jersey City Sunday Miss Margaret Slavin, twenty-four years old, of 378 Ocean avenue, while crossing the street in front of her home was knocked down by a northbound Bayonne trolley car. She was badly cut and bruised about the head and face, and was taken to Christ Hospital.

Threatened with hydrophobia as a result of being bitten by a pet dog, Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Pyle and their son Cyrus, eight years old, of 1313 Park boulevard, Camden, have been undergoing special treatment at the Homeopathic Hospital, Philadelphia, for the last two weeks. It was stated Sunday that they had been declared out of danger.

Marie, the five-year-old daughter of Thomas A. Fisher, police telegraph lineman, sustained a serious injury as the result of a simple accident in her home at 24 Temple street, Paterson, Sunday afternoon. The child was running across the floor toward her father, when she tripped and fell heavily on the side of her face. She was carried in an unconscious condition to bed. A physician found she had concussion of the brain.

BURLINGTON FARMERS PLAN A COMBINATION.

Mt. Holly, Oct. 26.—The farmers of this section of the State have taken preliminary steps toward the formation of a combination against the middlemen with the ultimate object of removing them from the field.

A farmers' exchange will be formed which will exercise the functions heretofore performed by the commission men, thus getting the products of the farms to the market at a much reduced cost to the original producer.

The exchange will also purchase seeds and dispose of them at cost to the farmers belonging to the combination. The success of similar movements at Freehold, in this State, and in Virginia has appealed to the Mt. Holly men, who are subscribing enthusiastically to the stock.

OFFICIALS DISAGREE.

School Age Causes Discussion Between Two Instructors.

Superintendent of Schools Richard E. Clement, of Elizabeth, disagrees with Supervisor Balcom, of the Newark evening schools, who contends that the law requiring boys and girls not 17 years of age and who have not yet completed the grammar course, to attend day school, helps to lessen the attendance at the evening schools.

This law, Mr. Clement says, has little or no effect because it was amended by the last Legislature, leaving it to the discretion of Board of Educations to grant permits to children under 17 to go to work.

TAUNT CAUSES STRIKE.

Laborers Quit Work When Jeered About Low Wages.

Because they were taunted by others for working for what they now think to be small wages, a gang of Polish laborers went on strike Saturday at Central Railroad wharf, Elizabeth.

Another gang has refused to take their places and trouble may ensue should an attemut be made to replace them. They insist that their wages are too low.

NEW BRUNSWICK POLICE FIGHT WITH STRIKERS.

Women and girls were roughly handled at the cigar factory strike of Hirschhorn, Mack & Co., at New Brunswick yesterday morning. Five hundred Hungarian girls struck for higher wages Saturday and tried to prevent other girls from going to work yesterday.

The police were called and Chief of Police Michael O'Connell and Policemen Gleason and Vliet were sent to handle the strikers.

In the efforts several women were knocked down and the police to save themselves had to draw their clubs and open a way through the crowd.

Miss Grace Wallace, a forelady, was closed about by 100 girls when she tried to work her way through a crowd of employes to the factory. The police tried to make a road for her, but failed, and she retreated.

The American girls willing to work were kept out by the Hungarians and many had their clothes torn in the tussle. Addie Wallace, Lizzie Merittt and Elizabeth Dougherty were attacked and had to retreat. Ida Hunt, Katie French, Anna Stremple and Mary Garrison were also roughly handled.

Chief O'Connell, in using an umbrella to protect one of the girls, accidentally jabbed a woman in the eye, seriously wounding her. By using their clubs freely the police managed to drive the girls back into the street.

LAZARUS AGAIN CHANGES.

G. O. P. Candidate Last Year, Raises Democratic Banner.

Bayonne, Oct. 26.—Under the auspices of the Johnson Club, formed by former Recorder Hyman Lazarus, who last year was the Republican nominee for recorder, but is this year back with the Democratic party, a Democratic banner was raised last evening at Avenue F and Twenty-second street.

The speakers included John J. Cain, candidate for Mayor; George P. Oliver, candidate for president of the Council; Former Assemblyman Peter Stillwell, James H. Dougherty, James F. Crosby, candidate for county clerk, and John J. McMahon, candidate for county register.

Paterson Man's Windfall.

Paterson, Oct. 26.—From his brother, who recently sold a copper mine on the island of Jamaica, Dr. E. B. Morgan, of this place, will soon come into possession of $1,000,000. The gift will be from John Morgan, a noted eye specialist, of Boston. The mine sold for $7,500,000. Dr. John Morgan secured his interest in the Jamaica copper mines years ago, when no thought was entertained that the mines would turn out the richest in the world. Their development into their present great value is only of recent date.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

Hoping for much in others is helping them to it.

Every shadow in life is evidence of a sun somewhere.

Lifting little loads helps a lot more than describing big ones.

Good intentions in sowing tares will not make them come up as wheat.

The only way to move a mountain tomorrow is to take a pickax today.

The more man you put into religion the more religion you will give men.

Big words in the meeting do not make up for short weight in the market.

The home is never brightened by the roseate hues on the end of a nose.

The straightest road to heaven is that one on which you can do most good.

The only powers that know enjoyment are those that find employment.

Your faith is not measured by your appreciation of the faults of others.

He who does not preach with what he is will never persuade with that he says.

The dead saints are the only good ones according to the canon of negative virtues.

Too many think they are saints because it makes them sad to see a child happy.

No man ever knows anything about heaven except as he tries to make some one happy.—Chicago Tribune.

SUMMER'S CYNIC.

When an old girl needs spectacles, how she fights the idea!

Men always admire a woman who wears white underskirts.

Every man must do a certain amount of whining to some woman.

A good many of your tragedies probably look like comedies to others.

If you want to please your friend, get through talking so he can begin.

The Missourians say hat when a woman begins to make money she never lets up.

There are some houses that always look as if the front hadn't been opened since the last funeral.

Don't make a nasty muss by blowing your brains out, if you want to kill yourself, drink lots of ice water.

We hope that when the girls go to heaven their gowns will not gap in the back, and be a source of continual worry.

If a couple remain engaged long enough, the people are as surprised when they get married, as if they had not "gone together" at all.—Atchison Kas., Globe.

FLASHLIGHTS.

Paying a debt the moment it is due beats the best mercantile agency.

The sting of a bee is only one-thirty-second of an inch long; it is only your imagination that makes it seems as long as a hoe handle.

A tall man applied for a position as overseer. "What do you know," he was asked. "I don't know anything," he replied, "but I'm tall enough to look over all the men you've got."

A boy told one of his playmates he was getting ready to run away to sea. Several months afterward the boys met and the playmate wanted to know if the other had been at sea. "Yes," was the reply; "I was found out, and went on a whaling expedition with father."

Was there ever a better example of the witty and concise form of expression than the answer of the grim man who, when asked about the character of a neighbor, sententiously replied: "Mister, I don't know much about him, but my impression is, he'd make a first-class stranger."

FLASHES OF PHILOSOPHY.

Blood money leaves stains upon the careers of its takers.

The girl with the dreamy eyes isn't apt to put men to sleep.

Thoughts of what might have been are an injustice to to-day.

Every one has a sweet tooth, for we all like taffy now and then.

A woman is as out of place at a ball game as a man is at a tea.

It isn't so much an invitation to have a drink that does the harm, but "have another."

Don't decide to do a thing some day, for that period will never appear on the calendar.

IT isn't any one thing, but all things combined that makes for

Reconsidered

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore

The girl hurried swiftly along the pavement. Her full red lips were crimped into a jacqueminot rosebud, while a tiny frown drew her black brows together in a way that boded no leniency toward the offender.

At the end of the square she paused and glanced anxiously up and down the intersecting avenue. With some impatience she drew forth her watch; but before she had had time to restore the jeweled timepiece to her belt, a man rounded the next corner, and came directly toward her. He, too, was walking swiftly, and with head bent. Within a few feet of the girl, he glanced up intuitively, a look of surprise chasing the latent gloom from his face.

"Zarelda!"

"I was obliged to see you," she remarked, icily, "to—to return—this. I wanted to be certain it was delivered safely." She drew from her bag a small square package and held it out to him.

Hayburn whitened. The ring! Not the one he had hoped to give her before long, but the little turquoise thing he had slipped upon her finger in the dear old boy-and-girl days, and which had been waiting there ever since to be replaced by another.

"I—I'm afraid I don't quite understand, Zarelda," he said, hoarsely. "Has anything—gone wrong?"

"I have accepted Harry Borden," was all she said.

"At least I should think—don't you think—that you owe me some sort of explanation?" His eyes deepened.

The girl colored with her ready flush. "I have written," she faltered, "you will find the letter awaiting you at home. I omitted to—to inclose the ring, and that is why—why I came here."

The girl hesitated for an indeterminate second; the blood rose darkly to her temples. Then, with a little in-catch of her breath, she demanded: "Why did you take Lily Lester to the Carson's cotillon when we—"

"Why did you go there with Harry Borden?"

"I understood—from him—that you had asked her—"

"I asked her only when I learned that you and he were going together."

For an instant they stood there with locked eyes.

"It was all a horrible mistake, Zadie," Hayburn said at last, "for which our life's happiness will have to pay the penalty."

To his astonishment the girl turned from him abruptly. "You were ridiculously attentive to her, anyway," she hurled at him angrily over her shoulder. "Good-by." She walked rapidly down the avenue, and left him standing there. He waited a moment, and then crossed the street mechanically and caught a car for home.

Sure enough, the girl's letter was waiting for him there. He tore it open avidly and read:

"Teddy: under separate cover I am returning to you your ring. As I am soon to become Harry Borden's wife I do not feel as though I ought to keep it, even if it was but a simple token of friendship between us. . . ."

Hayburn flung down the letter sharply. Token of friendship! It cut like a knife. And what was worse, she had loved him, and in a fit of pique had gone deliberately to work and betrothed herself to that cad! He had seven-eighths of a mind to run that individual down and tell him the truth—and if he still refused to give up the girl, to choke him to death on the spot. But the rational eighth probably saved his life, for he proceeded to calm himself immediately, and read the remainder of the letter: ". . . You must not attempt to see me, for we shall in all likelihood be married to-morrow and sail at once for Norway. . . ."

Again he threw down the crumpled sheet, and straightway called a cab and drove to her home.

She did not keep him waiting.

"As you are leaving so soon," Hayburn began when she came into the room, "I shall try not to detain you longer than is necessary. But there was something I was obliged to return to you, and that is why I am here," he hurried on, mockingly, but courteous to a degree. "This little photograph you gave me several years ago."

A little involuntary exclamation escaped the girl's white lips. She half swayed as she put out one slender hand to the back of a chair for support. But in a moment she had collected herself and held out her hand matter-of-factly for the picture.

"Good-by, Zadie," he said, and held out his hand.

She raised her eyes with a look that was in every way cool and undisturbed. "Good-by," she answered steadily.

He crushed her fingers and turned toward the door. Half way there the sound of his name called in a sweet, quavering treble, caused Hayburn to turn with a swift heart-beat.

"Oh, Zadie!" he cried; "why did you?" He looked at her with heart-broken eyes.

"I—I didn't," she whispered with her face in her hands.

"But Borden—you told him—"

"I—wrote him," she interposed, tremulously.

"Worse! Now he's got it in black and white."

"Not—not yet!"

"What do you mean?" he demanded fiercely; his unconscious hands gripped her delicate wrists till she winced.

"I—I might tear it up," she sobbed, against his coat.

Tar and Stone on Brick Pave.

As a portection to automobiles, preventing them from slipping on the brick pavement while turning the busy corner of Park avenue and Front street, especially in wet weather, Street Commissioner Gavett is having a thin coating of tar and fine stone spread at that corner today. The scheme was first tried as an experiment at Third street and Watchung avenue, and worked so well that it was decided to try it at Park avenue and Front street.

Injured Lad Recovering.

Henry Gloriel, the young lad from Carlisle, Pa., who was injured falling off a train at South Plainfield, Saturday night, is improving at the hospital and will probably be able to return home soon.

COMMISSIONER CADMAN COMING TO PLAINFIELD

Commissioner Elijah Cadman, direct from the international headquarters of the Salvation Army, London, England, who is conducting a special series of meetings in this country, will visit this city tomorrow and Friday nights, and will speak both evenings at the local headquarters on East Second street.

Elijah Cadman is one of the oldest Salvation Army officers in length of service, having entered the work in the Christian mission days, thirty-three years ago. He was the first one to assume a military title. In his first appointment he advertised himself as Captain, and announced a visit from the "general superintendent" of the Christian mission, calling him "General Booth, general of the Hallelujah Army." He also announced a visit of the general's eldest daughter, saying "Blucher will be here Sunday night." From this striking advertisement, the idea of an army and military titles, terms and methods was conceived and adopted in the year 1878.

The remarkable old commissioner's life is a fascinating study to the student of "serious Christianity." Thirty-five years as a Christian soldier in an unbroken soul-saving revival without one surrender or backstep. In the early days when the army was misunderstood he suffered violent persecution and deprivation, by mobs, and imprisonment. He was beaten, had his clothes torn from his body. In Yorkshire he was left on the street by the mob as dead but one thousand two hunded were converted as the outcome in that city.

During his stay the commissioner will give his life's story, the following of which is but a few brief points. At the age of six a chimney sweep. At seven a drunkard. Later a prize fighter and all round sport. New nothing about God except what he heard in the school of profanity. Leader of a mob that went to break up a street meeting and start a riot when the leader said something that set him thinking and the riot never was started. His marvelous conversion. How his Sunday school taught him to read. Had a vision of his future wife and that he would be married on Christmas day, which came to pass. His attempt to preach a sermon and how he broke the pulpit and sent a penel over the heads of his spell bound hearers. How when a mob wanted to tar and feather him for open air preaching, a woman with a rolling pin under her shawl came and swung it around his head and kept off the mob while he preached. One in the crowd asked what kind of religion is that, and she answered: "Rolling-pin religion." How thousands were converted through his earnest efforts including hundreds of the most depraved and desperate characters.

The commissioner will be accompanied by Major Lyon, who has the oversight of the young people's work in the States of New York and New Jersey; also Major Casler, the divisional officer for New Jersey.

BOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD HAS TO BORROW MONEY.

When the borough school board audited $4,018.07 worth of bills at their meeting last night, it was discovered there was only about $500 on hand to meet the obligations. This shortage was met, however, by passing a resolution authorizing Clerk Stein to borrow $2,500 from the borough bank, in anticipation of taxes.

A resolution was also adopted to engage Debele hall to be used for gymnasium purposes. The school gymnasts will take possession November 1.

MISS EDNA CARSON WEDS HARRY JAEGER

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson on Belmont avenue last night when their daughter, Miss Edna Carson, was united in marriage to Harry Jaeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jaeger, of Cranford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John W. Musson, pastor of the Temple Baptist church, in the presence of about one hundred guests.

The nuptial knot was tied underneath a white floral bell which suspended from an arch. Attending the bridal couple were the bridesmaid, Miss Bessie Carson, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Samuel McCauley, of Scotch Plains. Brooks Carson, an uncle, gave the bride in marriage. There were two flower girls, Drusella McCauley and Theresa Leivers.

The bride was attired in a white satin robe with Irish lace trimmings and bouquets of brides' roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in pink mouisline de soie while she carried a chain of pink roses. Attired in white dresses, the flower girls carried flowers.

A reception followed the ceremony and late in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Jaeger departed for Atlantic City, where they will spend their honeymoon. The presents were numerous and useful. One of the gifts, an ice cream set, was from the Circle of Kings Daughters of Temple Baptist church, of which organization the bride is one of the leading members.

The bridegroom is employed by the Potter Printing Press Works as foreman of the paint shop. At the completion of their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Jaeger will reside on Belmont avenue.

PHYSICIAN PRAISES CARLTON B. PIERCE

That the physicians of Union county as a body will vote and work for the defeat of Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, a Republican nominee for a third term in the Assembly, is denied here by several prominent physicians. The complaint against Mr. Pierce, as stated in The Daily Press, is because of the stand the legislator took in regard to a bill framed by the doctors providing for the appointment of an osteopathic physician to the State Board of Medical Examiners.

Dr. Thomas S. Davis when asked today by The Daily Press representative for his opinion as to what attitude the doctors would take said:

"I can only speak for myself, but I have talked with other physicians and from what I have learned I do not believe Mr. Pierce will be badly "knifed" on Tuesday by the profession. Being a homeopath, I am not a member of the County Medical Society and you must remember that there are many, many physicians who are also not members. It would be extremely unfortunate to rob the county of such a valuable man's services. I never condemn a man for a single mistake of honest judgment, for all men are human and none of us is perfect. There is no question as to his honesty or ability. He has made a creditable record."

LUCIUS C. RUSSELL TALKS TO DEMOCRATS

Organizations was the keynote of the address given by Editor Lucius C. Russell, of the Elizabeth Evening Times, before the members of the Plainfield Democratic club in Coward's hall last night. He prefaced his remarks by saying that during his six months residence in the north that the highest type of citizenship he has come in contact with has been in this city.

Declaring that the Democratic party never had a better chance for triumph in this State than would be presented next year Mr Russell urged all Jeffersonians to unite immediately after the coming election and prepare for the 1910 conflict by organizing clubs in every precinct in the State.

Another potent feature of Mr. Russell's address was a warning he hurled at the Democracy. He laid great stress on the growth of the Socialistic party and declared that the Democratic party failed to offer what the independent voters are clamoring for, in a very short space of time the Democracy would be swallowed bodily by the Socialists. In his plea for organization he said:

"Next week's election is only a little skirimsh preparatory for the big battle of next year. The Democratic party has got a nucleus to work on in the 1910 campaign. It has every advantage with it and there is not an issue the Republicans can defend their records on.

"Talking is all right," emphasized the speaker, "but it is individual work that counts. We must roll up our sleeves individually, go out and organize clubs in every polling district and bailwick in the State. To get results we must begin to prefect these organizations immediately after election. By so doing the voters will come out and vote the Democratic ticket at the primary elections, and they will repeat on election day."

At this point of his address Mr. Russell classified the recent tariff act enacted by Congress as vicious and traitorous as the Republican party could make it. He also denounced the present New Jersey primary law in vigorous language, at the same time taking a hard whack at the laws which he alleged protect the large corporations. It is on these issues that Mr. Russell declared that it will be an easy matter to drive the G. O. P. from power in New Jersey next year.

Commenting on the increase in the Socialistic vote in recent elections Mr. Russell declared: "This is due to the nefarious conditions resulting from Republican rule and the failure of the Democratic party to offer the independent voters what they wanted. If the Democratic party fails to meet the clamor of the independents and give them what they demand the ultimate success of the Socialistic party is inevitable.

James E. Martine acted as chairman of the meeting. He followed Editor Russell in one of his characteristic speeches in which he scored Republican policies. In calling the meeting to order Mr. Martine presented a hickory gavel to LeRoy Ellis, president of the local club. The donor was Andrew S. Marsh, candidate for councilman-at-large on the city Democratic ticket.

—R. E. Murray will sell contents of 6-room house at public auction tomorrow at 12:30, at 61 Watchung avenue. ***

CANDIDATES TO SPEAK AT DUNELLEN TONIGHT

The Republicans of Dunellen are to get together tonight for a rousing good time and incidentally to boom the candidacy of several of the men who are running for office this year. Among the speakers will be Hon. William E. Hicks, candidate for the Senate, and who was formerly Judge of the District court at New Brunswick; Judge Von Mindon, a candidate for the Assembly, whose home is in New Market, and ex-Senator William H. C. Jackson, who is now a candidate for county clerk.

Several other speakers, also candidates for various offices, will speak on the issues of the campaign. The meeting will be held in the borough hall, beginning at 8 o'clock sharp.

HORSE UNFED 10 DAYS; CASE REPORTED TO S.P.C.A.

Chief Marshall Weiss, of the borough, has called the attention of the Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to what he considers a flagrant case which came to light yesterday. A horse, said to be the property of Charles Geer, of this city, was discovered in the barn of Clifford Applegate on Stone street, in a half starved condition. Mr. Applegate reported the matter to Chief Weiss.

A prompt investigation showed that the animal was unable to stand in his stall on account of weakness from the lack of food. Chief Weiss lost no time in giving the horse a meal, but it is likely that it will be necessary to shoot him. According to Chief Weiss the horse evidently went unfed for a week or ten days. Geer, it is said, has not been in town for about ten days.

FIRST DISTRICT COURT CASE EVER TRIED AT NIGHT

The first trial ever held in the District court in the evening in this city was held Monday night. Judge Isaac Runyon presided in the absence of Judge William Newcorn, who was in New York attending the funeral of his father. Court was held in chambers and the case was one of unusual interest.

Morris Abrams, landlord, sued Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huff, in ejectment proceedings alleging non-payment of overdue rent. Mr. Abrams was not represented by counsel, while William G. DeMoza appeared for Mr. and Mrs. Huff. Mr. and Mrs. Huff have occupied the premises, 127 New street, since May 1, 1906, and according to the rent receipts shown in court have always paid their rent promptly and on this ground defended the action of ejectment.

Abrams admitted an error of his bookkeeper in making out the receipts between March 14 and April 14, in which the date of tenancy was changed from 1 to 15. But this did not determine the judge in his verdict, for it was shown that the rent for March, 1909, had been paid twice and receipts for the sums of money thus paid were put in evidence.

In rendering his decision Judge Runyon stated that the court cannot eject tenants on the ground that rent was due in advance, unless it is proved conclusively that a contract is entered into specifying the fact. Judge Runyon further states that it is a simple matter to fill out a lease and have the understanding clear between both parties so that no argument upon the terms of a contract need be made. He rendered a verdict in favor of Mr. and Mrs. Huff.

"This suit was commenced on October 14, 1909. The only remaining question to be disposed of is the question of rent from October 1 to November 1, 1909. The landlord swears it was to be paid in advance. The defendants swear it was not to be paid in advance. The receipts show that it was not paid in advance. This court cannot eject tenants on the statement of one as against two witnesses on such a question as this, when I must take into consideration that rent is not due in advance unless by express agreement of the parties, and the plaintiff must prove his cause by a preponderance of evidence. Again, it is a very simple thing to have written lease and there can be no question as to when it is due; therefore judgment for defendants must be entered."

The above is Judge Runyon's opinion in the case.

Sesame Club to Meet.

Stuchell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, Rahway, who has addressed the club before and who is popular here.

The banquet will be served in the Sunday-school room, as usual, at 7 o'clock. Tickets for the affair can be secured of Dr. N. W. Curtis or George A. Ballentyne, of the committee in charge.

Former Mayor Benjamin A. Hegeman or Robert Clark, Jr., will preside at the meeting, and all of the issues of the present campaign will be presented in a clear and forcible manner by the candidates. This will be the only Republican mass meeting in the borough and all voters are urged to be present to meet the candidates and hear what they will have to say about campaign issues.

ROUSING RECEPTION FOR THE CANDIDATES

The Republican candidates had a splendid reception at Berkeley Heights last night. A very enthusiastic old-time political rally was held in the school-house which was crowded to the doors with a representative gathering. The addresses were listened to with close and appreciative attention. Speeches were made by Senator Ackerman, F. H. Smith, A. W. Schwartz and Lloyd Thompson.

Dr. Willet Fletcher Johnson acted as chairman and made very pleasing and pertinent references to the candidates in their introduction to the audience. Mr. Thompson is showing himself as a speaker of merit and a man of ability.

The local candidates also spoke to the gathering. One of the distinguished Italian-American citizens, Mr. Bronnilli, of the locality, delivered a fine talk. The meeting adjourned at about 11 o'clock with a rousing three cheers for the entire Republican ticket. A good band enlivened the occasion.

Reception at the Park Club.

The annual fall and winter reception, marking the resumption of social activities will be held at the Park club, tomorrow night, under the direction of the entertainment committee of which Alston M. A pleasant evening was spent in games and music and Mr. and Mrs. Brokaw received the congratulations of their many friends. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton Lowrie, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dayton, Mr. and Mrs. John Lant and family, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Van Cleaf, Mr. and Mrs. J. MRS. HARRY C. ADAMS DIES IN NEW YORK

Mrs. Harry C. Adams, of Central avenue, died at 7 o'clock this morning at the New York Hospital, where she had been ill for several weeks with typhoid fever. During the past few days her condition was critical and her death was not unexpected by the members of the immediate family.

Mrs. Adams was the daughter of Mrs. J. Edgar Corlies, also of Central avenue, and she was a granddaughter of J. Howard Wright, of New York. During her residence in Plainfield she was always interested and active in charitable enterprises, being a liberal contributor to all worthy charities. She is survived by a husband, a son, Dunbar Wright Adams and a daughter, Miss Dorothy Adams.

FREEDOM CASTLE, K.G.E. TO HAVE A GREAT TIME

Members of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, are highly flattered over the consent of Supreme Chief E. F. Lake, of Denver, Col., to visit the local castle on Tuesday night, November 2. Chief Lake is now on his national trip and it is usually his custom to visit but one castle in a State. Last week he was the guest of Millville Eagles but on the earnest solicitation of the officials of Freedom Castle he consented to visit this city. He will remain here for several days and will be the guest of Horace J. Martin, Sr.

In anticipation of Chief Lake's visit the local Eagles are making big preparations to do him honor. Junior O. U. A. M. hall has been engaged to accommodate the large number of Eagles who will be in attendance from New Brunswick, Trenton, Somerville, Orange and other towns.

"Past Chiefs' Night" was celebrated last night by members of Freedom Castle, the stellar event of the evening being a repast termed "A Dutch Supper." There was a large attendance and the entertainment was enjoyed by all present. The committee in charge was composed of Nelson Wiley, Lewis Stires, Walter Randall, Walter Dennis and George Church.

COL. WILSON'S ESTATE LEFT TO DAUGHTER

The will of Colonel John Farmer Wilson, former mayor of North Plainfield, who died at his estate, "Tunlaw," North Plainfield, Sunday, October 10, was admitted to probate this morning in the office of Surrogate DeMund at Somerville. The executors named are Mrs. James P. Truitt, only surviving daughter of the testator, and Justice James J. Bergen, of Somerville, who drew the will. The executors qualified in their official capacity today.

The whole estate is practically left to Mrs. James P. Truitt, while the income from $10,000 is set aside for the care and keeping of the only surviving son, W. B. Wilson, who resides in Baltimore. He has been in poor health for many years. There are no public bequests. Owing to the death of a son of the testator in Paris about a year ago, several changes had to be made before it was offered for probate. The value of the estate is not given.

In making Mrs. Truitt practically the sole legatee, she becomes the owner of the handsome estate on Greenbrook road, known as "Tunlaw," which is one of the show places of the borough. There is other valuable property, both real and personal, which goes to Mrs. Truitt.

NEW TARIFF'S EFFECT VIEWED BY MR. LINKE

Frank Linke, of this city, who returned yesterday from a two weeks' visit to his old home at Schlerin, Germany, brings back the news that the commercial conditions of the German Empire are completely upset by some of the schedules of the new Aldrich Tariff law, which was adopted at the last session of Congress. According to Mr. Linke, the American law conflicts to such an extent with the German laws that prices on some of the small necessaries of life, such as matches, tobacco, etc., have been doubled.

To offset this state of affairs it will be necessary for Germany, in the estimation of Mr. Linke, to revise her laws at the next general election, two years hence, to conform conditions to comply with the new American schedule. By that time however, Mr. Linke is of the opinion that conditions may again reach their normal state.

Business conditions over there were never in better shape, according to Mr. Linke. Steel mills, manufacturing plants and shipbuilding establishments are all operating with full forces. The whole country is in a prosperous state, but the Aldrich bill has unsettled conditions in several branches of trade.

"The Germans hold a high opinion of the United States," says Mr. Linke. They refer to it as "the greatest country in the world." Yankees are always given a warm welcome, they are generally good spenders, and in turn they receive splendid treatment at the hands of the Germans. Mr. Linke states that it is impossible to visit any city or hamlet in Germany without coming in contact with Americans.

Mr. Linke returned home on the Kronprinzen Wilhelm, the journey lasting seven days. This was due to the stormy weather, rough seas being encountered in six of the seven days.

Mrs. George E. Wiegand, of West Fifth street, underwent an operation at her home last Wednesday, and is reported on the road to complete recovery.

LIQUOR CASES SENTENCES POSTPONED BY THE COURT.

Sentences in the liquor cases, which have attracted considerable attention here, where New York department stores have been delivering liquor, have been put off until November.

Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., secured conviction in two of the cases, and the defendants were to have been sentenced today.

Lost and Recovered His Watch.

John Crowley, of Willever street, went to Bound Brook, yesterday, to collect a bill. He made the trip on the trolley and before he reached his destination he discovered that his watch had been stolen from his pocket. He noticed a colored man sitting close by in the car and his suspicions were directed toward him. At Bound Brook, Mr. Crowley had the man arrested and the timepiece was found in his grip. As he recovered his property he did not make any charge against the man, and he was released.

Grove Street in Slippery Condition.

The roadbed on Grove street, between Front street and the bridge, which was treated with a patent preparation is now so slippery that it is difficult for teams with a heavy load to ascend the incline. A few days ago a couple of teams drawing wood, went down several times while trying to reach Front street. The surface is more slippery than asphalt.

"Ossie" is Thirty-two.

Colored society was out in full force last night at the home of Dave Martin, of Arlington avenue, where "Ossie" Green gave a blowout in honor of his thirty-second birthday. Songs by Frank Nelson, George Washington Ruggles and Joseph Jefferson Johnson were hugely enjoyed.

OVER-CONFIDENCE IS THE PARTY'S GREATEST DANGER

"It is very essential that every Republican who is proud of his party of his State should vote on Tuesday," said Mayor Charles J. Fisk today.

"Over-confidence has lost many a battle and I think that is our danger at present. We have been so used to victory that a state of apparent apathy exists, which in my opinion is a most unfortunate thing.

"We must win this election if the Republican party is to continue its supremacy. We have a splendid ticket and a splendid record, but as I have said the danger lies in the fact that too many labor under the misapprehension that victory can be obtained without a hard fight.

"We Plainfielders have reason to feel proud of our county ticket. Not alone is the the case because one of our number is a nominee, but rather because clean through it is an exceptional ticket.

"Frank H. Smith, the candidate for county register, is an ideal nominee. He is a sound business man and his reputation reaches far beyond the State, for even the Governor has seen fit to point him out as an exceptional citizens in politics. If we want to continue an administration of business integrity and faithfulness in the register's office, we should make it our duty to go to the polls and cast a vote for him.

"This applies equally to our candidate for county clerk, James C. Calvert, another sound business man.

"As for the balance of the county ticket, the same may be said. Particularly I refer to Carlton B. Pierce, a candidate for the Assembly. Union county is fortunate in being able to obtain the services of such a capable man. It is a great sacrifice on his part to devote a good share of his time to the interest of our State and our county.

"I need not dilate on the necessity of continuing in office the men on the local ticket. Their records speak for them. But I do want to warn my fellow Republicans of the danger of over-confidence. Go to the polls on Tuesday. It will take only a few minutes of your time and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have discharged a public duty."

Superior Stocks of the New Underwear

A complete line for Men, Women, Misses and Children can be selected from here.

We offer larger assortments than ever—all varities—the leading makes—and all good grades.

We emphasize the GOOD, because you are entitled to quality and in this important article of wear, regardless of the price you pay, and we sell GOOD knit underwear at all prices.

If the average store was as particular as we are to get sizes, textures, finish and shape of its underwear just right there would be no special reason for coming to us. But, we have a host of friends who know there is more comfort, better fit and more service in our underwear than in the ordinary kinds.

That's briefly our underwear story—but it's deserving of a more lengthy mention than that.

FIRST—You will find assembled here all the standard high grade brands of these knit goods you have been calling for year after year.

SECONDLY—We have larger stocks, which we obtained at lower prices than in any previous year.

THERE ARE MANY GOOD REASONS

why you should purchase your Corsets from this store.

FIRST—You have your choice of the standard makes like W. B., R. & G., Thompson's Glove Fitting, La Riene, Warner's Rustproof, Nemo, American Lady, C. B., Ferris Waists, De Bevoise Brassieres, the mention of whose names are a guarantee of their goodness.

SECOND—We carry all the newest models, the shapes well dressed women are demanding.

THIRD—Special care is given to fit. An ill-fitting corset, no matter how expensive, will absolutely fall short of all that a corset is purchased for.

To these very good reasons as to why your corsets should be bought here we have added one which will appeal irresistably to those who have a sense of the artistic.

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 26, with every Corset costing $1.00 or more, we will give a pretty little Souvenir, which will enchant you with its beauty---a bon bon dish, tray or vase, as you wish.

Come and see these dainty favors, view the new models in corsets, and see how well equipped we are to meet your needs.

PAYMENTS EXTENDED to MEET YOUR CONVENIENCE

A Costly Signature

The popular notion that nothing is more simple than the preparation of a will leads thousands of testators with limitless confidence in their own ability to prepare their own wills, sometimes endangering the prosperity and happiness of loved ones, or digging a grave for their own estates.

The disastrous possibilities of such a case are indicated in the following newspaper clipping:

LOSES $25,000 BEQUEST BY SIGNING WIFE'S WILL.

Witnesses Document and Now Must Pay Estate to Woman's Relatives.

The ignorance of M——as to the law relative to the signing of wills has just cost him $25,000 which he would have received had he not signed his wife's will as a witness

When the will was offered for probate yesterday it was found that M—— was the beneficiary, one of the witnesses and the executor. Had he not signed as a witness he would have received the entire amount; as it is, he receives not one cent.

M—— tried to induce his wife's relatives to relinquish their claim to him, but they declined to do so. M—— applied for a citation from the Surrogate, which is returnable next Wednesday, when all beneficiaries will be on hand.

M—— will have to pay over the estate, as executor, to his wife's people.

Of course it is almost unnecessary to add that the

FIDELITY TRUST CO.

NEWARK, N. J.,

protects the testator against his own errors and his estate after him.

"Come in and talk it over."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

As a result of the unusually successful championship tournament of the East Jersey Golf League, brought to a close over the links of the Forest Hill Field Club on Saturday, the officials of the organization are planning to branch out before another season. It is understood that at least two more clubs will join shortly, the organizations mentioned being the Yountakah Country Club and the Upper Montclair Country Club, both of which have eighteen-hole courses.

Since the league abandoned the annual series of home-and-home team matches, a few seasons ago, East Jersey competitive events have been confined to tournaments. During the last season the members competed in a two-day affair at Forest Hill in June and in a one-day contest at Glen Ridge later in the summer. There was a combination of match and medal play on both occasions, and H. D. Smith, of Glen Ridge, gained chief honors in these tournaments. He did not compete in the recent championship. More than one hundred players took part in last week's tournament, the organizations represented being the New Brunswick Golf Club, South Orange Field Club, Suburban Club, Colonia Country Club, Glen Ridge Golf Club and Forest Hill Field Club.

Roy Gussman, the East Orange lad who won the low score prize in the qualifying round and then supplemented this feat by gaining the title, has been playing golf only about three years. He drives a long ball with little effort, plays his irons well and puts like a professional. Although fond of baseball, Gussman now says he intends to devote most of his leisure time in future to golf.

FOOTBALL.

The strong Acorn A. C., of Brooklyn, will play the Dunellen A. C at Dunellen Saturday afternoon. Earlier in the season Dunellen defeated the Acorns by a score of 6 to 0, and hope to repeat the trick.

Fullback Marks of Dartmouth is one of the season's stars in that position.

The quarterback situation at Yale, troublesome last year, is by no means satisfactory as yet this year.

There is said to be a chance for Joe Pedleton refereeing the Harvard-Yale game, as the two institutions haven't yet hit on a referee.

Since 1887 Dartmouth has won fifteen games from Amherst, lost three and tied two. Dartmouth has made a total of 491 points to Amherst's 48.

Minot of Harvard can drop the ball at right angles to his toe and boot it almost as far as he can the conventional way, however far that may be.

Referee Evans and Umpire Crolius agreed that one of Brown's forward passes last Saturday was only a foot outside the five yard limit. Pretty keen eyesight.

At the beginning of the second half last Saturday the Amherst cheering brigade donned white caps and purple gowns and then grouped so as to form a big A.

The Swarthmore folks said they were unable to find out who the officials for the game with Fordham were to be until they reached the field. Wiring for information on that point brought no reply, they said.

Penalties played a large part in Penn's failure to win the game. Edwards, the keenest umpire in the business, was ever alert, and time after time he called Penn back for off side play, for holding and for other infractions of the rules. The crowds mocked him, but those more familiar with the strict duties of the umpire knew that Edwards was right and that Penn was not being unduly punished.—Philadelphia Enquirer.

GIRLS ARE STILL OUT; CIGAR FACTORY CLOSES.

Frederick Hirschhorn, vice-president of Hirschhorn, Mack & Co., at whose cigar factory in New Brunswick 500 girls are on strike and preventing 500 other girls from returning to work, last evening issued the following order to Superintendent William Kreiger: "Close down the factory indefinitely, or until the strikers signify their willingness to return to work at the old scale of wages."

Superintendent Kreiger explained that the company has enough stock made up for the holiday trade and can transfer new orders to one of the other several factories controlled by the company.

The strikers had a meeting and decided to stay out until they get the 10 cents per hundred increase in wages for making cigars, and until assurance is given that all of the strikers will be taken back at that figure. The company tried to keep going with thirty girls, mostly Americans, yesterday, feeding them in the plant, but found that very little could be accomplished.

There was no disorder about the plant last night.

Successful Furnace Fires

PATENTED

The BOYNTON Square Fire Pot

makes tending the furnace easy, but best of all it makes a joyous fire. Round fire pots burn strongly through the center with a rim of half dead clinkers at the edge and when you shake the fire the middle drops out. You've noticed it. Fires built in BOYNTON Square Pots are all live coals. A shake down is an even shake. The whole fire settles. There is no waste. The fuel being equal, a square pot will develop almost twice the heat, or the same heat for about half. The square pot is our patent and can be had only in the BOYNTON furnaces. We have a dealer in your town. He will be glad to show you.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

WESTFIELD FAIR.

Event Being Held in Warehouse in Lieu of Hall.

Last summer the members of Holy Trinity R. C. church, Westfield, planned a bazar for the benefit of the church debt. The only available building, the Westfield Club Hall, was rented and the plan to hold a bazar was almost dropped when Albert Traynor suggested that his father's new grain warehouse in North avenue would be a good place. Mr. Traynor immediately offered the use of the warehouse, which was accepted.

The bazar opened Monday night and will continue each evening this week. Saturday afternoon will be set aside especially for the children. A euchre will be held tonight. Extra attractions are added each evening.

FOR THE CONSUMPTIVE POOR.

Bishop McFaul Buys Farm for Sanitarium—All Creeds Welcome.

Bishop McFaul announced Sunday that he had purchased the Cox farm of 131 acres, at Marshall's Corner, and would open next spring a sanitarium for the cure of the consumptive poor. The Bishop said that everybody and anybody will be welcome, so long as they are ill.

While the nurses will be nuns, and the administration Catholic, creed will not be a bar, nor color either, to the entrance to the place. This is to be a place for the consumptive poor on practical lines.

Standard Oil Man Arrested for Keeping $7.70.

Underwear for Men, Women and Children.

You can buy underwear for 50c and $1 at any store. But the question is, where can I get the best garment for the money. If you've bought underwear at the W. & M. store, we don't need to tell you. It's the other fellow we want to talk to. We buy our underwear direct from the largest and best mills in the country in very large quantities, and offer you garments with a reputation. We don't claim to sell you a 50c garment for 39c, or a 1.00 garment for 79c, but we do offer you a better garment for the money than you can get anywhere else in town, and when we tell you that a garment is half wool, 3-quarter wool or all wool, you can rest assured that it is just what we claim it to be; that's worth something, isn't it? We cordially invite you to critically examine our lines. Compare them with the other fellows. You won't buy underwear anywhere else.

Mrs. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, widow of the late Governor, has received a letter of thanks from Mrs. Grover Cleveland, wife of the former President. It is a long letter, covering several pages of letter stationery, and one in which the widow at Princeton unfolds her heart to the widow at St. Paul. It is understood that Mrs. Cleveland said in her letter to Mrs. Johnson that Mr. Cleveland had picked the late Minnesota executive as a future President, and even while the great Democratic statesman lay on his deathbed he said that should Governor Johnson be nominated he would be elected to the Presidency.

The members of the Democratic Club together with the candidates who are in the field for honors in the approaching election enjoyed an hour or two of heart to heart talk in the club rooms Saturday night and their reasons for telling the voters of this city why a change is necessary in the management of the city's business are given in a neat folder issued by the club. It was stated that the voters of the city are really paying some attention to the facts which are being brought to their notice.

STRUCK BY TRAIN.

Trenton Man Run Down on Railroad in Elizabeth.

"Bonita" to Be at Proctor's.

Proctor's theatre will offer an especially strong attraction for tomorrow and the rest of the week in "Bonita," the educated horse, who does everything but talk. There will also be Sydney Shields & Co., in a comedy dramatic sketch; Lew Worth, a good monologue comedian, and Gardner West & "Sunshine" in songs and dances. The appearance of a well-known Plainfield woman in a dance of rare beauty will shortly be announced by Proctor & Sanderson.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Lillian Russell in her newest vehicle, "The Widow's Might," is booked for the Plainfield theatre on Saturday night. The return of the famous American beauty will introduce her to local admirers in a comedy drama of contemporary life, which is from the pen of Edmund Day, and which set Miss Russell off as a comedienne to such advantage that she has scored the success of her artistic career in the piece. It is primarily a story of modern finance with the action centering in and near Wall Street, New York city. The purely personal note that carries the development removes it from the sphere of the so-called financial plays with their problems and themes of more or less doubtful interest.

That interesting play of the Golden West, "Deadwood Dick's Last Shot," by Owen Davis, is the coming offering at the Plainfield theatre on November 2. The piece fairly teems with hair-raising situations, infectious comedy and clever characterizations and has been one of the most successful plays of its kind shown in many a day.

ROB STORE SAFE.

Slick Strangers Make Rich Haul in Fricke's Store.

Two men who made purchases at the furniture store of F. R. Fricke, 921 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, Monday, are suspected by the police of having looted the safe of checks and cash.

One took a salesman upstairs with the supposed intention of purchasing goods, while the other, who had previously seen the safe opened, took checks and cash.

TEACHER FINED PUPIL AND STIRS UP PARENTS

The action of Miss Millicent Humpston, principal of the Washington school, in inflicting a fifty cent fine on a pupil, the young son of Andrew Muir, of Essex street, for defacing a desk, is likely to result in a merry rumpus in the school board if the threats of the boy's father are carried out. Superinitendent Henry M. Maxson, when approached on the matter today, was inclined to be reticent on the incident to a Daily Press reporter, but he admitted there was a little fuss on between the Washington School authorities and the parents of young Muir as a result of the punishment meted out to the pupil. He admitted that the fine had been remitted and a different mode of punishment substituted on the pupil, but what this is, Mr. Maxson refrained from stating.

According to reports of the incident, Miss Humpston sent the Muir lad home with the request to return to school with the fifty cents. This nettled the pupil's parents and payment was refused. It is also said that the boy remained out of school for several days until the fine was remitted.

Now Mr. Muir claims that the school authorities "have no right to fine a taxpayer." On this score Mr. Maxson claims that the law is clear on the subject and that Miss Humpston acted entirely within its bounds. Now Muir, it is said, intends to make a complaint to the proper authorities.

Funeral of Ralph Napaltano.

PRIEST LEAPS IN RING, STOPS BOUT.

Weehawken, Oct. 27.—Following up a crusade which he is making against prize fights, the Rev. Father John Preston, pastor of St. Lawrence's church, this place, leaped into the ring and stopped a bout.

The go was at the Plymouth Athletic Club. A negro fighter and a white man were the principals. The white man had hammered the negro until he hung limp over the ropes.

When the priest leaped into the ring there were a few hoots and hisses. He silenced the crowd and said: "I don't mind clean sport, but this thing is brutal and I order it stopped."

Those who saw the occurrence said that the priest's interference came at a dramatic moment. The two fighters, Charley Sieger, "The Hoboken Iron Man," and the "Dixie Kid," were in the sixth round of a fast-moving, hard-hitting scrap when the priest jumped into the ring.

Many men at the ringside are members of Father Preston's church, and there was a lot of speculation yesterday as to how he had got in.

From the club the priest hastened to the police station. He was angry clear through, and showed it.

"Do you know that there has been a brutal fight almost under your nose?" he demanded of Chief McGann. The chief said he knew there was some bouts in a private club and that he had no jurisdiction.

"Well, this thing has got to stop," said Father Preston. "I believe in clean sport, but I won't see a man being beaten half to death in my parish. I'll raid this club every time they stage such a disgusting exhibition. It wasn't boxing, it was butchery."

FINED FOR VIOLATING LAW UNINTENTIONALLY.

Trenton, Oct. 27.—George W. Burns, a druggist of Bernardsville, was fined $15 Monday in the United States District Court by Judge John Rellstab for technical violation of the pure food and drug act. Burns manufactures a headache cure, containing acetanalide. The law requires that on packages containing this powder the amount of acetanalide must be specified. Burns in part complied with this, stating that his medicine had three grains of the drug to each powder.

An analysis by the United States authorities found a acetanalide in excess of the amount Burns placed on the packages. The court was convinced that Burns meant no evasion of the law but said that inasmuch as there had been a technical violation there was no other course to pursue than impose a fine.

NOTED BALL WILL NOT BE REBUILT.

Quien Family Decides Not to Reconstruct Property Burned in $25,000 Blaze.

Members of the Quien family, of 247 Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, whose property was destroyed by fire yesterday morning, at a loss of $25,000, stated that it was unlikely the old banquet hall and saloon will be rebuilt.

It has not been learned just how the fire started. It is said it might have been caused by an overheated stove. The flames were discovered at 2 a.m. by members of the family.

Every fire engine in the city was called out except one. It took eight hours to extinguish the blaze. Nearby buildings were scorched. The loss is covered by insurance.

BLIND MATCH DEALER APPEALS TO GOVERNOR.

Trenton, Oct. 27.—Sam Shelly, a blind dealer in matches, of this city, has appealed to Governor Fort to relieve him from embarrassment in relation to a transaction of grocer Holl, who just before he went into bankruptcy, bought matches of the complainant and filled his windows with a display.

Shelly asserts that the grocer did injustice to him in buying some $40 of matches when he knew he was insolvent. The Governor will tell Mr. Shelly to go to the United States Court for relief.

SURROGATES MUST BE PROMPT.

Trenton, Oct. 27.—State Comptroller Henry J. West has experienced much difficulty in making surrogates observe the provisions of the law requiring that quarterly returns of all wills shall be made to the secretary of State in his capacity as register of the Prerogative Court. Heretofore there has been much laxity in this respect, some of the surrogates being from two to seven years behind in their returns. The making of prompt returns has become important under the new law placing the duty of levying the collateral inheritance tax upon the State comptroller instead of the surrogates. Under the old law surrogates were authorized to employ appraisers, paying them $3 a day and expenses for their services. The new act authorizes the comptroller to pay $5 a day and expenses to appraisers.

The total cost of this work is between $15,000 and $20,000 annually. Edward B. Sterling, who has charge of the probate records in the comptroller's office, has taken up the work of prodding delinquent surrogates to make prompt returns of all wills.

GOOD WORK.

Done Daily in Plainfield—Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Plainfield still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:

Mrs. W. W. Mills, 304 West Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull, heavy, bearing-down pain in my back bothered me a great deal, especially when I caught cold. I also had frequent headaches and was at times so dizzy that I could scarcely see. If I did much stooping or lifting, my back becaume very lame and though I used plasters, I was relieved only for the time being. Finally on the advise of a friend, I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. They acted in every way as represented and in a short time rid me of all symptoms of kidney trouble. I am pleased to recommend a remedy of such undoubted merit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

SUPREME COURT DISMISSES T. P. FAY DISBARMENT.

Trenton, Oct. 27.—The Supreme Court yesterday dismissed the disbarment proceeding instituted by the Attorney-General at the court's discretion against Thomas P. Fay, a Long Branch lawyer, who defended Albert C. Twining, one of the wreckers of the Monmouth Trust Company, who is now serving a term in State prison.

After the conviction of Twining had been carried to the United States Supreme court, and the lawyers were at their wits' end to keep him out of prison, Mr. Fay appeared before two of the Supreme Court justices, sitting in a special case in Newark, and asked for an order to review one phase of the case. He was told that the justices constituted a branch of the court for the particular case to which they had been only and that they had no authority to hear his application.

Notwithstanding the court's warning, Mr. Fay caused an order to be entered in the clerk's office denying his application, and from this refusal took a writ of carrying the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals. The Supreme Court was vexed at this action, and determined that he should face disbarment proceedings. Mr. Fay pleaded that he had intended no violation of the court's directions, and the explanation was accepted. He was represented by former United States Attorney-General John W. Griggs.

The Degree of Pocahontas presented Minisee, No. 12, Lodge, with a silk flag for having the largest gain in membership during the last year.

The following were elected:

Great prophetess, Mrs. Sarah J. Dutton, of Dunellen; Pocahontas, Mrs. Katherine Dodwell, also of Dunellen; great Wenonah, Miss Margaret Hall, of Bridgeton; great Minnehaha, Mrs. Catherine Welch, of Morristown; great Truftie, Mrs. Mary L. Two hundred members attended the performance at the American Music Hall last night. They will meet again today at 17 West Park street.

WILL UNVEIL MRS. HANNAH ARNETT TABLET.

Members of Boudinot Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Elizabeth, are arranging for the unveiling of tablet in the First Presbyterian church to the memory of Hannah Arnett, an Elizabeth woman of the Revolutionary War, who did much to advance the cause in this section by advice and counsel.

Mrs. E. Gaylord Putnam is arranging the program for the unveiling, which will take place November 3, with impressive ceremonies. Mrs. Putnam is an officer in the State organization and is prominent in the work of the National D. A. R.

FIGHT IN RAHWAY.

Pastor's Son a Contestant for Political Office.

A lively fight is promised in the Councilman-at-large contest in Rahway. Ray E. Mayham, son of the Rev. Dr. Thomas C. Mayham, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, the Democratic candidate, is an active worker and a forceful speaker. He is a member of the State Democratic Committee and an active Mason and Elk.

David Armstrong, the Republican candidate, is a college graduate, lawyer, and a member of the Rahway A. A. He is secretary of the Rahway Republican Club. He has gained the disfavor of many of the firemen by his alleged championing the cause of an alleged firebug.

FATHER AND SON HELD.

Green Accusses Benoits of Robbing Him.

After his place had been robbed several times Louis Green, who conducts a clothing store in Second street, Elizabeth, grew suspicious of Gaston W. Benoit and his son, the watchman at the building, who had been placed there by a receiver of Green's concern.

Green assayed the double role of clothing merchant and detective and claims that he found the younger Benoit leaving the building with a suitcase full of loot. Benoit has been held for the Grand Jury, as has his father.

THIS PRISONER NOISY.

Drunk from Bayonne Keeps Elizabeth Police Awake.

John McDermott, of Bayonne, went to Elizabeth to visit last night and imbibed some of Elizabeth's firewater. He was making as much noise as a baseball umpire when the police arrested him.

At the First Precinct station he made the night hideous by his yells. On a former occasion McDermott grew so obstreperous that Judge Mahon was forced to drown his voice with a pail of water.

The modern trust company is organized, primarily, for the purpose of administering estates. It is empowered by law to act in all respects as might an individual, but possesses every quality of desirability that the individual lacks. The fees are never more than are allowed to an individual. Furthermore, owing to its excellent facilities for handling the business, and for making prompt and proper investments of surplus funds, it can often reduce the expense of administration and thereby increase the value of the estate.

SAY "TRULY RURAL!"

If a Man Can Do So He is Sober, Judge Rules.

The unique spectacle of a prisoner really "walking the chalk line" was witnessed in Police Court at Elizabeth yesterday, when Judge O. P. Mahon adopted the English method of making Eugene Westerfelt prove his sobriety. Westerfelt did so and the judge let him go.

Judge Mahon says that in a severe case of intoxication he will make the victim say "truly rural" several times to learn whether he is sober enough to make a good excuse to his wife.

STILL DOUBT AS TO A SPECIAL SESSION

Governor Fort left the State House, Trenton, early yesterday and without announcing what date he would call the special session of the Legislature, but it is thought he will say something about it when he comes to the Capitol Friday.

It is the opinion of those close to the Governor that if a session of the Legislature is called it will be November 9, but this is not given out as the accurate date.

There were many politicians at the Capitol yesterday, and the matter of extra session was the most important thing talked of. United States Senator Frank O. Briggs and David Baird, of Camden, were at the State House and sat for a long time in the office of Secretary of State Dickinson, but declared when they emerged that there was no conference, just a friendly talk. These gentlemen and Senator John Kean, who has been a regular visitor at the State House for the last few weeks; and Bank and Insurance Commissioner Vivian M. Lewis all expressed the opinion that no special session would be called.

Senators Bradley, Hand and Gaunt, who had a long conference with the Governor, said after leaving the Governor that he had assured them he would not call the Legislature in special session if another way could be found to adequately protect the State against the attempt of the Hudson County Water Company to divert water of any kind to Staten Island.

The Riparian Commission had a long session with the Governor, and at its conclusion it was intimated that this board had convinced the Governor, who is a member of it, that it possessed ample power to block further operations by the Hudson Water Company on the State lands under the Kill von Kull. The Governor said, however, that the conference with the Riparian Commission did not relate to the Hudson county water case.

Speaking of the matter himself before he left the State House the Governor said: "I am in favor of calling the Legislature in special session any time the affairs of the State require it. At present I want to confer further with Attorney General Wilson to ascertain if such action is necessary so far as the Hudson County Water Company's diversion case is concerned. I will also confer with the State Board of Railroad Appraisers relative to a continuance of their work without an additional appropriation."

SWACKHAMER SWATS 'EM

Former Assemblyman Tells Hunterdon County People to Sever the Yoke.

IN FAVOR OF LOCAL OPTION.

"The Divine Right of Kings" is Obsolete Now—Urges Re-election of William G. Gebhardt.

Samuel S. Swackhamer, formerly an assemblyman from Somerset county, was one of the chief speakers at the Democratic mass meeting at the court house in Flemington, Hunterdon county, last night. His speech follows:

"'Might makes right' has cut the hamstrings of progress, and stained the fact of humanity with tears.

There was a time when bigots used iron arguments to commend their creeds. The rack and the thumb-screws, rusty with martyr-blood, are mute witnesses to the cruel coercion of the conscience. But spiritual tyranny met its Huss, its Luther and its Roger Williams and the shackles were torn from the human soul.

"Prior to that a man's conscience had a brass collar on it with the royal arms engraved thereon, and was kept picketed out in the king's grounds. The owner could go and look at it on Sundays, but he never had the use of it.

"Thenceforth it was not required that a man should whittle his soul into a shape to fit the religious augerhole of another.

"The abominable dogma of the divine right of kings was hit between the eyes when the proposition that 'governmentes derive their just powers from the consent of the governed' knocked the diadem from the brainless skull of royalty.

"But the blow let blood and did not stop there.

"No right was ever wrung from the clutch of power without a struggle fierce and bitter, nor retained without the exercise of ceaseless, sleepless vigilance.

"You upset a dynasty and trample a diadem in the dust and discover a political oligarchy that dictates policies an frameth mischief into a law.

"You clutch the scepter from the king's hand and find the gavel wielded by the puppet of a political high-priest.

"It makes no difference whether tyranny dresses in royal robes or citizens clothes.

"I would rather live under the open reign of a stern hereditary potentate than under the covert sway of a smiling Triumvirate, composed of a brewer, a legislator and a political boss.

"At the State House, in Trenton, a short time ago, a man high up in public life said to me: 'I am a strict Hamiltonian. I have no confidence in the capacity of the common people to govern themselves. They are ignorant and prejudiced and incapable of deciding important questions affecting their rights. It is best for them that a select and educated class should determine all such questions.

"I am not a believer in local option, or the principle of home rule.'

"Fifty years ago Abraham Lincoln said: 'You will find that all the arguments in favor of kingcraft were of one class. They always bestrode the necks of the people not that they wanted to do it, but that the people were better off for being ridden.

"Whatever may be the opinions of pedants and egotists the people can be trusted and ultimately taey arrive at right. 'The accumulated intellect of the masses is greater than the heaviest brain God ever gave to a single man,' and the untrammeled will of the people is the sure anchor which will keep this ship of state off the rocks.

I have more confidence in the aggregate wisdom of the 3,000,000 plain citizens of New Jersey, scattered in the fields and the factories, the mills and the markets, the wharves and the warehouses, the courts and the counting houses, in the streets and in the stores, in the mansion and the hut, than I have in the broad culture and curious learning of the select and educated classes that meet at Jersey's capitol on the second Tuesday in January of each year.

"Twice have we asked these select and educated classes to give us a vote upon the license question and twice have they expressed the opinion of the man at the State House.

"But whether they have confidence or contempt for the common people, this is a question of right and not of capacity.

The line is drawn sharp as a Damascus blade. The people ask for the privilege to vote, and the right honorables at Trenton deny it. There you are. Now who's who? When poor old George Third came over here and told our fathers that he'd stand no more shenanegin' about

WOMEN SUFFRAGISTS MEET

Mrs. Clara Laddey, State President, Addresses Local Association.

GROWTH OF THE MOVEMENT.

State Constitution Originally Conferred Franchise on Women, But Was Arbitrarily Limited by Legislative Action.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield held its first meeting of the season yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William H. Rilley, on Myrtle avenue, and there was a large attendance of members and friends.

The interesting feature was the presence of Mrs. Clara Laddey, president of the New Jersey State Suffrage Association, who gave an account of the forty-first National Suffrage convention held this year in the beautiful exposition grounds at Seattle. The delegates to the convention were feted all along the route to Seattle and were royally received when they arrived there, the western men vying with the western women to entertain them.

Mrs. Laddey spoke of the growth of the suffrage movement in colleges, asserting that the National Collegiate Suffrage Association has twenty-four branches in seventeen States. In New Jersey the State Federation of Women's clubs has shown an increased interest in women's suffrage.

It was announced that the Trenton Contemporary club is to have a lecture by Rev. Anna Shaw, president of the National American Women's Suffrage Association, and the Atlantic City Suffrage club has invited Mrs. Lafferty, of Colorado, to address that body. Mrs. Lafferty is the only woman member of a State Legislature.

In closing Mrs. Laddey bade the New Jersey suffagrettes to take heart. In the discussion which followed her speech, the fact was brought out that when the New Jersey State Constitution was drafted it conferred the franchise on women and was the only State to do so. The women voted for a few years. In 1807 the Legislature, by what was considered arbitrary action, limited the suffrage to "white male citizens." This was considered an usurpation of authority as the Constitution can be changed only by action of the voters.

Mrs. C. L. Riles gave a short description of the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall, New York, on Monday, in honor of Mrs. Pankhurst, whom she described as slight, beautiful and very spirited. She said that the English suffragette leader stood up for an hour and a half and held the attention of her audience by her close argument and clear statements. To many she seemed to justify her methods as necessary to obtain the end.

The next meeting of the local league will be held Monday night, November 2, at the home of Mrs. Samuel Huntington on Franklin place. At that time Miss Crystal Eastman, a well-known lawyer of New York, will engage in a debate with Mrs. Hugh Fox on the question, "Resolved, That suffrage be granted to women on the same terms on which it is granted to men." Miss Eastman was appointed by Governor Hughes as a member of the committee on the unemployed and she has also performed notable work in Pittsburg.

Effingham Pinto to Return.

An announcement of considerable interest to Plainfield friends is that Effingham Pinto, son of Mr and Mrs. W. A. Pinto, of this city, who has made such a hit in "The Climax," and who has been playing with the original company in Chicago for three months, will return to Weber's theatre, New York on Monday, for an indefinite run. Miss Leona Watson, also of the original company, will take her place in the cast of four at Weber's at the same time.

HARRY M. SLAUSON WEDS

Miss Julia M. Pierson, of Roselle, Bride of Alfred T. Slauson's Son.

CEREMONY AT ST. LUKE'S.

Twelve Hundred Invited to the Ceremony—Bride the Daughter of Dr. H. C. Pierson—To Reside Here.

Miss Julia Marguerite Pierson, daughter of Dr. Henry C. Pierson, of Roselle, and Harry Munn Slauson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Slauson, of East Ninth street, were married at 8 o'clock, last night in St. Luke's Episcopal church, Roselle, Rev. Clarence Wood, the rector officiating.

The wedding was one of the most brilliant in recent years, more than twelve hundred guests being present at the ceremony and the reception which followed at the home of the bride's father. The church was elaborately decorated with palms and chrysanthemums, while the decorations at the house were chiefly southern smilax.

The bride was gowned in white crepe meteor, trimmed with white duchesse lace, which was worn by her mother. She wore a tulle veil and carried bride roses. The maid-of-honor was Miss Agnes Hume, of Roselle, whose gown was of yellow satin with white lace coat. The bride's matrons were Mrs. Leicester K. Davis, of Langhorne, Pa.; Mrs. H. Morton Pierson and the bridesmaids, Miss Marguerite Wolf, Miss Georgette Wolf, of Roselle, and Miss Carolyn G. Slauson, of Plainfield. They all wore gowns of white batiste, trimmed with lace. The maid-of-honor and bridesmaids carried pink roses.

The best man was A. Tredwell Slauson, of this city, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Dr. H. Morton Pierson, of Roselle; Leicester Knickerbacker Davis, of Langhorne, Pa.; Henry Pierson Decker, John Fowler Trow, of New York city; George Swift Trow, Jr., of East Orange and Walter Long, of this city.

For a half-hour prior to the ceremony, Miss Laura Hoagland, of Somerville, rendered a program of classical selections on the organ and she also played the wedding march as the bridal party entered and left the edifice. The bride was given in marriage by her father, the ceremony being performed with a ring.

The reception which followed at the home of the bride's father, was attended only by the immediate relatives and a few friends. After congratulations, supper was served by Caterer Davis, of Newark. Anton Gloeckner's orchestra, of Elizabeth, furnished the music for the reception.

The bride reecived about 200 gifts and in the exchange of gifts among the members of the bridal party, the bride received from the groom, a pearl necklace and pendant set with fire amyethists. The bride's gift to the groom was a saphire and diamond ring. The ushers received gold stick pins, the bridesmaids gold bar pins, the maid-of-honor a gold veil pin and the best man a stick pin set with corals and pearls.

After the reception, the couple left for an extended trip south. Upon their return they will reside at 103 Walnut street, Roselle. Mr Slauson holds a responsible position with the Enos Company, of New York, manufacturers of lighting fixtures. Both he and his bride are prominent in social circles and have a host of friends.

Local Properties Change Hands.

Charles H. Lyman, real estate broker, today sold for Mrs. F. A. Pope, of New York, the business property on North avenue, the lower floor of which is occupied by David J. Carney, the printer, to J. H. Conod, of New York city, for investment purposes. Mr. Lyman has also sold for Clarence E. Varian the latter's residence at 248 East Ninth street, to Herbert W. Stover, of this city, who will occupy the property.

Frank Carano Released.

Frank Carano, a barber of Scotch Plains, who was arrested yesterday on complaint of Lawrence Green, for alleged threatened assault and persecution of his daughter, was released this morning in the custody of Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church. The case will come before City Judge William Runyon on Monday morning.

The Papal Blessing.

Announcement is made by Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church that at the masses next Sunday morning he will bestow the papal blessing at each service. Father Bogan was given this dispensation on his visit to Pope Pius X in Rome last summer.

MISS MURPHY BRIDE OF W. FRANK BROWN

Miss Alice Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy, of 180 North avenue, was united in marriage to W. Frank Brown, of Cranford, at St. Mary's church at five o'clock last evening, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Bernard M. Bogan. Miss Elizabeth Mara, of this city, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Frederick Howell, of New York, the best man. The bride was attired in a green travelling gown, while the bridesmaid was gowned in wistaria with a hat to match.

Following the ceremony a reception was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Brown at the home of the latter's parents at which fifty guests were present. The bridal couple is now enjoying a trip to Niagara Falls and at its completion Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in this city until spring, when they will remove to Cranford, where the former is ticket agent for the C. R. R. of N. J. The bride is well known in this city and is a graduate of St. Mary's parochial school.

MISS MATTIE PERRINE BRIDE OF EDWD. MILLER

Miss Mattie Perrine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Perrine and Edward Miller, of this city, were married at the home of the bride's parents in Martinsville at 12 o'clock noon yesterday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. D. Harris, of Raritan, assisted by Rev. M. Oaksen, pastor of the Methodist church at Mt. Horeb.

The contracting parties were attended by Eleen Perrine and Miss Elizabeth Perrine, brother and sister of the bride.

The house was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums, palms and autmun leaves. The predominating decoration of the dinner table was yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride wore a traveling gown of Cunard blue chiffon broadcloth, made with a braided princess. Her hat was Cunard blue moire, with Unpeyen bird and gold trimming.

After the wedding dinner the couple left for a short wedding tour to be spent in Washington, and upon their return will take up their residence at 30 Duer street, this city.

Republicans Hold an Enthusiastic Rally and Hear County Candidates Speak.

JIM NUGENT IS HIT HARD.

Judge Hicks Urges Voters to Come Out on Election Day and Defends Freeholders.

Dunellen Republicans rallied to the support of their county and local ticket in large numbers at the mass meeting conducted in the borough hall last night. It was an enthusiastic gathering and at the close of the meeting, leader Wilson Fredericks predicted victory for county and local tickets all along the line.

Former Assemblyman Dr. Crowther, who is now a candidate for alderman-at-large in Perth Amboy, warmed the crowd up to a high pitch of enthusiasm when he denounced the bosses tactics of Jim Nugent, of Newark. Democratic campaign managers are shouting themselves hoarse over Republican bossism but Jim Nugent, the Newark pooh-bah is the king of them all,' declared Dr. Crowther. The speaker condemned Nugent's tactics in the Legislature during past years as a disgrace to the party who has accepted him as its leader.

Crowther punctuated his remarks with illustrations of Nugent's influence over Democratic legislators while the former served in the Assembly. After shooting his broadside against Nugent, Dr. Crowther urged all Republicans to come and vote on election day. "In Middlesex county," said the speaker, "it has always been the rule for the Republicans to remain at home and the Democrats to vote."

Judge Edwin W. Hicks, of New Brunswick, candidate for State Senator, also urged Republicans to get the full vote out. He called attention to the fact that next year a United States Senator will be elected and Republican State senators were essential to elect a representative to the national body. Judge Hicks also dwelt on county issues and highly condemned the administration and work accomplished by the freeholders. He refuted all Democratic charges against this body, and declared that the citizens of Dunellen and the entire county should feel proud of the fact that Middlesex county can boast of the best roads in the State, which is due to the judicious expenditure of funds by the freeholders.

Addresses were also made by former Senator W. H. C. Jackson, candidate for county clerk; Assemblyman R. P. F. vonMinden, of New Market, and W. A. Sandford, candidate for mayor. The latter declared that he had made no pledges and is under obligations to no set of bosses, and if elected, he would serve the borough to the best of his ability.

Wilson Frederick, who acted as chairman of the meeting, congratulated the voters on the spirit of harmony now prevailing in the ranks and declared that victory was in sight for next Tuesday. Mr. Fredericks also read letters of regret from Assemblyman W. C. Voorhees, of Cranbury, who is a candidate for re-election, and John Hanson, of Perth Amboy, who is also an assembly candidate. They were unable to be present on account of illness.

TO VOTE NEXT TUESDAY—IS IT IMPORTANT OR NOT?

(Contributed by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, by request of The Daily Press.)

Is it a privilege merely, like that of playing a game, or a duty like that of paying one's debts or maintaining one's family? Everybody will concede that under our system of government by the people, to vote at public elections is a duty, and one of high obligation. The penalty for its neglect falls not only on him who defaults, but on others as well, and if the time ever comes when the duty is habitually neglected by the people generally, that time will mark the beginning of the end of free government in this country.

The growing neglect of the duty to exercise the right of suffrage has become a crying evil in this State. The uncontradicted statement appearing in the public press that at the important election of last month, upon the question of the adoption of the proposed constitutional amendments, seventy-five voters out of every one hundred failed to vote at all is apalling.

The people of this State will pay a heavy penalty during the next five years for this neglect of one of the first duties of citizenship. Public opinion should denounce the neglect of the public duty to vote just as it now denounces the neglect to pay taxes or the infraction of the criminal code.

The press, the pulpit, the bar, the teacher and all men in business life who help mould public opinion will find few obligations of true patriotism more imperative at this time than that of pointing out the danger that threatens us, and arousing voters to avert it by registering their will at the ballot box at every election.

With two of the candidates among those to be voted for next Tuesday, I have had such professional relations during their present terms of office as to be able to speak from personal knowledge concerning their character and fitness. I refer to Frank H. Smith, candidate for register, and James C. Calvert, candidate for county clerk.

If any voter cares to know the result of my observation and experience, it is that these men have abundantly demonstrated their integrity, capacity and fidelity to public trust. Wholly aside from any question of rewarding them according to their just deserts, it is obvious, as it seems to me, that the interests of the public would be best subserved by availing of their ripe experience and the proved character and efficiency of these men by retaining them in their present positions.

HAS COWBOY TENDENCIES

Johnnie Blount Carries Unloaded Revolver and Sleeps Out Doors.

SAD HISTORY OF THE FAMILY.

Father Ran Away and Nothing Heard of Him Since, and Mother Is In Sanatorium at Glen Gardner.

John Blount, a homeless lad sixteen years old, was arrested as a vagrant last night and this morning before Judge Runyon in the city court he was allowed to go on his own recognizance to return on Monday morning and meet Probation Officer Erwin.

The boy has imbibed notions of the "Wild and Woolley" and had a revolver in his possession which he said he bought with his own money to celebrate on last Fourth of July. He had no intention of using the weapon and in fact it was not loaded. It is believed that if proper influences are brought to bear on the youth that he can be made into a useful citizen and it is Judge Runyon's intention to give him the chance to do so.

The history of the boy's life is a sad one and he is hardly to blame for the scrape he is in. His father abandoned the family about ten years ago, going, it is believed, to the Klondike and since then he has not been heard from. He left his wife with three small boys who have had to make their way unassisted and under very adverse circumstances.

The mother of the children is an inmate of the tuberculosis sanitorium at Glen Gardner and of course is unable to give the boys the home training they should have. Johnny has had to sleep wherever he could camp out of late and has been carrying the revolver evidently as a means of protection, even though it was empty.

Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, was an interested spectator in court this morning and found material for a sermon or two in the proceedings and the characters who came before the judge.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR EX-COUNCILMAN KREWSON.

A surprise party was given to former Councilman Frank G. Krewson by a large number of his friends at his home on Summit avenue last night. Instrumental and vocal music of a high order made up the entertainment part and progressive pinochle was a feature of the evening's enjoyment.

Refreshments were served and before departing at 2 o'clock this morning the guests congratulated Mr. Krewson on his birthday and wished him many happy returns of the day.

AFTER S. P. C. A. AGENT

Borough Officials Incensed Over Attitude of Miss Steel in Geer Case.

REFUSED TO ACT IN THE CASE.

State Agent Teed, of Newark, Came to Borough and Shot the Starving Animal this Morning.

Refusal on the part of Miss Mary Steele, of Somerville, counsel for the Somerset County S. P. C. A., to take action in the case of the horse, belonging to Charles Geer, of this city, which was discovered dying from starvation in the barn of Clifford Applegate in the borough, on Tuesday, has incensed Mayor Townsend and the borough officials to such a degree, that the State society officials will be asked to investigate the case.

Another chapter was added to the case today when Lewis C. Teed, State agent, came to the borough and after examining the horse, decided that the only thing to do was to shoot the animal. The horse was in a pitiable condition and all efforts to relieve its sufferings caused by a ten-day hunger failed.

State Agent Teed interested himself in the case at the behest of Miss Van Housen, of Fanwood, who is the Union county agent of the society. Recorder Dolliver journeyed to Somerville yesterday morning and after futile efforts to secure the co-operation of Miss Steele, he returned and after a conference with Chief Weiss, it was decided to appeal to Miss Van Housen, who took the matter up immediately. Miss Van Housen accompanied State Agent Teed and the borough officials and assisted in the investigation before the animal was shot.

Miss Steele's refusal to act, was on her claim that the S. P. C. A. had no jurisdiction in the case because the horse was found in the barn; if the animal was found on the street, she admitted, it would be her duty to take the case in hand.

In rebuttal to Miss Steele's views, State Agent Tweed declared that the society is empowered by the State law to break into a barn if necessary to enforce the law relative to cruelty to animals.

Mayor Townsend in talking on the matter this morning denounced the action of Miss Steele as outrageous. He declared she had no grounds or excuse to refuse to take charge of the case. The Mayor added that he hoped the proper authorities would conduct a rigid investigation.

RARITAN.

The Rev. Dr. William H. DeHart will attend the fortieth anniversary of the Trinity Reformed church in Newark on Sunday. Dr. De Hart was connected with Trinity church when it was a mission, and he was a student in Rutgers College.

The carting of large trees continues for the James B. Duke estate. Four horse loads go through Raritan each day.

WESTFIELD.

Farmers of Mountainside are considering the advisability of combining and hiring men to patrol their orchards to protect them from apple thieves. So bold have the apple thieves become that they drive into the orchards and take the apples away by the wagon load.

Rev. A. W. Hayes has announced that the services at the Methodist church next Sunday will be specially for old folks. The Epworth League will provide conveyances for those whose age makes it impossible for them to walk to church.

Tax Collector A. S. Clark has received the tax duplicate for the year from the Board of Assessors, and will commence sending ont tax bills next week.

PROVEN ECZEMA CURE.

A Trial Bottle of Oil of Wintergreen Compound is Offered at 25 Cents.

By a special arrangement with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago, we can at present offer the D. D. D. Prescription for eczema in a special trial bottle at one-quarter of its usual price. This oil of wintergreen compound will surely convince the most skeptical. With the first application you will get instant relief from the itch and soon you will see signs of cure.

No matter how many salves and other so-called skin remedies have failed, this oil of wintergreen liquid (unlike salves) will penetrate to the inner skin, killing the eczema germs. Will you not—on our special recommendation—call at our store?—and get a 25 cent trial bottle of D. D. D. Prescription.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Republicans held their rally in borough hall last night, and tonight the Democrats will hold forth. Senator Silzer and other county candidates will be on hand to address the meeting.

While registration has fallen off in nearly every municipality in the State, Dunellen shows an increase of 17 voters over last year. The registry this year is 490 as against 473 last year.

The rooms of the Republican club in the Kratsel building will be open every night until after election. The committee has placed a quantity of interesting literature on hand for the voters.

The Dunellen football eleven are working hard for the game with the Acorn A. C. scheduled for next Saturday. The latter is a strong aggregation and the locals expect a sharp tussle.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle, former pastor of the local Methodist church, will officiate at the sixtieth anniversary exercises of the Hackettstown M. E. church next Sunday.

George Jenner has entered his trotter in the Plainfield matinee races which are carded for next Saturday.

STATE LIBRARIANS ELECT.

Association Hears President Wilson and Dr. Van Dyke.

Princeton, Oct. 28.—The New Jersey Librarians' Association meeting was held at the Chancellor Green Library here yesterday, attended by about 150 representatives of library interests all over the State. There were three sessions, luncheon being served by the university in Murray Hall. The features of the day were the address of welcome by President Woodrow Wilson and a lecture by Dr. Henry Van Dyke in the evening.

The following officers were elected: President, H. F. Deats, of Flemington; vice-president, Miss Morris, of Summit; second vice-president, Miss Hazel Mulligan, of Perth Amboy; secretary, Miss Edna Pratt, of Trenton; treasurer, Miss Peters, of Bayonne.

Dr. Van Dyke took as his topic "The Reader, the Book and the Library." He said: "A private library is like a pantry in a dwelling house. When a couple sallies forth on the matrimonial venture they should begin stocking their intellectual pantry by selecting such books as they could read with profit at least three times. Nine-tenths of us live in a small circle. It is of great value for each one of us to know how others live and think."

Acknowledged Underwear Headquarters

of Plainfield.

Superior Stocks of the New Underwear

A complete line for Men, Women, Misses and Children can be selected from here.

We offer larger assortments than ever—all varities—the leading makes—and all good grades.

We emphasize the GOOD, because you are entitled to quality and on this important article of wear, regardless of the price you pay, and we sell GOOD knit underwear at all prices.

If the average store was as particular as we are to get sizes, textures, finish and shape of its underwear just right there would be no special reason for coming to us. But, we have a host of friends who know there is more comfort, better fit and more service in our underwear than in the ordinary kinds.

That's briefly our underwear story—but it's deserving of a more lengthy mention than that.

FIRST—You will find assembled here all the standard high grade brands of these knit goods you have been calling for year after year.

SECONDLY—We have larger stocks, which we obtained at lower prices than in any previous year.

THERE ARE MANY GOOD REASONS

why you should purchase your Corsets from this store.

FIRST—You have your choice of the standard makes like W. B., R. & G., Thompson's Glove Fitting, La Riene, Warner's Rustproof, Nemo, American Lady, C. B., Ferris Waists, De Bevoise Brassieres, the mention of whose names are a guarantee of their goodness.

SECOND—We carry all the newest models, the shapes well dressed women are demanding.

THIRD—Special care is given to fit. An ill-fitting corset, no matter how expensive, will absolutely fall short of all that a corset is purchased for.

To these very good reasons as to why your corsets should be bought here we have added one which will appeal irresistably to those who have a sense of the artistic.

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 26, with every Corset costing $1.00 or more, we will give a pretty little Souvenir, which will enchant you with its beauty—a bon bon dish, tray or vase, as you wish.

Come and see these dainty favors, view the new models in corsets, and see how well equipped we are to meet your needs.

Every morning there are lines of great drays, heaped high with boxes, and bales, and packages, standing on New street, awaiting their turn to unload their cargoes—wagons coming from every freight depot and express office all day long—and from a mighty elevator, carrying tons at a time, these goods are dumped into our great receiving room—equal in size to the combined receiving rooms of any other four Newark stores—which bulges with the great influx of fresh merchandise from all parts of the world—an army of people are engaged unpacking, sorting and marking goods, getting them ready to place on sale, a mighty effort being made to clear the floor daily so as not to dam up the never-ceasing stream of personal and home equipment for which this store is the great State headquarters.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Four silver cups valued at $100 and more than $200 in prizes and money have been offered to participants in the Hallowe'en pageant at Millville Saturday evening.

If a gunner in New Jersey forgets to carry his license when he goes in the field or woods to gun, he is likely to be debarred from gunning for the season and to have his license revoked. The first instance of the kind came before Justice Schmitz, of Camden, when Robert G. Williams, of 447 York street, was arraigned on complaint of Game Warden Folker. Williams was gunning for ducks and when a game warden asked for his license Williams recalled that he had left it home. He was then placed under arrest. The charge of illegal gunning was not proved, but Williams was obliged to pay $2.30, the cost of prosecution.

On the ground that it requires a majority of the whole body to confirm an appointment made by the Mayor, John Soffe is denied further right to hold a seat in the Audubon Borough Council. An opinion to that effect was filed in Camden Tuesday by Supreme Court Justice Garrison. Soffe was appointed by Mayor Carman to succeed Henry Jackner, and was confirmed by a majority of the remaining five members of the Council. Several citizens claimed that it required a majority of the whole Council, which consists of six members, and the matter was taken to the court. Since the contention arose the Legislature has passed a bill whereby an appointment can be confirmed by a majority vote of those at the meeting at which the nomination is presented, and the Council will in all probability again act on the Soffe appointment.

WILL PROBABLY GRANT WATER TO HIGH BRIDGE.

High Bridge, Oct. 28.—Harry R. Humphreys, of the State Potable Water Supply Commission, which inspected the proposed route for the new water extension for this place Tuesday, says that there seems to be no obstacle which would prohibit the board from granting the application for a municipal supply. The commissioners went along the stream for a distance of about two and a half miles, partly on foot and partly in a carriage. All the residents along the route seem to be favorably disposed toward the undertaking, and the commissioners who made the inspection will recommend that the application be granted when the matter comes up at the meeting of the entire board at Trenton next Tuesday.

The water will be taken from a spring creek and is particularly pure and agreeable to drink. This place intends spending about $30,000 to $35,000 for the supply, and as there are no further objections the work of establishing it will begin at an early date.

CO-OPERATION BETWEEN STEAM R. RS., TROLLEYS.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Whether steam railways shall co-operate physically, with electric lines is a question which has been presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and which is to be argued in Cincinnati, O., in a few days.

The case at issue is of unusual importance and significance because up to the present time the steam railroads of the country have refused absolutely to enter into any arrangements with electric lines for through routes and joint rates, either for freight or for passengers. The law does not explicitly require physical connection between two railroads—either steam or electric—but it has been the policy of the commission in interstate business to require such connection to be made between two steam roads where the conditions appear to demand, or even to warrant, the connection. The making of through routes and joint rates for both freight and passengers naturally follows the physical connection of the two roads.

Brewing Company Upheld.

Trenton, Oct. 28.—Holding that the People's Brewing Company has prevailed by the weight of the evidence as to the quality of its beer in its suit against Harris Levin and Samuel Levin, of this city, to enforce a five-year contract, Vice-Chancellor Walker filed in the Court of Chancery yesterday an opinion making absolute the rule requiring the Levin brothers to show cause why they should not be enjoined from selling any other beer than that brewed by the complaining company. The decision also gives the brewing company a preliminary injunction restraining the defendants from selling any other beer until the suit is finally determined.

President Wilson's Engagements.

President Woodrow Wilson's engagements for the next two months include an address at the eightieth anniversary of the McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, on November 2; an address before the Princeton Alumni Association of New England at Boston, November 13; an address before the City Club of Philadelphia, November 19, and another before the Philadelphia High School Teachers' Association, December 4. The New Jersey Teachers' Association will be addressed again by Dr. Wilson on December 28.

BARRED FROM GUNNING REST OF THE SEASON.

If a gunner in New Jersey forgets to carry his license when he goes in the field or woods to gun, he is likely to be debarred from gunning for the season and to have his license revoked.

The first instance of the kind came before Justice Schmitz, of Camden, when Robert G. Williams, of that city, was arraigned on complaint of Game Warden Folker. Williams was gunning for ducks, and when the game warden came along and asked for his license Williams recalled that he had left it home. He was then placed under arrest.

The charge of illegal gunning was not proved, but Williams was obliged to pay $2.30 the cost of prosecution.

"AVIATOR" ANDY MUIR'S "FLIGHT" 40 YEARS AGO

Recent flights of airship experts in New York and other parts of the country, revived the memories of W. W. Warnock to such a reminescent stage yesterday that he related an interesting narrative to a Daily Press reporter about the day when Andrew Muir, of Essex street, made an unsuccessful attempt to soar through the skies with a home-made airship of the latter's "patent."

The incident occurred nearly forty years ago and according to Mr. Warnock, "there was tremendous excitement in the village when it became known that 'Andy' Muir was going to make an attempt to fly off the roof of the former's father (the late Alec Warnock's barn, in the rear of the Warnock bakery, which at the time occupied the site where George Voehl's store is now located.

"Aviator" Muir announced that he would make the ascent on Friday afternoon, 2 o'clock, "on the dot." At the appointed hour nearly two hundred Plainfielders were on hand and "Andy" was also there, and there was no disappointment.

Assisted by several of the spectators "Andy" succeeded in getting the apparatus to the roof. It was a crude affair made of wire and wood. It was cage shape in appearance with a leather seat and "wings" made of heavy wire protruding from both sides.

At the crucial moment "Aviator" Muir made his way into the cage and strapped himself to the seat. Two boys fastened his arms to the "wings," and then the awe?stricken crowd looked on with expectancy.

"All right, I'm going up," shouted "Andy," "everybody be careful."

In three more seconds there was a crashing sound as "Andy" flopped his wire wings three times and struck the space. In a few more seconds Andy had descended to the ground in a pile of boxes and barrels, after a fifteen feet trip downward.

Luckily "Aviator" Muir escaped with a few minor bruises but the failure of this attempt discouraged him from making future flights.

According to "Historian" Warnock, "Andy's" sole comments after he alighted and found himself unharmed were:

"Cuss the luck I ought to have known better than to try to fly on a Friday."

Proctor's New Show.

Beginning today at Proctor's theatre will be seen "Bonita," the remarkable trained horse. Introduced by her educator, Stuart Maguire, the wonderful horse counts, divides, subtracts and adds rows of figures with the speed of a graduate of Plainfield's business school. She flirts with the women, picks out good looking ones in the audience and generally is amusing. She is very affectionate and is really an equine beauty. A fine dramatic comedy sketch by Miss Sydney Shields & Co., some very funny talk by Lew Worth and clever dancing by Gardner West & Sunshine, combine an attractive program.

GRAPE WINE.

This wine can be made from cultivated or wild grapes, the wild grape making a richer wine. For medical purposes it is preferable to nine-tenths of the wine sold. With age it is excellent.

Take twenty pounds of ripe, fresh-picked and selected grapes. Put them into a stone jar, and pour over them six quarts of boiling water. When sufficiently cool to allow it, squeeze them thoroughly with the hand. Let them stand three days on the pomace. Then press out the juice, add ten pounds of granulated sugar or four pound to the gallon, and let remain a week longer in the jar. Strain and bottle, leaving a vent until done fermenting, when strain again. Bottle and seal. The last straining if possible, should be done through a wad of cotton in a glass funnel, which would properly be termed filtering. All sediment must be removed in order to keep the good, pure flavor. The sugar, if dissolved in water and cooked until a rich syrup and then blended with the juice, will quicken the process of fermentation.

Time to Get.

Percy—Dearest, let me be the star of your life.

Peggy—You'd better go, Percy. I hear father approaching.

Percy—Oh! but I feel brave tonight. I shall be your star, even if he does come.

Peggy—Yes, but you had better travel on your orbit while you have time.

that tea tax they went at him in such a way that fragments of his whiskers were found all along the Atlantic coast, and were sighted as far East as the Orkney Islands.

"Boston Harbor, as far out as Bug Light, even today is said to be carpeted with tea-grounds.

"They twisted the tail of the brave British lion till his yelps could be heard from the Everglades of Florida to Puget Sound.

"Lord North, the lion keeper, cried like a child when he beheld what was left of the sorrel mane and tail of that once king of beasts of the American forest.

"After our fathers once got a fair hold of that tail it was not carried high longer but worn low shorter for its pride and pomp and royal arch were quick snuffed out like an old tin lantern in a gale of wind.

"Our fathers were 'stern men with empires in their brains.' They said 'a day, an hour of virtuous liberty is worth a whole eternity of bondage.' They were heroes who knew that 'war is hell;' but who deemed that slavery to men of pride is hell with the devils multiplied.' They would bite the dust rather than surrender the principle of popular sovereignty—of home rule.

"Where now is the manly spirit of the fathers? They faced a royal lord on the British throne. We face the select and educated classes in the Senate and Assembly at the State House.

"They said 'resistance to tyrants is obedience to God.' We cower and cringe before our select and educated classes at Trenton and when they tell us in one legislature that we haven't sense enough to govern ourselves, we send them back to the next Legislature to repeat the insult.

"To assume that they stand in awe of the distiller, or bow to the behests of the brewer, or take orders from the dram vender, or defer to the political power of the cloak room, or worship at the shrine of mammon would be to reflect upon their honor and patriotism. No, they pity our imbecility. They commiserate our stupidity.

"In their eyes, we are mutton heads. Do you see the point? We want to vote, they don't want us to vote. If they wanted us to vote, we would vote. They don't want us to vote and we don't vote and though they are our servants and we are their masters, the servants tell the masters what not to do, and they do it not.

"The brewer does not want us to vote; but that is not the reason why our legislators do not want us to vote.

"The distiller does not want us to vote; but that is not the reason why our legislators do not want us to vote.

"The political boss does not want us to vote; but that is not the reason why our legislators do not want us to vote.

"The teacher in the public school does want us to vote; but that is not the reason why our legislators do not want us to vote.

"The minister of the Gospel does want us to vote, but that is not the reason why our legislators do not want us to vote.

"The sorrow stricken mother of a drunken son does want us to vote but that is not the reason why our legislators do not want us to vote.

"What then is the reason? Our representatives do not trust us.

"I speak now of those who had no confidence in the people and who used their influence to defeat the people's bill.

"But there was a man in the Senate last winter who had faith in the people. A man who for six years has stood a powerful and incorruptable champion of their rights. A man who can neither be bribed nor intemidated. A man who in the Senate forgets not the promise made upon the stump.

A man who realizes that his official oath covers the poor man's hut as well as the rich man's palace This man did not consider that his duty to the people was discharged when he cast his vote for the local option bill, but with burning eloquence and iron logic he pleaded in its behalf.

"I ask you to commend that kind of principle and that kind of service by returning William C. Gebhardt to the Senate of New Jersey by a vastly increased majority."

POUND SOCIAL AT CHURCH OF THE HEAVENLY REST.

The Women's Guild of the Church of the Heavenly Rest held a "pound social" in the parish house last night which was well attended considering the stormy weather. The packages which were supposed to weigh a pound and which entitled one to admission, were auctioned off by Mr. Babcock and netted quite a sum which is to be devoted to missionary work among the mountaineers of Tennessee.

Vocal selections were rendered by the Misses Laura Long and Grace Squires. It was the intention to have had a dance after the refreshments were served, but owing to the scarcity of young men and women this was abandoned. The affair was a success financially.

ENGULFED IN OLD MINE.

Boy Swallowed Up, but Men Dig Him Out.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 28.—One of the many subsidences of the surface over old mine workings which have been doing much damage in Edwardsville, near here, yesterday engulfed 10-year-old Hugh Hughes. Several other children had narrow escapes.

While playing in Centre street, the youngsters felt the ground giving way beneath their feet and ran. Young Hughes was swallowed up, however, only the heel of his shoe being seen. Some miners risked their lives by jumping into the hole and effected a remarkable rescue, getting the boy out alive but unconscious, and, as he was injured internally by the weight of the earth which covered him, he is in a critical condition.

A Scientist's Aerial Dream.

At a meeting of the New Jersey State Microscopical Society, held at Rutgers College Monday night, Professor Julius Nelson, State biologist, in a lecture on aerial navigation, prophesied that within a few years any one would be able to ascend and descend in the air without the aid of aeroplanes or similar machines, but by the use of what he termed a skycycle. "Why not manufacture wings something on the order of those of birds, and have them controlled by the leg muscles of the human being?" asked Professor Nelson. "Scientists have not been giving this much thought, but I believe that within a short time people will be able to go into the air any time they want to. Just take the wings out of your pocket and ascend. When you come down fold them up and put them in your pocket."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

In "The Widow's Might," which Lillian Russell will present at the Plainfield theatre on Saturday, the star will be seen in the most captivating play she has appeared in since she left comic opera and went in for straight comedy work. The story was written for her by Edmund Day,

Lillian Russell,
In "The Widow's Might," at Plainfield Theatre Next Saturday.

whose past successes are warrant of his ability as a playwright. In his latest he has served a dual purpose. First he has evolved a charming story, and secondly he has written it around Miss Russell so cleverly that she appears to better advantage than in anything undertaken to date.

The scenes of Owen Davis' thrilling melodrama, "Deadwood Dick's Last Shot," which will be seen here at the Plainfield theatre, November 2, and which Charles H. Wurz declares to be one of his best attractions, are laid in the Golden West.

LADY COOK IS SUED FOR $30,000 BY H. C. SILVER.

New York, Oct. 28.—Harry C. Silver, a former newspaper writer and once her secretary, has brought an action in the Supreme Court against Lady Cook, the noted English suffragist, recently arrived in this country, to recover $30,000 damages for an alleged breach of contract. Lady Cook Tuesday engaged Coudert Brothers to defend the suit.

Silver is said to base his suit on the fact that for several years he did work for Lady Cook in connection with certain books that she contemplated putting on the market, containing her views on woman's right to vote. It was said that he not only supplied her with his literary ability, but that he also wrote several articles for her which appeared in the newspapers here and abroad.

In 1907 there appeared in the local newspapers several articles signed by Silver, in which Lady Cook's character and good works were discussed. It was learned that one of the books on which Silver collaborated with her never was published.

NARROW ESCAPE IN RUNAWAY.

Summit, Oct. 28.—Thrown from a light trap in which he was riding in Passaic avenue Tuesday afternoon, George H. Williams, one of this city's wealthiest residents, escaped serious injury by a close margin. Mr. Williams was driving a spirited horse, and when he attempted to pass a heavy stone wagon driven by Henry Kucher, of Chatham, his vehicle collided with the wagon.

The front wheel of the trap was torn off, and Mr. Williams pitched over the dashboard. He landed with much force on the macadam roadway, but when picked up by Dr. R. D. Baker, who happened along, was found to have escaped with only painful bruises. Mr. Williams suffered much from the shock, and was taken to his home in Springfield avenue in the physician's automobile.

Purse Given to Penniless Woman.

Bayonne, Oct. 28.—Declaring that she was penniless and without food for her three children because her husband was unable to get work as a bricklayer, Mrs. John Larkin appealed for aid at police headquarters yesterday. A purse was made up for her by a number of men in the courtroom and Mrs. Larkin said she would take her children to her mother's home in New Durham. She said her husband had been dropped from the local bricklayers' union because he was behind in his dues.

No Clue to Hardin Assailants.

Long Branch, Oct. 28.—An inquest will be held over the death of William Hardin, the Morganville farmer, who died Tuesday at the Monmouth Memorial Hospital as the result of the beating he received on October 2 from two unknown colored men. There were no witnesses to the assault, and although the prosecutor's office has kept up a diligent search, up to the present time not a single clue has been received.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 31, 1909.

Topic.—Heroes of missions in the islands.—Isa. xxxii, 1-4; 16-20.

The striking mission verse of these paragraphs is: "Blessed are ye that sow by all waters, that send forth thither the feet of the ox and ass" (Isa. xxxii, 20). Palestine had its dry and wet seasons. In the dry season the soil of the banks and nearby land became baked and hard from the sun. When the approach of rain was discerned this hardened land was broken up by "the feet of the ox and the ass." Seed was scattered, and when the torrents came and the streams overflowed their banks the seed sank into the softened soil and brought forth fruit. But the prophet here praises breadth of sowing—"beside all waters." The reason is clear. If the sowing were limited in extent the place selected might for some reason be unfruitful. But if it were sowed along all banks and streams it could not all be unproductive; hence he would be blessed or happy who "sowed beside all waters," for he would be assured of a crop somewhere, if not at one place, then at another. The same principle applies to the sowing of spiritual seed—the word of God.

It must be sowed everywhere, beside all waters, for we know not where it will produce results and where it will not. God alone knows this, and He assures us that our sowing will not be in vain. Some seed may fall on the beaten path, some among thorns, some on the rocks, but some in a worldwide scattering will fall upon good ground and bring forth good fruit.

If we sow beside all waters the islands cannot be neglected, for they are entirely surrounded by water. Moreover, they have had special need of the gospel. Living almost alone in scattered parts of the great deep, islanders have usually sunk to the lowest depths of moral and spiritual degradation. The lowest forms of civilization and of religion have existed among them. Cannibalism has widely prevailed. Vessels from other parts of the world have been wrecked, and those aboard have been cruelly mistreated and murdered. Such being the state of affairs, they who have carried the gospel to many islands have been heroes indeed. All may be called "heroes of missions." Many of them have faced death frequently, and many today wear the crown of martyrdom. John Williams was a heroic island missionary as well as the pioneer in the work. In 1816 he went to the Society islands, and later, while trying to sow the gospel seed in the New Hebrides, was murdered by the natives, who mistook him for a cruel trader. Patterson, the bishop of Melanesia, was put to death by the natives.

John G. Paton passed through untold horrors in the New Hebrides and more than once stood face to face with death. Lyman and Munson in 1834 went to the East Indies and were almost immediately murdered by the inhabitants of Sumatra. Robert Chalmers labored in New Guinea for years in constant danger from cannibals and poisoners. At last he was murdered by a tribe on his first visit to them with the gospel. These are only a few names of the long roll of heroes of missions to islands. Yet their endurance of perils and death should lead us to reconsecrate ourselves to the cause of missions by all waters.

The heroism of these and other brave men has been wonderfully successful. They died, but the seed they planted lived and produced abundant results. Paul's first missionary fruits were among the islanders of Cyprus. England was transformed from barbarism by the gospel. Paton in his long life of service in the New Hebrides did great things for God and his benighted island people. The conversion of the islands of New Zealand, Madagascar, the south sea islands and Hawaii illustrates the miracles of modern missions. In the least expected places God has wrought His most wonderful works. What an encouragement this should be to missionaries and their supporters!

Future of Christian Endeavor.

Secretary William Shaw at the St. Paul Christian Endeavor convention said: "The future of the great Christian Endeavor movement is in God's hands, as all the glorious past has been. We believe in it and pledge ourselves to its advancement. We seek the sympathetic co-operation of every pastor and Christian worker, that its faults may be minimized, its virtues magnified and its possibilities realized, so that all the youth of our churches shall be in training for the King's business, in order that His kingdom may come and His will be done in earth as it is in heaven."

Two Nuggets.

The Christian Endeavor society is the training school of the church as the Sunday school is the teaching school of the church.—Dr. F. E. Clark.

Christian Endeavor seeks simply to assist the church in the doing of the church's work, and all the training for service means training for the service of Christ through the church.—Rev. John Pollock.

In Training.

Christian Endeavor is training young people to use their money for church work. One society has recently invested in a printing press and will do the church advertising; another has bought a stereopticon, which the pastor will use in his Sunday evening services.

WELLS IN THE DESERT

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

"Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee; in whose heart are the highways; who passing through the valley of Baca, make it a well;" 84:56.

The desert usually lacks but one thing to make it a garden. In southern climes it has light, heat and often very fertile soil. Water is the one need. And frequently there is abundance of water a few feet beneath the surface, rivers that flow through their hidden channels. The thirsty traveler has only to dig deep enough and he will find the cool, refreshing stream.

Christians come to desert valleys of Baca in their experiences and there is a process by which the wells may be made and their thirsty, drooping spirits refreshed. The secret is in the words, "Blessed is the man whose strength is in thee, in whose heart are the highways." No human strength can dig such a well. It is our reliance upon the strength of God that makes a well in the desert, and if in our hearts are the highways of love, peace and joy the well will never go dry.

Sin wastes and withers every flower and shrub. After the murder of Abel the ground refused to bring forth its fruits for Cain, and up to that time he was a prosperous farmer. Sin made earth a desert for him. A prosperous merchant forges the name of his rich neighbor to just one check; his reputation for honesty is lost and his business goes to pieces. Sin has made a desert for him. The home which is a very garden of God can be turned into a desert by sin. A life as fair as the flowers of spring can be turned into a desert full of loathsome reptiles. Drink, lust, lying, any sort of sin, can turn any life-garden of purity and beauty into a desert of vileness and moral ugliness.

But a well can be made even in the desert caused by sin. "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." Confession digs the well of forgiveness and cleansing, which fills our souls with the refreshing waters of peace and joy. "He that believeth on the son hath everlasting life." Faith in Christ digs in our hearts the well which springs up into eternal life. "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world." A vision of Christ as sin bearer digs in our hearts the well of consciousness that the sin question has been settled, our guilt is removed and "there is, therefore, now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus."

A friend of mine, prosperous in his profession, discovered that he had a bad case of tuberculosis, and, leaving his beautiful home, went to Arizona to seek health, while his business fell to pieces. Life, at first, seemed a desert waste; but when I saw him a few weeks ago he was drinking of the waters in the wells of resignation and patience, which God on whose strength he leaned had made in this desert experience, and in his heart were the highways of faith, hope and joy. There lived in New York city a young woman who had given herself to Christ, and was anxious to be useful. But disease paralyzed her body, so that she could not rise from her bed, though she could use her hands in writing. For more than 40 years she lived in a little brick cottage without leaving her room a single time. The city of New York built its high houses around this little cottage with its helpless invalid, and the friends who would see her must pass through the side door of a saloon. It was like going through hell to reach heaven. That room of invalidism was a holy of holies, a miniature paradise. One could easily imagine the rustle of angels' wings as he listened to the mellow, sweet voice from the pillow telling of God's abiding presence with her, and when she prayed it was like friend talking with friend, so real that when you opened your eyes and looked up you almost expected to see God with whom she spoke. The rich and learned came to that little room for comfort and strength, while the poor of the neighborhood knew who was their best friend, and every Christmas the turkey came as the gift of the Christ child through her. Men and woman who believed in the power of God to heal urged her to seek healing of him, but she refused, saying that it was clearly revealed to her that her mission was to witness the fact that one can be sick and at the same time happy and useful. God was her strength and in her heart were the highways of contentment and joy. The faith and love of Bella Cooke made wells in the desert of invalidism from which her own soul drank.

God never fails to hear the prayer of him whose strength he is and in whose heart are his highways. The seeming evils from beneath combine with the good from above to bless him. "Get right with God" through Jesus Christ, keep right through constant fellowship with him and every [illegible] will have its well, while the showers of grace from above will refresh your soul.

FACTORY GIRLS ON STRIKE GIVE UP THE FIGHT.

The assertion that Frederick Hirschhorn, vice-president of the Hirschhorn, Mack & Co. cigar factory, at New Brunswick, will close his factory indefinitely unless the strikers return to work, has caused most of the striking girls to weaken.

Of the 1,500 employes all are ready to return but 100 Hungarian girls, it was asserted yesterday, but these 100 are such strong characters that the others are afraid of them. The Polish girls wanted to return yesterday, but the superintendent told them that they could not return until all of the strikers were willing to go back to work. There was no disorder about the factory yesterday and only a few pickets were on duty.

The company issued a statement yesterday to the effect that the girls are the best paid female help in the State and that their grievances are unfounded. The average cigarmaker makes over $10 a week, the company claims, while the experts make twice as much or more.

It is believed that before the week is over that the factory will be running as usual.

STATE JUNIOR MECHANICS OPEN THEIR CONVENTION.

Trenton, Oct. 28.—The annual convention of the State council of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics was convened here yesterday, with a large attendance of delegates from all parts of the Commonwealth.

State Councilor Grafton E. Day made a number of radical recommendations, among them one advising the consolidation of the State Council and Funeral Benefit Association, of the order of which the Rev. J. Morgan Read, D. D., president of Pennington Seminary, is the head. This, Mr. Day says, would effect a saving of upwards of $8,000 a year. Mr. Day also recommended the publication of an official State organ.

William H. Miers, of this city, State council secretary, reported 297 councils in the State, with a total membership of 30,717. The present financial worth of all the councils is $1,008,955.05, a gain for the past year of $94,710.06. The receipts of the past year amounted to $671,153,34, and the disbursements aggregated $662,384.25.

WOMEN HEAR ABOUT WORK OF MISSIONS.

Morristown, Oct. 28.—The twenty-ninth annual meeting of the Women's Presbyterial Missionary Society of the Presbytery of Morris and Orange began its sessions yesterday morning in the South Street Presbyterian church. An address was made by Rev. F. W. Bible, in service in China, who told of Christian education in that country. Rev. G. H. Potter, missionary to Persia, told what had been accomplished there.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. G. W. B. Cushing. About 200 delegates were present.

FASTEST BIG WARSHIP.

Official Report Gives Speed of Delaware 21.563 Knots.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The official speed of the battleship Delaware, which had her standardization trial off Rockland, Me., several days ago, was 21.563 knots per hour, according to the report received by the Navy Department yesterday from the board of inspection and survey, the members of which supervised the trial. She used 53,945 pounds of coal per hour. Her main engines developed an indicated horsepower of 28,578.

Members of the board say the Delaware is the most economical ship which has been built, and that she can steam at a rate of nineteen knots an hour without any difficulty. The Delaware is the first one of the Dreadnoughts of the United States navy, and has a displacement of 21,000 tons. Her contract speed is twenty-one knots per hour.

LED POSSE AFTER BOOTH.

Death of James Lucas, Who Helped Capture Assassin.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28.—James Lucas, aged 80 years, who was guard at the Old Capitol prison in Washington during the Civil War, and played an important part in the capture of J. Wilkes Booth, slayer of Abraham Lincoln, is dead in this city.

On the night President Lincoln was assassinated Lucas was on duty. He was the leader of the posse that followed Booth. When the slayer of the President was killed and his body returned to Washington, it was Lucas who was appointed to guard it. He watched the body in the prison and on a gunboat after the body had been removed from the prison under cover of darkness. Later he was on the staff of officers who held the court-martial over the remaining conspirators.

Cap Told Story of Drowning.

Phillipsburg, Oct. 28.—Joseph Adams, four years old, son of Mrs. John Adams, of this place, was drowned in the Morris Canal at this place Tuesday evening. The appearance of the lad's cap on the water told the story, and the body was recovered by Joseph Sanderson. The mother of the child saw him in front of their home at 4 o'clock. Rumors that a colored lad pushed the child into the water are being investigated by the police.

It is empowered by law to act in all respects as might an individual, but possesses every quality of desirability that the individual lacks. The fees are never more than are allowed to an individual. Furthermore, owing to its excellent facilities for handling the business, and for making prompt and proper investments of surplus funds, it can often reduce the expense of administration and thereby increase the value of the estate.

Carriages Collide on North Avenue.

Two carriages, one driven by John Kennedy, and the other by Frank Creager, of the Plainfield Cab Company, were in collision on North avenue, between 5 and 6 o'clock last night. Kennedy's rig was considerably damaged, and it is said the occupants, whose names cannot be learned, were slightly injured.

THE MAKING UP OF VELVET.

Velvet is to be such a very good material for the winter that some points toward its manufacture into the afternoon costume should be understood.

It is highly necessary to avoid handling the half-made gown whether it be velvet or velveteen. There is a certainty which counts for much in the result.

To acquire this certainty, it is advisable to make a perfectly fitted model of your velvet gown or suit in canton flannel, to rop it and use it as a pattern, and thus to save an excess of handling in the fitting of the velvet.

Pinning is a great source of difficulty, each pin leaving its mark upon the nap of the velvet. Only round-headed black pins should be used for what fitting remains after this cautious beginning.

Basting requires care, because the threads, when drawn too tightly, will press a line into the surface. They should be removed only after clipping each stitch, so that there will be no long pull to cause this defect.

The pressing of velvet being quite out of the question, a substitute is demanded to replace the flatiron. The kitchen poker is one very ordinary weapon. A long velvet seam, turned with its wrong side up, is first pinned by its one end to a heavy ironing board and then held in midair, and the point of the slightly heated poker is run evenly along the line of sewing, just sufficiently to press the seam apart.

It is quite inconceivable that any one, not knowing these slight first helps, would undertake the making of velvet.

A Palm Suggestion.

Before taking the palms which have been outdoors during the summer into the house, carefully examine the back of every leaf to see if there are any scale bugs. If these tiny brown spots are in evidence, remove them with a blunt toothpick, so as to do as little harm as possible to the texture of the plant.

After the Orient.

The women of Paris are hiding, but only behind their veils. Some of the bravest among the output for this veil season that threatens are so thick in their weave and so enormous in pattern that the wearer is almost hidden behind them.

MANY CLEVER TRICK PLAYS.

"Clam-Diggers" Amazed at Brilliant Work of Plainfield Boys —Hard-fought Contest.

The Plainfield High School football team defeated Perth Amboy High School on Hope Common, yesterday afternoon by a score of 11 to 6. Both teams put up a fine game, but Plainfield's trick plays were too much for the "clam-diggers." The Amboy backs were all good players and did fine line hitting, but were utterly at loss when trick plays were called.

Schwartz, Hultz and Crowell played the best game for the visitors and Riffert and Doane distinguished themselves by their touchdowns for P. H. S. The line held the heavy Amboy backs well and Smith made some fine line plays. Phillips played a star game at end.

The game started with Plainfield making a short kick to the right. Phillips caught the ball and ran with it to the 10 yard line. Then the local boys tried line hitting. Riffert kicked and Amboy recovered the ball, but was soon held for downs. P. H. S. tried a forward pass and fumbled it. Amboy tried a forward pass, but Riffert ran out and caught the ball, running it to a touchdown.

Plainfield then kicked off and the Amboy man ran with the ball to the fifteen-yard line. They tried line hitting and then fumbled the ball. Ricketts recovered it and P. H. S. made twelve yards on a pass to Phillips. When time was called, the ball was one yard from goal.

In the second half, Amboy kicked off and Clark ran with the ball for twenty yards. A poor forward pass was then tried and P. H. S. was penalized. Clark then punted and Ramsey downed the Amboy man on the 30-yard line. They then tried an end run on which Carpenter lost the ball on a fumble. Clark next worked a forward pass to Doane, and Ricketts followed with a nine yard line plunge.

P. H. S. was then penalized on a poor forward pass. Clark kicked and Doane picked up the ball, ran 35 yards, making a touchdown. Phillips kicked the goal. Amboy kicked off and P. H. S. lost on a fumble. Amboy then settled down to end runs and line plunging and Crowell made a touchdown. He kicked the goal. In the remaining few minutes the ball went back and forth between the teams, neither side gaining much ground. The lineup:

P. H. S.		P. A. H. S.
Phillips	right end.	Allen
VanZandt	right tackle.	Swartz
Widowson	right guard.	Levy
Bellows	centre.	Greison
Thompson, Ramsey	left guard.	Carcas
Carpenter	left tackle.	Polensky
Doane	left end.	Burns
Nash, Bristol	right halfback.	Seel
Riffert, Clark	quarterback.	Kennedy
Ricketts	left halfback.	Crowell
Smith	fullback.	Hultz

Time of halves, 20 minutes each; referee, Phillips; timer, Woodhull; linesman, Parker.

BOWLING.

Johnny Campbell's leadership in the individual tourney was not of very long duration, being ousted last night when he lost to Nash, and Chief Kiely again holds the premier position.

Nash was in good form last night for besides defeating Campbell, he also won from Schaub.

In the Schaub-Campbell series the latter won out. The scores:

Nash	194	155	213
Campbell	162	182	181
Nash	209	195	196
Schaub	181	195	185
Schaub	212	158	209
Campbell	193	167	216

LLOYD THOMPSON REPLIES

Reported Attitude of Candidate Toward School Funds Denied.

ANSWERS PREST. JR. O. U. A. M.

Says He Did Not Neglect Communication from President Moon and Wants Voters to Know It.

Editor, The Daily Press:

"I am informed that a circular letter is about to be issued by the Union County Association of the Jr. O. U. A. M. to the members of the various councils of that order, stating that I have been requested by the representatives of the order to state my position as a candidate for member of Assembly concerning the question of diversion of moneys from the State school fund, and that I have failed to comply with the request. I understand that the letter urges such failure as a reason for opposing my election to the Assembly.

"As the facts are distinctly contrary, I ask that in fairness to my candidacy and in the interest of truth you publish this statement from me.

"I received on October 15th a letter signed by J. D. Moon, as president of the Union County Association of the Jr. O. U. A. M., requesting a statement of my position upon the question mentioned. On October 18th I sent the following letter in reply:

"October 18, 1909.

J. D. Moon, Esq.,
Pres. Union Co. Assn. Jr. O. U. A. M., Plainfield, N. J.

"Dear Sir—I have your letter of the 15th instant, inquiring concerning my attitude, as a candidate for member of the General Assembly of New Jersey, upon the question of the diversion of moneys from the public school fund.

"I am personally very much interested in educational matters, and in the maintenance of the high standard of the public school system of this State. I am opposed to any proposition tending to diminish the efficiency of the school system in any respect. I should, therefore, oppose any measure to divert the public school funds.

"Yours very truly,
"LLOYD THOMPSON.

"This letter was dictated by me to my stenographer, written out by her, and signed by me. I mailed it personally to the person and address named the same day, in a properly stamped and addressed envelope, with my return address in the corner of the envelope. I have since inquired at the Plainfield postoffice to see if the letter had by any chance been held up, and I am told it must have been delivered.

As a further and indisputable proof that I had no hesitation in expressing my views on the subject of State school moneys, I call attention to the fact that on last Thursday night, only three days after the above letter was mailed, I discussed the same subject in a speech before a well attended political meeting at Rahway, at which reporters were present, in which speech I emphatically and unequivocally reiterated my views and plainly stated that I would vote against any measure designed to divert State school funds from the use of the public school.

"I have the greatest respect for the Jr. O. U. A. M. as an organization, and for its objects and aims, and I feel confident that the spirit of Americanism upon which it is founded and meant to be conducted will dictate a correction of the serious mistake that has been made in connection with my attitude upon the important subject in which the order is interested in this campaign.

"Yours very truly,
"LLOYD THOMPSON."

ENGLAND'S PRE-EMINENCE

In Literature and Art, She Has Led the World for Centuries.

JOHN BUTLER YEATS' LECTURE.

Helped to Greatness by Ireland—The End of Life Is Neither Virtue Nor Happiness.

A society event of importance last night served to introduce to a select Plainfield audience John Butler Yeats, R. H. A., the famous Irish lecturer and reader. Mr. Yeats spoke of his impressions of England, Ireland and America, of which only a brief resume may be given here. The quaint humor of the man is indescribable. The natural wit of the true Irishman is his to the last degree and the points made in his descriptions of types of the three nationalities created the feeling that Mr. Yeats had not only observed, but had retained his impressions to a remarkable degree.

Mr. Yeats told his audience in the beginning of his lecture that if they were looking for statistics they would be disappointed as he was an impressionist, an artist, if you will. England, with the help of Ireland, he said, has established the great colonial empire over which she holds sway. She has produced the greatest literature in the world as well as the greatest landscape painter, Turner. The literature was produced under the power of Mediaevalism and its traditions. Puritanism was disastrous to England, although it made her great commercially and destroyed her affection. Bunyan twisted every text in the Bible to turn it to ignominy. He liked to pitch upon some little quality and build a structure to show human nature in its most pathetic phase.

England was great because she adopted the doctrine of liberty but she robbed her neighbors henroosts and retreated behind her own natural bulwarks. In England they lived in those days in happy liberty and out of it sprang John Bull's present selfishness. Not having any altruistic feelings John Bull doesn't want anything to change. He wants it as it is for himself. It was a time of curious isolation when each man lived for and by himself. That was England's merry time, but Puritanism came in and spoiled the whole scheme. With commerce entered distrust and suspicion and on a recent visit to England Mr. Yeats was surprised to discover that every man hated his neighbor. They hold Wordsworth as the parish priest, but the "encircling gloom" is not relieved.

Speaking of America Mr. Yeats said that nobody can forsee what the nation will come to. Her destiny is hidden. "You are living under incessant change," he said, "and continual alterations are going on among you. The reason America is to have a fine race is that the people who come to your shores are from the peasantry, and the European peasant is the sturdiest class of people in the world, for weaklings among them are soon snuffed out and only the strong survive. He compared the American woman to Rosetti's Kate Barlass, a type of strong, capable and handsome women the finest in the world. Du-Maurier drew his pictures of women too tall.

Four things that Mr. Yeats mentioned as being desirable were freedom of mind, idleness, and plenty of it, conversation, and plenty of it and the love of the drama of life. He touched on the religious relationships of the different races and said he could never understand the usefulness of saints. Religion, he said, without the supernatural constitutes literature. The end of life is neither virtue nor happiness, but growth.

FUNNY POLITICAL MIX-UP

Democrat on the Republican Ticket and a Republican on the Democratic Ticket.

IT'S IN FANWOOD TOWNSHIP.

Scotch Plains Doesn't Know What to Make of It but It is All Perfectly Legal Just the Same.

Political circles in Scotch Plains are a bit perplexed over the workings of the State primary law and on election day there will be surprises in store for voters when they discover the names of Democrats on Republican tickets and vice versa. Failure to interpret the provisions of the law correctly has resulted in numerous red hot arguments on the subject. In some cases the discussions waxed so hot that the contending debaters placed wagers on their respective opinions, and as a result several interested parties invaded offices of local lawyers yesterday to get a legal decision on the matter.

On the Republican tickets that were delivered to the township officials yesterday is the name of John Z. Hetfield, the Democratic candidate for tax collector. At the primary election, the Republicans had no candidate on their ticket, but Edwin H. Pierson's name was used freely on the pasters, but when the ballots were counted, it was found that Hetfield had more votes on the G. O. P. ticket than Pierson. Despite this, it was the general impression at the time, that Pierson's name would appear on the general election ballots.

The same conditions are likely to prevail in the case of assessor where a Republican's name will appear on the Democratic ticket when they are issued. At the primary election, George Johnson's name appeared on the Republican ballot, while the Democratic ticket was blank. Former Assessor Charles French, however, was given several votes on the Democratic ticket as was also Johnson. The latter received a majority over French on the Jeffersonian ticket, and this will result in the unique situation of a Republican leader's name appearing as a candidate on an official Democratic election ballot next Tuesday.

Such a condition of affairs is most unusual and is the first instance of its nature in this section of The State. The law as interpreted by a local legal light today, in response to an inquiry by a Daily Press reporter, that conditions as now existing at Scotch Plains are quite possible under the new law.

According to the law the candidate who gets a majority vote at a primary election, whether it be a Republican on a Democratic ticket, or a Democrat on the Republican ticket the name of the successful candidate is put on the election tickets.

STOVER TRAVELS FAR TO CLAIM HIS BRIDE.

Two thousand miles, all the way from Plainfield to McPherson, Kansas, is the trip Stephen Augustus Stover, of this city, took to claim his bride, Miss Mabel Irene Leech, daughter of Mrs. Linden H. Leech, of that place. Cards announcing the wedding were received by friends of the bridegroom in this city today. The ceremony was performed last Monday at the home of the bride and was attended by more than one hundred guests.

MEN'S CLUB WORKS FOR MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT

Active warfare for more improvements in the line of electric lights, better streets, and more police service in the extreme western section of the city was inaugurated last night by the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest. In an address to the members, president John Babcock declared that the west end is not getting properly taken care of in the line of improvements, and he suggested that moral pressure be brought on the city authorities in view of accomplishing this end.

Mr. Babcock's sentiments appeared to vie with the opinions of the other members of the clubb, and a committee was appointed to confer with the Democratic and Republican candidates for Common Council, to ascertain how they stood on the matter. Councilmen Wilson and Buxton, who are running for re-election on the Republican ticket, and candidates Patrick Reilville and Davis, of the Democratic ticket will be waited on tonight, and the committee will report to the club at a special meeting tomorrow night.

At the business session, President Babcock appointed a new board of governors and committees to act for the ensuing year. An amendment to the constitution was also adopted providing for the appointment of a reception committee for the purpose of welcoming strangers to the parish.

CONGREGATION'S SURPRISE FOR PASTOR AND WIFE.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Herring, of DeLacy avenue, were given a surprise at their new home, last night, when about seventy-five members of the First Presbyterian church of which Dr. Herring is pastor, called and spent a pleasant time. The affair was entirely informal and Dr. and Mrs. Herring were wholly unaware of the visit of the parishioners.

During the evening there was an informal program of music, in which Miss Clara VanFleet presided at the piano and Martin A. Korff played the violin. Allen E. Beals sang a number of popular songs in his characteristic pleasing manner, and was obliged to respond to encores. Refreshments were served and later the guests departed after best wishes were exchanged on the part of pastor and people.

DR. WOODROW WILSON SPEAKS HERE TONIGHT

President of Princeton to Deliver an Address on "The Democratic Opportunity."

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University, will deliver a non-partisian address at The Plainfield theatre tonight at 8 o'clock on the subject of "The Democratic Opportunity." As this will be the first time in many years that Dr. Wilson has spoken in Plainfield, his presence here will doubtless be attended by unusual interest.

Dr. Wilson will be entertained at dinner this evening by Howard Fleming, of Park avenue, and among the guests there will be several prominent Princeton graduates of this city. Dr. Wilson will be escorted to the theatre in time to speak at 8 o'clock. LeRoy J. Ellis, who is president of the Plainfield Democratic Club, will preside and introduce Dr. Wilson, who, it is expected will take up the greater part of the evening.

Among those who will attend the meeting will be an automobile party of twelve from Newark, a delegation of fifty from Elizabeth; also delegates from Rahway, Somerville and New Brunswick. It has been found necessary to reserve seats at the theatre for women, and in consequence the first six rows in the orchestra, the first row in the balcony and the boxes have been reserved for that purpose. The doors will be opened at 7.30 o'clock and all the rest of the seating capacity of the theatre will be free.

At the same time that Mr. Fleming is entertaining Dr. Wilson, James E. Martine will give a dinner at the hotel Kensington to several Democratic notables, including Joseph Tumulty, Mark Sullivan, Herman R. Walker, Assembly candidates Joseph T. Hague, Abram Morris and Frank Halliday and a number of newspapermen.

At the conclusion of Dr. Wilson's lecture tonight, Assembly nominee Frank Halliday will briefly present the issues of the campaign and speak in behalf of the party candidates.

EVERY VOTE COUNTS.

Every vote will be needed in this city on election day. If you are a good Republican and a good citizen you will make it your duty to spare a few minutes on Tuesday to cast your ballot. Both the county and city tickets are excellent ones and the Independent man will vote it with the Republicans.

Plainfield's usual majority is needed. The Democrats in Elizabeth are strongly organized and are making a strenuous effort to elect their county ticket. Don't let it be said on Wednesday morning that "Plainfield fell down." Every vote counts. See that yours is cast!

PARK CLUB RECEPTION AN ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

The opening reception at the Park Club, marking the resumption of social activities of this popular organization, was held last night and was attended by nearly three hundred members and friends. Among those present were a number from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Princeton and this city. The pretty clubhouse was attractively decorated with clematis, autumn foliage and yellow chrysanthemums, chiefly about the stage, and the effect was decidedly pleasing to the eye.

The feature of the evening was the singing of college songs by a quartet from Princeton University, comprising Messrs. Fredericks, Waters, Getty and Potter. The songs aroused great enthusiasm among the guests, and the quartet was repeatedly encored. Later in the evening the many college men among the guests got together with the quartet and sang Yale and Princeton songs to the delight of all present.

During the early part of the evening the guests were received by Mrs. Alston M. Abbott, Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson, Mrs. Henry C. Krebs, Mrs. Augustus Kleinecke and Mrs. Donald McGee. After the informal program of songs by the Princeton quartet, the evening was given up to dancing and continued until an early hour this morning. The music for dancing was furnished by Charles Suhr's Imperial Orchestra, which was a feature. The stringed music found much favor on the part of the guests. During an intermission near midnight, refreshments were served. The entertainment committee at the club this year comprises Mr. and Mrs. Alston M. Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Donal McGee.

MISS KAMPMAN A BRIDE

Charming Young Woman Weds Harold M. Pitman at Brilliant Ceremony.

REV. DR. ZELIE OFFICIATES.

Miss Carol Kampman Maid-of-Honor and Mrs. Hugh C. Pierce Matron-of-Honor—W. A. Long Best Man.

Miss Marie Louise Kampman, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Kampman, of Madison avenue, and Harold Marshall Pitman, son of James M. Pitman, formerly of Brooklyn and Plainfield, and now of Chicago, were married at 8 o'clock, last night, at the home of the bride's mother. Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in the presence of about 125 guests from New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, and this city.

The bride, gowned in white messaline duchesse satin, draped with duchesse and rose point lace and carrying a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley, was attended by her sister, Miss Carol Kampman, as maid-of-honor; Mrs. Hugh C. Pierce, of North Plainfield, as matron-of-honor, and Miss Virginia Henson, of New York, as flower girl. The maid-of-honor and matron-of-honor were gowned in pale green crepe de chine draped with pearl spangled gauze and pearl trimmings. They carried large bouquets of ping chrysanthemums. The flower girl wore white and carried flowers. The bride's mother wore a gown of corded lilac silk, trimmed with velvet and embroidered bands.

The best man was William A. DeLong, Jr., of New York city, and the ushers were Hugh C. Pierce, of North Plainfield, and Frederick Smith, of New York.

The home was elaborately decorated for the event, the prevailing colors being pink and white. In a bay window, where the ceremony was performed, flowers were attractively arranged with striking effect.

The music for the occasion was furnished by Charles Suhr's Imperial Orchestra, and was greatly enjoyed. As the bridal party entered the parlor the orchestra played the wedding march from Lohengrin, and during the ceremony, "O, Promise Me," was rendered softly, while the wedding march from Mendelssohn was played after the ceremony. During the reception which followed, the orchestra gave a choice program. At this time congratulations were offered and supper was served.

The bride was the recipient of a large and beautiful collection of gifts from relatives and friends. In the exchange of gifts among the members of the bridal party, the bride received from the groom a chain and pendant of diamonds and opal. The gift of the bride to the groom was a pair of sleeve buttons, with diamonds, and the attendants received chains and pendants. The groom gave his best man and ushers scarf pins.

Following the reception the bride and groom left on an extended wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in Chicago, where the groom is engaged in the manufacture of engravers' supplies. Mr. Pitman resided in North Plainfield prior to five years ago, when he removed to Chicago.

RICHTER DIDN'T KNOW THAT RECORDS ARE KEPT.

William Richter, the sixteen-year-old boy arrested here for stealing a revolver, which he claimed to have taken from a hardware store at Long Branch last June, was sentenced to the Reformed school at Jamesburg this morning by Judge Atwater in Elizabeth.

Richter denied ever having been before the notice of the authorities before, but the records proved otherwise and the young man will have a chance to learn something about telling the truth before he is allowed to leave the institution.

HEAR THE ISSUES!

Arguments that will convince the voter in North Plainfield that he should cast his ballot on Tuesday for the whole Republican ticket will be made by a galaxy of gifted speakers at Saengerbund hall tomorrow night. The political lights will include State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Somerset county, and former Mayors Benjamin A. Hegeman and Newton B. Smalley, of the borough. It is expected that former Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., will preside. A brass band will furnish music.

GEER IN MIDDLESEX JAIL

Plainfielder, in the Toils, is Charged with Stealing a Horse and Rig.

NEW PHASE OF CRUELTY CASE.

Animal That He Is Accused of Stealing Was Shot in Borough Yesterday—Chief Weiss' Good Work.

Charles Geer, of this city, for whom the borough authorities issued a warrant for arrest yesterday on the charge of cruelty to animals, is locked up in the New Brunswick jail charged with stealing a horse and buggy. Geer was arraigned in court this morning and remanded to jail in default of $1,000 bail.

The horse and rig which he is alleged to have stolen is the property of Spencer Gardner, a New Brunswick letter carrier and according to the New Brunswick authorities the theft was committed by Geer in that city on October 16. The horse is the animal, which was discovered in a starving condition in the barn of Clifford Applegate, in the borough, on Tuesday, and which was shot by State Agent Teed of the P. S. C., yesterday.

It was due to a tip from Chief Weiss, of the borough, that Geer's capture was effected by the New Brunswick police last evening. The borough authorities issued a warrant for Geer's arrest yesterday. Weiss ascertained that Geers was in this city yesterday and had departed for New Brunswick on a trolley car.

A novel coincidence in the case is, that the borough chief, as he was about to call up the New Brunswick authorities to be on the lookout for Geers, received a telephone call from Chief O'Connell, who requested that he also be on the alert for Geer, as the latter was wanted in New Brunswick for stealing a horse and rig.

Weiss imparted the information to the New Brunswick chief that Geer was on the way to that city and at seven o'clock, last evening Sergeant Dunn nabbed Geer as he stepped off a trolley car on the Albany street bridge. After he was taken into custody the New Brunswick authorities notified Weiss, telling him that it was likely that friends of the prisoner would furnish bail. In anticipation of Geer getting out of jail, Weiss dispatched Marshal Keller to New Brunswick this morning to re-arrest him, but as Geer failed to get anybody to go on his bond, Keller returned empty-handed. According to the New Brunswick authorities there is little chance of Geer getting assistance, although that is his home town.

The story of the alleged theft showed that Geer used a clever ruse to get possession of the horse and rig. It is asserted that he approached letter carrier Gardner and asked for a price on the horse and vehicle. Gardner insisted on a cash payment, and it is said, that Geer told him that he would return the next day with the cash and complete the bargain.

The interview took place in Gardner's barn, according to the New Brunswick police, and after Gardner returned to his duties at the postoffice, it is asserted, that Geer returned to the barn and took away horse and rig. The vehicle was disposed of in New Brunswick, but the police of that city refused to divulge the name of the purchaser. After remaining in that city all night it is asserted that Geer brought the animal to the borough and installed it in the Applegate barn on October 17, and deserted it.

Democrats, like the Republicans in the borough, are alive and doing, as was demonstrated by the turnout at the rally in borough hall last night. The council room was packed to its capacity to hear the issues of the campaign discussed. Mr. Kelly, of New Market, acted as chairman of the meeting, and before introducing the speakers he talked on local and township issues and advocated the election of the Democratic candidates in both districts. Senator Silzer was given a big ovation and the young New Brunswick orator scored a big hit with the audience when he denounced the Republican State administration. One enthusiastic Democrat interrupted the senator with this salutation, "Oh, you Silzer, you're our next governor." This interruption brought forth renewed enthusiasm. Other speakers were Surrogate Peter S. Daly, of New Brunswick, and Dr. Ramsey, of Perth Amboy.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Edna Smith, of Philadelphia, to Harry S. Titsworth, of the borough, who holds a position in the Quaker City. The ceremony was performed on September 29 in the latter place.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The next special event at the Plainfield Country Club will be on Election Day, when the members will engage in play for the Election Day handicap. The last event on the schedule for the season will be on Thanksgiving Day, when the annual cross-country tournament will be held.

The regular club service for dinners and luncheons is available, and Superintendent John Hilton will be in charge until after the clubhouse is closed in November.

The events at the Park Golf Club tomorrow will include the weekly competition for the President's, Golf Club and Oakmont cups. This competition is rapidly drawing to a close. Several members are closely bunched for honors for the different trophies and the outcome will be awaited with unusual interest.

Notwithstanding that the two local golf clubs will close officially about Thanksgiving Day, the courses will be kept open for general play as long as the weather will permit. The greens are in fine condition and unless there should be severe storms golf will be possible for many weeks to come.

A four ball batch somewhat out of the ordinary lent zest to yesterday's golf at Baltusrol. F. R. Upton, Jr., champion of the club, with George Low, the home professional, for a partner, met Jerome D. Travers, a former national title holder, and Tom Anderson, Jr., that promising professional, at present staying with his father at the Montclair Golf Club. After playing thirty-six holes the opposing sides ended all square. It was close work throughout, Upton and Low, with a best ball of 72, standing 1 up at the end of the morning round, while Travers and Anderson, with another 72, led by a similar margin in the afternoon.

BASKETBALL.

The basketball team of the North Plainfield High School has engaged Debele Hall for its games from November 1 to April 1. The committee is now at work on the schedule, which will be ready for announcement in a few days.

The Y. M. C. A. will have the strongest basketball team this season that has represented the association in several years. A majority of the old player are back and several new ones have come in recently which are sure to strengthen the team.

FOOTBALL.

North Plainfield High School football eleven will play Battin High, of Elizabeth, at the latter place, Saturday, November 6. These teams met here three weeks ago and the locals won by a score of 6 to 5.

PERSONAL.

Miss Kittie Rutledge, of Franklin avenue, has left for Brooklyn, where she will make her home in the future.

John Smith, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, has returned home after a visit with friends in town.

Herman Berkan, of Watchung avenue, who has been confined to the house for several weeks, is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Bicknell, of South avenue, will celebrate their fifteenth wedding anniversary at their home tonight.

Miss Helen Hurley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hurley, Jr., of Belmont avenue, is recovering slowly from a long illness.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Elizabeth District Epworth League convention will be held at Dunellen next October, the place having been decided upon at the convention in Bound Brook on Tuesday.

An adjourned meeting of the Methodist Brotherhood will be held in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church tonight, for the purpose of electing officers and transacting other important business.

The monthly special musical service will be held at the First Presbyterian church Sunday night, when Master C. Shelton Moore, boy soprano of Trinity church, New York, will sing. The quartet choir will also have solo parts as well as anthems. Clifford A. Braider, organist, will be in charge.

Baptists Elect Officers.

At the final session yesterday of the New Jersey Baptist Convention, F. Wayland Ayer, of Camden, was chosen president. Other officers elected were: Vice-presidents, the Rev. S. J. Arthur, Jersey City; corresponding secretary, the Rev Delavan Dewolf, Newark; recording secretary, the Rev. E. O. Wilson, Newark; treasurer, D. G. Garribrant, Newark. The next convention will be held in Atlantic City.

PAYING THEIR TAXES IN NORTH PLAINFIELD

Tax money began to flow into the coffers of the borough treasury yesterday at a merry clip. For the first day of collections, Borough Clerk Frederick A. Martin, who is also acting in the capacity of assistant tax collector, reported the receipts to be approximately $4,000. Today Mr. Martin expects to receive $10,000. Mr. Martin considers the first day's showing as excellent in view of the fact that all of the bills were not sent out until last night.

To Jules Stephany, of Brooklyn, a property holder on Summit avenue, belongs the distinction of being the first man to pay his tax bill. He handed Mr. Martin a check at 9:02 a. m., yesterday. For several years past, former councilman James K. Arnold held this honor.

Assessor Cooley's new method in assessing properties, according to the lot numbers on the new assessment map, instead of by the numbers on the houses, as in past years, has resulted in a flood of inquiries from taxpayers who failed to understand the change.

In a majority of cases the lot numbers do not correspond with the street number and consequently some taxpayers are under the impression that it is a mistake on the part of the collector in making out the bills, but everybody appears to be satisfied, when explanations are made by Mr. Martin about the new map which is now in use.

Taxpayers have until December 20 to meet their obligations and all payments on bill within that date are discounted at the rate of six per cent. The total amount of taxes to be collected this year is $92,748.47.

CAST FOR "A JAPANESE LADY" TO BE GIVEN IN DECEMBER.

In the operetta, "A Japanese Lady," to be given by young women of Grace Episcopal church in December, the solo parts will be taken as follows: O Hanu San (beautiful flower), Miss Elsie Goddard; O Kito San (sweet chrysanthemum), Miss Edna Wilder; O Kayo San (tears of bliss), Miss Hope Irene Miller; Chaya, a tea server, Miss Verna McCuteheon; Nora Twinn, Miss Katharine Titus; Dora Twinn, Miss Helen Ray Hooley; Miss Minerva Knowall, Miss Louise Saunders.

Miss Margaret Florance, of Elizabeth, who drilled the dancers for the Kirmess held last year, is instructing the dancers in the operetta, which assures a splendid performance.

NEW BLOCK TO BE ERECTED AT CHURCH AND E. SECOND STS.

Miss Clara V. Biddle, of Philadelphia, has bought of George E. Sovereign, through theagency of George H. Naylor & Co., real estate brokers, the plot of ground at the corner of East Second and Church streets, consisting of twelve lots on which E. C. Biddle, of Philadelphia, will erect eleven very attractive Philadelphia brick dwellings with all modern improvements.

There will be one store building on the corner and owing to the fact that such buildings are needed, and that they will be in a central location there is no doubt these buildings will meet with ready sale or rental.

Y. W. C. A. Notes.

There was such a large response to the call to organize a class to study the art of stenciling and brasswork at the Young Woman's Christian Association, which is to be conducted by Professor Bostwick, of the High School, that it will be necessary to form three classes. Two were formed yesterday and the third one will be started tomorrow morning.

Townsend Rushmore Talks.

Townsend Rushmore, who recently returned from an extensive trip abroad, gave an interesting talk of his journey to the members of the Warren Chapel Bible class last night. Mr. Rushmore dwelt chiefly on the new trans-Siberian railway which he characterized as one of the greatest commercial achievements of modern times.

—A harvest home festival was held at Bethel chapel last night, the affair being one of the most enjoyable of the season.

Underwear for Men, Women and Children.

You can buy underwear for 50c and $1 at any store. But the question is, where can I get the best garment for the money. If you've bought underwear at the W. & M. store, we don't need to tell you. It's the other fellow we want to talk to. We buy our underwear direct from the largest and best mills in the country in very large quantities, and offer you garments with a reputation. We don't claim to sell you a 50c garment for 39c, or a 1.00 garment for 79c, but we do offer you a better garment for the money than you can get anywhere else in town, and when we tell you that a garment is half wool, 3-quarter wool or all wool, you can rest assured that it is just what we claim it to be; that's worth something, isn't it? We cordially invite you to critically examine our lines. Compare them with the other fellows. You won't buy underwear anywhere else.

HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL OF BIBLE CLASSES.

Under the auspices of the Wilhelmina Runyon and Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry's Bible classes, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, about two hundred members and friends enjoyed a Hallowe'en social in the Sunday-school room last night. All sorts of Hallowe'en pranks and games, from "ducking for apples" to buying the prettiest girl in the room at an auction sale, were enjoyed. Martin B. Stutsman and Harry C. Runyon were in charge of the auction.

Charles Hellier was announced as "the wizard who would tell the name of your future wife," and he certainly did well. Everyone fell under his spell.

Miss Eleanor Stutsman, dressed in a witches' cap and gown told the past, present and future to all who were eager to know and as many were, Miss Stutsman was kept busy.

The decorations consisted of autumn boughs, which were artistically placed about the parlors. The platform was decorated with corn stalks and jack o' lanterns. One of the features of the evening was the musical program by the church orcehestra. This was enjoyed by everyone.

The committee in charge comprised Miss Mary Leveridge, chairman, Miss Anna W. Clark, Miss Eleanor Stutsman and Miss Marjorie Brown from the Wilhelmina Runyon Bible class, and William H. Doane, Charles Hellier and Harry Cuming from Mrs. Wheaton S. Lowry's class. The committee was congratulated upon the success of the affair.

"DISEASE" OF OYSTERS DUE TO SMOTHERING.

Trenton, Oct. 29.—Professor Julius Nelson, biologist of the State agricultural experiment station, has just reported to the State bureau of shell fisheries the results of his investigation of the so-called disease among oysters in the Maurice River Cove district. The difficulty was found to be traceable to conditions of the bottom and other conditions liable to arise on the beds at any time, though in no very serious volume.

In his report Professor Nelson says: "We found that a considerable number of oysters on these plots had died and that there were many of the still surviving individuals, in poor condition; but this does not indicate 'disease' in the ordinary meaning of that word. The trouble seems evidently to be due to the condition called 'smothering,' which means that the loose soil, either sand or mud, becomes lifted by special agitation of the water, and deposited upon the oysters so abundantly as to clog their gills. This condition causes three results: First, the oxygen supply is materially reduced; second, the food catching apparatus is seriously interfered with; third, the oyster struggling to free itself from the dirt that is collecting on its gills, works off its flesh and loses its fat. No wonder then that it takes on a stocky appearance and finally dies of suffocation, starvation and over work, combined."

TWO MURDERERS TAKEN TO THE STATE PRISON.

Paterson, Oct. 29.—Handcuffed to Andrew Fason, a colored murderer sentenced to forty years, Pietro Silverio, sentenced to die in the electric chair in December for slaying a woman at Midvale, was taken to State prison Wednesday. Silverio waved his hat to the crowd at the Susquehanna Depot when the train started. A third prisoner was Robert Churchill, sentenced to two years for robbery.

The contrast between Fason and Silverio was striking, the colored man being in a hilarious mood while Silverio was the picture of dejection.

"When ah thinks how I missed dat electric juice in the death chair," Fason said to Under-Sheriff William Downey, "I can't help feeling ah am lucky. I never would have pleaded guilty to second degree murder if ah hadn't heard a man sitting near me at the trial say: 'Let the trial go on; we'll give it to him right.' When ah heard that ah got scared and jest pleaded guilty."

Told by his spiritual advisers that repentance would save him from eternal punishment, Silverio decided to pray, and at the depot he called a newsboy and told him to ask all Italians to pray for him. Silverio's last pay from the woman who had employed him and whom he killed, he turned over to the Italian church in this city.

PROHIBITIONISTS NAME TICKET IN MIDDLESEX.

The Prohibitionists of Middlesex county, contrary to the first announcement made by representatives of that party, have named a ticket for the coming election, the majority of the candidates thereon being residents of Metuchen. They have secured a candidate for every office except that of coroner, and held a massmeeting at New Brunswick Wednesday night, which was addressed by several of the candidates and by Edward Boom, of Camden. The Rutgers College Prohibition League had charge of the meeting, which was held in the rooms of the Tea Cup Inn Society.

The ticket, for which a hasty campaign will be waged, is as follows:

For Senator, William A. Acken, Metuchen; for members of the General Assembly, William E. Brown, New Brunswick; William P. Compton, New Brunswick; William A. Pullen, Metuchen; for county clerk, J. Trumbull Marshall, Metuchen; for freeholders, Frederick Boyd, Lewis Campbell, Metuchen; John Longenabine, New Brunswick; William A. Morris, Metuchen; William W. Sellers, Perth Amboy.

MORRIS CANAL MULE SUCCUMBS TO RABIES.

Paterson, Oct. 29.—City Veterinarian Matthew Pierce announces what he declares a rare case of rabies, the afflicted animal being a mule. The animal, which belonged to Police Commissioner John Mallon, and for the past seventeen years had been used to do carting in repair work on the Morris Canal, was bitten on the lip by a dog, some weeks ago. It showed no particular signs of suffering until last Monday when it acted in a suspicious manner and the city veterinarian was sent for.

Dr. Pierce at first thought the animal was suffering from meningitis, but after keeping it under observation for some time, he saw that it was suffering from a pronounced case of rabies. This diagnosis was confirmed when he learned the history of the case. The animal was placed in a box stall and acted just like a mad dog. It foamed at the lips and in its frenzy bit itself. The mule died in a spasm Wednesday. The case was also observed by Veterinarians Butterworth and Barrick, who were given an opportunity to view the case by Dr. Pierce. They pronounced it a rare case in veterinary annals.

"BIG VERDICT" CASE TO GO TO ERRORS COURT.

Paterson, Oct. 29.—Wayne Dumont, counsel for the plaintiff in the suit of Horandt vs. the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, has taken a writ of error to the Court of Errors and Appeals, based on Judge Black's direction of the verdict he gave in the case last Monday.

It will be remembered that the case involves three plaintiffs and was tried here in June, 1908, following the collision between an automobile and a train at Keysport, in which Christopher Horandt was killed. A verdict of $29,000, the largest of the kind ever given in this country, was recovered. The railroad company carried the matter to the Supreme Court on a rule to show cause why the verdict should not be set aside, and this was argued in February last.

In June the Supreme Court, through Justice Parker, handed down its opinion, in which it held that Judge Black should have given a verdict for the defendant in each case, and this sent the cases back to the lower court once more.

The action of the attorneys this week in agreeing to have the testimony of the last trial considered as the testimony of the new trial saved a week's time of the court in addition to the great saving of expense to the litigants. Judge Black had no alternative but to direct the verdicts for the defendant, and the writ of error which has been taken out puts the whole matter up to the Court of Errors and Appeals, by whom a final decision will be given. The case will be argued in February, 1910.

INDICTED FOR KILLING; REPORTED TO BE INSANE.

Toms River, Oct. 29.—The Ocean City Grand Jury Wednesday indicted David L. Webb for the murder of his brother, John I. Webb, on October 15, at the home in Hobbsville, Jackson township. Webb's old mother, more than eighty-two years old, was in court when the indictment was handed up to Supreme Court Justice Willard P. Voorhees. Judge Voorhees assigned I. W. Carmichael as counsel for Webb, whose family say that he has little or no means.

November 11 was set as the day for trial. In the meantime the State will have Webb examined by an expert in lunacy to ascertain whether he is really insane or sufficiently sane to be tried.

Webb is the man who shot his brother, riddling him with five bullets while his brother was getting breakfast ready, and then washed and shaved, dressed himself in his best clothes, walked ten miles and took the train to the county seat. He walked up to the sheriff's office in the courthouse and announced that he had killed his brother.

DEATH FROM ACCIDENT; INSURANCE CO. LOSES.

Paterson, Oct. 29.—The jury in the suit of Mrs. Matilda Jeffrey against the Travelers' Insurance Company for $2,500 on a policy held by her late husband, Adam B. Jeffrey, a lawyer of this city, who died March 18, 1908, returned Wednesday afternoon with a verdict of $3,018.16, which includes the costs of court and the interest. The case was tried before Judge Black. Lawyers John W. Harding and B. Walker represented the plaintiff, while the defense was represented by the firm of Linabury, Depue and Faulks, of Newark.

The lawyers for the plaintiff showed that on February 2 last Mr. Jeffrey fell on an icy sidewalk, fracturing his leg, and that heart trouble, which brought about his death a few weeks later, was caused by the blood-poisoning which set in after the accident.

The company's doctor declared that death was due to other causes and not to the accident. The company will appeal.

RAHWAY CHILD BURNED SEVERELY BY BONFIRE.

Rahway, Oct. 29.—Playing around a bonfire Wednesday, Emanuel, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wiltenstiel, was burned so badly that he died early yesterday. The little one had escaped from a room where his mother had left him while she went on an errand. The boy wandered to the river bank and joined some children who were playing about a fire. Suddenly his clothes came in contact with the flames. Edward Fox, who was passing, picked up the child and soused him in the river. Then with Jacob Jardot he took the little one to a drug store, where first aid to the injured was given. Later a physician was called in.

Ferns for House Growth.

A lover of green things growing says that this is the season of the year that she gathers ferns in the woods for winter use. She has found that ferns transplanted now thrieve better in the house than those transplanted earlier in the season.

Counting Contest

$550 Player Piano Given Away
$100 in Gold Given Away

Prize No. 2	Prize No. 3	Prize No. 4	Prize No. 5
$50 in Gold	$25 in Gold	$15 in Gold	$10 in Gold

THIS contest is absolutely free and unconditionally open to all; you have the same opportunity to win as anyone.

OUR reason for this Educational Contest is merely a publicity plan to direct attention to the merits of our Pianos.

ALL you have to do is to count the dots that appear in the Haines Bros.' Grand Piano and send in your answer. Correctness of count, neatness and legibility of answer will decide. All answers must be written plainly, giving name and address; also state whether you have an organ, square or upright piano, giving maker's name. For convenience sake use blank below or any sheet of paper same size and form.

REMEMBER, every counter has equal prospects of getting a prize if count is correct, regardless of when count is sent in, provided it reaches us before 6 P. M., November 19th.

IT IS conditional upon entering contest that contestant agrees to abide by the decision of the judges, who are disinterested parties and whose decision will be final.

SHOULD there be more than one person having the correct count, or should there be a tie in having the correct count, or nearest correct count, the piano will be awarded on neatness, legibility and correctness of the contestant's answer.

ANYONE residing within one hundred miles of Newark may send in an answer. Not more than one answer will be received from same party or family. When more than one answer is sent in by same party or family, all will be rejected. No employee of this firm or anyone engaged in the piano business may enter this contest.

THE awarding of the prizes will be left to disinterested parties. The correct answer is known only to us and will be turned over to the judges the night of the closing of the contest, November.

A few of the winners of former contests are:

Theodore McNally, a $550 Marshall & Wendell Player Piano.
Chas. Stoker, a $600 Foster & Co. Player Piano.
Rev. Stanley F. Davis, a $500 Haines Bros. Piano.
H. Ott, a $300 Armstrong Piano.

OIL-LADENED BOAT ABLAZE IN THE RIVER.

Flames Threatened to Spread to Nearby Works Along Elizabeth Waterfront.

The steam lighter Safety, anchored at the dock of the Pennsylvania and Delaware Oil Company, at Elizabeth, caught fire about 10:30 last night with a cargo of oil on board, and for a time made a spectacular blaze.

An alarm was turned in by the watchman at the oil concern, and the downtown fire companies responded. they succeeded in keeping the blaze confined to the lighter and from spreading to buildings near by stored with oil and explosives.

The spot is a considerable distance from the centre of the city and the water pressure not too good. The tugboat Erie, captained by Fire Commissioner William T. Cox, did good work in aiding the firemen and kept the flames under control. The crew aboard the lighter when the fire started escaped injury. The alarm was turned in from station 125.

The spot is dotted with oil concerns and there have been many serious fires in the vicinity during the past few years. Only a few days ago another steam lighter was damaged by fire at the Waclack Wire Works dock.

The boat burned last night is badly damaged and will be almost a total loss. Thinking that one of the big oil refineries had caught fire, an immense throng went to the scene.

A slight chimney fire on North Broad street broke out a short time previously, taking one of the city's six engines. Fortunately it was not needed for the downtown blaze.

AUTO AND WAGON IN A COLLISION.

A big touring auto whirling down Westfield avenue, Elizabeth, last night crashed into a farmer's wagon at Westfield avenue and the Elizabeth River. The auto got the worst of it in the crash with the vehicle. The front of the machine was badly damaged.

The auto was occupied by an elderly man and a young woman. Its number was "49023 N. Y." The horses escaped injury. No one was injured.

This is the second auto mishap in this vicinity within two days. Wednesday a young woman, in order to avoid collision with a butcher wagon, dashed into a house at West Grand and Grove streets, damaging the auto.

BOY KNOCKED DOWN BY TAXICAB, DRIVER IS HELD.

William Schaefer, a twelve-year-old boy, who resides on Grove street, Cranford, was run over by a taxicab driven by William Gabbot, near the railroad station at Cranford Wednesday night. The boy was picked up by Harry Bowers, chief of the fire department, and carried to a drug store. Dr. F. B. Gilpin found two teeth gone and the lad's face lacerated.

After his injuries had been attended to he was taken to his home by the physician. Gabbet, who failed to render any assistance, was arrested and locked up.

NEGLIGEE AND NIGHTDRESS.

The world tourist has discovered a good many things that stay-at-homes do not know; all sorts of things to lessen her own burdens on future trips and helpful hints for other globe-trotters, but just as valuable also to the short "tripper."

Take, for instance, the little matter of the traveler's nightdress. Our seasoned tourist takes with her a negligee, which, she contends, does duty as lounging robe, slumber robe andbath- robe. "Far more simple," she will tell you, "than burdening yourself with the convenience and elegance in separate form."

This universal robe may be as colored as you like. It may be frilled with lace and all bedecked with wash ribbon, but it should be made of either lawn, dimity, albatross or wash silk, so that it may be passed over to some French Trilby on the other shore and returned to you as fresh as the day it was made. If I were a pessimist I might add, "but somewhat faded."

Our tourist is a knowing individual, as a rule, for experience, you will remember, is the best of teachers. Her idea is an excellent one for shipboard in particular, and none the less so for a sleeping car.

MISSING BOY FOUND.

Roll Left Home Two Years Ago. Is in Georgia.

Clarence Roll, missing from Elizabeth for two years, has been located on a plantation in Georgia. Clarence, a boy of sixteen, after being punished for a boyish plank, went away.

He has not written home. His identity was revealed to a Southern planter, who wrote his family here.

Jones Triplets Dead.

Trenton, Oct. 29.—Surviving his other two brothers just two months and three days, John, the last of the triplet sons of Mr. and Mrs James Jones, of 30 Houghton avenue, died Wednesday afternoon. The three sons were born August 24 and were christened Edward, Thomas and John.

SLENDER FIGURE.

A pretty robe for a thin figure is in one of the new wistaria shades in chiffon-cloth. The bodice, with a square-cut opening at the top, shows the body gathered quite full around the neck, except across the centre back, where a plastron of embroidery is set, and it is also gathered quite as full into the arm's eye seam, the edges being finished with half-inch cord covered with satin.

The skirt is also gathered full and hangs in straight folds with the overdrapery carried from the left side across the back to the right, where the folds are tucked up under and the wide end falls in a sash effect over the foundation.

The girdle is a sash knotted loosely at one side with fringed ends, and the guimpe is of cream lace over wistaria shaded chiffon, the lace ruched full to better supply any lack in the arms.

The modern trust company is organized, primarily, for the purpose of administering estates. It is empowered by law to act in all respects as might an individual, but possesses every quality of desirability that the individual lacks. The fees are never more than are allowed to an individual. Furthermore, owing to its excellent facilities for handling the business, and for making prompt and proper investments of surplus funds, it can often reduce the expense of administration and thereby increase the value of the estate.

WALTER IRVING TALKS TO TRINITY'S PEOPLE

Home department work of the Sunday school, its advancement and good results, was the theme of a talk given before the members of the home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday school last night by Walter Irving, of Cranford, one of the leading spirits in New Jersey Sunday school work. In conjunction with the address there were other features, the affair being in the nature of a Hallowe'en sociable.

Mr. Irving's talk was plain and to the point, and was especially interesting to local Sunday school workers who took advantage of the opportunity to hear him speak. The Home department, Mr. Irving said, is the greatest development in modern Sunday school work. He quoted statistics that indicated a remarkable growth of this feature throughout the State and country.

Trinity's Sunday school workers were complimented on the big increase during the past year, when 126 new names were added, making the total enrollment 324. This fine showing he ascribed to the indefatigable and faithful work of the officers and thirty visiting assistants. The officers of the department are Mrs. Henry Van Name, superintendent; Mrs. George W. Saums, assistant, and Mrs. M. Julius Williams, secretary and treasurer.

Following Mr. Irving's address, the pastor, Rev. John Y. Broek, and Mrs. Henry Van Name also made remarks along the same lines.

Then came the Hallowe'en celebration. The interior of the Sunday school room presented a typical country scene with the autumn decorative arrangement. There were browned corn stalks surrounding the pillars and jack-o-lanterns, pumpkins and squashes galore.

Fun and merriment reigned supreme, when Mrs. Orpie Runyon made her appearance gowned in a costume which brought to minds the wierdest witch tales. Mrs. Runyon was ably assisted in her role by pastor Broek, Judge Dolliver, F. E. Smith and others. All of the old fashioned songs were sung by the audience and the young people added to the merriment by competing in potato and peanut races.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Alburtus Swalm and a corps of able assistants.

KEARNEY F. C. MEETS PLAINFIELD TOMORROW.

The Kearney F. C. will meet the Plainfield Association football eleven on the Clinton avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The team from Kearney is considered one of the strongest in the State and will make the locals hustle to win. However, with the Plainfield team going so strong this season, the supporters are confident of a victory. It is expected that "Doits" Miller, the star second baseman of the Pittsburg Nationals, will play with the visitors. Last season he played with the West Hudsons and made good.

The Plainfield team will line-up as follows:

Commissioner's Talk.

The opening meeting of Commissioner Cadman was held last night in the Salvation Army hall. He was accompanied by Major Lyons, of New York, and Major Casler and Ensign Baker, of Newark. A warm welcome was given to the commissioner. After the singing of several stirring Salvation Army songs the commissioner addressed the congregation, taking for his subject: "Out and Out Salvation," or the "Power of the Holy Ghost in the Human Heart."

Off to the Country

But It Was Not as Pleasant as Gittem Expected

When Gittem arose in his six-rooms-and-bath one morning a week or more ago and noticed that there was the balminess of the gentle springtime on the air that floated in through the bedroom window, he sniffed twice in succession and thought things. He went to the front window and sized up the trees and watched a squad of birds putting up a nest under the rain spouting on the house next door.

By the time Mrs. Gittem had the toast buttered and the stop watch pulled on the eggs, Gittem, morning paper in hand, came back to the dining room after his matutional ration, whistling with the air of a man who has come to a decision about something or other.

"Well," remarked Gittem, as he reached across the table for the sugar bowl. "I s'pose we can be all packed and out of here by day after to-morrow without any trouble—might even make it to-morrow."

Mrs. Gittem stopped punching at the holes in the salt cellar with her fork and looked up with a perplexed stare. "And where are we going?" she inqired, curiously.

"Where are we going?" repeated Gittem. "Yes, where are we going? Huh! I suppose now that summer is here we'll run down to Florida to spend a month or so. Either there or take rooms at some river hotel in Cincinnati for the heated term. Where are we going! Good, sensible, pertinent question that. Well, just by way of supplying some brand new information to you, I might say that we own a little cottage out in the country not far from the shore of Lake Erie—this large body of fresh water to the north of us, y'know. And I'll refresh your memory further—we've been spending our summers out there now for the last six years.

"Of course it never occurred to you," continued Gittem, "that we would be going out there again this summer—wasn't to be expected that you would figure that out. But we are. And what I want to get at now is how long it'll take you to get your la-zer-ee and other duds gathered together so we c'n get out there just as soon as possible. If you can't pack 'em up in the next day or so yourself better hire somebody to come in and do it, because I'm getting an awful hankering for the country thing myself. The Almighty never intended mankind to live in a city with this kind of weather going on."

"But isn't it a little early to be going to the country?" suggested Mrs. Gittem interrogatively. "Aren't you afraid it might be a little too cold?"

Gittem bestowed a half pitying glance upon her before he replied. "Of course," says he, "there's no such thing as fires out in the country. Very poor, I suppose, to sit in front of a nice big wood fire in an open grate if it happens to get a little cold some evening. You'd rather sit by a steam radiator, hey? I wouldn't doubt it. Well, you can stay in town and breathe the smoke and soot if you want to, but I'm serving notice on you that I'm going out where the fresh air comes from and I'm going pretty quick, too."

Mrs. Gittem didn't say much to all this, because she had learned to go ahead and munch at what was on her plate without listening to the end of the dialogue. Anyway, when her attention was called to it, the country did sound rather inviting. So she hustled around the flat for the next day or two getting packed, and by the end of the week the Gittems had mosied out to their summer cottage.

The air was right skittish that first night, and the firewood didn't burn—just smoked. Gittem looked almost unhappy during the interim between getting part of his clothes off and getting the rest of them off and climbing into bed. But he was optimistic. "This weather won't last," he declared.

The next morning he washed his face by drawing two fingers of each hand rapidly over the cheek bones, while his legs vibrated like the strings on a harp. That night he sat alongside of a discouraged looking lamp with his light overcoat around him trying to read a new magazine and thinking of morris chairs and 32-candle-power electroliers and steam heat and other things at that moment contained in his flat back in town.

In the morning Gittem frowned as he rubbed his hand over his chin and found that he could no longer postpone mowing his facial foliage. He screwed his cute little safety razor together and set to work. The water was cold—O, so cold!

"Right at this juncture," says Gittem, turning around and glaring at his wife, "I'm going to remark that I've had just about enough of this. Back home there's hot water in the bath rooms—running water at that. And here I am out here in cold storage trying to shave when I'd have a better chance to break my head off in the form of icicles. What was your game in dragging me out here, anyway? Got it in for the insurance companies that are betting I'll live out my natural life, eh? Want to see 'em cough up a little money? Well, I'm going in town to-day, and I'm going to stay there, at least until the ice breaks in the crick. And the next time anybody talks me into moving out of a steam-heated flat and coming out to live in a refrigerating plant he'll have to give me about 15 grains of sleeping powder before he starts in to convince me, that's all. And you can just take the croquet mallet and nail that up over the mantelpiece."

WARM SHIRTWAISTS.

The dotted challis waist is very new, very light in weight and very warm. Indeed, it is well forth a second thought, and it invites the sensible woman or, better still, the sensible mother. Daughters are not very warmly clad these days, and it might be well to take some time for the consideration of the fairly warm winter waist, be it shirtwaist or blouse.

There is not the least objection to the non-washable blouse if it be made of material that is not bulky, and worn on the right occasions. It involves more care than the durable white linen waist, and should be made with the idea of an occasional bath in warm, soapy water. Almost all challis will stand this treatment occasionally. This year there is a beautiful little model shown at an exclusive shop. It is made of this pretty, soft material, embroidered by hand over its entire surface; but there are evidences of carelessness in its make-up.

The little dots have, quite apparently, been embrodiered first, since the seams cut them off at certain points. The ideal way to get around this difficulty, which really amounts to a defect, is to first cut out the blouse and fit it; then, with the seam lines marked, to embroider the separate pieces and remake the blouse. The small dots on the pretty sage-green challis—were done in darker silk to bring it into harmony with its skirt.

On some woolen shirtwaists a single line of dots only appears down each side of the centre box pleat and on the cuffs. They are larger, the size of a pea, and are worked in a quite dark shade of the color shown in the material.

BONNET CROWNS.

Not for baby, but either ma or grandma are the bonnet crowns told of here. Bonnets are not so prevalent as measles, but they still are worn by certain devotees of a good reliable style that has never left us.

The bonnet crown or top is a thing on which beautiful handwork may be put, and to a money advantage; for excellent bonnet materials are not a small item in grandma's wardrobe. A motif of old lace which may have been saved from the wreck of a family fortune is often quite enough to begin with. This is appliqued to a handsome bit of brocade, ottoman or velvet, as the quality and color, or even as the season of the year, may make necessary. After it is sewn fast so daintily that it looks as if it had blown there, the material under it is cut away and an open effect of rare beauty and of some value is the result.

Brocade is used, too, in another way, and so is allover lace. Either one may be hand run with gold and silver threads, in and out among the design.

A braided bonnet top is effective, and the work is delightful. Given a background of patterned lace, its outline can be readily enriched by a very narrow and fine quality of silk rattail.

Any one of these will form the nucleus of a handsome bonnet, which will, if the crown be somewhat voluminous, require very little extra material. With the advent of the large, soft-crowned turban the elderly lady's bonnet has increased in size. A note worthy of mention to the would-be maker of the bonnet crown.

GOOD TASTE IN VEILS.

"The mission of the veil is to keep the hair in order and to enhance the brilliancy of the complexion," says the Woman's Home Companion for October. "It should not be striking in itself. Heavily-spotted nets and lace veils of conspicuous pattern should be for this reason tabooed. They are trying to rise above their sphere, trying to be something on their own account, and so they conceal the face, and incidentally ruin the eyes.

"Nevertheless, it is the veil with the large, conspicuous mesh that Fashion is specially favoring both in Paris and New York just now.

"For the perfect complexion the best veil is perhaps the plain, fairly large-mesh net which is hardly noticeable and only serves to keep the hair in place. Most of us, however, require in the hard fight of out-of-doors some simple beautifier, and for us the spots and lines of the patterned nets are a boon.

"The most generally becoming veil has a black figure on a white ground; the white net coming close to the skin heightens its fairness, while the black spots accentuate its brilliancy. A veil of this type is becoming according to the size and arrangement of its spots. The black chenille dots with a generous space between act like the old-fashioned 'mouche,' the touch of black court-plaster at the side of the chin or near the outer corner of the eye, so much affected by the clever beauties of the time of Marie Antoinette. When these spots come closely together the white spaces are not sufficiently large to do their work and the effectiveness of the spots is almost, if not entirely, nullified."

Control Your Fat

One can now take off and keep off extra fat at will. If you have an over-fat abdomen or double chin you can clear it away completely without a minute's bother, exercising or dieting. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bed time of this mixture: ½ oz. Marmola, ½ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ oz. Peppermint Water—any druggist has them—and go on eating as best pleases you; don't worry about results.

The double chin and ponderous stomach will soon show signs of melting away. They will not sag in or wrinkle, however; just go down nice and smooth and even. That effect is due to the harmless natural action of the mixture.

This is explained as follows: Blame overfatness to the stomach. It is getting lazy. Instead of making energy and muscle from your food, it is manufacturing fat. The above mixture corrects this defect and hence it makes you stronger and healthier at the same time it is taking off of you 12 to 16 ounces of useless fat a day. The reason it affects double chin, hips, etc., first is because the fat on them is softer and can not resist the remedy as long as that on the limbs. But eventually all the fat has to go if you keep up the treatment.

EVERYTHING IN CANDIES!

TO SERVE AS SURPRISE DISH.

Combination That Is Known as Italian Cheese Is Appetizing and Healthful.

Chop one pound of veal, 1½ pounds of calf's liver and half a pound of ham, all uncooked. Before chopping the liver cover it with boiling water for five minutes and dry it.

Add two tablespoons chopped parsley, one teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful pepper, a dash of cayenne, half a teaspoonful of powdered sage and one small, grated onion. Mix well. Grease a plain mold well with butter, press the meat tightly into it, cover and steam or boil three hours.

When the lid is removed you will find that the meat has shrunk, leaving an inch of space partly filled with liquid, carefully remove this liquid, put it into a saucepan on the fire, add to it one-fourth of a box of gelatin (which should have been covered with cold water and soaked half an hour), and sufficient water to fill the space and cover the meat.

Stir until the gelatin is dissolved, add salt and pepper to taste, pour back into mold, around the "cheese," and set away to cool. Turn out of the mold, when cold, and cut into thin slices. If properly made the meat should be encased in jelly.

KEEPS THE BOTTLES SWEET.

Simple Scheme of Housewife That Seems to Promise Much in the Line of Results.

To keep bottles perfectly sweet, especially those which contained milk, requires more than careful washing, they should also be well aired and drained.

One ingenious housekeeper has hit on a novel plan which has much simplified her bottle washing. She had a narrow board about three inches wide nailed to the outside of a kitchen window that had a sunny exposure.

At intervals along the length of the board were made screw holes just big enough to hold a child's drum stick, the bottom of which was likewise prepared for screwing. This could be done at home by anyone slightly skilled in tools, but a carpenter would charge little for it. The drum sticks were painted white, with a coat of enamel, so they could easily be kept clean.

When bottles were to be aired the sticks were screwed in the holes so they stood upright and a bottle, first cleaned in hot soda water, was turned upside down on each stick to drain, and sun.

A Good Cake.

Two cups of butter and two cups of sugar, creamed; six eggs, well beaten; one cup sirup, one cup good brandy; one nutmeg, one teaspoon cloves, three of cinnamon, two of soda, three of baking powder; grated rind of two lemons, juice of one; one tablespoon of vanilla, one of lemon extract; two pounds of best raisins, one of sultanas, two cups of walnuts, one of citron, one of orange peel, one of figs, one of dates, one of preserved strawberries (drain off the juice); five cups of flour sifted with the soda and baking powder. Prepare the fruit the day before making; cut the figs and dates fine with the scissors; also the raisins, and be sure there are no seeds left in them; shave the nuts with a sharp knife and the citron and orange peel as fine as possible. Dredge the fruit with flour and add just before putting in the oven, which must be hot at first and then moderate. Bake in two loaves, and ice.

English Orange Marmalade.

Two dozen juicy oranges, six lemons (only use juice of), cut rinds of oranges in quarters, put in pan with cold water. When hot empty water out, lay rind on board, white side up, and with small knife cut all white out, then slice rind in very thin, narrow strips. Peel off all the white of the orange, then quarter in small pieces and put on to boil until cooked. This, run through a sieve; pulp, throw away. The juice and the sliced peel measure and put equal sugar; boil this all together until thick; stirr often.

Ideal Cream Toast.

Cut stale bread one inch thick, trim off crust and cut into even cubes. Toast these in a hot oven or under gas flame so that the inner portion will be dry and the outside a light brown. Serve these cubes in small bowls or cereal dishes and turn hot thin cream over, which should be served in a small hot pitcher. Instead of cream use a thin white sauce cooked in a double boiler not less than twenty minutes.

Californian Tarts.

Required: Half a pound of prunes, quarter of a pound of sugar, half a pint of water, one pound of apples, lemon peel, pastry.

Stew the prunes with the lemon peel, sugar and water till almost soft. Next add the apples pared and cored, and cook all together till perfectly tender. Place the stewed fruit in a pie dish, add a pinch of mixed spices. Cover with pastry like an ordinary tart and bake for half an hour.

Delicious Dish of Apples.

Take two pounds of apples, pare and core them. Then slice them into a pan. Add one pound of granulated sugar, the juice of three lemons and the grated rind of one. Let these boil about two hours, when turn into a mold. When cold serve with a thick custard or with cream.

Honey Pop Corn Balls.

Take a pint of honey, put in agate dish and boil till thick, then stir in freshly popped corn, and when cool mold into balls.

Col. John Sneed's Conversations on Domestic Problems

By CASPER S. YOST,

Author of "The Making of a Successful Husband" and "The Making of a Successful Wife."

I.—Should the Man Smoke at Home?

COLONEL JOHN SNEED, having dined with satisfaction to himself and pleasure to his wife, lighted a cigar and strolled around the corner to the modest cottage in which his son-in-law had recently established himself.

"Where's William?" he inquired after he had paternally pecked at the pretty lips presented to him and accepted the comfortable seat in the living room. "Hope he's at home."

"Yes, he's at home, papa," the daughter replied, and a rosier flush came into her cheeks as she added, "He's just gone to the woodshed for a moment."

Colonel Sneed noticed the heightened color, and his curiosity was aroused.

"It's a pretty warm day," he remarked, with a twinkle in his eye. "I don't reckon he's goin' to build a fire, is he?"

"No, papa, it isn't that. I told—he thought—I—I—he went out there to smoke."

"What," exclaimed the colonel—"gone to the woodshed to smoke! What in the world! Why don't he get on the roof or sit on the gatepost? Why don't he come into the house or—say, little girl, is this some of your doin's?" And he looked at his daughter sternly through the incense that arose from his cigar.

"Well, well, papa," she replied falteringly, "I don't want him to smoke in the house, and I thought we ought to begin right and"—

"Huh!" grunted the colonel. "That's a fine way to begin. Turn your husband out of doors just because he wanted an after dinner smoke, force him to roost with the chickens while he contemplates the vanity of life in general and of matrimony in particular! Go and tell him to come here—no, wait a minute, little girl. Just let him keep on roostin' for a little bit while I tell you somethin'.

"This world, honey, wasn't fitted up as a habitation for cherubims and things of that sort. It was made for mortal men and women, and you can't turn a man into an angel without callin' in the undertaker. I believe everybody ought to be good, but there's such a thing as bein' too good to be interesting. It's the little faults I'm talkin' about, you understand—the failin's that all of us have, more or less of, and wouldn't be exactly human without. I don't know whether it's exactly right to call 'em blessin's, but it seems to me that they act kind of like safety valves and keep us from doin' worse things. Anyhow, it's been my experience, an' I've been here a long time, honey, and kept my eyes open—it's been my experience that a man who don't appear to have any faults had better be watched. The natural born cussedness 'll pile up inside of him until some day he'll bust out and 'stonish the natives. That's why I say, honey, that it won't do to bottle a man up too tight. Unless you have an outlet for the meanness that's in him you're likely to have trouble, and I don't know of any better outlet for masculine depravity than a good cigar.

"Now, little girl, you've married a man. I've been watchin' William pretty close since I came home, and I'm tolerably well satisfied that he's the real thing. He's got some rough edges that might be sandpapered down with benefit to himself and to you, but I want to give you a straight tip, little girl, and that is that the smoothin' out process will go a whole lot easier when he's got a good cigar between his teeth. There's somethin' about burnin' tobacco that makes a man more susceptible to impressions from without and more readily influenced by reflections from within. Let him have a mild Havana, fix him up comfortable in an easy chair, and he's in shape to submit to most any kind of a domestic operation that is prompted by love and reason. He ain't doped. Smoke don't steal away a man's brains. On the contrary, it stimulates his intelligence and opens his eyes to a better appreciation of the beauty and goodness around him, while at the same time it softens his heart and soothes his nerves. It has a tendency to make a man more amiable and more amenable, and after a good many years of observation, my dear, I am pretty well satisfied that there's nothin' that'll promote matrimonial harmony like a good cigar smoked at home. You never heard of a man with a cigar in his mouth breakin' up the furniture or draggin' his wife around the room by the hair of her head, did you? No, I guess not! Nor it don't induce him to sneak out into the kitchen and kiss the cook, either. Its influence is always in the direction of virtue. Many a crisis, domestic and otherwise, has been prevented by the contemplative restraint of a good cigar. You needn't smile, little girl. That's no joke. Of course you can always get too much of a good thing. Too much tobacco will work harm in time, but so will too much ham and eggs, and the man who smokes at home isn't half as likely to overdo it as the man who has to go out in the woodshed or to the corner saloon or to the club.

IN SHAPE TO SUBMIT.

"And that brings me around to the main point that I want to press into your pretty little head. You've got your hair fixed mighty nice this evenin', honey. New style, ain't it? Uh, huh! Looks fine. But, as I was about to say, the best place for a man to smoke his cigar is at home. Now, you've got Bill out there in the back yard tryin' to get some satisfaction out of his smoke, and he isn't gettin' it. Smoke, for the most part, is a mental process, and its enjoyment is measured a good deal by the surroundin's. Bill's puffin' away out there and wonderin' why it burns so slow. All the time he's thinkin', and you oughtn't to blame him if his thinks ain't the kind you'd like to have workin' around in his brain. He ought to be sittin' here and lookin' at you just as I am and wonderin' to himself how in the world he was lucky enough to get such a dear, delightful little wife. Instead of that he's probably thinkin' that it's mighty tough that a man can't smoke in his own house. If he has to go away from the house to do his smokin' he'll gradually go farther and stay longer, and the first thing you know you'll find yourself sittin' up at the front window at 2 o'clock in the mornin' trying to figure out what's happened to Bill and wonderin' whether you ought to get out a rollin' pin or a mustard plaster.

ALL THE TIME HE'S THINKING.

"No, little girl; mind what your old daddy says. Don't try to make a seraphim out of Bill. Keep him at home. Make him think that home is the sweetest and pleasantest place on the face of this green earth, and let him smoke anywhere he doggone pleases."

Be Sociable Anyway.

There never was a road yet that didn't run in two directions, and unless you stand still you've got to travel one way or the other. There's a considerable crowd goin' both ways on this highway of life, and that bein' the case it's just as easy and a whole lot pleasanter to have company. Whether a man's goin' to heaven or goin' to the devil it's better to be sociable. I never did have any use for the fellow who flocks by himself to practice either his virtues or his vices. Now, I take it for granted that you want to go in the right direction, and, if so, you'll find the only real crowd that's goin' your way is in the church. They're in the church primarily, I guess, because of its promises, but apart from that they're in it because Jordan, as the old song says, is a hard road to travel, and they need the help of the church to get them over the stony places. That's just why you need it and just why you can't afford to go along without it. Don't get in the habit of lyin' in bed of Sunday mornin's.—Colonel John Sneed.

LEFT TO FINISH HIS SLEEP

On Second Thought, Gambler Decided He Would Not Put the Bishop Out.

The bishop of a southern diocese was once making a missionary journey through Arkansas and the Indian territory, and on his arrival at Natchez he said to the landlord of a hotel, "I have been traveling for a week, day and night, in a mail wagon, and I want a comfortable room."

"Sorry," said the landlord, "but I don't believe there's a vacant room in Natchez; there's a horserace, a Methodist conference and a political convention in the city, and every house is full up. The only thing I can give you is a shake-down." Then observing the bishop's tired face, he added, "The best room in my house is rented to a noted gambler who usually remains out all night and seldom gets in before breakfast. If you will take the risk, you shall have his room; but if he should come in there'll be a row, I'll promise you that."

The bishop decided to take the risk. About four o'clock in the morning the gambler returned and promptly shook the bishop by the arm.

"Get out of here, or I'll put you out!" he shouted.

The bishop, the gentlest of men, raised himself on one elbow, so that it brought the muscles of his arm into full relief.

"My friend," he began quietly, "before you put me out, will you have the kindness to feel of my arm?"

The gambler put his hand on the bishop's arm.

"Stranger," he then said respectfully, "you can stay."—Youth's Companion.

WITH A LITTLE DIPLOMACY

Husband Put an End to Plans That Meant the Breaking Up of His Home.

The romance of a little affair of the heart was completely annihilated by an old-fashioned husband. Some good natured friend, who hoped to throw him into spasms by the startling information, told him that his wife had made preparations to elope, and that she only awaited the first of the month, when he who had promised to be the partner of her flight would arrive with his month's pay, which was needed for traveling expenses. Did that husband rave and tear his hair, go to his wife and on bended knees beg her to remain? No. Entering her presence, check book in hand, with a lighted cigar in his mouth, he thus calmly addressed her, between the whiffs of smoke: "Emma, I have learned that you have made up your mind to travel, and that you need a little money for railroad fares, etc. Your natural modesty prevented your mentioning the matter to me; or perhaps you wanted to surprise me. Name the amount you require, and I will fill out a check for the sum, and thank the man who has volunteered to act as your escort."

Seeing that he was so willing to get rid of her, she wouldn't gratify him. She is still in the house of her lord and master, a penitent woman.—New York Weekly.

Not Looking for Husbands.

Angered because the impression got abroad that they had organized to get husbands, members of the Forty Widow's association of Berwick, Pa., asked that a statement be made to the general public that they organized solely for social aims and not to get husbands. The fact that they have organized has spread so widely that they are now receiving letters from widows in all sections of the country asking how it is possible to become a member and what is the precess by which husbands are obtained for members. Men are also sending scores of letters complimenting the widows on what they believe is intended as a short cut to matrimony. It has been decided to keep the meetings as secret as possible in the future.

Ring Off, Please.

They were seated by the fireside dreaming of the future when they would be one; a winsome telephone girl and her fiance. The small talk finally drifted to the question as to who should light the fire in the morning. It was his opinion that it was the wife's place to get up and start the fire, and let the poor, hard-worked husband rest.

After this declaration there was silence most profound, but only for the space of about half a second; then the girl thrust out her finger encircled by a ring, and murmured sweetly but firmly: "Ring off, please; you have connected with the wrong number."

"Halcyon Days."

The expression "halcyon days" has been handed down to us from the ancient Sicilians. They firmly believed in an old legend that during the seven days preceding and the seven following the winter solstice (December 21) the halcyon, or kingfisher, brooded over her young in a nest afloat on the surface of the water, and that during these 14 days the seas would be calm and safe for the mariner. Hence the name "Halcyon Days," when, according to Milton, "Birds of color sat brooding on the charmed wave."

Village Gossip.

"Is Squire Whetstone considerate of dumb animals?"

"I don't know how he treats 'em," answered Si Simling. "But he certainly speaks mighty kind of 'em when he's engineerin' a hoss trade."

FROM GOLF LINKS TO OFFICE

MANY a man would be unable to enjoy the healthful exercise of golf if the telephone did not keep him in touch with his business.

A word over the wire saves him an hour's delay in leaving the office. There is another reason.

The busy man's day is made shorter by the Bell Service, which brings him in instant communication, not only with his fellow townsmen, but with correspondents in distant cities.

The Bell System provides universal service to meet the needs of all users.

WEDDED FIFTEEN YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Bicknell Observe Happy Event at Their Home.

CONGRATULATIONS AND GIFTS.

Couple Was Married October 10, 1894 by Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson at Mt. Horeb —The Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Bicknell, of South avenue, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding at their home, last night, there being about seventy-five relatives and friends present. Yesterday was not the exact date of the anniversary, it being October 10, but it was not convenient to hold it on the latter date and the plans were changed.

The home was lavishly decorated with autumnal foliage, cut flowers and chrysanthemums. During the evening there was a program of vocal and instrumental music to enliven the occasion, while phonograph music added to the pleasure of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell received a large collection of useful and valuable gifts from relatives and friends, many of whom were present at the marriage of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell were married at the Mt. Horeb M. E. church, October 10, 1894, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson, formerly of the borough, but now of Nutley, performing the ceremony. The bride was Miss Ariadna Codington, she being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholamew Codington. Her father has since died, but her mother was present at the celebration last night. At the time Mr. Bicknell resided at Watchung, he being the son of Mrs. Stephen Bicknell, of that place. She was also present last night. Mr. Bicknell is now engaged in business as a wheelwright and blacksmith on South avenue.

Among those present last night were Mrs. Christiana Codington, mother of Mrs. Bicknell; Mrs. Stephen Bicknell, mother of Mr. Bicknell; Charles A. Codington, Reuben Codington, W. B. Codington, Mr. and Mrs. George Nuse, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Miner G. Smith, of Mt. Horeb; Miss Lillian Bicknell and Alfred Bicknell, of Watchung; Mrs. M. E. Smith, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. William R. Codington, Mrs. Eugene Giddes, Mrs. James Cashin, Miss Evelyn Cashin, Miss Gertrude Cashin, Mr. and Mrs W. E. Cranston, Edward Cranston, Miss Grace Cranston, Alexander Dressler, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Soden, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lund, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Dennis and Miss Ada Dennis.

MRS. ADAM SACHS WAS SURPRISED BY FRIENDS.

A very pleasant birthday surprise party was tendered Mrs. Adam Sachs, of Mt. Bethel, on Wednesday evening, October 27, by the members of the Mt. Bethel Pleasure Circle. One of the features of the evening was the presentation by the Circle to Mrs. Sachs of a black witch cake, emblem of good luck to the house to which it is brought. All the ladies present received a black witch as a souvenir and the gentlemen a little gray mouse. After a most delightful round of fun and games, refreshments were served, and the guests departed.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Duderstadt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Angster, Miss Matilda Angster, Mr. and Mrs. Glogger, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Dayton Peck, Miss Paust, Mrs. A. Sachs, William Sachs, Mr. and Mrs. William Gregory, William Gregory, Miss Hazel Gregory, Andrew Haye, Jr., Miss Florence Haye, Miss Mariette Coddington, Miss Hazel Palmer, Miss Ida Doherty, Mrs. Matter and son, of Brooklyn; William Crafferty and Phen. Doherty and Mr. Haas, of Millington; Charles Gregory, Frederick Meyer, Mr. Frank, Sidney Wood, Miss Bertha Wood.

Clerk Will Deliver Ballot Boxes.

City Clerk James T. MacMurray, in an official notice published in The Daily Press today, states that he will deliver, or caused to be delivered on Monday morning, November 1, between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock, the ballot boxes, ballots and other blanks and supplies necessary to carry on the general election to be held November 2. The delivery will be made at such places as the clerks of the several boards shall advise the clerk before 9 o'clock, Monday morning. This will not apply to districts where voting machines are used.

Engagement Announced.

Bartholomew Kelly, of Madison avenue, Dunellen, announces the engagement of his daughter, Katharine Louise, to Joseph Knee, of Brooklyn.

N. B. SMALLEY WILL WIN

Boroughite, with Record of Self-Sacrific, Sure of Walk-Over.

MEETING TONIGHT IN BOROUGH.

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Assemblyman Smalley and Others to Speak.

Newton B. Smalley will be the next mayor of the borough. That is admitted by all individuals, factions and cliques. Smalley's only opponent is William Lunger, on the Prohibition ticket, and although he is in line togather in a few independent votes, it is figured that the cold water candidate will not poll more than 100 votes. Such being the situation Smalley is dead sure of having a walkover.

Two years ago when Mayor Townsend was nominated without opposition Smalley declared that he was out of politics for good. He had served as chief magistrate of the borough for ten successive years, and during his five terms, improvements were numerous. Smalley sacrificed his business interests to give his personal attention to the borough affairs, and the community at large benefited by his policies, although periods of his administration, were marked by bitter fights on the annexation question, which has since been eliminated.

Newton B. Smalley.

When Mayor Townsend declared he would not accept a renomination, such influential citizens as E. S Hooley, W. J. Buttfield, C. W. McCutchen and others sought Smalley and induced the former mayor to accept a nomination. Smalley reluctantly consented to act as standard bearer of his party and the tracks are clear for his election

Borough politicians are accustomed to redhot campaigns, but this year is an exception to the rule and "general apathy" appears to be the master of the situation However, to show that there is an election next Tuesday the Republicans will hold a rally in Saengerbund Hall tonight.

Borough and county issues will be thoroughly discussed and the orators for the occasion will be State Senator Frelinghuysen, Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, Newton B. Smalley, Benjamin A. Hegamin, Jr., and others.

COLLEGE CLUB TO GIVE "THE GENTLE SHEPHERD."

Under the auspices of the Women's College club, of Plainfield, Allan Ramsey's "Gentle Shepherd," will be presented at the Hartridge School Auditorium Thursday afternoon, November 4, for the benefit of the scholarship fund. The club pays the tuition of a young woman through college, and it is for this purpose that the entertainment will be given. It has been decided not to admit men at the affair.

The cast will appear in Highland costume, and there will be bagpipers from New York to play for the Scotch songs and dances. Miss Elsie Goddard will take the part of the "hero," and Miss Louise Curtis that of the "heroine." Miss Mosher, of the Y. W. C. A., who has been drilling the young women in dances, will also take part. Others in the cast will be Miss Eva Browne, Miss Margaret McCutcheon, Miss Osgood, Mrs. Richard Boardman, Miss Ashwell, Miss Marjorie Phillips, Mrs. DeLamater and Miss Elsie Burke.

Merchants Adopt Closing Days.

The Plainfield Merchants' Association has decided on the following closing days for the coming year: New Years, and Christmas, all day; Lincoln's Birthday, half days; Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, all day; State election for Governor, half-day; presidential election and Thanksgiving day, all day.

Council Meets Monday Night.

The Common Council will meet Monday night in regular session, when considerable business relating to sanitary sewage, police pensions, etc., will be discussed and reports from committees will be received.

HIGH COURT OFFICERS VISIT PLAINFIELD FORESTERS

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, held a large and enthusiastic meeting last night, when one applicant was received and fifteen new members were initiated, twelve being received during the summer months. The goat was rather frisky from its long period of inactivity and a lively time resulted.

F. A. Mackenzie, high secretary for New Jersey, exemplified the work and Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger W. T. Bingham gave an excellent address on the merits of the order, which was well received. Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, of Court Watchung, high physician for New Jersey, also made a few remarks of interest to the members.

District Deputy Charles J. McCarthy was in charge of the initiatory team. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the Court's annual entertainment. During the social hour which followed, a collation was served under the direction of Edward J. McCue, John R. Cline and Fred Breem. Vocal solos were rendered by William Roddy and John Vardon, while a phonograph operated by one of the members entertained with popular airs, during the spread and passing of cigars. The vocal selections rendered by the Court's quartet, with the members as a chorus, was a pleasing feature.

PRAYERS FOR THE DEAD AT ST. MARY'S CEMETERY

Public prayers for the Catholic dead will be conducted by Rev. Bernard M. Bogan at St. Mary's cemetery tomorrow afternoon. In previous years this memorial service has been attended by thousands and a large throng is expected to participate in the celebration. In addition to local Catholics taking part in the service there will be representations here from the neighboring parishes in Bound Brook, Dunellen, Somerville, Westfield and Crawford. The service will begin at 2:15 o'clock.

The men of St. Mary's congregation will assemble at the church at 1:30 o'clock, where they will be joined by the men of St. Joseph's congregation of the borough, and the visiting Catholics. Accompanied by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Knights of Columbus, T. A. B. Society and Holy Name Society, the delegation will march to the cemetery. At the latter place they will meet the women and children.

The program of the service includes an address by Father Bogan following the public prayers, while the music will be rendered by the altar boys of St. Mary's.

Timbo Club in Line.

A good sized representation of the Timbo Social Club participated in the annual Hallowe'en parade at Somerville last night. The local column was led by Big Chief Timbo. Ignatius, the goat mascot of the club, was led by First Lieutenant Will Doud, and was one of the unique features in the parade. Other Timbo members were James J. Kane, Raymond Hodge, E. H. Bennett, J. Percival Hall, Marcus Hart, Archie Davie, Harry Blimm, Albert Firstbrook, Richard Biddle and John Todd.

Postponed for One Week.

Owing to a previous engagement, which had been overlooked by Chas. L. Lewis, the singing master of the old fashioned singing school at Trinity Reformed church, which was advertised for Thursday evening, November 4, a postponement of one week, to November 11, is announced. There have been many rehearsals of the affair and a pleasant evening is anticipated.

CALVIN NEIGHBOUR DEAD IN HIS EIGHTY-SITH YEAR

Calvin Neighbour, for thirty-three years a resident of this city, died yesterday afternoon in his eighty-sixth year at the home of his grandson, Irving. In his earlier years he was a farmer of Hunterdon county and was a staunch Democrat. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church and a faithful attendant at its services.

Mr. Neighbour came of a long lived family his father dying fifteen years ago at the age of ninety-five. Two brothers survive him, Hon. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of his grandson, Irving Neighbor, 29 Manning avenue, North Plainfield. Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring will conduct the services. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

ALL SAINTS CELEBRATION

Grace P. E. Church Will Witness Unveiling of Memorial Windows Tomorrow.

BISHOP SCAABOROUGH TO ACT.

Sermon by Rev. Dr. George W. Douglas, a Canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

The bishop of the diocese, prominent clergymen and laymen from this section, together with goodly representations from sister parishes in the city and borough will join with Grace church parish tomorrow morning on the occasion of the dedication of costly memorial windows, which adorn the beautiful edifice of that fashionable and influential congregation. The rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, has been painstaking to make the service one that will go down in local history as one of the most elaborate religious ceremonies that has taken place here.

All Saints day falling on Monday, it was decided as particularly appropriate to unveil and dedicate to God's purposes the All Saints window raised above the high altar and the rose window in the nave of the edifice. The former is in memory of departed saints of the parish and the necessary subscriptions were largely made by relatives of those in whose honor it is erected. The rose window is the gift of Mrs D. T. VanBuren and her two sons, Francis Person VanBuren and Julian Tompkins VanBuren, and is in memory of her husband and their father, General Daniel Tompkins VanBuren.

The All Saints window, given by unknown contributors, is the work of the Gorham Company, of New York. The great multitude depicted in the lower section is so designed as to give force to the idea of the unknown. In the group above are shown those saints known for their zeal in the work of the church, Moses, Isaiah, David, John the Baptist, Elijah, John and Peter. Above in separate lights are the four archangels with the angels holding the book of Life and Death, flanked with the Cherubim and Seraphim. In the upper centre light stands the Lamb upon a hill from which issues forth the living fountains of water. Above the Lamb is the New Jerusalem. The interest of the entire group is centered in the Lamb above. The striking feature of the gorgeous window is that it suitably expresses the central idea of All Saints day.

The rose window, designed by Messrs. Heaton, Butler and Bayne, of London, England, is so placed as to receive the earliest rays of the morning sun. From the centre to the circumference, the subdued brilliancy behind the design is intended to suggest the sentiment of the "Rising Sun of Righteousness with the Healing in His Wings." And upon the background is built the grouping of the enthroned Christ surrounded by his twelve Apostles. The rose or round window was a very common design in the early Gothic period.

Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D., LL.D., bishop of New Jersey, will dedicate the memorials and will administer Holy Communion following the close of the regularly prescribed service. The sermon will be preached by Rev. George William Douglass, for many years rector of Trinity church, New Haven, Conn., and now a canon of the Cathedral of Saint John the Divine, New York city. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, the rector, will have charge of the service and will be assisted by his curate, Rev. E. R. Powers. Among the prominent clergymen who will take part in the service will be Rev. Dr. Grint, formerly of New London, Conn.; Rev. Dr. Aspinwall, rector-emeritus of St. Thomas' church, Washington, D. C., and Rev. Dr. William H. Neilson, of this city, also a retired clergyman.

Appropriate music will be rendered during all the services tomorrow and in the afternoon organist S. Frederick Smith will render the following special program at his fifth recital:

Overture to the occasional oratorio, Handel; Allegretto Grazioso, Toms; Tocata from sonata I, Tombelle; Salut d'amour, Elgar.

WOODROW WILSON'S TALK

Denounces the Aldrich Tariff Bill as a Menace to American Industries.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE FILLED.

Party in Power Has Lost Its Freedom of Choice, Says Princeton's President.

The main body of the Plainfield theatre was filled last night with an audience composed of men and women interested in the speech delivered by Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University. On the stage were about a hundred of Plainfield's solid citizens, including most of the clergymen of the local churches. It was an enthusiastic gathering and the speaker was frequently interrupted by applause.

Among those on the stage were W. L. Saunders, A. H. Atterbury, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, Rev. Dr. A. C. Nickerson, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, Dr. F. C. Ard, James E. Martine, W. H. Reville, Franklin S. Halliday, Joseph Hague, W. E. Tuttle, James Connolly, Corporation Counsel of Elizabeth, James McBride, president of the Jefferson Club of Newark, and many others.

Dr. Wilson said that the Aldrich bill is radically different from the original principle of protection and that tyranny menaces our industries great and small. While Dr. Wilson was waiting to be called on for his speech he was asked how it felt to be a director of a big corporation like the Mutual Life Insurance Co., to whose directorate he was elected on Thursday. His answer was evasive, as was to be expected. He said the thing was too new yet for him to have formed any opinion and therefore did not care to express one at this time.

The speaker was introduced by Leroy J. Ellis, president of the Democratic club, and Dr. Wilson was applauded for fully five minutes before he was allowed to proceed. In his preliminary remarks Dr. Wilson said it was perhaps an unusual thing to see a college teacher speaking at a political meeting, but that as the colleges do not govern the country but rather furnish the raw material from which the country's governors are made the college man has the wrong instinct who does not grasp the meaning of his opportunities. His speech follows:

"The Democratic party is now facing an unusual opportunity and a very great duty. The party in power has become entangled with all sorts of interests, great and small, has lost its freedom of choice in a hundred ways, and may be said by reason of its peculiar policies to have allied itself with something less than the nation as a whole. The Democratic party, on the other hand, is free from entanglements and is at liberty to choose policies suited to the national conditions as a whole and to all the new aspects of politics which have revealed themselves in recent years. It is free to make a program for the general good, if it will with perfect candor and simplicity.

"But it should do this without allowing itself to be embarrassed by old formulas. Most of the old formulas of our politics are worn threadbare and have lost their significance, having been formulated for another age which had other and very different questions to settle, and which settled them with a sincerity which we can imitate only by translating our principles into new form and statements.

"Take, for example, the old formulas with regard to strict construction and the old ideal of 'as little government as possible.' The indisputable fact is that the Federal Government has in recent years been launched into many fields of activity even the existence of which previous generations did not foresee. We should not now stop to be pedantic about the way in which we shall construe the fundamental law of our government or attempt the impossible task of forcing its present activities into old statements. We should seek the best construction, should direct its activities toward the objects which clearly lie within its province by means which we are convinced to be just and efficient. It was inevitable, in our changed conditions, that the Federal Government should come out into many new fields of power. I for one am very jealous of the separate powers and authority of the individual States of the Union. But it is no longer possible with the modern combinations of industry and transportation to discriminate the interests of the several States as they could once be discriminated. Interests once local and separate have become unified and national. They must be treated upon a national scale, in a national spirit, and by the national government. The Federal Government

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO RUN CAFE CHANTANT

The program that has been prepared for the evening's entertainment at the Cafe Chantant to be given by the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, at the Park Club, Election night, is exceptionally attractive. The parasol dance to be given by seven young women, assisted by Allan Bole, the well-known New York baritone, who was the leader of the Cornell Glee Club in 1901, will be one of the most attractive costume dances given in this city. Those who will take part in the dance are the Misses Hooley, Katherine McCutcheon, Marion Hall, Miss VanDeventer and Mrs. Lewis A. Williams, Jr. Miss Louise Saunders, who is well-known for her clever work, will give several original monologues during the evening.

Another feature of the evening will be the piano solos and songs by Kenneth S. Clark, of New York city. He is a well-known composer of popular songs, his latest success being "When You Steal a Kiss or Two," as sung in "The Girl Behind the Counter." Mr. Clark is composing the lyrics for John P. Sousa and all New York is whistling his song, "When You Are Roaming in the Gloaming." Mr. Clark's appearance will surely be a treat. Miss Marion Hall will also contribute to the entertainment by giving a solo dance in costume.

The dance of the French waiters, who, it is said, have been secured at great expense and trouble from Maxim's in Paris, will be one of the fun-making numbers. This dance, to be led by John P. Myers, will be one of the hits of the evening. It is entirely original and will be given by C. M. Baker, Hugh S. Jarvis, A. M. Abbott and H. L. McGee. Miss Verna McCutcheon will sing several solos appropriate to the occasion.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

With the approach of the cold weather season churches of the borough and township are becoming active in social affairs. In almost every congregation preparations are under way for sociables and other attractions which are preliminary to Christmas.

Tomorrow at Holy Innocents church the Eve of All Saints Day will be observed by appropriate services which will be in charge of the rector, Rev. Mr. Phelps. At the morning service the Holy Communion will be celebrated and the rector will deliver a special sermon, his topic being, "Living as Saints." A special musical program will also be rendered by the choir.

The regular services will be held in the Methodist church with the Rev. Mr. Knox in charge. Special attention is called to the meeting of the Epworth League in the church which will be led by Mrs. E. Clarkson. The topic will be "Poor, Rich and Rich Poor."

Christian Endeavorers are active in the First Presbyterian church. A missionary service will be conducted tomorrow with Miss Catharine Dunham as leader. Miss Dunham's theme will be "Heroes of Missions in the Islands."

Young people in the Seventh-Day Baptist church are working at a fast clip. A number of young men have started a movement to organize a Baracca class. Considerable interest is manifested in the project and it is possible that an organization will be perfected within a few weeks. The Christian Endeavor Society has donated a sum of money for interior improvements of the church which are now underway. More interest is being manifested in the weekly prayer meetings. There was a big turnout last night to hear the pastor's discourse on "Saving and Losing."

Mr. and Mrs. James Coffey have taken up their residence at the Chelsea apartments, West Twenty-third street, New York, for the winter.

John Peters is arranging a pool tournament, which he proposes to start on Monday night, November 11.

Mrs. Martin Lewis has been entertaining Mrs. Ella Cheshire and daughter, of Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Wilmot are now "at home" at their home on Washington avenue.

Miss Edna Burdick is home for a week end visit from the Montclair Normal School.

Howard Van Nest has returned from a visit to Peekskill, N. Y.

William Winges is out again after an attack of malaria.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The first dance of the Jolly Five, which was held Thursday night in Excelsior Hall, was a success in every way. Suhr's orchestra dispersed music for the merry waltz and two step from 9 until shortly after 1 o'clock, the floor being filled with dancers all the evening. The hall was prettily trimmed with bunting, the effect reflecting credit on the committee. Guests were present from Westfield, Plainfield and the village.

Hallowe'en falls on tonight. However this will not interfere with the small boy and the front gate, as the residents who neglect to take care of them will find out when they arise Sunday morning.

One would hardly believe it, but the registry list for the coming election is hovering pretty close to the 400 mark. There is a steady increase each year.

The night of the weekly prayer-meeting at the Baptist church has been changed from Friday night to Wednesday night.

Randolph Drake, who has been ill for several weeks, is still confined to his home on Bartle avenue.

John Miller and family, of Hunter avenue, remove to Plainfield November 1.

RARITAN.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church is planning to give a play some time during the second week in November.

Edward Lisser is foreman of the force of mechanics erecting the new Italian Catholic church in New Brunswick.

Miss Mary Tillman returned this week from Rahway, where she has been visiting her brother, Peter Tillman.

At Proctor's.

The fine vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre, headed by Princess Ronita, the educated horse, attracted a capacity audience to the popular playhouse last night. The equine performed wonderful tricks and mystified the audience by its knowledge. It seemed as though the animal could do everything but actually talk. The other numbers include Gardner West and Sunshine, songs and dances; Sydney Shields & Co., in a clever sketch, and Lew Worth in monologue work. The films d'art are of the best.

Lillian Russell in "The Widow's Might," at Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

Scene in "Deadwood Dick's Last Shot," at Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday, Matinee and Night.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

In "The Widow's Might" Joseph Brooks has given Miss Russell a beautiful production of the new comedy. Its four acts are all highly interesting scenes and two of these are pretty interiors that frame the regal beauty of this wonderful star. Her dressing of the part is also a feature of no small moment. In such surroundings and in Parisian gowns of the latest mode she is a picture more bewitching to look upon than mere words can convey. Her supporting cast includes all the popular players who helped Miss Russell during the metropolitan run of "The Widow's Might" at the Liberty theatre. In the cast will be found Frederick Truesdell, Julius McVicker, Sydney Booth, Morgan Wallace, Joseph Tuchey, John D. O'Hara, Samuel Burton, Daniel Fitzgerald, T. Hayes Hunter, Susanne Westford, Ellen Mortimer, Margaret Maclyn and a bevy of pretty girls who fill in the stage pictures in the party scene that is one of the most delightful portions of the production. At Plainfield theatre tonight.

Outside of the many novelties and exciting situations to be found in "Deadwood Dick's Last Shot," Chas. Wurz's latest melodramatic success, which is slated as the attraction at the Plainfield theatre, November 2, the play contains a most absorbing love story that is sure to appeal to the most exacting playgoer. The piece is by Owen Davis, who has over fifty dramatic successes to his credit, and is in four acts and eight scenes. Although sensational to the minutest degree, there is not the least cessation of interest. The plot reveals a most natural and absorbing story of life in the Golden West among the tall mountain peaks, lowlands, canyons and valleys of picturesque California. Deadwood Dick plunges himself into a lot of trials and tribulations in order to keep a sweet Eastern girl with whom he has fallen in love. There is no chance for the audience to become bored, for the action is spirited and natural. Right conquers might in the end, of course, and when Dick fires his last shot, it is to kill the man who has caused all his troubles. It is just the kind of play that goes right to the heart and even if some of the exacting critics regard some of its situations as improbable, it nevertheless answers its main purpose—to amuse, entertain and interest.

SALVATION ARMY CALL ANSWERED BY SEVEN

A large number of people gathered in the Salvation Army hall last evening to hear the life story of Commissioner Cadman, of England. The Commissioner spoke for about two hours moving his audience to laughter by the comical incidents of his life and stirring their emotions with the stories of the early day hardships and privations in the preaching of the Gospel.

Left fatherless at the age of fifteen months, trained to be a chimney sweep climbing boy at the age of five, he told of his adventures and hardships.

One day the words of a preacher in a Market place led to his remarkable conversion. His powers which had heretofore been used in mischief and adventure he now turned to religion. While engaged in preaching he came in contact with Rev. Wm. Booth, at that time the head of The Christian Mission, fell in love with him and his methods and threw in his lot with the mission. Remarkable methods were used by him in attracting the crowds and thousands were converted through his labors. In most places many of the Public Houses were closed, the people having turned out to hear the Gospel. In the town of Whitby in 1877 the title of Captain was first used by him on a bill poster, and thus the origin of the Military system of the Army.

When the Commissioner closed at a late hour seven responded to the call and went forward to the Penitent Form, thus closing one of the most remarkable meetings ever held in this city. The Comissioner left this morning for Asbury Park where he will conduct a special series of meetings.

The Junior Christian Endeavor society of Warren chapel will entirely omit its meeting on Tuesday, on account of election, and the Senior Endeavor society will meet tomorrow night at 7:15, instead of Tuesday night.

Miss Curry, manager of the Little Missionary Day Nursery, at 92 St. Mark's place, New York city, is preparing to give the children Thanksgiving dinners. "MAIL" EDITOR'S PLANK

Mr. Hughes' Candidacy Boomed by Cupid, But Not Cupidity.

IF ELECTED WILL MARRY FREE.

He Calls it a Matrimonial Plank and Thinks Its a Winner —Mobus is All Right.

Dan Cupid was never known to be a politician, but this little invisible god of love is highly concerned over next Tuesday's election for justice of the peace in North Plainfield township, where city editor George Hughes, of the New York Evening Mail, is the candidate for the office on the Republican ticket against John Mobus on the Democratic ticket. This is why Dan Cupid is rooting for all he is worth for Editor Hughes to win:

Editor Hughes has pledged himself, if elected, not to accept any fees or tips for uniting in marriage all couples residing in the bounds of the township. Should a township lassie select a hubby from outside the township he will also give his services gratis, but should a township beau go outside of the township for his affinity and desire to be united at the Hughes' throne, the full legal fee will be collected.

Editor Hughes was awaiting the arrival of the train to convey him to the metropolis this morning when a Daily Press reporter accosted him and inquired as to the prospects of his election. In less than five minutes the Broadway paste pot and scissors expert told the reporter that he expected to be elected and announced the "main plank in his platform." Talking on the chances of his election Editor Hughes said:

"John Mobus is a mighty nice fellow, an upright man, but I think I will beat him, although the township is normally Democratic."

"Why are you so confident?,, asked the reporter.

"Well you know," responded the editor, "I'm running on a stronger platform than Mr. Mobus. Haven't you heard of it yet?"

"Indeed, no, shoot the dope," demanded the reporter as he beheld the editor's train puffing past Grant Avenue Station, one mile distant.

"It's a free matrimonial plank. You see marriages have been mighty scarce up country and I have promised to tie all the nuptial knots of the young fellows free of charge should they need my services, if elected. Now there's the secret of my hope, by making that pledge I have got the young element with me, especially the new voters, and a lot of them are Democrats.

"One more thing," continued the editor, "I have promised my constituents, if elected, to see that cows and pigs are kept off the public highways."

A series of toot-toots announced the arrival of the train which carried Editor Hughes to the New York political battlefield, where he is carrying the banner of Bannard.

Editor Hughes has been a resident of North Plainfield township for several years, where he is situated on a small farm. This is his maiden political effort, and from all accounts the present contest for the office of justice, between Mr. Hughes and Mr. Mobus, is the most exciting event since 1877, when "Hank" Rogers aroused the envy of all the farmers in the valley, by carrying off the big pumpkin prize at the old Waverly fair.

MASTER C. SHELTON MOORA TO SING AT MUSICAL SERVICE.

The first of a series of special musical services will be held at the First Presbyterian church, tomorrow night, when Master C. Shelton Moora, boy soprano of Trinity church, New York, will be the soloist. He will sing soprano obligatos as well as the offertory solo. Those who heard him last year in this church, will doubtless want to hear him again.

The following program will be rendered: Anthems, "Abide With Me,' with soprano obligato, Neidlinger; "Awake Up My Glory," Rogers; "Here is Rest," with soprano obligato, Macy; duet, "Calm as the Night," for contralto and tenor, Goetze; soprano solo, -"Babylon," Michael Watson.

Read a Paper on Australia.

At the meeting of the Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church held yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss May Shreve on Grove street, an interesting paper was presented by Miss Carrie Combs on "Australia." She described the people and the customs of the country and told of religious work done there, an important feature of which was the efforts put forth by the Christian Endeavor Society which numbers 40,000. The paper was preceded by a devotional service led by Miss Bessie Flanders.

Will Serve Maryland Suppers.

For the remainder of the season, a Maryland supper will be served at the Plainfield Country club, in place of the table d'hote dinner on Saturday nights and holiday nights. If the members avail themselves of this opportunity the suppers will be continued druing the fall. There will be music during the dinner and for dancing. Geer's Explanation.

Charles Geer, of this city, who was arrested in New Brunswick on the charge of stealing a horse and rig from Spencer Gardner, a New Brunswick letter carrier in telling his story to the police of that city declared that he had a bargain with Gardner for the horse and rig and that the latter told him to go to the barn and take the property. Geer is still in jail.

An Error Corrected.

Through an error it was stated in yesterday's Press that the operetta, "A Japanese Girl," is to be given by the young women of Grace P. E. church. It should have said the members of Cup Bearer Circle of the King's Daughters.

WOODROW WILSON'S TALK

must, if possible, be kept to its old temper of restraint and carefully studied constitutional right, but it cannot be kept to a little field when the field is in fact great and must be occupied by some common authority. Our principles are not new, but the forms in which we should express them must of necessity be new, and they are so novel indeed as often to make the principles themselves bear an appearance of radical novelty. There should be no limitation of the functions of the Federal Government by number, but only limitation by carefully considered principles and carefully studied instrumentalities of action.

"The party has always stood for a careful restraint of the powers of government, and the position I am advocating is not in derogation of its ancient principles in this matter. But it should, whenever national action is necessary, be shy, not of governmental power, but of its organization in the wrong way and its use to the wrong ends. The debates of our coming campaigns must centre upon the means we are to use in accomplishing ends which the whole country sees that it is necessary to accomplish. There are Democratic means which we can conscientiously and earnestly advocate, and there are radical undemocratic means which should oppose with every ardor and power that is in us. Undemocratic means are those which serve the interests of parties or of groups of men which ignore the essential rights and opportunities and responsibilities of individuals. The Democratic principle is that government should study not only regulation but individual liberty and individual responsibility and that no regulation incompatible with the freedom and development of the individual is tolerable. This principle, rightly interpreted, leads to many interesting conclusions.

"Stated in general terms, our principle should be: Government, not for the sake of success at whatever cost and the multiplication of material resources by whatever process, but for the sake of discriminating justice and the wholesome development as well as regulation of the national life.

"Apply these doctrines to the great questions of the day and see what it will yield you. Apply it, first of all, to the great questions which center in tariff legislation. The orignal principle of protective tariff in this country was that laid down by the great statesmen who may be said to have originated it. I mean Alexander Hamilton. His argument for protective tariffs turned at every point up this single object; the calling out of all the resources and energies of the nation, and their protection against foreign competition so long as they should be unable to bear competition. He thought always of the general development and never of the particular interests of those who were engaged for their own profit in furthering it. The principle upon which the Aldrich tariff is based is a radically different one, as sharply contrasted with the principle of Hamilton as private interest is contrasted with public benefit. The object of that tariff, and of those which immediately preceded it, is not the benefit of the country at large and the careful stimulation of its many and various industries, but the benefit of those engaged in the protected industries, the incompetent along with the competent. It is a means of insuring profits to certain bodies of manufacturers on the plea that what they are doing adds to the wealth and trade of the nation, but without any regard to the question whether they are adding to the wealth and trade of the nation in the way which is most wholesome and most suited to the common benefit.

"Again and again there have been instances in previous revisions of the tariff in which when certain duties were lowered the manufacturers directly affected found themselves face to face with certain loss, but turned loss into profit by a reconsideration of their whole business, the institution of neglected economies, the installation of improved machinery, and the careful stimulation of all their business processes. Recent tariff legislation seeks at every point to relieve them of such necessities of vigilance and improvement, seeks to protect those who have not put their business at its best against foreigners who have. The whole system is a system of favors, by which not the country at large is profited, but certain perfectly distinguishable beneficiaries of the government and the party which grants the favors. The demoralization of the whole thing, its corrupting effect upon our politics, its enfeebling effect upon our industries, its sinister effect upon our political principles is now evident to every man who allows himself to think without obscuring his view by private considerations of self interest. A day of reckoning upon this matter is at hand, and it will be an unjust reckoning, a mere reaction, unless we determine and insist upon the true principle of correction.

"What shall that principle be? Nothing else than the principle upon which the whole system was originally founded, namely a studious attention to the general and public benefits to be conferred by it. It is indisputable that a large majority of our industries have been so developed and perfected as to render them quite independent of governmental assistance, if the gifted men who have developed and now control them will but devote their attention to economy and efficiency. By common consent we rule the markets of the world with the chief industries of which we are so proud, and the further subsidizing of the industries concerned by taxation of the people at large has become not only unnecessary but iniquitous and is manifestly inconsistent with the common good. There are other industries which have been artificially fostered and which apparently do not spring out of the natural conditions and capacities of America which can be maintained, it is said, only by a constant aid or subsidy from the government. Of these the people must ask themselves the question: Do we wish to maintain them? Can we afford to pay for things not naturally or advantageously produced in America when we could get them as well and much cheaper by importation? Shall we saddle ourselves forever with this systematic charity? There are other industries not yet fully developed, to which protection can honestly and consistently be extended until such time as they shall seem ready for independence. There are resources not yet exploited whose exploitation may take time and may need the covert of tariffs. What we need, in brief, is knowledge of the actual facts in respect of each industry and the honesty to act upon those facts when we have ascertained them.

"But how shall we act upon them? Certainly not by rapid and radical changes in our present tariffs, but by such a prolonged and steady change as will bring about an adaptation of the fiscal policy of the government to the real needs and circumstances of our manufacturing and laboring classes, with a view ultimately to get upon this basis, the taxation for the support of the government of things for which it will not be real hardship to pay high prices. If taxes upon these do not suffice, the taxation of those things which it will burden the people to pay for, things not absolute necessaries, things which they can do without without suffering or privation, and throughout the whole process an honest seeking for the things which will yield the most revenue with the least burden to the people.

"It is necessary under our dual system of government that the Federal Government should depend upon taxes of this sort for the most part for its support, and that almost all direct taxes should be left to the States for their maintenance and development. And it seems a perfectly consistent and legitimate principle to allow the element of incidental protection to come in, wherever it may be brought in without being a mere subsidy and without cramping and embarrassing the life of ordinary purchasers. There could be no injustice in a policy such as I have outlined, if it were undertaken by a responsible party and adhered to with courage and consistency. The industries of the country could easily adjust themselves, if proper time were allowed for the process.

"Apply our principle of government for the sake of justice and development to the trust questtion and observe what it will yield. We are at present trying the very hazardous experiment of regulating trusts in one or other of two ways. In the first place, we are attempting to restrain them from forms of organization and course of action which are against the general interest by the compulsion of fines and penalties. Thes fines and penalties generally fall, not upon the individuals responsible, but upon the stockholders who, under our present extraordinary administration of the law, are without any real power to control the businesses they nominally own. Fines also operate to take out of legitimate business large sums of money of which the public treasury is not in need and whose withdrawal embarrasses the general processes of trade and manufacture. It is a means of regulation which so far has certainly not accomplished its objects.

"The other means by which we seek control is the government of public service corporations, as we have cause to call them, through commissions. We have carried this method so far that we have virtually gone the length of dictating their management, which carries us very much beyond the point of mere control. We undertake through commissions, to dictate to those corporations the methods and means by which they shall conduct their business, and we threaten them with penalties of the severest sort if they do not obey the directions given them. These directions may or may not have regard to the possibilities of the case, may force upon those corporations policies and measures which will render their business unprofitable, but the government which dictates consents to no responsibility in the matter and has calmly adopted the policy of rule even if it involves ruin.

"We do not see the significance of this method of control at present because the commissions so far appointed have generally consisted of men of some wisdom and great honesty, and public opinion has watched the processes of control with a constant critical scrutiny. But the method is only in its infancy. The opportunities it offers for political influence and individual tyranny, which are the basis of graft, every man who is well read in the history of government can easily perceive. By this method of control we shall presently run into choices we have never dreamed of, into nothing less than the fundamental choices of governmental ownership and direction, so that responsibility shall not be divided from power.

"There is only one principle in regard to these matters which the Democratic party can consistently or conscientiously adopt. It is this. That control shall not be managed in such a way as to increase the powers and temptations of those who administer government, but in such a way as shall make law supreme through judicial instrumentalities, by making it operate directly upon individuals and emphasizing in every item of legislation the responsibility of individuals. It is perfectly possible to make all corporations so disclose the detail of their organization as to make it evident to the officers of the law what official, what authority, from its board of directors down to its most subordinate responsible officer, is responsible for the acts of the corporation with which the law chooses to deal. That being done, it is perfectly feasible for the law to punish the person or persons directly who ordered any illegal thing done. Such a process would check and correct illegal and unconscientious practices as no fine or corporate penalty ever can, and is as feasible in the case of public service corporations as of those which perform a less direct and obvious public function. Here is something which lawyers can work out and which will clear the whole air of chicane and evasions, which will, moreover, remove from government the burden and the temptation of the actual administration of corporate undertakings. One conspicuous responsible person sent to the penitentiary for ignoring the public interest would do more to correct recent abuses than a thousand fines piled high upon one another, or a thousand corporate penalties for disobeying the orders of commissions.

"Apply our principles to the question of taxation. Here it means the payment of taxes by those who chiefly benefit by the action of government, those to whom the State grants special licenses or privileges or powers. For example, to take a small matter, those who use the roads for personal pleasure rather than for any kind of service should be those chiefly taxed for the maintenance of the roads, and, to turn to a matter very great, those who are granted franchises of any kind or the artificial personality and the limitations of legal responsibility which belong to corporations should, because they are the chief beneficiaries of government, carry the greater part of the burden of its maintenance. Because they are the creatures of law, they should be the servants of government.

"There is one way of keeping such principles in constant vigor and increasing the likelihood of their adoption and operation. That is to put public opinion in control. This can be done in only one way, but can in that way be completely and easily done. It can be done by a few fearless men who will take it upon themselves to give the public full information about every thing of which they have any knowledge in connection with the management of parties, the making of laws, and the conduct of every part of the public business, by fearless and consistent candor with regard to everything the government is handling and with regard to the ways in which it is being handled. It is an absolute derelictics of public duty on the part of anyone responsible for public affairs to regard anything done by governmental authority in the field of law or policy as a private transaction, to be determined by secret conferences upon grounds not disclosed to the public view. One of the most wholesome things that has been suggested with regard to the control of corporations is that there should be the utmost publicity in respect of their operations and obligations. It is strange that we have not seen that this is also the way to purify and control government. Nothing that government does is private. It is all part of the public business and as part of the public business should be disclosed to every citizen of the commonwealth or country. That party will govern best and govern longest which has no confidence as against the people whom it serves.

"I feel that this is a particularly important matter in the national field with regard to the government of our dependencies. One of the things that most embarrasses right action in that matter is the ignorance of public opinion with regard to what is really being done in the Philippines and in Porto Rico, and none seem to be quite so ignorant as the reformers who are constantly assailing our ears with impracticable schemes of change. We shall avoid the folly of childish experiment if we make all the facts known and steady our judgments by the common sense of actual life.

"When public opinion shall have been thus entirely informed, those changes in political method which we have recently been so much debating will come inevitably and as of course. I mean the simplification of all processes of nomination and of election, the removal of all the privacies and concealments of machine action, and the restoration of government by the people.

"Surely these are principles and policies to which the Democratic party by very compulsion of tradition and ideal is bound to adhere and to foster. By such means it may come into its own again, and only by such means.

"We live in an age in which old things are passing away, in which all things are under scrutiny, in which the renaiseance of government by opinion and the general interest is as plainly forecast by every sign of the times as it was in the period preceding the French Revolution. The world has learned self-control in the time which separates us from that revolution, and America of all countries is not apt to follow the hysterical ways which then set Europe in turmoil. It will use the ordinary instrumentalities of peace and counsel to bring the radical changes about which are now inevitable. The question I wish to leave with you tonight is: Will the Democratic party offer its services in the great enterprise?"

II.—The Disillusionment of Matrimony.

ON his way downtown the other morning Colonel Sneed stopped at his daughter's house to deliver a lemon pie recipe intrusted to him with some misgivings by Mrs. Sneed. The front door was ajar, and, assuming the prerogative of a father, he entered without ringing the bell.

Young Mrs. Rollins was not expecting a visitor at that hour. Her attire was decidedly negligee. She had evidently slipped into the first thing that came handy when she arose and had deferred until a later and more convenient season most of the essentials of a woman's toilet. It is unnecessary to go into details.

"Good mornin', honey," said the colonel as he bent down for the affectionate salutation, and then as his eye took in her deficiencies he exclaimed:

"Why, child, what's the matter? Not sick, are you?"

"Oh, no, papa," replied his daughter, with a laugh. "I'm all right. But you shouldn't call on a lady so early, daddy, dear. I haven't dressed yet."

"Uh, huh; I see," he assented. "Makes an almighty lot of difference, don't it? Never caught you lookin' that way before you was married. Does—does William—was you wearin' that garb, honey, when he left you this mornin'?"

"APPEARANCES COUNT FOR A WHOLE LOT."

"Why, of course, papa. I can't dress before breakfast like I was going to a ball, can I? I have to do all my housework, and"—

"Yes, I know," interrupted the colonel, "but—but have you got the habit of goin' around like that?"

"I'm afraid I have, papa. But what is one to do? It takes time for a woman to dress. I have to get breakfast for Will. I can't cook or attend to any housework in my nice clothes, and even if I could it would take me so long to put them on he'd be late to the office. You know I'm without a servant just now, but if I had one I don't see how I could dress for breakfast. Besides, papa, all women go the same way in the morning."

"Yes, honey, I know the argument, but have you ever had your photograph taken in that mornin' costume?"

"Why, no, papa. Of course not."

"And if you had," went on the colonel, "would you want Bill to put it in a silver frame and sit it up on his desk where he could see it all day?"

"The very idea! I'd like to catch him making a show of me that way."

"Well, little girl, that's about what he does in fact. He carries a photograph of you all the time. It isn't on his desk, where other people can see it. It's fixed in a golden frame in his mind, and every once in awhile through the day it slips around in front of his mind's eyes, and he takes a long look at it. It isn't always the same picture he sees. Most of the time it's you as you would like to be seen, fixed up your prettiest, but sometimes it's you as he saw you last, as you looked when he left you in the mornin'. You know, dearie, you're mighty apt to remember a person by the appearance at partin', and the oftener Bill carries away with him a vision of breakfast time dowdiness the oftener it's goin' to pop into his view durin' the day until after a while it's goin' to throw out the other picture entirely."

"Appearances count for a whole lot in this world, and I believe they count for more in a man's feelin's toward a woman than in anything else. In nine cases out of ten it's appearances alone that attract a lad and a maid. That's part of the Almighty's scheme for bringin' men and women together. Every girl wants to look her best when her beau's comin' around, and that's right, that's nature. Didn't you rig up in the nicest clothes your pa's money could buy for you when Bill was doin' his courtin'? Didn't you prance around before a lookin' glass for an hour at a time tryin' to get everything just so and look your prettiest for him? Of course you did. And he's still carryin' some of those pictures around in his head, and once in awhile he gets them out and wonders why there's such a difference.

"There isn't any real difference, honey. It's just appearances. You haven't lost any good looks since you married. You're just as pretty and as sweet and as good as you were then—maybe a little more so. When you're all fixed up in the evenin' I have to admit that Mrs. William Jackson Rollins don't play second fiddle to Miss Sallie Sneed. You're all right then, little girl; you're all right now. But appearances have just as much to do with keepin' a man as they have with gettin' him, and the mornin' appearance has more influence than the evenin', for it stays longer; it goes downtown and spends the day with him.

"Now, I'm not sayin', my dear, that a woman ought to rig up in her best clothes before breakfast and go through all the funny business of a reception toilet. I don't mean that—not by a whole heap. That would be no more right than for Bill to go down to work in a full dress suit. There's a time for all things, as Shakespeare or Solomon remarked some time back, but I don't know of any proper time, honey, for dissolute kimonos, untied shoes and unkempt hair. These wrapper things the women have got to wearin' nowadays ought to be prohibited by law, if that would do any good. They were designed, I reckon, for the hours of luxurious ease and for loungin' around in a boudoir. Maybe they ain't so bad. But they wasn't cut out for workin' garbs. They're as much out of place in the kitchen as a velvet gown. Yet it's got so that half the women in this country fall out of bed every mornin' into more or less soiled and bedraggled kimonos. I think I'd be willin' to see a war with Japan just to get even with her for this kimono habit. It's a lazy dress, and I tell you, honey, it's downright demoralizin' that's what it is. It's so easy to get on it makes a woman careless about everything else. Instead of bein' neat and trim as she ought to be in the mornin', whether she's doin' her work or overseein' it, she gets to lookin' dowdy and slouchy. You can't help it, little girl; it's the influence of the garb. And I'd be willin' to bet a horse against a second hand burro," and here the colonel pounded on the arm of his chair with his fist, "that kimonos have had a good deal to do with what they call the matrimonial unrest. A man goes off downtown leavin' his wife lookin' like she'd just escaped from a fire sale, an' the first thing he puts his eyes on at his office is a stenographer in a clean shirt waist. If you think he don't notice the difference you're badly mistaken, my dear. Maybe he don't make eyes at the typewriter girl, maybe his love is so strong it don't affect his feelings the least bit, but all the same he notices it. And I wouldn't take the risk, honey. But—my, my"—the colonel was looking at his watch—"I can't stay here all day preachin' to you. I've got to get down to the office. So goodby, little girl, and—say, I'll be over this evenin' to see how you look."

A STENOGRAPHER IN A CLEAN SHIRT WAIST.

It Pays to Do Right.

I've noticed—and I don't sleep except when I go to bed—I've noticed that the people who come nearest to bein' happy in this world are the ones who come nearest to doin' right. To do right all the time, to do the square thing by your friends and your enemies, by everybody as well as by yourself, is a pretty hard proposition, and there's mighty few—I doubt if there's any—that succeed entirely. But it's been my experience that it pays to try, and the dividends seem to be exactly in proportion to the success. We're all lookin' for happiness. We've got a good many different ideas about what it is, but whatever it is we want it, and if we've got hoss sense we want the brand that'll last the longest an' keep the best. That brand is especially prepared and reserved for those who do right, or as near right as they can. Nobody else can get even a smell of it. And there's no institution or agency that'll help a man to do right like the church. It's got the right of way on the straightaway track. It's got the road all surveyed and charted. There's lots o' people in the church that we don't like, and there's lots o' people in the church, no doubt, who don't like us. But take it all round the fact remains that the church people are the best people, not only in the spiritual but in the material sense. Don't forget that.—Colonel John Sneed.

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

Plainfield people endorse our claim.

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Though I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills in the past few years, I value them as highly as ever. My kidneys were weak for years and I suffered severely from backache. I was unable to sleep well and when I arose in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Every cold I caught settled in my kidneys and aggravated my suffering. I doctored but the medicines I used did me no good. At length I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and procuring a supply at Randolph's Pharmacy, I began taking them. They went directly to the seat of my trouble, disposing of the pains and making me feel like a different person."

Mr. Forbes-Robertson's New York season at Maxine Elliott's theatre, which was scheduled to terminate last week, as the end of a month's run, has been so successful in Jerome K. Jerome's symbolic play that the run of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" has been indefinitely prolonged. At every performance since the start, without exception, Forbes-Robertson has played to the capacity of the house, money frequently having been turned away from all parts of the theatre. In consequence of the great demand for seats at the Wednesday and Saturday matinees, it has been decided to give a ninth performance on Election Day, November 2, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee. It is extremely unlikely that the desire generally expressed for Mr. Forbes-Robertson's revival of "Hamlet," can be consummated this visit, owing to the absence of his scenery, properties and costumes, and his great and gratifying triumph in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

What promises to be one of the dramatic sensations of the season is to have its first New York presentation at the Bijou theatre next Monday, November 1st. It is "Idols," a dramatization of W. J. Locke's famous novel of the same name. The play was produced on the road a week ago and so great was its success that it was decided to bring it into New York at once. With this end in view arrangements have been completed between the Walter N. Lawrence Company, the American producers of the play, and the management of the Bijou theatre. "Idols" is the strongest and most dramatic of all the novels written by the famous author of "The Beloved Vagabond," "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" and other popular novels, and tells a gripping, heart-reaching story of modern life and modern people that is well adapted for stage uses.

Kyrle Bellew's "Builder of Bridges" company, now playing at the Hudson theatre in New York, is the champion aggregation of theatrical golfers. Every man in the cast plays the Scottish game and carries his bag of clubs about with him on tour. Edna May's sister, Miss Jane May, who is also in the company, is likewise a devotee of the game.

An American, recently returned from London, reports witnessing a novel application of the overflow meeting idea. Henri Bernstein, author of "The Thief" and of "Israel," which latter play is now running at the Criterion theatre, New York, has been the social lion of the recent London season. One day he was seen lunching tete-a-tete with Lady de Grey at the Ritz while her daughter had a party at the next table, the members of which neither ate nor spoke, but "rubbered" at the brilliant Frenchman.

SENATORS DONT WANT SESSION.

Nine of Them Tell Fort They Oppose Call for "Business Reasons."

Trenton, Oct. 30.—Provided Governor Fort takes the advice of nine of the eleven Republican State Senators who called upon him yesterday, there will be no special session of the Legislature this year. The Senators agreed to take a unanimous stand against the session at a conference which they held in the senate chamber preceding their visit to the Governor.

Just what phases of the question were discussed were not made public, but the nine Senators agreed that "for business reasons" they would urge the Governor not to call the Legislature together.

After reaching this determination the Senators proceeded in a body to the executive chamber, where they were received by the Governor. They entered upon a long discussion of the water diversion question to settle which it had been proposed to call the session. The Governor himself would give no intimation prior to the conference as to his probable course, though it was said he would try to prepare a statement during the day in which he would definitely announce whether there should be a session.

There was some doubt as to the placing of the responsibility for yesterday's gathering of the Senators. Governor Fort disavowed that they were present by his invitation, and President Frelinghuysen declared that he had not called the conference. He asserted that the Senators had come to the State house of their individual volition. The unanimity with which they turned out indicates, nevertheless, that conderted action had been agreed upon from some source.

Central Jersey Land Deal.

New York, Oct. 30.—William J. Crane has sold 5,000 acres of land near Lakewood, N. J., for J. Rhodes to Messrs. Jaggers & Dodson, land developers, who have hitherto operated in Brooklyn and on Long Island. The property is situated about fifteen miles south of Lakewood, the nearest railroad station being Whitings, a junction point for the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Pennsylvania and the Tuckerton railroads. The property has a large frontage on the railroad, and is in the pine woods section, most of it being wooded land well adapted for development.

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATIONS INCLUDE ENGAGEMENTS

Look out tonight. Hallowe'en is here, and the small boy will be in his glory playing pranks and pulling off gates, and performing other stunts that has made the celebration famous in past years. The celebration, as usual has a social side to it, and young folk in all parts of the city and borough are holding parties and festivals in honor of the occasion at which the pumpkin and jack 'o lantern reign supreme.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic H. Martin, of Grove street, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Martin, to Ernest Lyman Pierson, of East Orange. The announcement was made at a Hallowe'en luncheon given by Miss Martin in honor of Miss Inez Tolles. It was a charming affair and the decorations were in harmony with the autumn season.

Fourteen guests were present—Mrs. F. Howard Martin, the Misses Leila Topping, Julia Tolles, Helen and Mabel Trembath, Elizabeth Phillips, Clara Buckle, Rae Willard, Edna Martin and Fanny Beckwith.

Miss Mary Alice Duncan entertained about twenty of her young friends at a delightful Hallowe'en sociable at her home on West Third street last evening. All of the guests were attired in Hallowe'en costumes of false faces and grotesque attire. Games were played and refreshments were served.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel will conduct a Hallowe'en sociable at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Graves, 819 South Second street, tonight. Price of admission will be one dime.

Hallowe'en was observed in an appropriate manner by the Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church last evening. The interior of the church was prettily decorated with cornstalks, pumpkins, jack 'o lanterns and other autumn effects. Games afforded amusement for those in attendance. The committee in charge consisted of the Misses Nettie Bauersachs, Grace and Lucetta Clark, Adele Van Horne, Mary Steiner, Mary Hoagland and David Smalley, Ray Miller, Russell Harden and Benjamin Shuck.

A Hallowe'en social will be held at Warren chapel, Monday night, when a program of interest will be presented. The chapel will be decorated appropriately and all kinds of games will be played. "Uncle Rube" Haayseed will make a special trip from the farm to receive the silver offering.

Chief Kiely, who was once a boy himself he says, said this morning that he wants all the youngsters to have a good time tonight, but it will be up to them and their parents to see that the law is not violated. The police have received orders to arrest any one who is apprehended making depredations on property. "I know, boys will be boys," said the chief, "but they must not inflict any damage to property. If there are any violations in this respect the guilty ones will be severely dealt with."

CIVIL SERVICE LAW PROVES A BENEFIT

The New Jersey Civil Service law, which was fathered in the Legislature of 1908 by Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, and enacted in the closing hours of that law-making session in face of fierce opposition by both Republican and Democratic politicians of great influence, has just rounded out its first year of administration by the bipartisan commission appointed by Governor Fort.

The application of the law during this initial twelve-month period, dating from October 10, 1908, to October 10, 1909, has resulted in putting 11,000 persons employed in the public service in New Jersey under protection of the legal barriers raised to nullify the traditional political war cry "To the victors belong the spoils of office." Of this total, 3,000 are engaged in work for the State government.

The balance is made up of employes engaged in duties for five cities—Jersey City, Newark, Bayonne, South Orange and New Brunswick—which have availed themselves of the option of taking advantage of the law, and one county—Essex. Under the Ackerman law it is compulsory for the State to surround its employes, excepting heads of departments, with civil service restrictions and regulations. With counties and cities the application of the law is optional.

BOROUGH LAD HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM BEING SHOT.

An eight-year-old boy, living in the borough, accompanied by a Boston terrier, almost came to grief this morning on West End avenue, near the bridge. The lad was out for a walk with his dog, and when near the old Cadmus farm, the dog made a raid on a lot of chickens belonging to the occupant, a Mr. Baugbaum, and killed one of them.

This so incensed a member of the family, a woman, that she ran out of the house with a revolver and shot at the dog. The canine displaying an instinct of protection, ran toward the boy as the revolver was discharged, and the latter had a mighty narrow escape. Another shot was fired as the dog disappeared in the bushes, but it missed him. The name of the boy could not be learned.

SNAPPY WEATHER MAKES THINGS HUM IN CITY COURT

Business was brisk in the city court this morning when Judge Runyon disposed of five cases of minor importance. There was a little delay in the judge's arrival, but Chief Kiely, the scribes and court attendants were kept on the merry edge by Lawyer S. S. Swackhamer, who cracked a quantity of passable jokes and told stories which also made the auditor laugh. So everything was very cheery when Judge Runyon turned the first wheel.

Charley Williams, the central figure in local police drama for a quarter of a century or more, faced Judge Runyon for the sixteenth time since 1904. It was the old charge of drunkenness. It was Charley's fate to get a 30-day excursion to Elizabeth.

Mrs. Al Rodier and Mrs. Mary Hallowell, residents of Spooner avenue, were principals in a dispute. Mrs. Rodier, the complainant in the case, charged Mrs. Hallowell with calling her names and raising other disturbances in the neigaborhood. The judge gave Mrs. Hallowell some fatherly advice and discharged her.

James Smith drank too much liquor yesterday and was arrested on West Front street in a helpless condition by Officer Saffron. Smith explained that he was on his way from San Francisco to New York and had not taken a drink of intoxicating liquor since he left the shores of the Pacific until yesterday. Smith explained to the judge that he was taken with a cramp on striking town, and he took the liquor to effect a cure. The judge in accepting the explanation, said: "Smith, you look like a good Smith, you may go."

"Mistah" Sylvester Cuff, a colored garbage collector, faced the judicial throne charged with violating the health ordinance by Health Inspector John O'Brien. Cuff presented credentials that he had been in business for sixteen years and it was the first charge against him. The records showed that Sylvester told the truth and the judge permitted him to depart with a warning.

Cornelius Gleason and Michael Coleman, two Elizabethians, on the way home from Dunellen to Elizabeth, stopped off at Somerset street, and entered Gloecker's saloon, and treated each other several times. Gleason had a dress suit case, which Coleman took during the conversation and boarded a trolley car for Elizabeth. Gleason notified the police and Coleman was apprehended by an officer as the car was going through Westfield. He was brought to this city. This morning he explained that "it was all a mistake." The judge also believed Mr. Coleman and set him free.

The Chancery Court has yet to decide on the merits of the case.

Work of every sort by contract for Atlantic City will be done by union labor, if the bill to be introduced by labor leaders of the city at the next meeting of City Council is successful.
